Gorman and Teller will handle their gangs in harmony. New rules will be opposed. Tariff reform and currency reform will die together if the two gangs can keep the present rules.

A pretty dish, isn't it, to set before a people who call themselves the creators and directors of their government?—St. Louis Republic.

Not An Empty Victory.

Republican indignation has subsided. No Republican tariff measure to restore wages is yet proposed. Nothing is said of a new law to guard the liberties of the colored brethren in the South.

Whether this tameness is an admission that the country is with the Democratic repeals of the two typical Republican laws—the McKinley tariff and the Federal elections statue—or only a wily refusal to show the Republican hand, it is sufficient to prove that the g. o. p. is not possessed with the impatience of moral conviction.

Our Democratic Congress has a session longer to live and yet has accomplished reforms of which Republicans do not care to make issues for a calm discussion. Victory in 1892 was not in vain.—St. Louis Republic.

IMPORTANT FACTS.

If you have dull and heavy pains across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache; then you may be sure you have catarrh; and should (immediately) resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

PAINLESS CHILDBIRTH.

MRS. HUNT.

MRS. FRED HUNT, of Glenville, N. Y., says: "I read about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription being so good for a woman with child, so I got two bottles last September, and December 13th I had a twelve pound baby girl. When I was confined I was not sick in any way. I did not suffer any pain, and when the child was born I walked into another room and went to bed. I keep your Extract of Smart-Weed on hand all the time. It was very cold weather and our room was very cold but I did not take any cold, and never had any after pain or any other pain. It was all due to God and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Compound Extract of Smart-Weed. This is the eighth living child and the largest of them all. I suffered everything that flesh could suffer with the other babies. I always had a doctor and then he could not help me very much, but this time my mother and my husband were alone with me. My baby was only seven days old when I got up and dressed and left my room and stayed up all day."

BEFORE TREATMENT.

"Yes, I have just read the "Golden Monitor," edited by Drs. Kennedy & Kergan, and knowing their high reputation I shall consult them as the last resort." —A Victim.

Young or Middle Aged Man—You have led a gay life or indulged in the vices of early youth. You feel the symptoms stealing over you. Self-abuse, or later excesses have broken down your system. Mentally, physically and sexually you are not the man you used to be or should be. Lustful practices reap rich harvests. Think of the future. Will you heed the danger signals? Are you nervous and weak; despondent and gloomy; specks before eyes; back weak and kidneys irritable; palpitation of heart; dreams and losses at night; sediment in urine; weakened manhood; pimples on face; eyes sunken and cheeks hollow; poor memory; careworn expression; Varicocele; tired in morning; lifeless; distrustful; lack energy, strength and ambition. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you. It will make a man of you and life will open anew. We guarantee to cure you, or refund all money paid. No names used without written consent. $1,000 paid for any case we take and cannot cure!

SNATCHED FROM THE GRAVE!

A Warning From the Living.

Emissions Cured. "At 18 I learned a bad habit. Had losses for seven years. Tried four doctors and nerve tonics by the score, without benefit. I became a nervous wreck. I read who had been cured by Drs. Kennedy & Kergan of a similar disease, advised me to try them. I did so, and in two months was positively cured. This was eight years ago. I am now married and have two healthy children." C. W. LEWIS, Saginaw, Mich.

Varicocele Cured. "Varicocele, the result of early vice, made life miserable. I was weak and nervous, eyes sunken, bashful in society, hair thin, dreams and lo ses at night, no ambition. The 'Golden Monitor' opened my eyes. The New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy & Kergan cured me in a few weeks." I. L. PETERSON, Ionia, Mich.

Syphilis Cured. "This terrible blood disease was in my system for eight years. Had taken mercury for two years, but the disease returned. Eyes red, pimples and blotches on the skin, ulcers in the mouth and on tongue, bone pains, falling out of hair, weakness, etc. My brother, who had been cured of this disease by Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, recommended them. They cured me in a few weeks, and I thank God I consulted them. To-day I am a picture of health, a perfect return of the disease in six years." W. P. Mc. Jackson, Ky.

A Minister Speaks. The Rev. W. E. Sprague of Detroit, says: "I know of no disease so injurious to the mind, body and soul of young men as that of Self Abuse. I have sent many victims of this lustful habit to Drs. Kennedy & Kergan for treatment. I can heartily endorse their New Method Treatment where all else failed."

A Doctor Recommends It. "I know nothing in medical science so efficient for the cure of Syphilis and Sexual Diseases as the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. Many cases which had baffled scores of physicians were cured in a few weeks. I have seen it with my own eyes and know it to be true." T. E. ALLISON, M. D.

Reader—Have you been guilty of the follies of youth? Are you suffering from Impure Blood or any disease of the sexual organs? Are you weak? Do you desire to be a man? Are you contemplating marriage? Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you. Cures Guaranteed or No Pay! Consultation Free!

CULTURE IN CHICAGO.

A Trifling Mistake Has Made Things Unpleasant For a Noted Author.

When the president of that exclusive literary organization, the Twentieth Century club, introduced Dr. A. Conan Doyle to a Chicago audience Friday evening, he committed an error which is likely to give rise to serious complications and to involve Dr. Doyle in embarrassment. Dr. Doyle is not a theologian—at any rate, not a professional theologian. He must have been startled when the Hon. George E. Adams announced him as Canon Doyle. Presumably many of the cultured men and women who were present at the Twentieth Century club reception take it for granted, upon the authority of the club's president, Mr. Adams, that Dr. Doyle is a canon, an associate perhaps of Canon Farrar, and high in the councils of the august church of England. We hear it rumored that Mr. Higinbotham, president of our late ever glorious and ever lamented World's fair, has not yet disabused his mind of the serious error arising from Mr. Adams' blunder; that he addresses Dr. Doyle as Father Doyle, and that at luncheon yesterday he said to his distinguished guest, "Will your reverence ask the blessing?"

We don't know how true it is, but we understand that Dr. Doyle has been invited to "fill the pulpit" in a number of our churches, and that he is besieged with letters addressed variously "Rev. Dr. Doyle," "Rev. Canon Doyle," "The Very Rev. Canon Doyle," etc. Altogether much confusion has been precipitated by the little slip made simply in carelessness by the president of the Twentieth Century club. We think it incumbent upon that leading literary organization of the west to set about correcting the error its executive has innocently sprung upon the public and upon a very distinguished visitor.—Eugene Field in Chicago Record.

SOMETHING OF A MYSTERY.

Four paintings valued at from $15,000 to $18,000 stolen from the residence of the late Frederick L. Ames at North Easton in the summer of 1885 have been recovered by the family within a week, and the recovery has been as mysterious as was the robbery nine years ago. The members of the family are still in the dark in regard to the whereabouts of the pictures all these years. They have no idea as to the identity of the burglar, nor do they know the lawyers who were most concerned in the recovery of the pictures. When the pictures were lost, F. L. Ames offered a reward of $1,500 for their recovery.

Inquiries were made a week ago as to whether the reward was still good. The reply was in the affirmative, and after some mysterious negotiations the pictures were given into the possession of the family and the $1,500 paid to a lawyer in Boston, to be turned over eventually to the man who gave the information. Everybody connected with the transaction was pledged to secrecy.

The circumstances of the recovery in brief are as follows: A man was arrested in New York for murder, and when a certain lawyer was asked to defend him he inquired of the prisoner if he had any money. "No," said he, "but I can give you a pointer so I can get $1,500, and you shall have $500 of it. The rest will have to go to a pawnbroker." In this way negotiations were opened by the New York attorney, who wrote to a certain Boston lawyer, he employing others, so that the identity of the principals could be effectually concealed, and the money was paid over and the pictures returned.—Springfield Republican.

COSTLY INSOLENCE.

A want of politeness is a disadvantage at St. Petersburg. In one of the principal streets in that city is a large fruitshop belonging to a very wealthy merchant, who, besides selling fruit, keeps an elegant restaurant in the same building and occupying a position directly behind the shop.

Two young officers of the guard the other day entered, had lunch together, and after paying their bill both went out. They had, however, only proceeded a short distance when one of them missed his pocketbook, and thinking that he might have left it in the restaurant where he and his friend had lunched returned and asked politely if any one had seen it. The proprietor himself, a millionaire, came on the scene, and after giving expression to some objectionable remarks said that it might well be doubted whether the young officer possessed such an article as a pocketbook.

The officer complained to the police, and ultimately the matter reached the prefect, who, regarding it as an insult to the imperial uniform, caused the restaurant to be at once locked up, the doors sealed and prohibits the proprietor from longer catering to the public taste.—St. Petersburg Correspondent.

The Cat Question Settled.

The question why cats fall on their feet was solved Wednesday to the satisfaction of the French Academy of Sciences. Maurice Levy gave a mathematical demonstration that a cat can by certain movements of its body turn round in the air without external assistance. His theorem is that a natural system can pivot on and by itself, if certain of its points have, in comparison with others, such a degree of liberty as to describe curves without hampering the movement of the other points of the system. A gymnast, writing to The Temps, gives the same explanation. Just as an acrobat, he says, turns a somersault in the air by pressing his chin on his breast and his knees on his thorax, thus making the center of gravity pass from one point to another, so the cat, a born acrobat, is equally expert.—Paris Letter.

DR. RANSOM'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used the Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it, to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of inactitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venereal Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much facts & information and full directions for using will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or six doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, send at once to him to order a supply of it for you. It will be cheaper than for you to order direct as it will less trouble.

THE MASONIC OPENING.

The chicken pie supper given at Masonic Temple Friday evening by the members of the Eastern Star was one of the social events of the season. The elegant rooms were filled with both young and old who, while supper was in progress, passed the time in greeting old and forming new acquaintances. All seemed socially inclined and the time passed only too swiftly. The dining-room for a time was the center of attraction. There were six tables, very prettily dressed, which would seat seventy-two. The corps of attendants were unremitting in their attentions and everything admirably arranged. The ticket sellers, Dolph Heesen and wife, were kept busy, he making change and she dealing out the little souvenirs, consisting of small bows of ribbons, in different colors, which were worn by the guests. There were seventy-two of each, what the tables would seat, and when the tables were ready those having the color called out went down to the dining-room; and the way they did eat was a caution. No other compliment for the supper was necessary than to see the provisions vanish out of sight. The hours for supper were from five to nine, and over four hundred partook of the feast.

Then came the musical and literary program, which proved a delight. The musical part was rendered by the Social Concert Orchestra, which for this occasion consisted of—

Miss Iva Elliott, 1st violin.
John Southwick, 1st violin.
John Curry, 2d violin.
C. M. Woodward, cornet.
Geo. Knapp, cornet.
August Karner, euphonium.
Miss Jennie Root, organist.

Their selections were fine and effectively rendered, and they richly merited the hearty encore they received for each number. The literary part consisted of addresses, readings, and a poem, which were very interesting and called forth spontaneous and generous applause, proving that the committee had chosen wisely and well. We dare not comment on the different productions, for they must have been heard to be fully appreciated. We, therefore, will give the program as presented and leave our readers to bring their imaginations into play. If any were absent they missed a rare treat. While the tables were filled the last time, the orchestra favored those up stairs with some music, playing Grand March "Iron Cross," Isenman, and Schottische, "Good Luck," Piefke. By this time supper was over and the following program was given:

Overture—"Eagle's Nest," Isenman, Orchestra.
Address—P. S. McKinnon.
Reading—Mrs. B. Hurry.
Music—"Egyptian Midnight Parade," Isenman.
Poem—Mrs. E. B. Wood.
Reading—Miss Sena Hosmer.
Music—"Spring Awakening," Bach.
Talk—Rev. C. M. Brown.
Galop—"Amanda," Weisenborn.

After which the farewells were spoken and all homeward turned their steps. Many were the expressions of admiration respecting the new home of the Masonic bodies, so beautiful and convenient, and best of all their own.

The supper netted $100. The formal dedication of the Temple will be Dec. 27th.

PUBLIC INVITATION.

G. A. R. and W. R. C. Installation.

There will be a public Installation of the officers elect of Beers Post, No. 140 Dept. of Mich., and that of the W. R. Corps at Tecumseh, in Sutton's Opera House, on Monday, Jan. 7th, 1895, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. After the Installation there will be a Grand Camp Fire at which worthy and prominent speakers from home and abroad will be invited to take part, interspersed with fine music of old war songs and choice selections of to-day. The Social Concert Orchestra has been engaged and will please all. The Tecumseh Cornet Band will be stationed in front of the Opera House to remind you that "Johnnie Comes Marching Home," etc.

We, the members of Beers Post, believe that the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity will respond to this invitation and again stand by us as you did in 1861 and '65. The main object on our part is to raise some means to defray our Post expenses and our Relief fund for worthy old comrades.

The price of admission will be within the reach of all. A full program will be printed soon, giving names of speakers, etc.

OFFICERS ELECT OF POST AND CORPS.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted in our bereavement.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

THE CURSE OF THE NATION.

What is it? The licensed liquor traffic. And back of this, to uphold it to give it dignity and legitimacy, are men in the strength of their manhood. Men, too, of the church, and alas! men in the pulpits, who, though with word and work, with pen and purse, are doing good service for the gospel at home and for missions abroad, yet by their vote—the most potent act of their lives—they are licensing this traffic and undoing a thousandfold all that can be accomplished in the missionary effort. All who vote for license are accomplices in sending shiploads of liquid fire to heathen countries, to offset and annul the labors of the few self-denying missionaries in the cabin, who are the little leaven that is expected to clarify and uplift this sodden mass of rottenness with which the ship is laden. My heart burns within me when I think of the large unfranchised class of people who have no redress, but who are laboring night and day for temperance, for gospel work at home and abroad, and for the various reforms needed in social life, who see the members of their own dear circle drawn gradually into the net, who are pained as they read what the heathen say in regard to Christian nations for the sake of gain bringing them this cup of bitterness and bondage, the humanity, or rather the womanity, within me cries out against this dreadful injustice and abuse of power, and I, who had never meant to write a word on this subject, feel forced to do so.

Women do not like publicity. They do not desire to dabble in politics, nor would they ever wish to vote if men would legislate against iniquity and make just laws regarding the interests of the governed. But it is not so much a question of politics as of morals, the vices of a nation being born first in the individual, then disseminated in the home, then a contagion in the neighborhood, and so circling out and out until their influence reaches remote boundaries. When I hear Christian voters, and especially those who have those who have had much light, proclaiming publicly that they still belong with the old party, I lose all faith in their righteousness and conclude they are still trying to do the thing which Christ declared impossible—to serve God and mammon. Their offering will be no more acceptable than Cain's was until they learn the humanly divine lesson that Cain had failed to learn, that they are their brother's keeper and that their love of their brother must reach a standard of excellence that will not permit them to harm him for the sake of personal gain or promotion.

Where is the consistency of remaining with a party which for more than thirty years has had the balance of power and kept on making license laws, and through greed of gain both personal and governmental has gone into partnership with this licensed iniquity, which is the hot-bed where are conceived and born every vice which has blighted the world? A man or party too long in power becomes selfish, greedy, corrupt. Too much prosperity silences conscience; there is a gradual consent to the allurements of Satan, until love of applause, love of position, love of money, love of ease, love of pleasure, love of power, love of indulgence, one or all of these gains the mastery. This, in brief, is the history of a man or nation which had the light, but through the temptations which its own vain lusts have created has gone down in darkness, while God all the time has been throwing the life-rope to the struggling, refusing soul of the nation. It is my daily prayer that the eyes of that favored and responsible class who vote may be opened to see the truth and that we all may become consistent members of the body of Christ.

In Peaceful Slumber.

Editor of The Voice—There are some people who make me tired—they jog along like an old cart horse at the stupendous gait of ten miles a day, looking neither right nor left, and do not seem to realize that anything has taken place around them; they would not hear Gabriel's trumpet if it were sounded within an inch of their ears. You may thump and goad them, they will not kick over the traces—it would be unorthodox. They vote the Republican or Democratic ticket this year because they voted it last year; they voted it last year because "father always voted it." They forget father has been dead 15 or 20 years and conditions have changed. Why in these stirring times do they not wake up, get on some style and act as though they had seen a peck of oats within a year?

I have a friend who represents this class. During the late municipal campaign I labored with him several weeks and he finally promised to vote for no license. He is a father, and I believed he would do so for his boy's sake if for no other reason. I met him the afternoon of election day and asked him if he had voted. He replied, "No; I hav'nt the time to spare." I remonstrated with him for I knew he could take the time if he chose. He was obdurate and would not go to the polls. I was vexed and told some plain truths, but he did not wake up even to resent what I said; he simply put his hand on my shoulder and said, "You're right about it, old boy," and slept peacefully once more. What can one do to arouse such people? INONO.

Resolutions of Respect.

At the meeting of Beers Relief Corps 177, of Dec. 17, 1894, resolutions were passed as follows:

Whereas, The Hand of Death has removed from our midst our sister, Mrs. Cora E. McKinney.

Resolved, That while we bow in submission to the Divine Will, we, the ladies of the W. R. C., do sincerely mourn her loss, feeling we have lost an honored member and sincere friend.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to her bereaved husband, placed on file in our corps, and published in the village papers.

DISGUISED CATARRH.

A Stealthy, Insidious, Weakening Enemy to Women.

There are a multitude of women, especially housewives, and all other women obliged to be on their feet constantly, who are wretched beyond description, simply because their strength and vitality is sapped away by catarrhal discharges from the pelvic organs. These women get up in the morning tired, drag themselves through their daily duties tired, only to go to bed at night as tired as before.

Pe-ru-na is such a perfect specific for each case that when patients have once used it they can never be induced to quit it until they are permanently cured. It begins to relieve the disagreeable symptoms at once. The back ache ceases, the trembling knees are strengthened, the appetite restored, digestion made perfect, the dull headache is stopped, and the weakening drains are gradually cured. These results certainly follow a course of treatment with Pe-ru-na.

A valuable illustrated pamphlet of 32 pages, fully describing this class of disorders, including coughs, colds, la grip, and all other climatic diseases of winter, will be sent free to any address by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, Ohio.

THE MODERN MOTHER
Has found that her little ones are improved more by the pleasant laxative, Syrup of Figs, when in need of the laxative effect of a gentle remedy than by any other, and that it is more acceptable to them. Children enjoy it and it benefits them. The true remedy, Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

Old Marley was dead as a doornail, and Scrooge was in his counting house counting out his money when a half-frozen newsboy, seeing him seated there all alone, put his head in at the door and said: "Hay, boss, won't yer buy a paper? All der big Christmus extrys! Look at all dem pictures, boss, for fippence!"

"Get out, you young ragamuffin!" yelled Scrooge so furiously that the boy slammed the door and darted off as if some evil being were pursuing him, while Scrooge bundled his money bags into the big iron safe, put on his great coat, extinguished the solitary gas jet, locked the heavy office door and walked off in the direction of the melancholy lodgings which he called his home. And as he walked briskly along through the frosty night air he growled out maledictions on Christmas and everything pertaining to it, and was particularly strong in anathematizing the Christmas editions of the magazines and newspapers.

"A pretty way to keep Christmas!" he muttered in surly ill-nature, "printing those infernal big wads of paper filled with all sorts of nonsense about plum puddings and Christmas trees, and stockings and presents and all the rest of it. Bought one the other day—it's the last one I ever will buy, too—took it home and tried to read it. 'Christmas in the Coal Mine!' 'Christmas in the Dime Museums!' 'Christmas in Noah's Ark!' 'Christmas in Ninth Street!' 'Christmas in Tenth Street!' It pretty near drove me crazy. See here, boy, if you shove another of those Christmas numbers under my nose I'll have the law on you!" And with this savage remark to an itinerant newsboy Scrooge entered the melancholy tavern where his usual melancholy dinner awaited him.

At twelve o'clock that night Scrooge awoke suddenly from a deep sleep and saw distinctly a shadowy shape advancing noiselessly toward his bed, and as it drew nearer to him he recognized the face of his old dead and gone partner, Marley.

"In life I was like you," said the spirit. "I hated Christmas and all that belonged to the holiday season, and I never bought a special Christmas edition of a magazine or daily paper. Since death claimed me I have been roaming through a vast trackless wilderness of literary horrors as a punishment for my sins. To-night three phantoms will wait upon you and conduct you through some of the scenes with which I have been familiar since I quitted the earth. Take warning from me."

The shade vanished and in its place came another spirit—that of a wizened old man—and it laid an icy hand on Scrooge's arm and said: "Come."

"Who are you?" demanded Scrooge, abjectly.

"The ghost of Christmas Past," replied the figure, solemnly. "Come with me and I will lead you among Yule-tide revelers of a by-gone time, whose faces you will recognize at a glance, for you knew them of old, and I am sure they still live in your memory."

Then the spirit led the way, and in a moment they were far across the sea, in the very heart of merry England, and within the gates of Vieuxtemps park, the seat of Hudibras, nineteenth earl of Hardtack. The brilliant light that streamed through the windows of the old gray castle told of feasting and merry making within, for it was Christmas eve, and the old peer had gathered about him a brilliant company for the festal season.

In a cushioned embrasure in one of the windows Countess Marie de Bon Marche sat toying with a priceless jeweled fan, the gift of an Indian rajah, and exchanging badinage with some of proudest of the nobility of England and continental Europe.

"A rose between two thorns, Mme. la Comtesse," exclaimed Prince Cumoff, with an insouciant smile on his highbred face as he glanced at Lord Chutney and Baron Pilgst, who were sitting one on either side of the famous beauty.

"Always cynical, prince," retorted the countess, with one of her rare smiles, and then added quickly: "But have you heard anything of Trevelyan's latest affaire du coeur? They tell me that the young duchess is quite eprise of him."

"Tant mieux," replied the prince, shrugging his shoulders in true patrician style, "but all the same I think Lord Trevelyan needs a larger dot than the duchess can bring him. You know the old duke backed Clothesrack for the St. Leger last year, and lost so much that really it must have been quite a relief to him to die as he did a month later."

"Not such a relief to him as to her, I fancy," yawned the marquis of Lakewood, the bitterest cynic in all Europe, who was leaning against the superb malachite mantelpiece in his favorite insouciant attitude.

"Have you read Cackletthorp's epic?" broke in one of the Orleans princes, of whom no less than three were in the room at the moment. "The finest hexameter since the 'Aenoid,'" he added, enthusiastically, and his words carried no small weight, for everyone knew that Prince Armand was the scholar of the royal house whose arms he bore, and the owner of the finest private library on the continent as well.

"How much more of this must we listen to?" inquired Scrooge, wearily.

"There are more volumes of this than you can count," replied his companion, "but look over these, and you will see one before whom the princes, dukes and countesses who people this strange world must pale into insignificance."

"What!" exclaimed Scrooge, in amazement, "more gilt edged than these aristocrats? Why, there are more noblemen here than you could find in the Cafe Martin and the Vienna bakery put together. But this newcomer whom they call Beauty, he has a long, tawny mustache and dreamy blue eyes—"

LARGEST LINE OF MOULDING

. . . IN TOWN.

"Yes, and an impudent smile," said the spirit, "said he had won a million feminine hearts since his first appearance in literature—"

"I know him!" shrieked Scrooge, excitedly; "he is an English guardsman. Oh, take me away, so that I may not hear him talk!"

And with this pitiful entreaty on his lips the unfortunate mortal fell back into a chair, a picture of such hopeless woe that his ghastly companion lifted him in his arms and bore him quickly away.

"An hour hence you will be stronger and able to endure more," he whispered to him as he replaced him in his bed. "Meanwhile, sleep soundly."

Scrooge awoke with a start as the clock struck one and found the second phantom standing beside him. His new acquaintance was clad in prosaic modern garments of commonplace texture and pattern, and he wasted no words in bidding Scrooge leave his bed and follow him.

"I am the ghost of Christmas Present," he explained, as they passed through the closed and curtained window into the cold night air. "In me you see the spirit of modern realism, and you will kindly notice that I have buttons on my coat."

As they approached a tall apartment house that overlooked Central park the spirit paused and said: "That cylindrical wooden vessel which we have just passed formerly contained flour, an important ingredient in the composition of bread, an article of food which enjoys great popularity everywhere except in Altruria, where fried air is the principal form of diet. This vessel, having served, and well served, I dare say, the purpose for which it was originally constructed, has now fallen into a condition of desuetude which is far from innocuous, for it is used as a receptacle for melon rinds, potato peel, egg shells, fish bones and other articles of nutriment which, under plutocratic rule, are permitted to go to waste, in spite of the fact that the city is full of starving people."

As they made their way into the apartment house Scrooge's attention was directed by his companion to such interesting details as the stair rods or shining brass, the elevator and the gold band on the cap of the small boy who directed it in its flight.

As they floated up through the great building they passed through many apartments in which families were dining, and the spirit of Christmas Present bade his companion note well the damask table linen, the shining silver, the wine glasses, and above all the deep significance which lurked behind even the most trivial remarks made by the diners. In one of these apartments they found a man of distinguished appearance talking in low, earnest tones to a beautiful woman who sat beside him and whose hand he held in his own. Her lips trembled and her blue eyes brimmed over with tears as she listened to his pleading. Scrooge, who was beginning to weary of the petty trivialities which his companion extolled as realism, wanted to linger in this room, but the spirit hurried him along.

Then they went up a story higher, and found themselves in a dining-room in which four persons, two men and two women, were eating their Christmas turkey, talking the while with much animation and earnestness.

"I am sure," said the younger of the two women, "that I shall miss Boston dreadfully, more on account of our old back yard and the symphony concerts than anything else. It was such a nice place for a dog to play in—that dear old back yard—and then there were never any concerts like the symphonies. Besides New York is really too big and busy and noisy to take any sort of comfort in. I told Bartwick so when he first talked of coming here, and he wouldn't believe it, but I guess he does now. Don't you, Bart?"

She looked at him as she spoke with a sort of mute appeal in her eyes and a suggestion of deferential repose in her manner. "Well, Hat, I don't know but what you're about half right," said the young husband, speaking with the hesitancy of a New Englander who has fully made up his mind on a subject; "you see, we miss the hominess of Boston, the South church, the big music hall, Bunker Hill monument and the state house. There's nothing here that can take the place of such landmarks as those in the hearts of the true Bostonese. Besides I get lost in New York when I try to walk on the straight broad streets, and I can't get elbow room enough in these narrow, stuffy flats."

"I hope you have observed," whispered the spirit, "that there are no bay windows in the inside rooms of these New York apartments."

"Of course there are none," rejoined Scrooge, "there are other apartments built right against them and a window would command a view of nothing but a brick wall."

"In Altruria," said the spirit, in a superior tone, "there are only two houses to the block and two windows to each room."

"Property must be valuable there, but don't you know any people who are a trifle more lively than these? It seems to me that I have heard this discussion about Boston and New York once or twice before."

"Hush!" said the ghost, impressively; "this is realism, and lively people, as you call them, would feel sadly out of place here."

Then the conversation at the dinner table was taken up by the host, a native New Yorker with white hair and a dark mustache, who remarked:

"Well, there's one thing I like about New York, and that is Wall street, when stocks are moving. I was long on Lackawanna last week—more's the pity—but Charley Opdyke cleaned up a matter of ten thousand by keeping on the right side of the market. Now, Bartwick, I'll give you a tip on Manhattan Elevated that you can paste in your hat—"

"Come," said the ghost, taking his companion by the arm.

"Hold on!" cried Scrooge, trying vainly to cling to his chair, "it's not often that I get a pointer from the spirit world, and this one ought to be worth something."

"Come," repeated the spirit sternly, as he dragged him away, "if you made money from that pointer, as you call it, you would not earn it; it would simply be taken away from somebody else. In Altruria stock gambling is unknown."

"Then New York is good enough for me," retorted Scrooge, as the two disappeared through the front wall of the building.

Scrooge was wide awake when the clock struck two, and the third of his ghostly visitors began to materialize on the moonlit floor. Slowly the phantom approached, and as it came near him, Scrooge saw that it wore the shape of a heavy-jawed, smooth-faced man, clothed in evening dress and wearing long hair that fell down over his shoulders in the matted, unkempt locks which are the fruit of the finest tonsorial art and are designed as a safe and harmless substitute for genius.

The spirit crossed the room with leaden footsteps and an air of such extreme physical exhaustion as to convey the idea that he had just returned from a hard day's work.

"I am weary and no mistake," said the spirit, for all the world as if Scrooge had voiced the thought uppermost in his mind, "and so would you be if you were in my place, for I have been making brilliant British epigrams all day long and my back is almost broken with toil. But come with me, for I am the ghost of Christmas Yet to Come, and I have much to show you."

"Whither are you taking me?" demanded Scrooge weakly as they floated across the city and far out over the gray tossing sea.

"We are going to the land where the Dodo dwells and the yellow aster blooms," rejoined the spirit sternly.

"What! That woman who is fanny at breakfast?" exclaimed his horror-stricken companion.

"The same," replied the inexorable one, pointing, as he spoke, to the long, gray coast line that lay stretched out before them.

Descending into the heart of a rich rolling country, they entered a well-kept English park, passed without any difficulty through the halls of an Elizabethan manor house and found themselves in a brilliantly lighted dining-room in which a large company was assembled. At the head of the table sat the host, a tall, powerfully built man, on whose face was the awful pallor that presages an untimely end.

"Why is that strong man doomed?" whispered Scrooge.

"Listen," said the spirit, sternly, "and you will discover."

At the other end of the table a young woman whose aristocratic lineage was revealed by her large splay feet and atrocious taste in dress, was keeping her neighbors in roars of laughter with her "bright" conversation.

"How nice it would be if one could have a tail to wag when one felt happy!" she exclaimed, with a mock gravity that sent her listeners off into convulsions of mirth. "Jack, how would you like a tail like Fido's?" she screamed suddenly at the top of her voice. "I'm sure Grantie would like one, too, but she wouldn't have wagged it this morning when the man brought her the poached eggs, would you, Grantie, dear?"

"The idea of his bringing me poached eggs when I was composing a symphony," cried the other bright conversationalist of the party, a giddy young thing in white muslin, "grilled bones and brandy and soda are what one needs when one is going to compose a symphony, but poached eggs suggest nothing better than a sonata. then, you know, he actually dropped one on the floor and—"

"The ship lay two and I got one," shrieked Dodo, and the whole company joined her in peals of laughter, while poor Chesterfield looked on with an expression of martyrdom on his face that seemed to transfigure it.

"Spirit!" cried Scrooge, in agony, "take me away from these clever women or I shall go mad!"

But his companion merely shook his head and bade him listen on to the bitter end. As he spoke the scene changed to a ballroom in which the gifted Dodo was the principal figure, clad in "long clinging folds of diaphanous, almost luminous texture"—whatever that or those may be—and with her were many of the dinner party, including Prince Baldneck, a member of the Austrian nobility, and a brilliant, accomplished man of the world, one who was as skillful and easy in the use of the fork as if he had been born an Anglo-Saxon.

The prince was looking on admiringly as Dodo led the cotillion in company with Lord Tommy Lightfoot, the most accomplished, graceful dancer in England, and the one native-born Briton who knew how to reverse—which novel form of gyration he exhibited at least once every three minutes, to the awe and edification of all beholders. "Grantie" was there also, going about the room and repeating her witticisms about the poached eggs and the symphony till even the cleverest members of the smart intellectual set paled before her matchless epigrammatic gifts.

"Who is that?" demanded Scrooge of his ghostly companion, as they turned to leave the room, "and why that expression of weariness and unrest on his deeply-lined features?"

"That is the creator of Dodo," replied the spirit, solemnly, and added, with a shade of pity in his stern voice: "Poor man, his life has been one long, hard struggle with English syntax, and although he has mastered some of the parts of speech the subjunctive mood has laid him low at last. But, come, for I have other things to show you."

They floated out into the clear, frosty night and swept on across the field and horizon till they found themselves in the fog and smoke of London town, and then they were in the luxuriantly-furnished supper room of a small and exclusive clubhouse. At a table drawn up by the open fire two young men in evening dress and wearing piebald chrysanthemums in their buttonholes were eating their Christmas dinner. Both were long haired, smooth shaven and of pallid complexion, and the pair exhaled an agreeable atmosphere of complacent imbecility of a superior quality.

There were but few other diners present, and Scrooge noticed that they were huddled together at the other end of the room and wore looks of unutterable weariness.

"Ah! Absinthe," said one of the young men, "how charmingly wicked and epigrammatic you are to-night! Let us go on forever eating strawberries and saying witty things. I could listen to you forever."

"Yes, Clarence," replied his companion; "I know that I am brilliant, but I cannot help it. I must be witty or die. Inconsistency, thou art a jewel. The rose is blue, the violet blue—it comes easy to me, you observe?"

"Beautiful!" cried Clarence, rolling his eyes in ecstasy. "Do it again, Absinthe! Do it again!"

"But you are witty yourself at times," rejoined Absinthe, condescendingly. "I have known you to play a very pretty tune on the copy book proverbs 'ere this. Cannot you utter a few of your exquisite subtleties now? Let me listen once more to your divine mot about the door which was not a door because it was ajar, or else—"

"Spirit!" cried the agonized Scrooge, "lead me hence, for I can bear it no longer," and the two receded from the room just as a waiter brought in a tray of cotton wads for the other diners to stuff into their ears.

Yes, there was his bed, and there was all the familiar furniture of the room, and as he raised his window to look out the sound of boyish voices crying the morning papers reached his ears. He was wide awake, and his name was Scrooge and he was in the good old town of New York and not roaming through the sorrow-laden fields of fiction.

That very morning he bought every Christmas magazine and newspaper that he could lay his hands on, and from that day to this no man has ever heard him utter a word against timely holiday literature.

A LITTLE TOO GROTESQUE.

The Rumor That Mr. Gladstone Was About to "Enter the Church."

The story about Mr. Gladstone's supposed intention to enter the church at the age of 85 might be said to exhaust the utmost capacity of credulity. Mr. Gladstone's renewed interest in theology has been vigorously attested since his retirement from public life by copious writings on abstruse points of doctrine, but the rumor about his "taking orders" is a little too grotesque even for the contents bills of the evening papers.

There is a certain attraction, however, in the idea of Mr. Gladstone as a curate eclipsing his vicar and overawing the bishop of his diocese. To him preferment ought to be rapid, and either Lord Rosebery or Lord Salisbury would be only too glad to make him archbishop of Canterbury at the earliest possible moment.

Having been the most tremendous personal force in politics for 30 years, Mr. Gladstone might easily become the most formidable primate since the days of Becket. Nothing is impossible to this marvelous man, but all the same we do not expect him to submit himself to ordination.—London Illustrated News.

It is midnight is passed.
And the Christmas is here.
O solemn bells, ring
Through the night hushed and clear!
As angelic hosts brought the tidings of old,
Let now the glad news by thy deep tongues be told
O joy to the world,
Forget sorrow and fear.
The midnight is passed,
And the Christmas is here.

The morning has dawned,
And the Christmas is here:
Hand clasps brother hand,
Heart to heart draws more near.
The incense of pines fills the homes of the land.
In God's house behold now a worshiping band
Because long ago
The dear Christ-child was born.
The sunrise to-day
Brings the world Christmas morn.

The evening shades gather.
Still Christmas is here;
Draw closer the curtains
While fires burn clear.
The joy of bestowing transfigures each face.
The heart is an altar, a thrice holy place.
O joy to the world,
Heaven's raptures appear!
The midnight draws on,
And the Christmas is here.

—Clara Louise Burnham, in Youth's Companion.

IT was a wild and blustering Christmas eve, and as Mrs. Catherwood faced the stinging blast she half regretted that she had not given orders for her carriage to come for her.

The Orphanage stood upon the outskirts of the town, and it was a long walk from there to her beautiful home; and yet she had lingered after the Christmas tree and the distribution of the gifts, while the other patronesses had hurried away to their homes preparations for their own children, until now the wintry daylight was beginning to grow dim.

Mrs. Catherwood shivered and wrapped her furs more closely around her, as she thought of the warmth and light she had left behind her, with the music of happy childish voices.

Mrs. Catherwood was young and beautiful and a widow. She had been an old man's darling, and in return for her faithful affection and companionship, her dying husband had enriched her with all his wealth.

In the second year of her widowhood she had been persuaded to reenter society, and now for two seasons she had reigned a queen. She was considered a woman to be envied, and yet today the hollowness of her life had come home to her with overwhelming force, and she felt herself more desolate than even those little waifs whose happiness in their Christmas festival she had just been witnessing.

There was a great void in her life, and she felt the need of some ennobling purpose, and of a strong sustaining arm to lead her on to better things than the frivolities which seemed to hem her in on every side.

If anyone had been at hand to tell her that her life was not at all frivolous, as her numerous charities could testify, her perfect lips would have curled in scorn and she would have made the honest answer: "My charities are fashionable fads: perhaps they may be the means of helping others, but they do not help me."

Mrs. Catherwood had left the high road now for the quiet footpath across the level stretch of open meadow which lay between the orphanage and the town. It was a favorite walk of hers, beautiful in spring or early autumn, and a place where her heart seemed to throb in unison with nature; but it was cold and dreary enough to-day. The western sky gleamed coldly upon her, and the shadows had already begun to gather over the town. The biting wind came sweeping across the meadow in violent gusts, and now and again she was obliged to stop and wait until its momentary fury had been spent.

But in spite of the cold and the dreariness, Mrs. Catherwood seemed in no hurry to reach her home. In truth there was a question upon her mind which she must decide clearly for herself before she could give her answer to another, and for that reason she had chosen to take this solitary walk.

In all probability that "other" was even now awaiting her in her own drawing room with all a lover's impatience.

Harold Whitney had been as Mrs. Catherwood's shadow for many months, and his attention had pleased and flattered her until she found that she could no longer keep him at arms' length.

The decisive question had been upon her lips the night before, when the entrance of another visitor had given her this short and welcome respite. But as he tenderly pressed her hand at parting, he had murmured: "To-morrow at dusk I will come for my answer, for my priceless Christmas gift."

C. F. PATTERSON, PROPRIETOR

But was he the man to help her upward to the broader, nobler life for which she yearned, and which she found so hard to reach? Alas, she knew too well that all her higher aspirations would soon wither in his keeping; and yet—it was so sweet to be loved, and she was so alone!

A wilder gust of wind came rushing down upon her, and almost took her off her feet. She caught a low-hanging branch to steady herself, and at that moment she saw a tiny bareheaded child, hurrying, stumbling, actually blowing toward her, a helpless thing in the power of the boisterous blast.

Mrs. Catherwood, put out her arms, as, frightened and exhausted, the little one dropped at her very feet. In an instant Mrs. Catherwood was kneeling over her. Unfastening her costly furs, she wrapped them around the little shivering form, and tied a handkerchief over the wind-tossed curls.

That the child had strayed away and was lost was as evident as that she was perishing with cold, and without an instant's hesitation, Mrs. Catherwood lifted her up and hastened upon her way.

This piercing cold which her warm furs had before kept from her now stung her kneenly, and her arms ached under their unaccustomed burden; but the words: "One of these little ones"—"in My name"—"ye have done it unto Me"—seemed ringing in her ears, and awakened a new warm throbbing in her heart.

She hastily gained the town and found her way to the nearest chemist's, where the child was soon revived. Then, having sent a description of her to the police, Mrs. Catherwood carried the child away to her home, where she found her impatient suitor awaiting her.

"At last!" he exclaimed. Then catching sight of a furry bundle in her arms, he added: "In the name of common sense, what have you there?"

Mrs. Catherwood's lovely eyes were very bright, and there was an unusual flush upon her cheeks.

"My Christmas gift," she said, her low, clear voice vibrating with emotion. "A little child; and if she is not claimed—"

"You will put her in your pet orphanage, of course."

"No, I should like—to keep her for my own," Mrs. Catherwood said, softly, with a quick, upward glance.

"Mrs. Catherwood—Estelle! You cannot be serious; a child of common parentage! She will be claimed, of course; but if she should not be—although I love you—I could never countenance such a thing. You must choose between the child and me."

Her eyes were still fixed upon him, seriously, ponderingly; then she looked down at the child sleeping now upon her breast. "I am afraid she will be claimed," she said, very quietly, "but in any case, Mr. Whitney, I have made my choice. I thank you for the honor you have done me, but—good night!"

The child soon wakened, and Mrs. Catherwood, receiving ready sympathy and help from her kind old companion friend, fed her wee guest her supper, and tried to learn her name. But the little one only laughed and stretched out her chubby hands to the blaze. "Baby," she said, and "pitty, pitty," as the soft coal flame flared bright. Then Mrs. Catherwood, with gentle unaccustomed hands, gave her a warm refreshing bath before the fire, and had just sung her to sleep and laid her in her own soft bed, when word was brought that some one was waiting below to see her.

Descending with a new and almost nervous dread, Mrs. Catherwood found an officer with a woman who had come for the missing child. Not one of her own, the woman explained, but the child of a young couple—strangers in the town, who had lived in the house with her, and had died within a few days of one another the month before. She had taken the child herself then, because, poor little soul! there had been no one else to care for her.

"Let me keep her," said Mrs. Catherwood, "and I will bring her up as if she were my own."

So it was settled. And then, with a new sweet feeling of tenderness in her heart, Mrs. Catherwood left the sleeping little one in her companion's care, and went out, accompanied by her maid, to buy some little necessary garments and toys for her Christmas treasure.

She saw no familiar faces among the throng that crowded the stores that night. But dainty Mrs. Catherwood found actual pleasure in mingling for once with this good-natured struggling mass of unknown Christmas shoppers.

It was late before she reached her home, and she was hastily opening her various packages, and beginning to fill the little stocking—the first child's stocking she had ever filled—when her companion summoned her in alarm. The child had been croupy all the evening, she said, and was now rapidly growing worse.

The labored breathing and little flushed face frightened Mrs. Catherwood, and, late as it was, she sent at once for her physician. Almost immediately word was brought back to her that the old doctor had gone away to spend Christmas, and that Dr. Harmon was to fill his place in case of need. But as Dr. Harmon lived quite at the other end of the town, the messenger had returned to know if she wished him summoned that night.

One look at the suffering child and Mrs. Catherwood's sharp struggle with herself was ended with the quick answer: "Yes; ask him to come at once."

And now at midnight she was anxiously awaiting the arrival of the man she most dreaded and disliked.

The young physician who stood so high in his profession, was the one who had been too honest and sincere ever to flatter her. He had resolutely kept aloof from her, even though she had once stooped so far as to try to win attention from him.

But she had never forgotten the quiet scorn of the condemnation he had once uttered in her hearing of the frivolous lives of society women and their ill-considered charities which so often did more harm than good.

She had chosen to give a personal application to his words, and to ignore him after that whenever they chanced to meet; but nevertheless his words had rankled in her, and had sown the seeds of discontent at her own unsatisfying life.

At last he was at her side. His quick glance had instantly taken in all the details of the room; the suffering child, the beautiful, anxious woman, the little cast-off garments, the new ones still unfolded on a chair, the tiny half-filled stocking, and scattered toys, and it was not hard for his practised eye to read the sweet and pathetic story that they told.

Together they bent above the little sufferer, and together they worked over her, fighting for her life. It was a sharp hand-to-hand struggle with death that night, but in the gray dawn of Christmas morning their victory was won, the child's labored breathing became easier, and as her pitiful suffering ceased she had fallen into a quiet, refreshing sleep.

"All danger is over now," the doctor said, and "Thank God!" Mrs. Catherwood murmured from her heart.

"You don't know how I feel," she went on, brokenly. "She only came to me last night, but it seems as if she had been sent—a Christmas gift—to be my very own."

Dr. Harmon took Mrs. Catherwood's hand in both his own and seemed to forget to let it go.

"Let me thank you for the confidence that you have shown in me tonight," he said. "I misunderstood you once, and you have judged me even more harshly than I judged you; but you are a noble woman. It is Christmas morning now," he went on, "and with that large charity you have shown towards this little child, will you not give me the privilege of learning to know you better, and of overcoming your dislike to me—if I can?"

A HELPLESS THING IN THE POWER OF THE BOISTEROUS BLAST.

On Christmas Night.

The Christmas stars glow overhead,
The Yule log on the hearth flares bright.
"Good will and peace to all the world,"
She saith, "this holy night."

Her hands the curtains wide have drawn.
"Oh, Yule-tide fire, shine bright," quoth she,
"The wanderer led here by thy beams—Thrice welcome shall he be!"

"On Christmas night," the good wife saith,
The children listen in their play—
"Let no wayfarer pass our doors
Lest Christ should come this way."

Her fancy—is it? Well, who knows?
Her woman's eyes are quick to see
Christ's meaning through a beggar's rags—
"Ye did it—unto me."

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Note our combination offers.

The Armory will be a bower of beauty Christmas evening.

I. P. Keyser spent Sunday at home, turning to Jackson on Monday.

A. B. Cotton, of Chicago, was in town Saturday.

We have the best combinations ever been presented to our patrons. Read them.

Of course you will attend the Xmas party to be given by the young men at the Armory.

S. G. Stacy gave his Snap Shot Story the World's Fair Monday, Tuesday and last evening at Norvell.

Mrs. T. D. McKinney, of Detroit, visited her mother, Mrs. M. A. Freeman, from Saturday until Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Normau P. Watson, C. F. Clark and A. H. St. John of Clinton, were in town Friday.

George W. Doarn, of Philadelphia, arrived Tuesday for a short visit with Frank Bryan's and J. D. Shull's families. Mr. Doarn is a friend of Waller Adams.

Ed. Williamson, and force, took in and dressed over 40,000 pounds of poultry after 1 p. m. Friday. Here is a record difficult to beat when conveniences are considered.

Mr. Fred Aldrich and wife of the Central House, entertained two aunts last week, Mrs. Ed. Bigford of Tower City, Dakota, and Mrs. W. Barnard of Grand Rapids.

The Michigan Academy of Sciences will hold their first annual meeting in the Speaker room of the Capitol at Lansing next week, Dec. 26th and 27th. An excellent program has been prepared, and it is hoped that this new society will have a good send off.

Hudson Masons will dedicate their new temple on the night of the 26th inst. and the Tecumseh Masons will present their new building to the public on the following night. It is expected that a large number will be present at both places from Adrian.—Evening Telegram.

Among those from away who took supper at the Masonic Temple Friday night were A. B. Cotton, of Chicago, Mr. Bresie of Decatur, Ill., and friend of A. Johnson of Logansport, Ind., Edi- Mat D. Blosser and wife, Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Conklin, and Mrs. Charles Winson of Manchester, Jas B. House, wife and daughter Jennie and Miss Myra Clark of Clinton.

The committee having charge of the Christmas party to be given at the Armory, December 25th, have completed their arrangements and this annual party will equal, if not excel, all previous ones. They have engaged Jackson's orchestra, consisting of eight pieces, to furnish the music which will delight all. Owing to there being no gallery, spectators will be admitted only on Dance tickets.

We had occasion to call at the Stimpson's Scale Company's Plant the other day and were surprised to behold the transformation which had taken place in their quarters. Although by no means complete, they are rapidly making the necessary changes and when done they will have a model institution in a business of that character. They have a large force of skilled workmen, who are pushing things right along. It will not be many days before the works will be in full blast, when we will be to give out readers a full description of each department.

Dr. Parkhurst has entered into a contract with The Ladies' Home Journal by which he will practically become a regular editorial contributor to that magazine for some time. The great New York preacher says that he has for a long time past been desirous of saying some very necessary things to women and he now announces that he will say them through these articles. He will take up all the social, moral and equality questions which are so uppermost in the minds of women to-day. Dr. Parkhurst will begin this work at once, the first article appearing in the next issue of the Journal.

Merry Christmas to all.

Rev. H. A. Smith was in Chicago over Sunday.

Christmas packages are already beginning to flood the postoffices.

Fred Aldrich, wife and son visited his people in Brooklyn over Sunday.

Doc. White and Ham Niblack, of Clinton, were on our streets Tuesday.

Hobart Grempleaf, of Addison, visited Dr. Steinhaff and family, the last of the week.

Dr. O. Q. Jones was called to Brooklyn Saturday by the sudden illness of his father.

J. B. Coller will give a "Graphophone Concert" at Holloway Hall next Saturday evening.

Len. W. Kimball, of Clinton, was here Monday and of course called at the HERALD office.

Mrs. C. A. Stacy started this morning for Elgin, Ill., to spend the holidays with her son George.

G. H. Winship, of Adrian, is putting the slate roof on Mr. H. B. Eaton,s new residence east of town.

Mrs. Mary O. Fistler, Brooklyn, filled the Baptist pulpit Sunday morning as Rev. Mr. Smith was away.

Wm. Bass and wife, of Lawrence, Mich., are the guests of his sister, Mrs. C. C. Tefft and family, for a few days.

We had the pleasure of shaking hands with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Fisk, of Clinton, yesterday. They were doing a little shopping.

The mush and milk social at Frank Bryan's Tuesday evening was very pleasant and the exchequer increased over six dollars.

The last number of the Coiled Spring Hustler is on hand, filled to the brim as usual with matter pertaining to the Page wire fence.

Many of the show windows in town present a very beautiful appearance. They will open a man's heart and purse strings if anything can.

Among the large number of Clinton people here Saturday we chatted with Louise VanDeMark, Mrs. Madison Lane Louise Platte, Florence House and Geo. Wilson.

Geo. N. Chidester has received notification of his appointment as day watchman at the State Capitol at Lansing, and expects to leave some time next week.

Our combination offers and club list are given in full this week on another page. Our readers will find it to their advantage to post themselves on the terms offered.

The Co. C boys are still making improvements at the Armory. More excavations have been made in the basement, to enlarge the room connected with the kitchen.

A. L. Millis has just received a Standard dictionary, of which he is justly proud. Through his courtesy we were permitted to look it over and we can safely say, it excels all that have preceded it. It is complete in all respects and is an Encyclopedia as well.

The last issue of the Hudson Gazette was the annual holiday edition, and it eclipsed all former efforts in that direction. It is a double sheet or sixteen page paper, got up in book form with cover, and filled to the brim with Christmas reading and holiday advertising. It is a credit to our western neighbor.

Olivet will have an endowed chair of Christian Evidences and Applied Christianity, and nearly $10,000 has been raised already in memory of Prof. Estabrook. One lumberman of state renown gives a princely sum because the deceased professor once administered a sound thrashing to him when he most needed it.

A short time ago Leon Manly, the genial errand boy at the Lake Shore offices was scratched in the face by a puppy. Nothing was thought of it at the time, but soon his face began swelling and he has had quite a serious time. At present he is gaining nicely. Eddie King is filling his place during his forced absence.

We inadvertently neglected to make mention last week of the Charity edition of the Adrian Telegram, which came out on the 10th. It was a double sheet printed on book paper, and edited wholly by a committee of ladies appointed for that purpose. The proceeds of the sales were devoted to charity. Both typographically and editorially it was a decided credit to the Telegram.

The Michigan Academy of Sciences was organized last June for the promotion of fellowship among scientific men, and for scientific research in the State. It is hoped that all people directly or indirectly interested in the objects of the society will become members. At the Lansing meeting, Dec. 26 and 27, organization will be completed. It is probable that the initiation fee will be placed at one dollar. There are no other limitations to membership. Fees do not become due till after the Lansing meeting. Let everyone who will aid this society by becoming a member, send his, or her, address immediately to the secretary, Frederick C. Newcombe, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Read our new club list.

Walter C. Burridge was in Blissfield on business this week.

The public schools will close to-morrow for the holiday vacation.

A. J. Lee, of Britton, was a caller at the HERALD office yesterday.

B. S. Scudder, of Macon, has a new card in this week's paper. Read it.

Mrs. Wm. C. Rogers and daughter, Mrs. Tate, of Clinton, are visiting here to-day.

Avery & Co. have something to say about Christmas presents in a new card this week.

Mrs. Sebastian Kirchgessner, of Deerfield, was visiting Tecumseh relatives the first of the week.

There will be a meeting of the Orient at I. O. O. F. hall next Wednesday evening—conferring degrees.

Miss Francesco Carroll, of Clinton, was having her eyes tested for glasses at Kirchgessner's yesterday.

The shortest day of the year will be next Saturday, and then the days will begin to lengthen and cold go frigidward.

The third annual farmer's institute is to be held at Morenci, January 9th and 10th. A fine programme is being prepared.

The cards are out announcing the marriage of Prof. I. D. Loree, of Lawrence, Mich., and Miss Gertrude Fisher, of our city, Jan. 1st., 1895.

The Ladies Social of the Universalist church will give their regular supper at the church on Friday afternoon, Dec. 28th. Supper from 5 to 7.

The Orient society held a pleasant session Monday evening and four candidates were instructed in the work of the order. They were delighted with it.

Stoughton Strong visited Clinton yesterday. As Mr. Strong leaves town very seldom for even a day, it must have been an unusual attraction that drew him there.

Avery & Co. bought a nice lot of apples yesterday of our old friend, Ansel Witherell of Clinton. Mr. W. is about 80 years old and is more active than many who are much younger.

P. S. Hendershot, advance agent for J. B. Coller's Graphophone Concerts called on the HERALD to-day. Mr. Coller will favor Tecumseh folks with an entertainment in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coffin, of Albion, were called here by the death of Mrs. C's. sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Hodges. Rev. Eugene Coffin, a nephew, and wife, of Trenton, Mich., also attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Arrington J. Douglass, of Merriam Park, Minnesota, visited Deacon Jas. Heck and family several days the past week. Mrs. Douglass is a neice of Mr. Heck. They left yesterday morning.

Orr & Temple have on sale the following celebrated remedies manufactured by Foley & Co., of Chicago, whose ads. will appear in our first issue in January: Foley's 50 cent Sarsaparilla, Cough Cure and Worm Tablets.

We noticed on our streets yesterday the following from Clinton: Mr. and Mrs Chris Schmidt, Mrs. H. W. Daniels, Mrs. Herman Halladay, Mrs. C. M. Green and Florence, Frank Wallinger, John H. Perry, Clarence Mills and Frank Parker.

Elizabeth, wife of Eugene Hodges, who has been a great sufferer from Brights disease, died at her residence Friday, Dec. 14th., aged 48. Mrs. Hodges has long been a resident here and was well known. The funeral was held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30. J. P. Varner, pastor of the M. E. church, of which she was a valued member, officiating.

Subjects for next Sunday at the Universalist Church: A. M.—Holy Communion; P. M.—"Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Young people's meeting at 6 p. m. Sunday school at 12 m. Holy Communion after the morning service.

John Gordon, who lives just north of A. P. Coddington's, died very suddenly last evening, about half past seven, from heart failure. When discovered to be ill, Doctor Jenkins was summoned but he expired before the doctor reached there. Mr. Gordon came to Tecumseh from Ireland 15 years ago. He was 82 years old. The funeral will be held at the house to-morrow at 2 p. m., Rev. C. M. Brown officiating.

That our readers might have some idea of the importance of the poultry business in this vicinity, we have endeavored to collect the requisite information and through the courtesy of our live poultry dealers, C. E. Williamson and L. D. Dewey, we yesterday obtained the number of pounds dressed by these two firms for the preceeding eight days. Mr. Williamson dressed about 40,000lbs. or two tons, which went to Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Dewey sent to the same place 14,279 lbs. and to Brooklyn, N. Y., 31,110 lbs., making a grand total of 85,389 lbs., or over 4 1-4 tons. This will show what poultry business in Tecumseh is.

To-day—Dec. 20th—the thermometer registered 111 degrees in the sun, at the Lilley House.

A. D. Gilmore, of Blissfield, attended the meeting of the directors of The Tecumseh State Savings Bank yesterday.

Orr & Temple perfumed the rooms in Masonic Temple Friday last with that delightful new perfume, called Eastern Star. It was very appropriate for the occasion and thoughtful in our enterprising druggists.

Quite a number from here expect to attend the play at Clinton to-night, given by the Hillarity Company for the benefit of the base ball team. The reputation of this local company is well established, and you may be assured that Rio Grande will be well presented.

Dedication of the Masonic Temple.

The dedicatory ceremonies of the "New Masonic Temple" will be held at the Temple, on Thursday evening next, December 27th, 1894. A "Banquet" will be served at the Armory—immediately after the ceremonies at the Temple. Only members of Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, and invited Master Masons, are expected to participate in the dedicatory ceremonies. All invited guests are expected to be present and partake of the banquet. The ladies of the Eastern Star are invited to the program after the banquet, consisting of music, toasts, etc. BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM. Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

Epps's Cocoa

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THIS MAN EATS GLASS.

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—Local physicians have completed a novel experiment on Daniel Lake, a middle-aged Irishman, who recently came to the notice of Dr. E. L. Shurley. After a minute examination had been made of the man's mouth and throat with mirrors and electric lights he was given a common glass chimney. With one crunch he bit off a piece of glass about the size of a playing card, chewed it with apparent gusto, and then with the aid of a little water swallowed the whole mass. In this way he completed the work of eating the entire chimney. A thorough examination then showed that his mouth, throat and tongue were without any signs of cut or injury, and the man declared he suffered no inconvenience internally. Then the doctors thrust long pins through his arms and into his temples without drawing blood. Lake said he suffered no pain. The only part of his anatomy that is sensitive to such punctures is the lining of the eye. Dr. Shurley attributes the man's singular physical condition to a defect in one of the great nerves of the spine which cuts off all sensation of the skin and mucous surfaces.

"KID" LAVIGNE'S FIST.

It Administers a Blow Which Results in Bowen's Death.

SAGINAW, Dec. 17.—Residents of this city were shocked on learning of the death of Andy Bowen, the pugilist, as a result of his fight with George Lavigne, at New Orleans, Friday night. Lavigne is a resident of Saginaw and is quite popular. The fight had been in his favor throughout and in the eighteenth round he struck Bowen on the point of the jaw, knocking him down. His head struck the flooring of the stage with great force and he was carried from the ring in an unconscious condition. Bowen died Saturday morning without having recovered consciousness. Lavigne was arrested, but was liberated on furnishing bail in the sum of $10,000. He expresses great grief at the sad result of the contest, but feels that Bowen's death was due to his fall, and not to the force of the blow administered. Lavigne's mother has been kept in ignorance of his predicament. He always sent her the greatest portion of his winnings in the prize ring.

AFTER THE RELICS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15.—A constituent of Senator Patton (Mich.) wrote to him recently informing him that the Twentieth Michigan regiment lost its colors at Petersburg, Va., but that he had lately heard that they were in the war department in this city. He asked the senator to make some inquiry into the matter with the view of securing the return of the flags to the survivors of the regiment. Through the courtesy of the adjutant-general Senator Patton inspected the room where the flags are kept in the top story of the Army and Navy building and found the identical colors referred to in the letter. At the same time he discovered the old flags of the Seventeenth and Nineteenth Michigan regiments. He has therefore introduced in the senate a resolution directing the secretary of war to return the flags to the regiments.

OFFICIALS AT WAR.

Clash Between State and Federal Authorities in Allegan County.

GRAND RAPIDS, Dec. 14.—Deputy United States Marshal O'Donnell arrested Deputy Sheriff Ezra Bunn and Wilford Rozell, of Allegan county, for selling liquor without paying the government tax, and Marshal Pratt arrested Sheriff Stratton. Under-Sheriff Malcolm H. Wing and five deputies for interfering with a federal officer in the discharge of his duty. Bunn and Rozell, after being bound over for the grand jury before the Allegan commissioners, began suit by capias against O'Donnell for false imprisonment. Sheriff Stratton and his deputies were held in bonds of $2,000 each. Bail was given by all except Deputy Sheriffs Brown and Rozell, who were remanded to the custody of the marshal in default. The proceedings involve an important point regarding the relative powers of state and federal authorities.

Homeopathies Leave Ann Arbor.

ANN ARBOR, Dec. 17. — The homeopathic faculty of the university of Michigan has resigned to take effect October next. This is the culmination of trouble in the medical department, which began three years ago. Dean Obetz offered a plan which would have slightly reduced the number of the homeopathic faculty. There was so much objection that Dean Obetz resigned. The medical department is to be reorganized next October.

Many Prisoners Reach Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 17.—United States Marshal Crump, of Arkansas, and deputies have arrived with the thirty-two federal prisoners from Arkansas and the Indian territory, who were recently sentenced to various long terms in the Detroit house of correction. Three of the prisoners are ex-members of the Cook gang.

Car Shops to Start Up.

DETROIT, Dec. 15.—It is announced that one set of the shops of the Michigan Peninsular Car company will start up January 1, probably, or before February 1 at the latest. The shops will be run to their average capacity, but it is yet uncertain whether they can be kept running all through next year.

May Tax the Drug Stores.

THE COLUMBIAN ORGAN.

Gift of the Alumni to the University of Michigan Dedicated.

ANN ARBOR, Dec. 15.—In the presence of a distinguished audience, including prominent people from every section of the state, the huge Columbian organ, one of the famous exhibits at the world's fair, was dedicated Friday night as the property of the University of Michigan. Among those present were Prof. Francis Kelsey, president of the Michigan Musicians' society, who called the assemblage to order; Gov. Rich, Gen. Russell A. Alger and President James B. Angell, of the university. In an eloquent speech of thanks Prof. Kelsey accepted the gift of the organ from the alumni, and Gov. Rich and President Angell responded briefly. To aid in the payment of the organ the alumni paid big prices for seats, some choice ones in university hall, where the dedicatory exercises were held, selling as high as $25 apiece.

SPATTERED WITH BURNING OIL

JACKSON, Dec. 16. — Forty young children were thrown into a panic Saturday night at the home of Mrs. George C. Truesdell by the accidental tipping over of a large stand lamp in the parlor. The children, none of whom were over 12 years of age, were participants in a birthday party, and the burning oil was scattered among them setting their clothes on fire. No adult was present in the room at the time and the children rushed wildly about until two or three of the older lads dragged them out into the halls, where their burning clothes were pulled off. Several of them suffered painful injuries and one or two narrowly escaped fatal burns. The interior of the residence was destroyed.

MICHIGAN CENSUS.

THE STATE GRANGE.

Resolutions and Proceedings of the Lansing Gathering.

LANSING, Dec. 15.—The state grange, which has been in session here for several days, adjourned on Friday. Reports submitted show the receipts of the year to have been $4,710 and the disbursements to have been $5,433. There is a balance in the treasury of $656, exclusive of notes and mortgages, aggregating $3,700, and a defense fund of $1,600. During the year three subordinate granges have been organized and four dormant ones revived. The membership in the state now exceeds 10,000. Officers were elected as follows:

The report of the executive committee condemns the bond issue. Its remedy for existing evils is that the government own the material from which the money of the country is to be made, whatever that material may be, and that from it the government issue an amount of legal-tender money sufficient to maintain such a staple measure of value that the debtor will not be oppressed or the creditor wronged by the fluctuation in value of the money standard. As a compromise measure the report favors the free and unlimited coinage of gold and of the silver of the United States mines at the ratio of 16 to 1, provided an import duty is placed on all foreign silver coin and other silver bullion equal to the difference between the gold value of silver bullion in Europe and its coin value in the United States.

A resolution opposing the issue of United States bonds without the sanction of congress was tabled. A synopsis of the resolutions adopted is as follows:

Calling for the enactment of a law that none but American citizens be permitted to teach in schools in this state; calling for the passage of laws that shall give county commissioners authority to order school outbuildings repaired, making attendance of teachers upon county institutes compulsory; abolishing the institute fee, increasing the minimum number of months during which school shall be held from three to five and changing the time of the election of the superintendent of public instruction from November to April; calling upon the legislature to re-enact the mortgage tax law of 1891 and asking for an appropriation sufficient to meet the expenses of farmers' institutes in every county of the state; favoring the enactment of laws making the verdict of three-fourths of a jury binding; requiring an educational qualification for voters, whether native or foreign born, but framed in such manner that no one now a voter will be disfranchised; recommending that a tax commissioner be appointed by the legislature to adjust existing inequalities in the tax laws of the state; demanding the decrease of the salaries of supreme court judges from $7,000 to $5,000 per annum, and the increase of the salary of the attorney general to $4,000.

EMPLOY DETECTIVES.

Ministers Demand the Resignation of the Saginaw Police Board.

SAGINAW, Dec. 15.—The Ministerial association of Saginaw has adopted a unique scheme to convict the mayor and police board of failure to enforce the liquor and gambling ordinances. There has been a disagreement for over a year as to whether the laws were enforced, and it has developed that the ministers had for weeks had a detective in their employ, who not only had secured plenty of evidence that the authorities were in league with sin, as they say, but had evidence that on legal holidays (Thanksgiving), when saloons should be closed, two of the police commissioners themselves patronized a public bar. The result of this is a formal demand on the part of the Ministerial association for the resignation of the entire police board, and if not forthcoming at once charges will be preferred to Gov. Rich.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF MICHIGAN.

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 15.—The canvass of the state board of canvassers shows the total vote cast for governor last month was 446,828, or 51,782 less than in 1892. John T. Rich (rep.) received 237,215; Spencer O. Fisher (dem.), 130,823; Alva W. Nichols (pop.), 39,012; Alva M. Todd (pro.), 38,788. As compared with 1892 the republican vote shows a gain of 15,987, the democratic a loss of 74,405, the populist a gain of 8,568, and the prohibitionists a loss of 1,980. Gov. Rich had a majority of 57,605 and a plurality of 106,392. The constitutional amendment permitting inmates of soldiers' homes to vote had a majority of 98,151, and the amendment requiring foreigners to be full citizens before acquiring the right to vote a majority of 85,551.

To Swear in Michigan Officials.

GRAND RAPIDS, Dec. 15.—It has been the custom in the past for state officials elected to be sworn in as suited their convenience, but this year Gov. Rich proposes to bunch the ceremonies. He has invited the newly-elected officers to meet in the executive chamber in Lansing the afternoon of December 31, and Clerk Hopkins, of the supreme court, will administer the oath to all at once.

Transfer of a Stock Farm.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 15.—The Kalamazoo Farm company will succeed to the business of the S. A. Browne & Co., famous stock farm, articles of incorporation with a capital stock of $50,000 having been filed Thursday. United States Senator McMillan, of Detroit, is the principal stockholder, and S. A. Browne, who holds next largest block of stock, will be manager. The headquarters will continue here.

Foul Play Suspected.

MANCELONA, Dec. 14.—There seems to be much mystery about the hanging of Elias Jackson, who was found dead in the woods at Larsens station, near this place. From certain indications about the body it would seem that it was not a suicide. News comes from Bellaire that a suspect has been arrested there, but his name was not given.

HOMES IN ARKANSAS.

The location of Arkansas is such as to exempt it from extremes of heat and cold. Its elevations and richness of soils adapt it to the production of a greater variety of crops, fruits and general products, used for the sustenance and comfort of man than any other State in the Union. While its salubrious climate, joined with the other combinations mentioned, give to its fruit and food products a peculiarly delightful flavor that can be found nowhere else. It justly boasts of its health-giving springs and better water than any other State. Lands are cheap and productive, markets favorable; health good; no blizzards; no failure never a failure of crops; good schools, churches and society, and what is more important, a hearty welcome for all. For descriptive pamphlet address J. C. England, Little Rock, Ark. When you write, please mention the HERALD.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a license granted to the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Robert Service, deceased, by the Hon Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1894, I shall sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the dwelling house known as the late residence of said deceased, on lands hereinafter described, in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 22d day of December, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, the following described real estate, to wit:

All that parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as seven and one-half (7 1-2) acres of land to be taken in the form of a parallelogram eight (80) rods long north and south by fifteen (15) rods wide east and west, from out the southeast corner of the west half of the east half of the south east quarter of section two (2), of town five south of range four east.

Also all that parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section eleven (11), of town five (5) south of range four (4) east, containing forty (40) acres, more or less.

Also all that other parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as four acres of land in a square piece to be taken from out the northeast corner of the west half of the northeast quarter of section eleven (11), of town five (5) south of range four (4) east.

Also that parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as the east half of the east half of the northeast quarter of section two (2), of town five (5) south of range four (4) east, containing about 37 1-2 acres of land.

All the above described lands are subject to the dower right of Mary M. Service, widow of said deceased therein, and are also subject to existing mortgages thereon. Also subject to rights to cut and remove the growing wheat crop thereon.

Terms of sale, down payment in cash.

Dated, November 8, 1894.

MARY M. SERVICE,
Administratrix of the estate of Robert Service, deceased.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Saturday, the 24th day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Litchard, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of James Litchard, a son of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Alfred Lewis or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 24th day of December, next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., DEC. 20, 1894.

Our merchants are having a very satisfactory holiday trade.

Mrs. Jane VanDeMark has been quite poorly the past week.

Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Ramsdell were in Tecumseh Monday.

A. B. Cotton, of Chicago, spent Sunday with his brother and sister, Melvin and Kate Cotton.

Mrs. John Bradley, of Hillsdale, was the guest of her uncle Barney McAdam and family Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. A. Kies and Miss Eva Shimmen were the guests of Mrs. C. F. Field, at Tecumseh, Monday.

Several bricklayers were discharged Monday and Tuesday for partaking too freely of liquid refreshments.

S. F. Marsteller's family are moving from the old house into the new, and when settled will have a bijou of a home.

They have finished the brick work for one story of the Woolen Co.'s building and are at work on the upper one. It begins to show up.

Mrs. Dr. White has been quite ill during the week, and Carrie Grabe, who lives there, has been having a serious time with an ulcerated tooth.

Chauncey Ogden has now as fine a turn out as any in town, he having purchased Carrie Draper's fine driving mare and Gene Fowler's carriage.

John Sisson and Mrs. James Shuart, from near Brooklyn, were calling on old friends Saturday. They were returning from a visit with Deerfield friends.

Mr. Allen, of Higby & Co., Adrian, dealers in timber, has bought several tracts of Oak in this vicinity and will remain until it is ready for shipment.

Henry Hollenbeck, who has been making his many friends here a pleasant visit, left Tuesday for Columbiaville, where he is weaving in the mill.

Editor Blanchard was a little off in his figures as given in the Local of the supper and sale last Thursday. He came within fifty dollars of being correct.

Bean & Chamberlain, of Hudson, who have been invoicing the stock of the Clinton Plow Co., have completed the work and returned home. The machinery, patterns, etc., will be shipped as soon as possible.

Allen Dillingham has done a fine job on his plantation north of town. He has ploughed up the old Tamarac swamp between the railroad and the river. It was quite an undertaking and never was attempted before. Look out for a great yield of corn next season.

The stock for the new Foundry has all been taken, and the company will speedily be officered and active work inaugurated. Two men are busy making patterns now. James Halladay has offered them a fine site just north of the village, by the R. R. track, which they think of accepting.

Those of our readers who were well acquainted with Phil Kerridge when his people lived here and he attended school, will be interested in the following clipping from the Adrian Daily Telegram: "Mr. Phil Kerridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kerridge, formerly of the M. E. church of this city, is visiting his parents at Owosso. It has been officially announced that he is making all preparations to enter the Episcopal ministry."

John J. White, our Merchant Tailor, is just now experiencing one of the unpleasant features of that business. He is overrun with work and of course all must be done before Xmas. To make matters more pleasant for him, the man who has been with him was offered better pay at Manchester and went Monday, and Tuesday the lady was called to her home. J. J. will prove equal to the situation however, and all will come out right.

The following clipping is taken from Tuesday's Free Press: "Owosso, Mich., Dec. 17.—Bishop Gillespie, of the western diocese of Michigan, conferred the rite of ordination upon Edward Earle, of Caro, Mich., yesterday at the Episcopal church in the presence of a crowded congregation. The service was very beautiful. In the evening a confirmation class was received, among whom was Prof. Kerridge, son of Pastor Kerridge, of the first Methodist church, this city. The young man will begin studying at once for the Episcopal ministry."

The Episcopal ladies feel very grateful to the citizens for the generous attendance and aid given them Thursday afternoon and evening. Although it was expected the Hall would look pretty and a fine supper furnished, yet none were prepared to see the hall such a marvel of beauty. By the aid of bunting kindly loaned them from Tecumseh the upper portion of the hall was made very attractive, while the arrangements of the tables, articles for sale and trade displays made the floor a rare picture. The displays made by the different business houses were all unique and attractive. The sign of VanTuyle & Silvers, bankers, was greatly admired, the letters being embellished with bright new pennies. Clark & Shimmen's display of millinery, and Freese & Son's array of fancy goods; Landcaster's gents furnishings; the hardware exhibits by both VanDeMark and Lindsley & Kishpaugh; J. L. Kishpaugh's display of coal and grain; Codling & Machen's array, and in fact all were so fine there was no chance for discrimination. It was a grand success socially and financially. It netted the ladies over $90.

C. S. Burroughs and wife are expected home this week from the far west.

Mrs. Allen Bartlett entertained her relatives with a fine dinner Saturday.

Mrs. Susie Fisk and son arrived Tuesday for a visit with her people, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Nase.

Mrs. Florence Bigham entertained her friend, Miss Minnie Glascow, of Tecumseh, over Sunday.

It is whispered that there will be several weddings in and around Clinton before the lenten season begins.

Postmaster Kishpaugh and assistant are kept very busy this week registering packages for points far distant.

Martin Keusch has sold the E. an farm to John L. Mansfield, and Jno. will soon become a resident of Clinton.

Eugene Sandley and John Staiger left Thursday for South Bend, Ind., where they will weave in Lewis' mill.

Miss Emma Sinclair, who was so very sick at Toledo with typhoid fever, is at home and so far recovered as to get out some.

Will P. McAdam was in Tecumseh Tuesday, after military equipments for use in the play, Rio Grande, here tonight.

L. H. Johnston will move the old house from Marsteller's on to the foundation where his barn stood, across the street.

Geo. A. Kies left Saturday for Utica, N. Y., to prepare his samples for the spring season. He hopes to return again this week.

VanTuyle & Pa[illegible] are doing a rushing business [illegible] at Clinton. Yesterday they [illegible] two decks of sheep from Tecu[illegible]

The furnace and improvements at St. John's Episcopal church are completed. The choir seats are here and will be in place this week and service will be held Sunday evening.

Those from away who attended the supper and sale Thursday were Mrs. Kate Conklin and Adah Case, of Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. Blachford, Mrs. Burt Anderson and Walter C. Burridge, of Tecumseh.

Mrs. C. M. Stout has been quite ill the past week with a low type of fever, brought on, no doubt, by change of climate and overwork incident to settling the parsonage. We hope she will soon be up again.

Edward Coffin and wife, of Albion, and Rev. Eugene Coffin and wife, of Trenton, who were called to Tecumseh by the death of Mrs. Hodges, a sister of Mrs. Edward Coffin, were calling on Clinton friends Monday.

A good deal of live stock is being shipped from this point these days. Saturday last, VanTuyle & Palmer shipped two decks of hogs and one of cattle, and Richmond, Gadd & Hogan one of hogs. Tuesday, Tate & Stoner shipped one deck each of sheep and hogs.

To show how harmless and gentle the game of foot-ball is, we have only to say that in Saturday's game between two teams from the woolen mill, Steve Huntington had his nose broken, Will Wade got a bad cut on the head, Howard Hause an ugly gash over one eye, and two others slightly wounded.

Planting the Standard

All hail Columbus! Behold the great navigator as he lands. The perils of the deep are past. The clouds of fear have vanished. The night of gloom has ended. In the heavens the sun of success shines resplendent. Morning has dawned.

Imperiously the banner of haughty Spain greets the daylight. Upon its fluttering folds are inscribed the destinies of a new world. Its gleaming surface marks a long advance in the evolution of the human race. It tells a story of prophecy unparalleled, of developement unapproached in the fullness of recorded time. It crowns with triumph the efforts of genius.

The World's Fair contained no finer statue of the great discoverer than this colossal figure. It commanded from its pedestal the eastern entrance to the Administration building. The majesty of its dimensions, the vigor and aggressiveness of its expression and the artistic finish of its composition made it admired as a genuine sculptural triumph.

Another Standard Proudly Displayed

at the Fair was that of

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

A Standard of Excellence for Forty Years.

It was the standard of unequalled strength, perfect purity and wholesome results. The award to Dr. Price's of highest honors at the Fair furnishes conclusive evidence of its superiority over all other baking powders.

W. E. Doty, of Holloway was in town last Thursday.

C. O. Hiscock, of Albion, is spending the week with friends.

Geo. Hill, of Detroit, visited Eva Osgood during the past week.

Phoeba Osgood, of St. John, came home for her holiday vacation.

Geo. Ransom went to Toledo to see his sister, Mrs. Frank Allen, Christmas.

M. Kelly has left for his holiday visit with relatives in Livingstone Co., N.Y.

Harry Smith completed the tin work on H. B. Eaton's new house a few days ago.

D. W. Smith and Kittie Clark visited E. W. Rappleye and family over Sunday.

C. L. Lowe and wife spent Tuesday with his sister, Mrs. Ed. DePuy, near Saline.

Mrs. W. H. Arner spent Christmas with her brother, Israel Schreder, near Clinton.

Wm. DeMott, of Tecumseh, was in the village last week, in the interest of insurance.

I. T. Bush and wife, of Brooklyn, N. Y. are spending the holidays with relatives here.

Mrs. Henry Barneby and daughter, Ora, of Toledo, visited Mrs. Susan Clark, Christmas.

The exercises and social for the Sunday school, held at the church Monday, passed off very pleasantly.

Mrs. E. W. Rappleye and daughter, of Ypsilanti, spent Christmas at the home of Lafayette Rappleye.

Eddie Smith was bit through the upper lip and nose, by a dog, Tuesday. He is doing nicely at present.

Christmas dinners and family gatherings were held at Mrs. Susan Clark's, Samuel Barlow's and J. F. Temple's.

When will the bridegroom come, did you ask? Only one man knoweth when the bride will be arrayed for his coming.

Mrs. Jacob Arner went to Detroit Monday to spend Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Ed. Anderson, and family.

F. E. Pocklington and family went to Mason Monday to spend the holiday week with J. C. and Ed. Freer and families.

The person who put a pair of kid gloves in Ed. Baker's overcoat pocket at the church Monday night may have the same by calling on Ed.

Prof. B. B. Bennett, of Plymouth, visited at the home of Mrs. John Arner Friday night, entertaining several of his friends with selections on the phonograph.

James M. Dell's house burned to the ground Wednesday evening of last week. The contents were saved. The insurance is rather light and the loss will reach close to $500.00

What's the matter with Capt. Hayden, of Tecumseh, ordering out Co. C. and patroling Chicago street on Saturday night to protect people from having everything in their buggies stolen, as they have of late?

The remains of Mrs. Rogers, of Hudson, were brought here Saturday for burial. The feneral services were held at the South Macon church Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Rogers leaves a large circle of friends here who mourn her loss.

A BRILLIANT WEDDING.

On Tuesday, Dec. 25, 1894, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Waidner, in the township of Ridgeway, occurred the marriage of Mr. Ernest L. Palmer and Miss Stella M. Pilbeam. Promptly at 6:30 p. m. the happy young couple took their places under a floral bell suspended from the ceiling in the parlor, where, in the presence of about one hundred relatives and friends of the bride and groom, the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. N. Boyer. The bride looked very pretty in a dress of light tan color, trimmed with white silk and pearl buttons. The groom was dressed in conventional black. After the ceremony the company were escorted to the dining room where they found the tables groaning under their load of good things, prepared by the hostess. Supper over, the remainder of the evening was very pleasantly passed with music and singing and closed with a recitation by Miss Sylvie Pilbeam which was highly enjoyed by all. After an extended visit with the groom's brother, at Covert, Mich., the happy couple will return and settle on the farm where they will be 'at home' to their many friends. The presents were very numerous and useful. Below we give a list:

Set of dishes, 101 pieces.—Mrs. Fred Waidner, Messrs. Ernest W idner, W. F. Waidner, J. C. Eiserman, J. C. Berg, and wives. Set of dishes, 101 pieces, C. C. Smith, C. L. Lowe and wives; silver table castor, L. S. Palmer, wife and family; silver pickle castor, Arthur Palmer and Carrie Sutton; silver pickle castor, Geo. Exelby and wife; silver pickle castor and bread plate, Mrs. W. A. Van Dyke; silver sugar shell and butter knife, Ella Exelby; decorated stand lamp, I. N. Pilbeam and wife; dec. stand lamp, F. Wickwire and wife; decorated stand lamp, Bennie Austin and wife; feather bed and pair of pillows, John Waidner and wife; spring rocker, Enos Palmer and wife; china teapot, Ransom Russel and wife; nickle teapot, James Linn and wife; bed spread and half doz. napkins, F. Davenport and wife and Hallie Cole; 2 china cups and saucers and 2 napkin rings, Nathan Dibble and wife; cracker dish, celery dish and pickle dish, F. Palmer and wife; set of perfumery and six napkins, Chester and Lavina Pilbeam; cake and jelly dish, Frank Smith and wife; table spread, John Linn, wife and family; glass water set, S. and Nellie Wilson; fancy cake dish, Bertha Linn; 2 china cups and saucers, J. N. Boyer and wife; pair linen towels, Geo. Biggs and wife; fancy card holder, Henry Van Dyke; 2 celluloid cabinet holders, Lavern Van Dyke; bed spread, A. E. Palmer and wife; bread and milk set, Phene Palmer; linen towel, Rhoda Palmer; pair of linen towels, Chester Linn and wife; rose bowl, Nellie Russel; feather bed and pair of pillows, Enos Palmer and wife.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Our school has closed for a two weeks vacation.

Miss Nellie Thompson is visiting friends at Fairfield.

Mrs. W. C. Holt called on friends in Blissfield one day last week.

Mr. Robert Thompson, of Adrian, spent Sunday with the family of Jas. Lane.

Mrs. Mary Mitchel and children are visiting in and around Morenci this week.

Mr. Allan Macham and family spent Christmas with the family of Richard Gillespie.

Chas. Rothfuss and wife and Miss Lola Brown drove over to Blissfield on Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Kelley entertained a large company at their home on Christmas.

Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Holt and mother, Mrs. Macham and Miss Overouse spent last Thursday at Adrian.

Mrs. Dr. Holt, of Montpelier, Ohio, returned to her home last Saturday, accompanied by her little granddaughter, Blanche.

M. M. Florence and family, C. W. Culbertson and family, of Ridgeway, and Miss Grace Lester, of Wayne Co., ate turkey, exchanged views and presents with our jolly P. M. and wife, on Christmas.

Our new merchant, Thos. Hartman, opened his store for business Christmas noon. Mr. Hartman is now ready to serve the public from well filled shelves with all that is good and has everything arranged in apple pie order and as neat as things can be made. Just give him a call and be convinced.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Facts or Fiction about Two Great Fair Awards.

A newspaper paragraph denounces as "false" the claim of a baking powder company to an award at the World's Fair. Whom can it mean?

Certainly not Dr. Price's. Why? Because, as the records show, Dr. Price's exhibited, competed and received the highest award, both at Chicago and the California Midwinter Fair. The award in California included Gold Medal. The official examiners pronounced it the strongest, the purest, the most wholesome and efficient of all the baking powders. Its title to confidence is unquestioned.

Can it be the manufacturers of a New York powder, fictitiously labelled "absolutely pure" who are making "false" claims? That would be strange indeed, in as much as they were not even considered in the awards.

Was it Ammonia in the New York powder that prevented its makers from competing? If not, what?

Low Rates to Chicago.

Account of National Cycle Exhibition in Chicago, January 7th to 12th, 1895 reduced rate tickets to Chicago and return over the Lake Shore R'y will be sold Jan. 4th to 12th, on the certificate plan. Good to return until Jan. 15th, 1895.

BRITTON BUDGET.

The Christmas tree at the Christian Union church, on Christmas eve., was a total success. A fine evergreen standing from floor to ceiling, nicely trimmed and decorated, was heavily laden with gifts for old and young. The program, consisting of music, recitations, readings and addresses, was appropriate and reflected credit on the superintendent, W. R. Osgood, and the committee in charge. The Sunday school has been in a highly prosperous condition during the past year, and Christmas good cheer was really a fitting sequel to the prosperity of the year now closing. We cannot particularize; all the exercises were good.

THE KNIFFIN FAMILY REUNION.

The annual reunion of the Kniffin family took place at the residence of Chas. A. Kniffin, on Christmas day.

Present, the mothers, Mrs. Eliza Kniffin, her eight children and all their companions except one, also all the grandchildren, some thirty, and a few great grandchildren; there were also several visitors, making a company of upwards of fifty. A bountiful repast was served at about one o'clock and while the tables were being cleared the rest of the company indulged in an exciting game of 'pull away' on the lawn. Then all were seated and the exercises commenced by singing Home, Sweet Home. Mother Kniffin read an appropriate scripture lesson, without the aid of glasses, and prayer was offered by Rev. E. Mudge. Then followed a variety of exercises consisting of music, vocal and instrumental, and recitations, most ly participated in by the grandchildren and right well are they prepared to render a most excellent program on short notice. The secretary, Mr. J. A. Kniffin, read a report of the last meeting. A review of the year indicated one death, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan Smith, and one birth, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gogoline. An interesting letter was read from a granddaughter who resides at Chatham, N. Y. The exercises closed by singing 'God be with you till we meet again.'

PENTECOST POINTERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Buck will spend the holidays with friends in Monroe county.

Merry Christmas to all, editors, printers and even the printer's "devil" a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Mr. Vincent Graham is the guest of Mr. L. Daniel's family during the holidays. Mr. Graham resides in Livingstone county, we believe.

Rev. W. T. Williams, who has been east on a three weeks vacation, returned home last Saturday. Mrs. Williams is visiting friends in Chicago.

Mrs. Harry Vanderpool, a former resident of this place, is spending the holidays among her children here, and renewing old and pleasant ties of friendship with neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Camburn entertained all the members of the Camburn family recently, and it was a large gathering too, both in respect to numbers and avoirdupois.

The sad news comes from Coldwater, of the death of Mr. Asa Ferguson's bright little daughter, with that dread disease, diptheria. Her mother was Miss Maggie Case, formerly of this place, and the parents and relatives have the sincere sympathy of all in their terrible bereavement.

A kind hearted gentleman and lady, of this place, who have no children of their own, but who have given the shelter of their pleasant home to a score or so of children and young people, started out on Christmas morning and distributed Christmas goodies to nearly a score of little ones in their vicinity. How much truer and nobler are these small sweet courtesies of life than the vulgar ostentation, which loads a tree with rich and costly presents for those who do not need them.

Rev. Henry F. Shier will deliver a lecture at Pentecost Hall, Saturday evening, Dec. 29th, for the benefit of the Library Association. His subject, "Footprints of the war, or Dixie of today," will be ably and entertainingly handled, as all well know, who have had the pleasure of listening to this scholarly and taleuted young clergyman. He has traveled extensively in the south, having spent some two years there, and is therefore quite competent to speak on the subject. All are cordially invited to come and be entertained. In order to place them within reach of all, the tickets will be sold at the low price of ten cents each; children, free.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

The Farmer's Social Club met at the home of Mr. J. K. Waldron, Tuesday evening, Dec. 11th. The election of officers occurred at that meeting, with the following results:

Prest.—J. K. Waldron.
Vice-Prest.—Fred Rector.
Secy. and Treas.—Leva Gillespie.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. N. Bowen, Tuesday evening, Jan. 8th, 1895. Program:

Music—Ora and Jennie Gillespie.
Address—Prest. or Vice-Prest. sub.
Dec.—Paul Bowen.
Select Reading—O. B. Finch.
Essay—Grace Gillespie.
Rec.—Lydia Schreder.
Dialogue—Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Remington.
Music—Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Strong.
Rec.—May Garlinghouse.
Question—How can we have more and better apples; opened by Mr. J. Bowen, followed by Mr. Philip Kehoe.

THE MODERN MOTHER

Has found that her little ones are improved more by the pleasant laxative, Syrup of Figs, when in need of the laxative effect of a gentle remedy than by any other, and that it is more acceptable to them. Children enjoy it and it benefits them. The true remedy, Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

THE HERALD FOR 1895.

What newspapers are you going to take during the coming year? Every man must settle that question for himself. The wise man, however, will have the "Old Reliable" on his list, and, in that connection, we offer our patrons a little good advice. It is needless to inform the public what to expect in these columns during the ensuing twelve months. As a first-class, up-to-date local newspaper the HERALD intends to lead the procession, as heretofore. Politically, it will continue to be independent, and it will strive to uphold the interests of the masses in matters of finance, taxation and public expenditures.

Recognizing the stringency of the times, our rates have been placed upon a hard-pan basis. A few extra combination offers are also presented, and the most favorable club list ever given in these columns. Here they are in detail:

NO. ONE.

Every subscriber, either old or new, who pays all arrearages and one full year in advance to Jan. 1st, 1896, will receive, gratis, a neat portfolio entitled "Echoes of the White City; the Midway." This is similar to the Ferris Wheel portfolio, given to our patrons last year. It will be a free gift to all advance paying subscribers, and will hold good until Feb. 1st, 1895.

NO. TWO.

The "Columbian Gallery" consists of twenty numbers of World's Fair Photographs, published by the Werner Co., of Chicago. This is the finest collection among all similar publications. There are 256 full-page plates, size 11 by 13 inches, beautifully bound in one large volume. The price of the book is $3, with one year's subscription to the HERALD thrown in.

NO. THREE.

The "Graphic History of the Fair" is the finest and most complete history of the Fair yet presented to the public. It is a book of 800 pages, containing over 1200 illustrations, elegantly bound, and sells for $3. This book will be furnished for that amount, including a full year's subscription to the HERALD.

NO. FOUR.

The "Land of Christ" is one of the most beautiful serials published, giving a very fully illustrated history of Palestine. It is published in twelve parts, and will be furnished in separate parts to subscribers. This work sells for $2. We can furnish the same at the regular price, with a year's subscription to the HERALD included.

Sample copies of all the above books can be seen at our counting room. Call and examine them.

CLUB LIST FOR 1895.

We are prepared to name better club rates this year than ever before on outside publications. With the periodicals named in the following list we have special terms, but we can obtain subscriptions, at reduced rates, for any newspaper or magazine published:

Let it be borne in mind that as the volume of money is decreasing the value of every dollar is increasing in corresponding ratio. Property is falling in value and debts are growing harder to meet. For a quarter of a century this process has been steadily going forward until the great bulk of all values has passed into the hands of those who control the money of the people.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Dec. 21, 1894.

The administration is finding that the task of forcing the so-called Carlisle currency bill through the House is one of gigantic porportions. The debate had scarcely begun before the administration plan of having the bill voted on this week had to be abandoned, because of the fear that if a vote was had this week a majority would be against the bill. The republicans and the populists of the House are to a man opposed to the bill, and not enough democrats have declared in its favor to make its passage certain. That is why the debate is to be extended over Christmas recess, which will be from Saturday afternoon to Wednesday 26. How long the debate will continue in January will depend, if present plans are adhered to, upon the action of a caucus of the democrats of the House which is to be held immediately after the reassembling of Congress. The fate of the bill is considered to be very doubtful, even by its strongest advocates, while many of its opponents express the opinion that it is already dead.

It does not take long for even the most unobservant man to discover that members of the Senate are adepts in the art of looking out for number one. An instance may be found in the failure of the Senate committee on interstate commerce to act promptly upon the railroad pooling bill, recently passed by the House. It is a bill about which there are wide differences of opinion, and the prediction is made that it will not be taken up for action in the Senate until the several State legislatures which are to meet in January act upon the candidacy of the Senators who are after re-election. The pooling bill furnishes a number of Senators with a club to hold over the heads of the railroad interests. The probabilities all favor the final passage of the pooling bill, but all the same the railroad influence would be thrown against the re-election of any Senator known to be opposed to it; hence the Senatorial desire to let the bill rest until the Senatorial elections are over.

A canvass of the House is now being very quietly made that will determine whether silver will cut any figure in the legislation of this session. If a sufficient number will pledge themselves to vote for it to make its passage a certainty it is proposed at the proper stage in the debate to offer a bill for the free coinage of silver as a substitute for the Carlisle currency bill. Should such a bill be passed by the House there would be no trouble in getting it through the Senate, as the silver men are stronger in the latter body than ever before.

Representative Walker, of Mass., who holds the minority of the House committee on Banking and Currency and who is the author of the "financial scheme upon which the "Baltimore plan," which is said to have been the basis of the Carlisle bill, now before the House, was built, is in no danger of suffering from an attack of overmodesty. He said in the course of a speech in favor of his bill, which he proposes to offer as a substitute for the Carlisle bill: "It is my voice that has roused the country upon this subject, and my views had not a friend until within the past fifteen months. My addresses at Chicago, St. Louis, and other places shook up the country some." The country will doubtless thank Mr. Walker for so much information, even if it declines to endorse his bill.

Whether speech is free in Washington or not is a question that is being asked since the Commissioners of Colfax asked for and received the resignation of a public school trustee because at a public meeting he used the following language referring to the House committee on appropriations: "I never was so much in favor of home rule before I appeared before that committee. The haughtiness and indifferent way in which they transact their business and the pomposity and egotism of their manner is enough to rouse any man's indignation." This trustee had only been on the board a few months, having been appointed because of the endorsement of all the labor organizations. This matter will be heard from again.

"If there should be an awful accident at the Government Printing Office" said a gentleman conversant with the methods which have prevented the purchase of a site for a new building, resulting in a large loss of life, I would not exchange places with ex-Senator Mahone for any amount of money. He would feel like a murderer, for he has for four years prevented the erection of a new Government Printing Office, because the government will not buy at $1.50 some ground he bought for 15 cents a foot, and for which he has not for years paid any taxes. He has the support of the coterie of Senators known as the "John Chamberlain gambling house crowd," and is more influential, in this matter at least, than when he held the balance of power in the Senate." The Senate and House committees are making a last attempt to overthrow the Mahone influence and agree upon a site to be purchased, and the result is in doubt.

The New York Times says $35,000,000 of the Sugar Trust stock is watered and the consumers of sugar are paying 12 per cent per annum, and nobody knows how much more, on all the stock, real and otherwise. But who ever heard the Times condemn the trust?

Legislative Experience.

When the New York Legislature runs short of objects upon which to spend the State's money it orders a new ceiling for the Assembly Chamber in the State Capitol. The first ceiling was of stone, but it was so badly secured in place that the Assemblymen were afraid to remain in their seats lest it would fall upon them.

As a measure of precaution a new ceiling of oak was ordered. The contractor concluded that papier mache would make a better ceiling than oak, and in the absence of the Assemblymen put up the ceiling to suit his own ideas, taking care, however, to collect the price of oak ceiling. The next Assembly protested mildly, but the contraptor had his money and the papier mache has done duty for oak until the present time.

And now the papier mache is beginning to scale and muss the carpets and desks and promises to fall into the hair of the Assemblymen who are not bald and shingle the heads of those who are guiltless of hair. A new ceiling will have to be ordered and paid for by the coming Legislature, and already expectation is on tip-toe, both as to the kind of ceiling that will be ordered and the kind the contractor will furnish.

The Arena for December, 1894

The December issue of the Arena opens the eleventh volume of this liberal and progressive Review. It contains over 200 pages of literary matter, by some of the greatest thinkers of the day, and by some of the most interesting and original of the younger American writers. It opens with an important and scholarly paper by Prof. Max Muller, the famous Oxford scholar, on 'The Real Significance of the World's Parliament of Religions.' Count Leo Tolstoi, the great Russian novelist and social reformer, contributes a critical and appreciative paper on Guy de Maupassant and his place in literature. The Hon. George Wilson, the president of the oldest bank in Missouri, writes a paper on 'The Silver Question,' which he calls 'David A. Wells' Downfall,' in answer to Mr. Wells' argument for monometalism under the caption of 'The Downfall of Certain Financial Fallacies.' Rev. Minot J. Savage writes a timely paper on 'The Religion of Holmes' Poems,' which falls into the series on the Religion of the Poets of this last half of the century. B. O. Flower opens a series of articles which will discuss the Age of Consent laws of the various states. Altogether the Arena presents a fine Christmas number.

Automatic hanging is well enough, but give us an automatic police machinery, by which a man can arrest himself just as he is about to commit murder.

IMPORTANT FACTS.

If you have dull and heavy pains across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache; then you may be sure you have catarrh; and should immediately resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

Experts are about evenly divided as to whether the protracted and exhilarating silence of old Mr. Peffer indicates the dawn of lucid reason or a period of intellectual coma.

In Our Great Grandfather's Time,

big bulky pills were in general use. Like the "blunderbuss" of that decade they were big and clumsy, but ineffective. In this century of enlightenment we have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver, stomach and bowel derangements in the most effective way.

Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, pimples, blotches, eruptions, boils, constipation, piles, fistulas and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequaled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity. Why sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indigestion?

A free sample of the "Pellets," (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on a postal card.

Table Talk.

An article by Kate Douglas Wiggin on "The Kindergarten as a School of Life for Women," opens the December issue of Table Talk, and not only is it most readable, as is all she writes, but most helpful and suggestive to the women of our age who are anxious to make all possible use of their lives. The little magazine is also replete with Christmas and Christmas thoughts. The recipes and hints on table service are numerous as usual and among the novel ideas for the season is an article on Christmas shopping — where and how to buy. The readers out of, as well as in the city will find therein many helpful suggestions, and in fact the monthly visits of this publication always means much to housekeepers and home-makers. Our readers may obtain a sample copy free by addressing Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia Pa.

A Clean Collar

One that you can keep clean all the time—a collar that does not wilt when you get over-heated; that does not fray on the edge, or tear out at the buttonholes, and can be cleaned by simply wiping off with a wet sponge or cloth. These collars and cuffs are made by covering linen collars or cuffs on both sides with waterproof "celluloid," thus giving strength and durability. They are the only waterproof goods so made, and every piece is stamped as follows:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Ask for this, and refuse to take any imitation if you expect satisfaction. If your dealer does not keep them, send direct to us, enclosing amount, and we will mail you sample. Collars 25 cts. each. Cuffs 50 cts. pair. State size, and whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted.

"Some 8 years ago, I contracted a serious constitutional blood disease. I went to Hot Springs to treat for syphilis. Mercury almost killed me. After a while the symptoms again appeared. Throat became sore, pains in limbs, pimples on face, blotches, eyes red, loss of hair, glands enlarged, etc. A medical friend advised Drs. Kennedy & Kergan's New Method Treatment. It cured me, and I have had no symptoms for five years. I am married and happy. As a doctor, I heartily recomend it to all who have this terrible disease. It will eradicate the poison from the blood."

MAN AND NATURE.

The mountains, and the forests, and the seas,
Oldest of mourners with pathetic tone,
Have such a natural music, all their own,
So in accord with human destinies,
So tender, manifold, who'll ever sweet
Their woodland melodies at noon? More mild
Than dimpled ocean, like a laughing child,
That laps and rolls a jewel to our feet,
Breathlessly calm! And then, within an hour,
Behold that selfsame ocean on the shore
Lashes, The forest, shaken with deafening fewer,
The rocks are rent. Then, all amid that roar,
Awestruck we sink, we fall upon our knees,
Ye mountains, and ye forests, and ye seas!

The mountains, and the forests, and the seas,
Have each their music, with our mortal lot
In sympathy, to soothe, exalt, appease.
And man, too, has his music: has a note
Of worldwide awe-inspiring, tender reverie,
Dirges of buried kisses mafored
In rocking hexes, glorious symphonies,
But all of them lack something. They have not
The voice once heard in Eden, and the ear, Pleased with rich sound, is as when some one sings
In a great court before a king of kings
He closes, and of rapture born is sheer Shakes the high roof, but when the lord of all Speaks there is awe and silence in the hall.
—A. G. B. in London Spectator.

FABIO'S NOTE.

Of all the merchants in Venice, Fabio Mutinelli was the most exact in keeping his engagements. He was liberal and magnificent on every occasion, and especially with ladies and people of the church. The elegant polity of his manners was celebrated throughout the republic, and people admired at San Zanipolo an altar of gold which he had offered to St. Catherine for love of the beautiful Catherine Manini, wife of the senator, Alesso Conaro. As he was very wealthy, he had many friends, to whom he gave festivals and his purse. But he suffered severe losses in the war against the Genoese and in the troubles of Naples. It happened that 30 of his vessels were captured. So the magnificent Fabio was despoiled in a shore time of all his riches. Having sold his palace and his plate to pay his debts, he found himself destitute of everything. But as he was skillful, courageous, well learned in commerce and in the vigor of age, he thought only of restoring his business. He made many calculations and figured that 500 ducats were necessary for him to attempt new enterprises, from which he expected happy, prompt and certain successes. He asked of Alesso Bontura, who was the richest citizen of the republic, to lend to him these 500 ducats. But the good signor esteemed that if audacity procures great goods prudence alone preserves them, and he refused to expose so large a sum to the peril of sea and fortune. Fabio addressed himself to Andrea Morosini, whom he had formerly favored in different ways.

"Beloved Fabio," replied Andrea, "to others than you I would willingly lend this sum. I have no attachment for gold pieces, and I conform, on this point, to the maxims of Horace, the satirist. But your friendship is dear to me, Fabio Mutinelli, and I would risk its loss if I loaned you money. Most often commerce of the heart goes ill between debtor and creditor. I have seen too many examples of this."

With these words Signor Andrea pretended to embrace the merchant tenderly and shut the door in his face.

At night, as she was returning sadly to his house, the courtesan Zanetta, who was taking a bath in the canal, grasped his gondola and said to Fabio:

"I know your misfortunes. They are the talk of the town. Now listen. I am not rich, but I have some jewels in a small casket. If you accept them, gentle Fabio, I will believe that God and the Virgin love me."

And it was true that, in the newness of her age and in the fine flower of her beauty, Zanetta was poor. Fabio replied:

"Graceful Zanetta, there is more nobility in the house where you live than in all the palaces of Venice."

For three days more Fabio visited the banks and the shops without finding anybody who would lend money to him. Everywhere he received a wicked answer and heard speeches the tone of which was as follows: "You were wrong to sell your plate to pay your debts. One may loan money to a man in debt; one never loans to a man who has neither furniture nor plate."

The fifth day he went in his despair to the Corte Delle Galli, which is also called the Ghetto, and which is the Jewish quarter. "Who knows," he said to himself, "if I may not obtain from a Jew the favor that Christians have refused?" He went through streets the entrance of which, by order of the senate, was barred every night with chains. He remembered having heard of an Israelite named Eleazer, son of Eleazer Maimonides, who was said to be grandly rich and of a mind marvelously subtle. The door of his house was decorated with an image of the seven branched golden candlestick, which the Jew had caused to be made as a sign of hope, in view of the promised day when the temple would rise from its ashes.

The merchant entered a hall lighted by a lamp of brass, the 12 wicks of which were ablaze. The Jew Eleazer was seated before his scales. The windows of his house were walled, because he was an infidel. Fabio Mutinelli talked to him in the following manner:

"Eleazer, I have often scalled you a dog and a pagan. I happened, when I was younger, that I threw stones and mud at people who passed near the canal wearing a yellow wheel on their shoulders. I tell you this not to insult you, but to be loyal at a time when I come to ask you to do me a great service."

The Jew lifted his arm, which was dry and knotty like a vine.

"Fabio Mutinelli," he said, "the Father who is in heaven will judge you and me. What service do you ask?"

"Lend me 500 ducats for a year."

"One does not lend without security. What is your security?"

"You must know, Eleazer, that I have not even a golden cup, not even a silver goblet. I have nothing. Everybody has refused to do me the service that I ask of you. I have nothing in the world, except my honor as a merchant and my faith as a Christian. I offer to you as security the Holy Virgin Mary and her Divine Son."

At this reply the Jew inclined his head like one meditating and thinking, caressed for an instant his long white beard and said:

"Fabio Mutinelli, lead me to your security, for it is necessary that the lender should be placed in presence of the security that is offered to him."

"It is your right," answered the merchant. "Come!"

He led Eleazer to the Church de l'Orto, near the field which is named after the Moors. There, showing the Madonna, who, standing on the altar, her forehead ornamented with a crown of precious stones, her shoulders covered with a gold embroidered cloak, held in her arms the infant Jesus, decked like his mother, the merchant said to the Jew: "This is my security."

Eleazer looked with a subtle eye at the Christian merchant, the Madonna and the child, bent his head and said that he accepted the security. He brought Fabio back to his house and gave to him 500 ducats, saying:

"This is yours for a year. If in a year from now, day for day, you have not returned to me this sum, with the interest fixed by the law of Venice and the custom of the Lombards, imagine, Fabio Mutinelli, what I will think of the Christian merchant and of his security!"

Fabio, without loss of time, bought vessels and loaded them with salt and various other merchandise, which he disposed of in the cities of the Adriatic at a great profit. Then, with a new cargo, he sailed for Constantinople, where he bought carpets, perfumes, peacock feathers, ivory and ebony, which his clerks exchanged on the coast of Dalmatia for lumber, which was bought from him in advance by the Venetians. By this means he multiplied ten times in six months the sum which he had received.

But one day that he was in a bark on the Bosporus with Greek women he was taken by pirates and brought captive into Egypt. Happily his gold and his merchandise were safe. The pirates sold him to a Saracen lord, who, having put his feet in irons, commanded him to cultivate the wheat, which is beautiful in that country. He offered ransom, but the daughter of the Saracen lord, who loved him, dissuaded her father from surrendering him at any price. He filed his irons with the instruments that he used to cultivate the fields, fled, reached the Nile and went out to sea.

After eight days of travel in a Spanish ship, which had picked him up, a tempest threw him on the coast of Dalmatia. The entire crew was drowned, and Fabio, supported by a chicken coop, reached the coast with great difficulty. He fell insensible and was brought to the house of a widow, who was quite beautiful and whose name was Loreta. When he regained consciousness, he was surrounded by perfume of myrtles and roses, and he saw from his window a garden which descended gradually to the sea. Mme. Loreta took her violin and played tenderly. Fabio, in his gratitude, kissed her hands a thousand times. Then he asked what was the day of the month. When she told him, he began to groan and to lament at the thought that in 24 hours the year would be ended, and the date would come when he would fail to return the 500 ducats which he had borrowed from the Jew Eleazer. Mme. Loreta having asked the cause of his despair, he made it known to her. As she was a woman of great piety and very faithful to the Holy Mother of God, she sympathized with him. There was no difficulty in obtaining the 500 ducats, but none could think of going from the coast of Dalmatia to Venice in 24 hours in a bad sea and with contrary winds. "Let me have the money in the first place," said Fabio.

When a servant of his hostess had brought the money to him, the noble merchant asked for a bark, which he filled with bags containing the ducats. Then he took from Mme. Loreta's oratory an image of the Virgin with the infant Jesus, which was made of cedar wood and was very venerable. He placed it in the bark near the rudder, and he said to the image:

"Madam, you are my security. The Jew Eleazer must be paid tomorrow. My honor and my vows are at stake, madam, and also the renown of your Son. What mortal sinner like me may not do you shall surely accomplish, pure star of the sea, you whose breast nourishes the one who walked on waves. Take this money to the Jew Eleazer, in the Ghetto of Venice, so that the Jews will not say that you are bad security." Having pushed the bark in the wave, he took off his hat and said softly: "Adieu, madam." For a long time the merchant and the widow followed the bark with their eyes. The night fell. A furrow of light was traced in the peaceful sea.

The next morning Eleazer, having opened his door, saw in the narrow canal of the Ghetto a bark loaded with bags and guided by a little figure of black wood, resplendent with the clearness of dawn. The bark stopped before the house where was carved the seven branched golden candlestick. The Jew recognized the Virgin Mary and the infant Jesus, security of the Christian merchant.—Echo.

Calhoun and Randolph.

When John C. Calhoun became vice president of the United States, and consequently president of the senate, he announced that he had not the authority to call the senators to order for words spoken in debate, as he regarded each senator as an embassador from a sovereign state. The eccentric John Randolph of Virginia took advantage of Mr. Calhoun's ruling to abuse him personally. One day he began a tirade by saying: "Mr. Speaker! I mean Mr. President of the senate and would be president of the United States, which God in his infinite mercy avert!"—Exchange.

DR. D. RANSOM'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have 25 spaces here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE NEEDLE WORK GUILD OF ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

The first Needle Work Guild in the world was organized in England in 1883. Its originator and founder was Lady Wolverton, the well known philanthropist of England, who was so constantly confronted with the pressing needs of charity, and who knew that thousands of women were spending their leisure hours in the listless and altogether aimless occupation of doing spatterwork and embroidery that she resolved to devise some way in which the useless might be made useful, the indifferent might become interested.

Acting upon impulse Lady Wolverton sent an item to her home paper suggesting the plan of organizing a Needle Work Guild and asking anyone who approved of the plan to communicate with her. To her great surprise the London papers copied the paragraph and many of them gave editorial comment encouraging the project. Letters, too, came pouring in to her from every part of the country. The county papers of her own immediate vicinity also gave an outline of the plan and their heartiest approval, and in less than one month the Parent Needle Work Guild of the world was organized. Lady Wolverton builded better than she knew. The very elements of greatness were embodied in her society, no cast, no sect, no prejudices.

And the mechanism, too, of this beautiful structure was so simple! The mere stipulation that each member give two new garments a year, no matter how small or inexpensive they were, and that all persons, irrespective of race, profession or religion, could join in common brotherhood and do a kindness to the unfortunate and oppressed. A plan so simple, and yet so effective, that every mind could understand and appreciate it.

Organized charity can accomplish a vast amount more good than indiscriminate giving, and yet even Lady Wolverton must have felt some wonder at the magnitude of what this federation of alms givers effected!

Containing all the elements of popularity, the society realized a steady growth and very soon a Guild was organized in London, with Her Royal Highness, Princess Mary, as president. Throwing her whole soul into the work the Princess gave her personal attention to the soliciting of garments, and now collects thousands of garments every year, many of which are made by her own hands, while the grand total collected and distributed in England amounts to hundreds of thousands of garments annually. Every thing in the English reports of the work bear out the idea that the garments are to be made of plain substantial materials, although with inexpensive trimmings to frocks and pinafores, that may give pleasure to some weary, overburdened mother and also be the means of bringing about a system of cleanliness in her cheerless, unkempt home.

The movement spread to America and in April, 1885, the Parent Guild was organized at Philadelphia. As with all such incipient movements, there were only a few workers at first, but the spirit was quickly caught by others and very soon branches sprang up all over the land. The present officers of the Parent Guild are: Honorary President, Mrs. Levi P. Morton, of New York; General President, Mrs. J. W. Stewart, of Glen Ridge, N. J.; General Secretary, Miss S. B. Hodge, of Philadelphia; General Treasurer, Mrs. John R. Drexel, Philadelphia. At the close of 1893 there were one hundred and fifty-three branches, representing 24 states, fifty-three of which were organized last year. The number of garments collected and distributed in 1893 was one hundred and fifty-six thousand, three hundred and twelve. While this seems a great amount it is estimated that in the city of New York alone, institutions of various kinds need for their inmates no less than two hundred thousand garments above the supply which can now be furnished, and that Chicago needs even more than that number. In all the cities the lack of clothing for discharged patients is pitiful. Physicians testify that many patients, discharged as cured, often return to the hospital with a relapse, or some new form of disease, because sent out into the cold without sufficient clothing.

After working a few years the Parent Guild, found that some means must be provided to meet the actual expenses incurred each year, such as room rent, clerk hire, postage, and many other regular and incidental expenses. The executive committee found that it cost on an average from ten to twenty dollars to establish a Branch. This sum includes the printed constitution, direction books and lists and other literature bearing upon the work. More than five hundred dollars was spent gratuitously by members of the executive committee last year in travelling expenses to establish new branches. In addition to this sum, twelve hundred dollars were needed by the Central Bureau to pay for office rent, clerk hire, printing, postage and stationery. To meet these demands, which increase with every new branch organized, the committee decided to publish the directors' books and to ask each officer and director to solicit a sum of money, no matter how small. The plan has met with ready approval and will provide resources sufficient to carry on that part of the work.

The first branch organized in Michigan was established in Detroit. The number of garments collected the first year was something over five hundred. The number collected and distributed at the annual meeting in November, of the present year, was almost four thousand.

Finding that there were thousands of cities and villages in the United States that never had heard of the Needle Work Guild, the executive committee decided to appoint organizers for every state, and accordingly Mrs. Agnes L. d'Arcambal, of Detroit, was appointed state organizer for Michigan. In the month of July Mrs. d'Arcambal sent me some leaflets in relation to the work, which was the first intimation I had that such a charitable society as the Needle Work Guild was in existence. It being vacation the time was not favorable to attempt to establish a branch in Ann Arbor, although I was confidant that there would be any amount of willing workers when the right time came. In September I was in Detroit, and having an hour to spare I improved it by calling on Mrs. d'Arcambal and arranging for her visit to Ann Arbor to organize the Branch. Knowing so well her powers to arouse and enlist the interests of all who came within the circle of her loving influence, I did not deem it necessary to do more than to accord her time and place.

And thus it proved. She, the ambassador of divine command, clothed in purity and peace, and with pulses throbbing with sympathies for all mankind, came among us, and, as it were, touched us with the magic wand of human love.

By contact the weaker assimilate the growth and strength of character of the stronger, and thus many of us who felt ourselves the weakest and most inefficient, have proved the strongest in learning for the first time the joy of doing good to others.

No one can contemplate the great contribution of clothing which we have collected within the brief space of eight weeks, and not appreciate the immeasurable good accomplished already by the Ann Arbor Branch of the Needle Work Guild.

Early in January of the present year Lady Wolverton died, but her great and noble work will live on throughout all the ages to come, while many a worker will find a responsive sentiment in her last letter, written in December, in which she said: "There is to me a foretaste of Heaven in mutual work and mutual interest, even when there is no personal knowledge."

May we emulate the example of this great and noble woman, now gone to her long rest. May we give of love and human forgiveness, may we be forgetful of self until the needy have been clothed, the hungry have been fed, the unmissed have found a home. Then, in that last great day, when we are called to render a final account of life and all its busy cares, we shall be ready to hear the Master say:

"Have ye given of your purple to cover?
Have ye given of your gold to cheer?
Have ye given of your love as a lover
Might cherish the bride he held dear?
Broken the sacrament bread to feed
Souls and bodies of uttermost need?"

The annual Christmas party has become so thoroughly established here that it can always be set down as a success in advance. The individual dancers may come and go, the companies gathered to enjoy the occasion may change from year to year, but the party itself always occurs promptly on time, and is always a notable social event.

The dance this year was held at the Armory on Christmas night, Tuesday. The Armory is an admirable place for such a gathering. It has a very fine floor, convenient toilet rooms, a commodious refreshment room in the basement, and is brilliantly lighted with incandescent lamps. The decorations were not elaborate but were very appropriate. Neat curtains were hung at the windows, while sofas and parlor chairs were ranged about the room to accommodate the company. It was a "well dressed" party also. Full dress suits were the rule among the gentlemen, while the ladies' costumes were unusually brilliant, comprising all styles and colors, many of which were exceedingly rich and elaborate. The music was furnished by Jackson's orchestra of eight pieces, and to say that it "filled the bill to a dot" but faintly expresses the fact. Tecumseh dancers were generally present, and the surrounding towns were well represented. Some of our old Tecumseh boys were present, among whom we noticed A. W. Haight and Harry Stevens. The following guests from abroad added much to the eclat of the occasion: Harry U. Kies and friend, Julius F. Starker, of Orchard Lake; Wellington Fox, Oscar E. Barringer and Misses Bessie Hall, Jennie Gilmore and Julia Wood, of Toledo; Gen. and Mrs. Fred B. Wood, Miss Gertrude Bray, Clarence Raynor and Will Carlton, of Adrian; Mrs. C. E. Baird, of Dayton, Ohio; A. J. Lee, of Britton; Miss Rosa Wilson, of Ypsilanti; Col. E. D. Fenn and wife, of Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Clark, A. M. Kennedy, W. H. Beehler, Misses Grace Stevens Laura Clark and Louise VanDeMark, of Clinton.

W. T. Treadwell, of Adrian, acted as caterer. About fifty couple participated.

JOHN BOYD THACHER A WITNESS.

He Fully Verifies a Disputed World's Fair Award.

John Boyd Thacher is laconic and decisive in his statements. During the lively campaign just closed in New York, this marked him especially as chairman of the Democratic State Committee. It was equally true of him as chairman of the Executive Committee on Awards at the World's Fair. This is the positive and sententious way in which he verifies in an official letter, the honors won by Dr. Price's Baking Powder: "I herewith enclose you an official copy of your award, which in due time will be inscribed in the diploma and forwarded." Thus the question respecting the award, raised by an envious New York rival, is settled beyond cavil. This same rival by the way is widely advertising an award for itself. The official records prove this claim wholly false as they show the New York pretender was not so much as an exhibitor at the World's Fair.

Fifth Grade Exercises.

It was our privilege as well as pleasure to witness the Christmas exercises of the fifth grade in the East Branch school, Miss Anna Helen Morse, teacher, Friday afternoon, Dec. 21st. The exercises were very interesting, diversified in character and rendered in a manner that showed natural aptitude on the part of the little ones and careful training by the teacher, Miss Morse. To see the bright faces light up with joy as parents and friends were ushered in by the gallant little gentlemen, delegated for that particular office, brought vividly to the minds of the grown up folks similar scenes in their experiences and they seemed as deeply interested in the exercises as were the children. After the commotion necessary to seating so many was over, following program was given:

Song—by school—Christmas Tide.
The Boundary of Christmas—Eddie Lowry.
Welcome—Mary Perkins.
Stocking Song—Alma Waldron, Carrie Emerson, Ina Blessing.
Song—Christmas is Coming.
A Christmas Watch—Pearly Snell.
The Story of Christmas—Eleven Boys and Girls.
Christmas Carol—Willie Wagner.
The Marriage of Santa Claus—Grace Erskine.
Song—Santa Claus.
The Months—Thirteen Boys and Girls.
Song—Asleep in a Manger.
A Letter to Santa Claus—Wade Jones.
Waiting for Santa—Ethel Slayton.
Song—What is Keeping Santa.
Tamborine Drill—Twelve Girls.
Grandma's Mistake—Montie Austin.
The Christmas Stocking—Ten Boys and girls.
Kriss Kringle—Edna Cutting.
Song—Jingle Bells.

After the program was finished all of which reflected credit to scholars and instructors, the pretty little souvenirs prepared by the children were distributed among the parents and a few others- one of those being the writer, who wishes publicly to express his thanks for the compliment shown him, and as they filed out of the room all felt it had been a pleasure not soon to be forgotten.

A NEW YEAR'S WISH.

HAPPY NEW YEAR, one and all! May roses strew your way,
And paths be glad and beautiful on which you start to-day;
May hours of golden sunlight bring but just a dash of rain,
And gracious gifts of pleasure hold the faintest touch of pain.
For skies are fairer which bestimes the clouds have overcast
And pleasure is the sweeter when the grief and pain are past.
And if among your roses rod the ivy is entwined
Your heart will beat the nearer to the heart of all mankind.

A Happy New Year, one and all! Ah! who could wish you less!
May all the precious charities that heal and soothe and bless
Drop down into your waiting hands, and may you e'er impart
To all the weary souls of men the joy within your heart.
For hearts that hold no warmth ne'er know the joy it is to live:
Our lives are measured by the joy which we to others give.
Let all the year be golden with our deeds of gracious love,
And earth will swing the nearer to the sky that bends above.

NIXON WATERMAN.

A QUESTION of PRINCIPLE

Mrs. M. L. Rayne.

It was New Year's eve in that cold and glorious climate where the snow lies on the bosom of the earth like a protecting mantle from December to March and the nights are crisp and cold, with a resinous tang in the air, due to the forests of odorous pine. New Year's eve and the merry jingle of sleighbells in the little town of Brandon made a harmonious discord that reached the ears of two people who were having the first quarrel of their lives, and who presented—if they had only known it—an absurd appearance, one in a lachrymose, the other in a belligerent, state. It came about in the strangest way, this quarrel between two married lovers who had established their lives upon a firm foundation of principle and respect, as well as mutual love, before they took upon themselves the responsibilities of wedded life.

These were the first holidays since their wedding and they had anticipated a season of quiet enjoyment with each other, and now they were hardly on speaking terms. And there was no one to blame but themselves.

It happened in this way: Alice, Mrs. Eversham, had been very anxious to make her husband, Horace, a New Year's present, but had refrained from prudential reasons. They were saving money to pay on a home and were exercising a rigid economy in which both were equally interested. If Horace went without cigars and other luxuries, his wife gave up having afternoon teas, and hired only one domestic, who worked by the day. A certain amount was reserved for charity, and as the end of the year approached and cold weather brought extra demands, this fund gave out and there were several cases of destitution which they could not relieve, but were compelled to hand over to the charitable society of the church.

Therefore it was at Alice's own suggestion that the society got up a bazar for the sale of contributed goods, and took the proceeds to ameliorate the conditions of their poor.

This was the beginning of the trouble. When the sales were over, they took the things that remained unsold and put them up at so much a chance. Alice had put her foot down—it was a very pretty foot—against the proceedings, but had been overpersuaded that it was perfectly right, as the church would sanction it. Still, she only gave a negative consent, for she would neither buy nor sell any of the chances. But when one of her young friends took a couple of chances for her—a dressing-gown and chocolate set—she had said, laughingly, that if she won they might send them to her address.

She did not say anything about it to Horace, who was too much occupied with the closing business of the year to attend the bazar, and knew nothing of this lottery feature.

She would not have had him know it on any account, inasmuch as he had been fond of games of chance when she married him, and through her good influence had entirely reformed. That dangerous passion for gambling, which does so much harm in the world, had found an abiding-place with Horace Eversham, and was becoming one of the pernicious influences of his life, when Alice effected a cure which she believed to be permanent.

They had been happy and larky as two children, until Horace came home bringing a fine goose.

"It's for dinner New Year's day," he said, holding up the white-feathered bird at arm's length. "Isn't it a beauty—fat and plump?"

"What will we do with a whole goose?" asked Alice.

"Eat it. My father used to say that a goose was an awkward bird, too much for one, and not enough for two. We'll have a feast if Ellen Jane does her whole duty in her cooking, won't we, though?"

"Its feathers will make a sofa cushion," said Alice, who had a frugal mind. "I'm beginning to get reconciled to the goose."

"It's a noble bird, and its cackling once saved Rome," remarked Horace, sententiously, and then they went together to the kitchen, where the goose was laid on Ellen Jane's spotless white table.

When that functionary saw it, she lifted up both hands:

"Oh, but it is a beauty, missis. An' what a pity that they hed to shoot so foine a burd!"

"Shoot it," echoed Alice, "well, don't they always kill geese that way?"

"No'm, only wan it's at a raffle. I heered me Tom sayin' as Mr. Eversham won it—it's a foine shot he is, I'm told."

A raffle! Alice's heart went down to zero. Her husband shooting birds at a raffle! All her year of faithful precept undone!

"Where was the raffle?" she asked in a voice that she tried to make firm and indifferent.

"At Little Jake's, mum, in the back yard. There was a big crowd of men, an' they do say Mr. Eversham was the first one out of the lot to hit the burd, and look how nate he did it—that goose, mum, never knew what killed it."

"You needn't cook it," said Alice, "I don't like goose."

"But your husband, mum? He would enjoy it since he fetched it down with his own gun. It were banked in the snow, my Tom said, with its head sticking out an' a movin' it as fast as a flash this way an' that, an' everybody that fired at it missed it—"

"That will do," said Mrs. Eversham, and she walked off leaving Jane Ellen staring at the goose.

It was New Year's eve. Alice and Horace were only a few feet apart, in reality, but miles of distance could not have separated them so completely. Horace had tried to explain, but had been instantly silenced.

"No, no. There can be no explanation. You have broken a law of moral obligation. You have broken your promise to me," said Alice.

Tap, tap, went her little foot; there were tears in her voice. Horace felt that he was a criminal, yet if she only would let him explain. He was very angry.

There was a ring at the door bell. The two composed themselves to meet callers. The conventionalities of life must be observed, and no one must know that they had quarreled. But it was only a boy with a note, and a package for Mrs. Eversham.

It was the dressing-gown from the bazar. The chance taken for Alice had drawn it. Alice did not look upon it with horror. On the contrary, she could not conceal her delight at having won it. But she said coldly as she handed the handsome garment to Horace:

"Your New Year's present. I hope it will fit."

"Thank you very much," said Horace, his eyes sparkling with pleasure, "but I thought we were not to give each other presents this year."

"Why, there's the goose?"

"Oh, that only cost half a dollar—and we must eat."

"This cost only twenty-five cents. I won it in a chance at our church bazar."

Horace threw back his head and laughed immoderately.

"My dear little wife," he asked when he could get his breath, "do you know the difference between tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee?"

"I hope I know the difference between an entertainment designed for charity under the auspices of the church and a low raffle with no other object—"

"A charity, my dear; you wouldn't let me explain, but the raffle was to obtain money for the benefit of a poor family—"

"Name the family," commanded Alice, who did not believe her husband was telling the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

"MY NEW YEAR'S PRESENT," SAID ALICE.

"The Limpkeys, a poor family who have recently come here."

"Why, they are the same people for whom we got up the bazar."

"And for whom I helped raffle off the goose."

"It's the principle," said Alice, "it is demoralizing."

"But, my dear, it seems to me the principle is the same whether it's in the church or the saloon. It is to get something for nothing. I got the goose—you got a dressing-gown, which, as it does not cost anything, you kindly donate to me."

It was late, and a merry peal of bells rang out the anthem of the New Year. The two fell into each other's arms.

"Send the goose to the Limpskeys," said Horace.

"And the dressing-gown, too," said Alice, with half a sigh.

"And when we want to do a charitable act, let us give from our own means."

"Spoken like a dear! The best principle in giving is that of sacrifice. We won't make any resolutions, but we'll try to live up to our knowledge of what is right and true. You don't care for the goose?"

"Yes, I do very much. It would make such good eating stuffed with sage and onions, and served with apple sauce."

"So much the greater sacrifice if you give it up. And you know that dressing gown would fit you elegantly, but old Mr. Limpskey is ragged and needs it more."

"He shall have it. And we will begin the New Year poor but honest."

Then those two young people kissed and made up, while the bell rang out the want, the care, the sin, rang in the love of truth and right, and the Limpskeys were the happier for the application of that often misinterpreted text to do evil that good may come.

TURNING OVER A NEW LEAF.

BY ELISA ARMSTRONG.

The Brownsmiths were preparing to retire; the parlor clock had been wound, the window garden covered with newspaper and the key to the front door hidden under the mat.

"Dear me!" cried Mrs. Brownsmith, "this is New Year's eve."

"So it is," responded her husband, "and I haven't told you how I intend to begin the year."

"True; and I haven't given it a thought myself, I—my goodness! Look, listen! There is somebody under the sofa!"

"Nonsense! It's only the cat. I wish you would cultivate a little bravery."

"I will. I'll turn over a new leaf tomorrow; I know I'm a coward."

"You certainly are. And I have decided to arise early after this; I lose the best part of the day, as it is."

"True; besides, you put back all the housework."

"After all, I don't lie abed so very late."

"Afraid of my shadow! I'm not."

"Absurd!"

"Ridiculous!"

They both flounced off to bed without even saying good night.

what if it was unlocked? when Mrs. Skynflyntle was almost sure that some one was stealing her coal.

About to awaken her husband, she remembered that this was the time to display her courage. Seizing dressing gown and slippers, she crept out and downstairs.

The window was locked, but on returning, as she reached the foot of the stairs, she heard some one stealthily moving about the bedroom. She listened again; yes, there it was again! Proud of vindicating herself, she flew to the burglar alarm and back again.

"Hello!" her husband called. "Don't move or I'll shoot!"

"Good gracious!" she thought, "what if Henry is killed!" and her knees giving way she sank to the floor with a thud.

There was a scramble at the head of the stairs and some one rolled down, adding groans to her shrieks.

When the neighbors and police arrived they found Mrs. Brownsmith in strong hysterics and Mr. Brownsmith with a dislocated shoulder at the foot of the stairs.

"I—I thought there were burglars and gave the alarm," she sobbed, when the tumult was subdued.

"And I was merely doing as I resolved, and rising early when I heard some one moving about the house," groaned her husband.

And that was as near as they ever came to keeping their New Year's resolutions.

Saving Space.

"Binkins is going at a remarkable pace even for him."

"He says it's economy."

"Economy!"

"Yes. He's going to turn over a new leaf New Year's day and he wants to get as much recorded as he can before he lets go of the old one."—Washington Star.

ON THE THRESHOLD OF THE YEAR.

BY LOU V. CHAPIN.

Another little drop has sunk into the great ocean of infinity. Another trembling ray from man's life-sun has been sent upon its mission through measureless space. Another round has been fashioned in the ladder of destiny—and before us is the new year. All the mighty centuries, with their aggregate creation of form from chaos, have been built from these molecules of time. As the coral in the depths of the sea becomes the basic fragment of a continent only when it has yielded up the body in which it was sensate organism, so our years, precious to us, thrilling with the emotions that mark existence, become fragments of the world's history only when we lose our grasp of them and they are gone. They become imperishable only when to us they have dropped petal by petal their days, and their color and fragrance have departed.

Time is the most profound of all mysteries, the most unfathomable of all secrets. Intangible yet potent, coming whence who can tell, going whither who knows? Each year is an epitome of all that has come and gone, since the first indestructible atom of matter displaced the darkness of primordial emptiness, and wandering on the wings of ether found an orbit, and became the nucleus of a universe. Within the bosom of the years lies the story of man from the cradle to the grave, the unwritten history of unborn nations; the rise and fall of empires, systems and creeds; the riddle which can never be read by mortal eyes. We look at the past and strive to grasp its meaning, to garner up a few sheaves of wisdom. We turn our eyes to the future, enraptured at the mirage of waving fields of untrodden effort, ready for the sickle of the mind, and looking backward and forward the precious present slips away and to-morrow becomes yesterday.

A new year! Heir of all the wealth of the old years, pulsing with possibility, great with promise. It is well that we bow the knee and lift the heart, as the old passeth, and the new cometh out of the door of the storehouse of future centuries, surrounded by its cycle of days, each bearing aloft its unlit torch awaiting the signal of the bridegroom.

Nations, like the planet upon which they live, have their era of subsidence and emergence, their tidal waves and earthquakes, their glacial epochs and their periods of teeming fertility of thought and achievement as well as of glory and prosperity. Now and again they are shaken to their center and old forms give way to newer and better. Thus is the miracle of creation made recurrent. Looking upon the life-chart of nations, as it lies spread out before us in history, we see here and there an illumined mountain-peak, a Mohammed, Christ, Luther or Cromwell, and here and there a burned-out crater of passion, a Waterloo, a Flodden Field, a Gettysburg. Mountain-peak and crater are a part of the great scheme of humanity, abiding places for the eternal sunlight guiding men to loftier heights of patriotism and purity, or warnings of the smoldering fires which keep the earth throbbing with heat and vitality, when prisoned, but unchained involve it in ruin.

The year that has gone has been one of regret and disappointment to us as a people. Like the prophet of old we have looked to the heavens for a sign and found it not, and bowing our hearts we have waited with what patience we might for Time, the healer, to cause us to forget our wounds. All that was in the old year, but the dawn of a new future shines upon us. As we gaze upon its first roseate ray we picture to ourselves the gratification of hope deferred. We hear in the tones of the bell, still quivering with the dirge of the past, a new strain. It breathes of hope, tells of strife soothed to peace, hatred quenched in forgiveness. We follow the ray and it leads us to the embers on the hearthstone of the old year. Looking closer, we find it was kindled there. Amid the ashes of shame and violence, fires of patriotism and brotherly love still burned. Dark indeed will be the old year that sees them quenched in our land; darker still the new year that gives no promise of liberty under law and no respect for the ideals of the past.

Another year, would we linger in the portals of the past, where we have been garlanded with love and joy or where age has crowned us with fruition? Behind us the crowding centuries push like a great army hurrying in hot haste to the victory. Onward they press, sweeping all before them. Alas! we may not pause. Reluctant or willing, we are hurried forward toward those battlements, which, seen dimly against the horizon, may be mist-shrouded and so near at hand that the next step will bring us to the grim gates which open but once to every mortal, and behind which there is a mystery greater than that of Time. Those trampling centuries, thundering forward with a tread like the music of the stars, "so loud it deafens mortal ears," are advancing to carry man to the highest pinnacle of hope and achievement. Woe be to us if each day we join not the host as valiant soldiers, ready to storm any fortress of wrong and prejudice, willing to do battle according to the strength of our souls and the justice of our cause.

Logical.

"Well, it's about time to make some New Year's resolutions."

"What's the use? Didn't you break all those you made a year ago?"

"Certainly. That's why I've got to make new ones."—Detroit Tribune

A WELL-LAID PLAN.

Young Mr. Tawker was going over his New Year's accounts. His countenance betrayed a fact he would never confess to Angelica—that love in a cottage is much more expensive on paper bearing the head work of grocer or butcher than on that on which the young couples make their calculations.

Angelica, perfectly aware of this fact, had considerately left the room; when the bills were put away she returned.

"Algernon," she said, "we really must make some New Year's gifts."

"But, dear, we really must economize."

"But see what a splendid plan I've devised. You know we received some lovely things when we were married?"

"Mostly useless ones, though."

"The more suitable for presents. Well, I've decided to—you'll never guess—to use some of them for New Year's gifts."

"What a head you have! But you must be careful."

"I will. I remember just who gave each one."

"Let's do them up at once, then."

"This handkerchief case was from Dora; it is too limp to use, so I'll give it to Eva. Having so many babies, she never goes anywhere, so she'll think it the latest style."

"YOU ARE A MANAGER, ANGELICA."

"Splendid!"

"Isn't it? This pickle castor Effie gave us; that can go to Fanny—they don't speak, so Effie will never see it."

"You are a manager."

"Now this Mrs. Sharpleigh—I want her to ask me to assist at her reception, so I'll give her the cut-glass bowl that is too large for our table. Let me see, it was from Sue, or was it Mr. Smith? No matter which; it looks handsome."

"The very idea! I have to pass Eva's and can deliver her present."

"Good. I'll take Mrs. Sharpleigh's myself—will be a good chance for her to ask me about the reception."

Mr. Tawker, coming home with a long countenance, found his wife in the dark.

"Did you deliver Eva's present?" she asked in an anxious tone, "and was it all right?"

"I'm afraid not. Dora was there, and she recognized it by a place inside where the silk was stained."

"Oh, mercy!" she burst into tears; "what shall I do?"

"Was Mrs. Sharpleigh pleased?"

"O, Algernon, how shall I ever tell you? It was the very bowl she had given us herself—she recognized it by a tiny flaw in the bottom; she says she will never speak to me again as long as she lives!"

GREAT DISAPPOINTMENT.

She—I hear you got a little brother for a New Year's present. Ain't yer glad?

He—Naw!

She—Did yer want a sister?

He—Naw. I didn't want no brudder nor no sister neider. I wanted a fightin' dorg an' a pair o' skates!—Life.

GIFTS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Dainty Things That a Woman Can Make for One Dollar.

Pretty and Useful, Too—How Cleverness May Take the Place of Cash in Providing Holiday Offerings—New Notions for Nimble Fingers.

(COPYRIGHT, 1897.)

What can a woman make for her dearest friend for a dollar?

We have so many "dearest friends" that economy must be practiced. To offer a gift that has been bought for that sum would be highly ungraceful; but when the materials have been gathered for the amount of the crisp bill, and the woman's own fair fingers been employed to fashion some dainty and useful article therefrom, the expenditure of the dollar is quite another matter.

First, therefore, is the pretty gift which one makes for the guest chamber. The guest chamber is very much of a fad now-a-days, and anything you make for it is sure to please your housekeeper friend. Buy half a yard of soft, cream-white plush. It will cost about seventy-five cents. Cover a heart-shaped piece of cardboard with the plush, with canton-flannel or other soft substance between, leaving two places free around the bottom, where you can slip a long, narrow piece of bookslate into one side, and a perpetual calendar into the other. Of course, the plush must be cut away to allow these to show. The plush should be glued to the cardboard and no finish will be necessary to the incisions if the gluing is well done. At the top of the bookslate print in dainty gold letters: "Avis;" beneath, at the side, in smaller letters: "Meals" and "Trains," with space between, where the hostess marks the hours for meals and departure and arrival of principal trains. A yard of white ribbon, fastened at each side, and tied in a large, graceful bow, brings the cost of the gift up to the limit.

The veil-holder is a great favorite. Veils must not be folded; therefore a new device is a roller around which they are carefully wound. It is an ordinary rolling-pin, covered with satin or plush—preferably the latter, since it preserves the veil—of light tint. Over the white or pale plush the meshes of the veil are clearly visible, and any small tear can quickly be distinguished. The ends of the pin are covered with gathered puffings of satin. Do not get a large pin; the veil may be folded twice in the width. Heavy white silk cord ties at one end, and suspends the veil-holder.

It is difficult to get a sofa pillow within the dollar limit, but by careful management it may be accomplished. A down pillow twenty-one inches square may be had for seventy-five cents—not at all of the stores, to be sure, but a little shopping will reward you. You have but thirty cents left for your covering and trimming. Therefore purchase a yard and a quarter of ordinary brown burlap, which costs only a few cents a yard, and cover one side with dashing gold figures or scrolls. (Your brush and gold are not included in the expenditure.) If you outline the scrolls with threads of heavy worsted or crewel, in dull pinks and blues—crewel that you have at hand—catching it down, not working it through, it will bring out the pattern very effectively. For an edge you can make a plaiting of the burlap which remains. Spend your remaining twenty cents in cheap silk of the golden brown tints, with which to make rosettes for the corners.

Even a bureau cover, and a pretty one, can be brought within the dollar limit. A yard and a quarter of piqua—Bedford cord variety—is the material. You must stamp it yourself—outfits cost only twenty-five cents—or design the sprays in crayon. Have only two; a large, graceful flower at one end, and a smaller one in the corner of the other. Work them in the short and long stitch, with filo-floss, so that only a few skeins of the silk are required. This will bring your expenditure up to seventy cents, unless you have the silks at home. Now go bargain hunting, until you find coarse, handsome lace at ten cents a yard. Three yards of it will trim your cover.

The fan-holder is made of two flat pieces of cardboard, twenty-two inches long, seven inches wide at one end and four at the other. They are covered, first, with canton flannel, then with Japanese crepe, silk or satin. The sides are made by two-inch pieces of material fastened to the cardboards with large, fancy stitches. The holder hangs up, with the wide end on top, of course, and with a small bag, drawn together with ribbon, standing out of it. This can easily be made for the price named, since so many bargains in fancy crepes and silks are now offered.

The photograph holder is always acceptable. The pocket variety, if made well, is the prettiest. Be careful, however, not to have the pockets soft and baggy. They must be made on the principle of the fan case—stiffened on the top and bottom of each pocket with soft silk sides. They open and shut like a book, of course, and a sufficiently wide binding must be allowed, or the case when full will not close nicely. Great care must be exercised in putting the sides together, and they must be tightly stretched over the cardboard, and neatly finished. A dainty painting in scroll, or embroidered clusters, makes the holder very attractive. Velveteen is one of the best materials from which to make the case. Plush is a little heavy; velvet is too expensive, and satin and silk are heavy enough for the case that is designed to hold a quantity of photographs. It need not be tied with ribbons, unless you desire to make it more decorative.

Equipped.

"You bet I am," replied his flippant friend. "I have more material for swearing off than I ever had before in my life."—Washington Star.

A Chinese Devotee.

One of the most notable heiresses in all New York is an adept in Chinese, of all studies in the world. Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, who will not be out of her teens for some time to come, is the young lady. The daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, needless to say, has had every advantage, and she speaks French, Italian and German very well. But she has for four years now been studying Chinese, and her interest in the literature of the Flowery Kingdom seems ever to increase. She does not, however, speak the Chinese language, but reads Confucian philosophy with considerable facility. In England this accomplishment of Miss Vanderbilt's has attracted much attention among her mother's friends, notwithstanding the young lady is barely "out."

A JOKE ON THE MARQUANDS.

Dante is a favorite author with Mrs. Paran Stevens, a taste which she shares with the dowager empress of Germany, widow of the lamented Frederick. Very few New Yorkers are aware of Mrs. Stevens' Dantean scholarship, for she is anything but a pedant.

Mrs. Herman Oelrichs is one of the most proficient students of art that ever graced New York society. Not that she paints and sketches merely, although her work in that line has attracted attention, but she is deemed the best informed woman in the city on the technique of art and on the points of difference among the various Italian schools. She has made a deep study of the old masters, and Raphael she particularly admires.

The Marquand women are also authorities on art. Their home is said to contain more gems in this line than many a dwelling of esthetic renown in Europe. There is, indeed, a facetious report in circulation concerning the Marquands to the effect that they dare not keep a cat in the house because the creatures could not move without knocking down a roomful of bric-a-brac.

To Bake Buckwheat Cakes.

Set a griddle over a gentle, steady fire; when it is hot rub a bit of suet or fat fresh pork on a fork; the griddle must be hot but not scorching; put the batter on in small cakes; when one side is nicely browned and about half cooked through turn them. These cakes, to be in perfection, must not be thicker than a dollar piece, and both sides a delicate brown. Should the batter prove too thick it may be made thinner with sweet milk; this will also make them bake a fine color.

Satisfying Him.

"I have called," said the captious critic, "to find out what reason you can give for representing the New Year as a nude small boy."

"That is done," responded the art editor, "because the year does not get its close till the 31st of December."

Then the captious critic went out and broke his nice new pledge.—Indianapolis Journal.

Flowers Dear In New York.

Violets cost only 50 cents a bunch, but the bunches are very small. For 25 cents the Broadway florists make up little bunches for the buttonhole of men's coats, but they contain only one-third of the original bunch. When a man makes that kind of purchase, he is likely to conclude that there is a violet trust or else that enough people are not engaged in the cultivation of violets. The best chrysanthemums sell on Broadway for $1 each. As cultivators would grow rich selling them at 5 cents each, some one must be making good for the late hard times.—New York Correspondent.

A Remarkable Substance.

A German chemist is reported to have discovered a new substance called cryostase, which has the remarkable property of solidifying when heated and remaining liquid at temperatures below zero.

Ripans Tabules: for torpid liver.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

A Happy New Year to all.

Was'nt it a beautiful Christmas day?

Will Osgood, of Britton, was a HERALD caller last Monday.

Walter Burnett is home from Albion College. He will remain two weeks.

E. E. Russell, of Jackson, ate his Christmas turkey at the old home in Raisin.

Mrs. A. W. Slayton, Earl and Ethel are spending the holidays with friends in Erie, Pa.

Andrew Ayres, of Cambridge, was in town Saturday and favored the HERALD with a call.

Raynor Anderson came home from Buffalo to enjoy the yule tide season at the old home.

The third entertainment on the Star Course will be given on Thursday evening, Jan. 10th.

Harry Dunn, of St. Paul, Minn., is shaking hands with his old Tecumseh friends this week.

Tecumseh merchants had a booming holiday trade last week, much better than they expected.

Chet. Haynes and family, of Adrian, were guests of Thos. Boyd and celebrated Christmas with him.

Family re-unions and dinners were numerous on Christmas day, and mirth and good fellowship reigned supreme.

Bert Tribou, of Detroit, came home to eat Christmas turkey, and we violate no confidence in saying that he enjoyed it.

Chas Eldridge and family are spending the holiday season with friends at Weedsport, Auburn and Union Springs, New York.

A. W. Slayton had a car of pine lumber in a railroad collision between Bay City and Detroit. He now has kindling wood to sell.

If you wish to know what time it is, just ask Clarence Jackson or Mont Rowland. Xmas brought them them each a gold watch.

Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Rush, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who are spending the holidays with Ridgeway friends, were callers at the HERALD office last Saturday.

S. W. Clarkson and family of Ann Arbor, visited the old home in Macon this week. They spent Christmas with Mrs. Clarkson's father, L. D. Watkins, of Manchester.

Miss Mana Monaghan started Monday for the Pacific coast. She goes to Marshall first to pass a few days with her sister, Mrs. Sherwood, and will then proceed to Los Angeles, Cal.

Leroy C. Blood, of Lansing, sends his subscription for 1895 in good season. He cannot get along without the HERALD for it constitutes the "missing link" between the old home and the new.

D. A. Hodges is spending the holiday season with his family at G. W. Jackson's. He has engaged for 1895 with the Milburn Wagon Company and will make his headquarters at Milwaukee, Wis.

Geo. W. Jackson has received word that his brother William, who is well known here, was stricken with paralysis which affects his entire right side, at his home in Conshatta, Louisana, recently.

Sneak thieves were abroad last Saturday afternoon, and several bundles were purloined from buggies on Chicago street. Vigorous measures should be adopted by our village authorities to stop such pilfering.

Take your poultry to L. D. Dewey's. Six and one-half cents for live chickens and seven for ducks; that is the place to go—where you always get the highest price for your poultry. He pays more for hides and furs than any man in town.

The annual meeting of the Macon Grange, 167, will be held at Grange Hall, Saturday evening, Dec. 29th, at 7 o'clock. The election of officers will take place at that time. Also, a Board of Directors will be elected. Let every member be present.

In lieu of the ordinary Christmas services, Rev. C. M. Brown gave a stereopticon lecture at the Presbyterian church on Christmas evening. It was entitled, "America and the Land we live in," comprising about fifty views, with brief descriptions of each. A comic series was added called the "Honey Stealers," which made lots of fun for the little folks. A large audience received the benefit of the lecture.

The exercises at the Baptist and M. E. churches Christmas eve were of an interesting character, a portion of which were very similar, namely a short program, consisting of music, recitations and addresses. At the Baptist church in place of a tree laden with gifts, an oyster supper and other good things in endless variety were served to the scholars which proved fully as satisfactory. At the M. E. church it took two trees to hold the presents, and they presented a pretty picture, trimmed as they were with fine artistic effect.

A very enjoyable family reunion was held at the home of Mrs. Minerva Westcott on Christmas day. The 23d was her birthday and the 24th was the birthday of her grandson, Will, and the party was construed as a birthday anniversary. It was the first time the family have all been together since the death of their father, many years ago. Thirty-two were present, representing four generations. A group picture was taken by Teeple. The day will be remembered by all for many a year, and particularly by Grandma Westcott, as the party was made in honor of her 76th birthday.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$30 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Wheeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand,	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM. Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.

Plans for the Future of the Alpena & Northern Road.

BAY CITY, Dec. 21.—Estimates and contracts are being prepared for extending the Detroit, Bay City & Alpena, or Alger road, as it is usually called, to a Bay City terminal. The road will run into West Bay City, and it is reported that the Flint & Pere Marquette road will bridge the Saginaw river and the new road will run into Bay City over their road and use their depot and warehouse.

It is said Alger, Smith & Co. accepted the offer of the Drexel, Morgan & Co. syndicate for their northern extension called the Alpena & Northern, which is now completed to McKinnon lake, half way to Cheboygan, and by the time the southern end is extended the northern will reach Cheboygan. The road will rival the Grand Rapids & Indiana and Michigan Central as a tourist line, and the towns and cities on the Huron shore are better regarding business than those on the Michigan Central. A new line of steamers to connect with the new extension will be put on next season, so it is reported, and Mackinaw island can be reached in less than an hour from Cheboygan. There is enough lumber uncut in Presque Isle and Montmorency counties to last over ten years at least, affording good freight business. It is said the road, under a receiver, has paid 4 per cent. interest on a $4,000,000 indebtedness.

MICHIGAN RAILROAD TAXES.

There Is Due the State $811,056—Not a Passenger Killed in 1894.

LANSING, Dec. 22.—Railroad Commissioner Billings reported to the governor that the total sum due the state from railroads for taxes this year is $811,056. As compared with 1893 this is a falling off of $82,705, or 9.25 per cent. Of this total the four roads operating under a special charter paid $220,932. The taxes to be paid by this class of roads next year decrease nearly three-fourths, as the Michigan Central and Grand River Valley roads have filed their acceptance of the provisions of an act of 1895, permitting special charter roads to come under the provisions of the general railroad law for the purpose of taxation.

The commissioner reports the fact that for the year ending December 1 not one passenger was killed and but eleven injured by a railroad accident in the state. This is in marked contrast with last year's experience, when in October alone forty-two passengers were killed and ninety-six injured in two accidents at Jackson and Battle Creek.

The aggregate cost of the roads is given at $1,019,700,225, while the total stock and debt is $1,078,896,729. The aggregate receipts from operation were $146,626,659, and the total expenses, including taxes, $105,054,079. The net income of $41,572,559 is $8,712,480 greater than that of the year previous.

POTTER IS TO BE TRIED.

Canvassing Clerk to Be Hauled Up for the Salary Amendment Fraud.

LANSING, Dec. 22.—Interest in the salary amendment frauds is being revived in this city by the announcement of Prosecuting Attorney Gardner that Frank O. Potter, one of the indicted persons, would be placed on trial for making a false public record. At the January term of court to be held at Mason the defendant's attorney, S. L. Kilbourne, announces that his client will be ready for trial, but that the county will be asked to pay the expenses of the defense.

[Potter was one of the clerks employed in making the canvass in the secretary of state's office in the spring of 1893. The returns from twenty-four of the eighty-four counties of the state upon the salaries amendment were fraudulently canvassed, and as Potter never offered any satisfactory explanation of how the changes were made, he was indicted by the grand jury last February.]

TEACHERS EARN $3,758,905.

Superintendent of Public Instruction of Michigan Makes a Report.

LANSING, Dec. 22.—The report of the state superintendent of public instruction of Michigan shows that the total amount paid for teachers' salaries in the public schools for the year ending September 30 was $3,758,905, of which $2,800,243 was paid to women teachers, whose average wages was $34.36 per month, against an average of $48.89 paid to male teachers. There were 16,335 teachers employed, of whom 13,005 were women. The value of school property is $15,757,921. Free text books were furnished in 764 districts.

Took Him for an Alligator.

GRAND RAPIDS, Dec. 21.—Last June Frank Statsic while crossing a bridge over a creek in Allegan county saw what he says he thought was an alligator. Procuring a rail he dealt the object a terrible blow. As it fell into the stream below he saw that it was Carl Johnson, who had fallen asleep while fishing. Statsic took Johnson home, where it was found his skull had been fractured. Johnson recovered and sued Statsic for murderous assault, but the latter was acquitted. A civil suit for damages was then brought, but it has been thrown out of court.

Dropped Dead at a Funeral.

DETROIT, Dec. 22.—While assisting an undertaker to carry out the corpse of his nephew to a hearse, Robert J. Haggerty, a coal dealer of this city, staggered forward just as he reached the gate and dropped to the sidewalk dead. The coffin fell on top of him. When the dead man had been taken into the house the undertaker picked up the coffin, put it into the hearse, and the funeral proceeded as if nothing had happened. Mr. Haggerty's death is attributed to apoplexy.

Will Reduce Its Working Force.

ESCANABA, Dec. 22.—Master Mechanic Clark of the Northwestern railroad shops has received word to reduce the employment force 5 per cent, and to work the shops only five days per week. It has caused great dissatisfaction among the men.

UNDER A BAN.

"Bishop McDonnell had a surprise in store for the clergymen of the diocese when they assembled in the diocesan seminary to participate in the regular quarterly conference. The bishop announced that he was in receipt of a communication from Mgr. Satolli. The communication was written in Latin and it stated that the apostolic delegate had been instructed by Rome to notify the archbishops, bishops and priests of the United States that the action taken by the American archbishops relative to secret and semi-secret societies, at a meeting held by them in Chicago, has been ratified by the college of cardinals and by the pope.

"The meeting in Chicago was held at the residence of Archbishop Feehan, and though it was known that one of the topics to be discussed would be the attitude of the Catholic church towards secret societies, no information as to the results of this meeting was given out until the letter read at the conference was received by the papal delegate. This letter contains the information that the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows and the Sons of Temperance are now under the ban of the Catholic church, and the Catholics who join any of these three societies will be excommunicated. Those Catholics who are now members of one or more of these societies will be exhorted to sever their connection with them, and if they refuse they will from that moment and by their refusal cease to be Catholics. The decrees affect no other country save the United States."

TELLS THE TRUTH.

Capt. Schmittberger Tells of Corruption Among New York Police.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Capt. Schmittberger was recalled as a witness before the Lexow committee on Friday. He created a sensation by his answer to the second question asked him, which was: "Do you recognize the binding character of an oath?" He replied: "I do; I have come to tell the whole truth."

Capt. Schmittberger is under indictment for bribery. He had previously refused to testify before the senate committee. Thursday, however, he was rearrested and his bail increased. Friday he took advantage of an offer of immunity from punishment held out to him by Counsel Goff, and agreed to make a clean breast of it.

Without question Friday was the most important day in the history of the Lexow committee. Schmittberger's confession is prolific not only of sensation but of evidence which confirms and verifies what have been hitherto considered the most exaggerated cases of police and official corruption. It deals with more individual cases; it shows the criminality that has prevailed in the police department.

MASKED MEN ROB A TRAIN.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 22.—When the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul passenger train from South Dakota came in Friday morning at 6 o'clock four men went into one of the coaches some distance from the station. They used no revolvers, but had masks on and two took each side of the car, which they worked in about four minutes. Nearly every passenger was relieved of a watch or pocketbook. The men worked so fast that nobody realized what they were at until they were gone.

TO END THE WAR.

China Sends Peace Envoys to Treat with the Japanese Government.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 22.—On account of the terrific loss of credit abroad and the unimpeded progress of the Japanese armies China, on the advice of the foreign powers, has determined to surrender absolutely to Japan. Through the friendly offices of the United States, the preliminaries to this end have been arranged and two high plenipotentiaries have been appointed by the emperor to proceed to Japan.

Pension Swindler Sentenced.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 21.—Jere Haralson, the ex-congressman who was tried here several days ago and found guilty of forgery and perjury in several pension cases, has been sentenced by Judge Edgerton to two years in prison at Detroit or pay a fine of $5,000. Haralson represented one of the Alabama districts in congress during the reconstruction period.

Horse Thief at the Age of Twelve.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 21.—Roy Harding, 12 years of age, is in jail here for horse stealing. He is known to have stolen several valuable animals. He drove them into Iowa and sold them. His last theft was a horse he stole from John Hoffman. He was caught while trying to sell the animal.

Jones County Calf Case.

Frank Bradley, alias Franklin Bineton, wanted in Detroit for forgery, was arrested in Toronto, Ont., Monday. Bradley has agreed to waive extradition proceedings and will return to Detroit with an officer from that city.

INSTANT DEATH.

It Comes to Many Men Through a Boiler Explosion.

WEST BAY CITY, Dec. 20.—Tuesday noon a boiler in the box factory of Russell Bros. exploded because of low water. The shock of the explosion was felt throughout the city. A number of employes were seated in the engine room at the time eating lunch. Five were killed outright, one is missing and supposed to be under the debris, and three were badly injured. The dead are: John Calcutt, aged 24 years; George Pfund, aged 17; Albert Rahn, aged 16; John Brann, aged 15, and Al Hearenbacher, aged 17. The injured are Fred Wildanger, Charles Dodge and Roe Hudson. The dead were terribly mutilated, one man having both legs blown off and his neck broken. One ghastly find was that of a headless trunk. The debris of the mill was thrown over 500 feet and all the windows in the neighborhood were shattered by the shock.

Haining, the engineer, professes entire ignorance of the cause of the accident. He denies that the water was low in the boiler. Experts say that the boiler, which was twenty-eight years old, was practically ruined and rotten. Every expert who has examined the surroundings, declared that the explosion was due to low water.

WILL KEEP HIS SEAT.

Senator Patton to Retain His Place Until His Successor Is Chosen.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21.—Senator Patton has been consulting with the members of the election committee and finds that the report that his term must expire January 2, and the state have only one senator until the legislature can elect, was without foundation; that the question has been fought out by that committee, and the senate has established a precedent by which Patton will remain a senator until the senate is officially notified of the election of his successor or the legislature finally adjourns without being able to elect. In the case of Trumbull, of Illinois, the senate also exploded the constitutional provision, when it was claimed it would make Judge Hubbell ineligible for senator. Judges and governors have been elected and admitted to seats as senators in several instances.

LANSING POPULISTS.

LANSING, Dec. 21.—Lansing populists are to establish industries and a newspaper on the cooperative plan. They will erect a building in which will be carried on the manufacture of chairs and wagons. A general merchandise store will also be a part of the scheme. Workers will be paid in paper good for its face value in the store, goods to be sold at a small advance above cost. Should the purchases not equal his earnings the worker may receive his surplus either in cash or paper of the association. Operations will be commenced in a few weeks. The progress of the organization will be watched with interest.

Jailbreaker Caught.

HILLSDALE, Dec. 22.—Seven desperate criminals escaped from the Hillsdale county jail September 3 by tunneling through the walls. Among them was George E. Cleveland, who with Robert Mehan and Frank Swindenski was charged with the attempted murder of Postmaster Weatherwax, of Somerset, in July. Since then one of the lesser jailbreakers was caught, but Cleveland and his pals were not heard from till Thursday night. Sheriff Converse received a telegram from the chief of police of New Orleans, La., saying they had him in custody.

He Secured a Part.

DETROIT, Dec. 21.—Auditor General Turner has demanded of the auditors of Wayne county an advance of $100,000 on account of the state's portion of taxes. He explained that the state needs this sum to meet vouchers, and said the treasury is nearly empty. It was finally agreed that Cashier Nicol of the City Savings bank will advance $37,500 and the county will pay a like sum, and Mr. Turner for the present will be satisfied with that $75,000 thus secured.

Wants the Wisconsin Central to Pay.

LANSING, Dec. 22.—Attorney General Ellis has commenced suit against the Wisconsin Central railway which operates between Bessemer and Ironwood, in this state, to recover $3,000 specific tax assessed against it in 1893. The auditor general has made several fruitless attempts to collect, hence the suit.

The Development of the South.

is being furthered by the Queen and Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to southern points at One Fare for Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinnati, O., Louisville and Lexington, Ky., June 5th, July 5th, Aug. 7th, Sept. 4th, October 2d, November 6th and December 4th; good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates to all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisiana. The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3.00 to $8.00 per acre.

Stopovers are permitted on these excursions at any point South of the Ohio River within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go South to look into the great movement of Northern farmers to that section. Send us your name for advertising matter and any information you may want as to lands and immigration to the South.

HOMES IN ARKANSAS.

The location of Arkansas is such as to exempt it from extremes of heat and cold. Its elevations and richness of soils adapt it to the production of a greater variety of crops, fruits and general products used for the sustenance and comfort of man than any other State in the Union. While its salubrious climate, joined with the other combinations mentioned, give to its fruit and food products a peculiarly delightful flavor that can be found nowhere else. It justly boasts of more healthgiving springs and better well water than any other State. Lands are cheap and productive, markets accessible; health good; no blizzards; no [illegible] never a failure of crops; good schools, churches and society, and what is most important, a hearty welcome for all. ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a license granted to the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Robert Service, deceased, by the Hon. Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 18 4, I shall sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the dwelling house known as the late residence of said deceased, on lands hereinafter described, in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 22d day of December, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, the following described real estate, to-wit:

All that parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as seven and one-half (7 1-2) acres of land to be taken in the form of a parallelogram eighty (80) rods long north and south by fifteen (15) rods wide east and west, from out the southeast corner of the west half of the east half of the north-east quarter of section two (2), of town five south of range four east.

Also all that parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section eleven (11), of town five (5) south of range four (4) east, containing forty (40) acres, more or less.

Also all that other parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as four acres of land in square form to be taken from out the northeast corner of the west half of the northeast quarter of section eleven (11), of town five (5) south of range four (4) east.

Also that parcel of land situated in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as the east half of the east half of the northeast quarter of section two (2), of town five (5) south of range four (4) east, containing about 37 1-2 acres of land.

All the above described lands are subject to the dower right of Mary M. service, widow of said deceased therein, and are also subject to rights to cut and remove the growing wheat crop thereon.

Terms of sale, down payment in cash.

Dated, November 8, 1894.

MARY M. SERVICE,
Administratrix of the estate of Robert Service, deceased.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Saturday, the 24th day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Litchard, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of James Litchard, a son of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Alfred Lewis or to some other suitable person,

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 24th day of December, next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

C. S. Burroughs, having completed his labors at Blackburn, Oklahoma Territory, returned home, with his wife, Friday night. It seems good to have them with us again, and we anticipate great enjoyment in hearing Charlie relate some of his experiences on the frontier.

Willard D. VanTuyle is the recipient of a very unique paper knife, sent by Miss Augusta Bruce, who is connected with a girl's school on one of the Sandwich Islands. It is made from one of the native woods, highly polished and richly inlaid with other woods. It is both useful and ornamental.

At the Baptist church, Monday night, the exercises appropriate to Christmas were very interesting, the children and all acquitting themselves with great credit. Instead of the conventional tree, they had a wind mill, which was a work of art and correct in detail. When the wind blew, out came the presents in great profusion and variety, to the great delight of the expectant onlookers. It was quite a novelty and a pleasant change.

George Ellis, a former Clintonite and oldest son of our venerable townsman, Alexander Ellis, died, it is thought, of apoplexy, at his home in Zilwaukee, just down the river from Saginaw, Sunday morning. Two of his sisters, Mrs. Mary Belding and Mrs. Alice Mills, and Dan. H. Davis left Tuesday to attend his funeral, which occurred yesterday. He leaves a widow and several children, most of whom are grown up to manhood and womanhood, some of them being married.

Friday we had two runaways, which added largely to the excitement accompanying the holiday season, namely, Ed. Clark's and Gregory Clapp's. The former was unloading corn from a car at the station and had the reins tied to the car door. The horses became frightened and Ed. thinking to get the lines, sprang onto the wagon, but as he did so the lines broke and they were off. Turning suddenly Ed. was thrown off and landed on his back. The team ran for the barn, and as they turned short onto Chicago street the wagon turned bottom side up, the whiffletrees parting company with the same. Up through the crowded street they went to the barn. Save Ed.'s bruises, no damage was done; but he had a narrow escape from serious injury, if not death. The other team broke loose and started west at a rapid gait, but were stopped at Halliday's before doing any damage.

There were a large number of family reunions here and in the surrounding country Xmas.

Miss Florence Camburn, of Macon, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Niblack, this week.

Prof. L. S. Camburn and family, of Centerville, are visiting his sister, Mrs. Will Niblack, this week.

When Ponce-de-Leon sought to find
The fountain giving back lost youth,
It may be that he had in mind
That draught which seems to make truth
Out of the fable ages old.
For drinking it the old grow young;
It is indeed, a draught of gold,
Surpassing all by poets sung.

The draught meant is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, of Course. It is a most potent rejuvenator of the weakened and debilitated system. It drives out all poison, all impurity, enriches the blood, and makes the old and worn out feel young and vigorous. Ponce-de-Leon didn't discover it, but Dr. Pierce did, and he rightly named it when he called it a "Golden Discovery."

The New York Tribune.

The enormous circulation of the New York Tribune, now the largest of any political weekly in the United States, undoubtedly did much to influence the country in the right direction in the late campaign. Having sharpened its arrow and spear afresh, The Tribune has again taken the trail for big game. To secure the Presidency in 1896 for the Republican party, is now the object of its labors. The Tribune is a great paper and is commended to our readers. Roswell G. Horr's articles on the Tariff, Coinage and Labor, are alone worth the price of the paper. Friendly to the old soldier, devoting much space to Agriculture, and printing every week superb and absolutely unequalled Market Reports, editorially able and entertaining, The Tribune is worthy a place in every home. It illustrates the news of the day profusely. Thousands of Democrats take it for its articles on public affairs and its purity, decency and freedom from smut. The Tribune stands like a rock against the reactionary policies of the Democratic party. Every Republican should have it. The Tribune Almanac for 1895, out in January, and 25 cents a copy, will be valuable on account of its full returns of the phenomenal elections of 1894.

You Should Get It.

Should get what? Why, The Rev. Irl R. Hicks' splendid Almanac for 1895. He has kindly sent to this office a copy of the same, and we speak advisedly in saying that it is a rare publication—the very latest and best of all that has emanated from the pen and brain and heart of this well-known friend of the public. The history of this man's work now an open book to all America—and a casual glance at his Almanac for 1895, convinces us that this vitally useful and instructive book ought to find its way into every shop, store, office and home in the land. The price of the book—only 25 cents—could not to our knowledge be invested for any one thing more profitably. It contains 84 pages, printed on fine book paper, with elegant covers in colors. It is for sale by all newsdealers. This fine Almanac is given as a premium to every yearly subscriber to Rev. Irl R. Hicks' well known and deservedly popular paper, Word and Works. This unique journal is a peerless educator of the masses and is fast becoming a household guardian and necessity in the homes of America. Those who want to keep up with all the advanced thought of the age in science, religion and all social, commercial, intellectual and domestic subjects, should subscribe for Word and Works. Subscription only $1.00 a year. You can send for both direct to Word and Works Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

The Woman's Era.

Within Her Sphere She Reigns Supreme.

Woman claims her own. Her field widens constantly Every day brightens her prospects. Her progress foreshadows the greater triumph at hand. Emancipation and equality will be hers in the years to come.

Prophetic of final victory were her achievements at the World's Fair. At her shrine there erected the nations bowed. The lesson taught at the "Woman's Building" will last "till time shall be no more." Their enlightening influence will be felt around the globe throughout the dawning century.

Only less memorable were the honors gained at the Fair by

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

The highest award conferred on this peerless preparation, is a fitting accompaniment of the laurels won by the women of America.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 24th day of December in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety four.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of William D. Gallatin, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Mary Clemens, a sister of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of the estate of said deceased be granted to petitioner, the executrix named in said instrument, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 21st day of January next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said, petitioner should not be granted.

And it is Further Ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

INSTALLING OFFICERS

Of Some Post, G. A. R., and Women's Relief Corps.

A Camp Fire and Program.

Benefit of the Grand Entertainment Given at Butler's Opera House Monday Evening.

The installation ceremonies of the G. A. R. and W. R. C., which took place at the opera house on Monday evening, together with the Camp Fire program in connection therewith, proved to be an entertainment of more than usual merit. The G. A. R. post again demonstrated its aptness for giving a public entertainment that the public could appreciate and patronize.

The auditorium of the opera house presented a delightful picture. The forest scene was set upon the stage, the platform and walls on each side were profusely decorated with national flags, while the front of the gallery was trimmed with tri-colored bunting, hung in festoons. An open space about thirty feet wide was left in front of the stage where the installation ceremonies were performed. The platform was filled with chairs, which were occupied by the orchestra, members of the G. A. R. from abroad and others during the evening.

The program opened with two selections by the Social Concert Orchestra, "The Crow Crows" and "The Eagle's Nest," both from Issenman, which were finely rendered. It is needless to pass any encomiums here upon the merits of their music. Their reputation is already established and they always please whenever they appear.

Major Seymour Howell then [illegible] the installation of the officers elect of Beers Post, and performed that difficult job with his usual dignity and tact. The orchestra followed with another selection [illegible]

The installing officer of the W. R. C. came [illegible] and [illegible] beautiful work and [illegible] Hymns, State [illegible] Without disparaging the [illegible] post, we must confess that the [illegible] of the corps, on installation, surpasses the beauty that of the post, and Mrs. Hodgman conducted the exercises in a very impressive manner. To those who had never witnessed the ceremony, it was exceedingly interesting.

The orchestra then gave that grand old tune, "The Star Spangled Banner" in a manner that stirred every old veteran's heart.

Comrade John D. Shull then assumed control and introduced the camp fire program. He did this in his usual happy style, making frequent hits which the audience highly appreciated.

The first toast, "Michigan in the War," was responded to by Hon. James O'Donnell.

JAS. O'DONNELL'S SPEECH.

In responding to this toast he paid high tribute to the patriotism, courage and services rendered by Michigan's noble sons in the great struggle. As was expected he illustrated many truths by anecdotes which were appreciated by the large audience of people who filled the [illegible]. He showed from statistics that no state responded more nobly to the [illegible] than our own grand state. He paid a high and fitting tribute to the memory of Michigan's grand war governor, Austin Blair, and in closing gave the number of battles fought by regiments, the number killed in battle, the number dying from wounds and disease. The summary [illegible] a total of 100,000 enlisted, 2,800 [illegible] in battle, 1,566 dying from [illegible] and 9,783 from disease.

Mr. [illegible] common with other sons of [illegible] had their jests at the [illegible] ranks that the name of McKee [illegible] were famous. The exploits of Hamilton [illegible] the various campaigns [illegible] the [illegible] of the soldiers [illegible] had created a respect [illegible] The South that was not allayed with [illegible] words. Years after the days [illegible] had decided a contest [illegible] and [illegible] rang, troops [illegible] to the [illegible] and guns drew so [illegible] Of the News failed to [illegible] tion, and President Lincoln [illegible] and [illegible] for [illegible] years for 75,000 men [illegible] months' service. [illegible] of [illegible] became the soldiers of [illegible] and they were indeed raw recruits. There never was a country so unprepared for war. The young soldiers of 1861 had never known discipline or military training. They had no idea of what war meant. They had read over and over again the story of the great revolutionary struggle, had been thrilled with the victories of 1812 and gratified by the triumphs in the war with Mexico, but personally, none of them had ever known organization, or drill or organized efforts.

The young soldier of 1861! Ah, what a trial awaited him and how gloriously he stood the ordeal. Scan the pages of history and you will search in vain for such deeds of heroism, bravery, daring, endurance and valor, such desperate contests, such heroic conflicts, such undying devotion and loyalty. The young soldier of 1861 was became the strong, sturdy, trusty veteran of 1865, and when finally the last struggle was over and the victory won, the surviving members of that immense body of boys, with steady tread, returned to their respective homes, and of them the post could write as was written of the pilgrim fathers:

"I see them on their winding way,
Above their ranks the moonbeams play,
Their hearts high deeds and daring high
Filled with the hopes of victory."

Those young soldiers of 1861-5 returned, and to-day are the soldiers of peace, a common citizenship with their fathers and sons. To-day the hearts are filled with unspeakable pride as they see the boys of 1895 in the national uniform, forming the "national militia." Are these boys in the pride of their young manhood, are but the counterparts of the boys, who, in 1861, without previous education, became real soldiers; and none but one who has been in the shock of battle, and is the father of youth like these, can divine the emotions that fill a veteran's breast, as he [illegible] the martial tread of these young [illegible] the present protectors and [illegible]

[illegible] on these that [illegible] Grand Army, at [illegible] of which is [illegible] [illegible] if the Grand [illegible] a non-political organization.

[illegible] Yes and No. In the sense of an old soldier being a politician, yes. He is not only a voting man, but he is independent in his party preference and thoroughly loyal to his party. In the sense of aiding a G. A. R. member, again I say, yes. It is this kind of a political organization that led every old soldier to sympathize in the success of Burroughs for senator. Understand me, that the selection of senator depended on my vote and it was a struggle between Mr. Burroughs and Don Dickinson. I would have chosen Mr. Dickinson, because he represents my political views. But had it been between L. H. Salsbury and Mr. Dickinson, I would have chosen Mr. Salsbury. If by political organization you mean are we pledged to advance any political party, I answer, No! a thousand times no. No man ever heard a word about politics in a post room.

In July last when law was ignored, authority defied, property destroyed, commerce and trade stopped; when the torch and rapine, pillage and plunder had brought chaos and anarchy at our doors, because in the exercise of his powers the President had stretched forth the strong arm of law and backed it promptly with the military, where stood the Grand Army of the Republic? Why, for law and order, to a man; and had President Cleveland in that month been a candidate for re-election, I pledge you that George Spaulding, James O'Donnell, Seymour Howell and John D. Shull would have stood side by side with Robert McKinstry, L. H. Salsbury, Jebiel Davidson and myself, and given Mr. Cleveland a unanimous vote. Personal and party preferences would have been lost sight of in a desire to proclaim to the world our approval of a determination to uphold the laws of the land.

This is the policy of the Grand Army of the Republic. This is its mission, this its influence, and this is what the soldier of 1895 is proud to proclaim.

P. S. McKinnon responded to "Our National Guard." This he did in a scholarly manner, and by his clear reasoning and effective argument, excited in the minds of the people a greater appreciation of our own gallant boys than had ever been entertained. He showed conclusively, that while guarded by Company C, Beers Post, aided by the Relief Corps, the citizens of Tecumseh might rest in perfect security from foes at home and abroad.

The Grayson family, consisting of Miss Dora Grayson and her brothers, Peter, Will, Cap and Ted, gave a vocal selection, "Alabama Coon." Their voices blend in perfect harmony, and the song carried the audience by storm. It was received with vociferous applause and they responded to the encore with a sweet little ballad, "God Won't Love You, If You Don't be Good"

"Woman's War Work," was the topic assigned to Mrs. Emma Stark Hampton. It was a model address, and as it was delivered from manuscript, we take pleasure in presenting it entire.

Fred VanDeMark was slightly indisposed the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Haughn have had another child born to them.

Miss Minnie Alexander spent Sunday with her father at Tecumseh.

R. T. Mitchell of Cleveland, Ohio, visited Clinton friends over Sunday.

Mr. Chamberlain, of Bean & Chamberlain, Hudson, was in town Monday.

It is reported that the old Clinton foundry will be started up again soon.

Irve Hause had a cousin from Harvey, Illinois, Pilbeam by name, visit him over Sunday.

Darwin Munson, of Monroe Co., was the guest of his brother Frank and family over Sunday.

Lew. W. Kimball and wife returned from their little trip, Friday, and report a pleasant time.

Some of our young people attended the dancing party at Hampton's Hall, Tipton, Friday evening last.

Mrs. Hattie Johnston was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Kate Conklin, at Manchester, the last of the week.

Mrs. Ella G. Rose and daughter Blanche arrived Friday night from Detroit for a visit with Mrs. Marjory Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schoen, of Bridgewater Station, were the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tag over Sunday.

Prof. H. E. Fink, of Tecumseh, gave one of his instructive lectures last evening at the Town Hall to an appreciative audience.

Mrs. George A. Kies gave a delightful pedro party to 24 of her lady friends Monday evening. The gentlemen were left out entirely.

The work on the Woolen Mill company's new building is practically completed and ere long will be occupied for the purposes designed.

Floyd Rogers and Harry Kies returned to Orchard Lake, Tuesday, to again take up their work in Michigan's popular military school.

Geo. C. Lindsley is holding down his seat at the session of supervisors, now in session at Adrian, and Mrs. Lindsley is visiting friends at Saline.

Rev. A. M. Spencer held meetings last week at Ryans Lake, and has been quite indisposed for several days. He was able to occupy his pulpit Sunday.

Madison E. Lane and Rosa left Friday for Ann Arbor. Mr. Lane has decided to have the eye, which has been operated upon twice, removed entirely.

Fred Palmer is nursing a felon these days, and it is said that he is a model of patience—so resigned, so gentle. We know how it is Fred, for we have been there.

Miss Mame Bradner attended the wedding of a friend in Jackson last week, and since then has been visiting other friends there. She returned home yesterday.

We are sorry to report Wm. Beal on the sick list. His trouble seems to be a complication of ailments and the chances are that he may be confined for some time.

Wm. C. Rogers has done a thriving business in Jackson county, selling territory for the fence he is handling. He was in Adrian Monday and Tuesday, he returned to the scene of his labors.

C. H. Fisk, who is now in the legislature, on his way home from Lansing, came this way and dropped off the morning train Saturday to make some calls, and went on to Detroit in the afternoon.

George Lancaster took an impromptu bath Monday. They were making preparations for cutting ice, and George stepped on a cake that went down with him. He prefers July weather for out door baths.

Charles S. Burroughs and family now occupy the Rogers house on Church street. We understand that Charlie proposes to again manufacture his celebrated Cuba chewing gum, but on a much larger scale than ever before.

Albert Hulet having purchased the old house of Strond Marsteller, wanted a place to put it. He finally bought a lot of Mrs. Maria Hixon, on Jackson street, north of Will Woods shop. He is busy getting the material on the ground for the foundation, and when it is completed, will move the house.

Do you wonder why Dos White Charlie Burroughs, Geo. Hard, Will VanTuyle and a number of others looked so sour Tuesday. We will tell you, they were at home taking care of the house and children, while their wives were enjoying themselves at the pedro party the night before.

At a meeting Monday evening of the stockholders of the Clinton Plow company, it was decided to accept C. F. Clark's proposition, and consequently have purchased of him two acres of land south and just east of the depot grounds for which they pay $200.00. He is to open a street west of the land purchased, and also one north of their land running east to Tecumseh street. In doing this some choice lots will be for sale and no doubt they will be taken at once, and pleasant cottages erected this season. As there is a growing demand for houses this will fill the bill.

Two gentlemen formerly the Social Club gave their first public reception at the club rooms Tuesday evening. Their wives, sweethearts, and a few others were invited. The gentlemen, as entertainers, proved themselves experts, and all were delighted with their maiden effort. The caterer, M. F. McClure, added new laurels to his already enviable reputation in this line.

Doris and Polly Schnorlle were the victims of a complete surprise Saturday evening. Their brother, Jacob being the instigator. He had his plans well and executed them systematically; from 25 to 30 of their young friends were present and were royally entertained. The elegant home was all thrown open and brilliantly illuminated. To the music it permeated a beautiful pleasure.

A large load of our young people started out Friday, to pass the evening with the younger members of the Hanks household at River Raisin. After reaching there it was decided to take them in and continue on to Bridgewater Station. They did so and when they reached their destination they enjoyed a pleasant dancing party, and we wont tell just the hour they reached home. The boys were at their respective places of business on time next morning, however.

The Clinton Mail agent at present is experiencing one of the pleasures of being a public servant. The old Clinton Plow Co. having sold their plant and moved to Hudson, a new company was formed and incorporated under the same name, consequently mail coming addressed "The Clinton Plow Company" has been given to the home company. Monday a representative of the old company served a written notice on Albert, forbidding him delivering mail thus addressed to the new company and shortly after a similar notice was served by the new company. Albert at once telegraphed to headquarters for instructions, with what result we have not been able as yet to learn. No blame is attached by either company to the postmaster. We trust everything will be settled amicably.

We take the following clipping from a Vassar paper (thanks to the courtesy of James Priest,) because Henry, one of the interested parties, has been one in our midst, and has a great many friends among our readers. "Miss Bertha Quick of this place, (Vassar) was married on Christmas day at the home of her parents on the east side, to Henry Hollenbeck, of Columbiaville. Rev. W. H. Rettey performed the ceremony. The guests were only the immediate relatives of the couple. The bride and groom were the recipients of a large number of handsome presents from friends in this and other places who join in wishing them a happy and prosperous future. The groom is a brother of W. H. Hollenbeck in this place. The newly wedded couple will settle in Columbiaville." Well, Henry we expected something of this kind; here is our hand and congratulations although we were not consulted in the matter.

The Christian Union church is observing the week of prayer, holding meetings daily. They are well attended and the interest growing.

F. Brown & Son completed 80 rods of the Homer steel fence for the Widow Clayton, Tuesday. They did a fine job, as all will admit who inspect it.

At the pigeon shoot Saturday, Will Carrabee carried off the honors, breaking every ball. Dave Linton was next, breaking 8 out of 10. The others were not in it, so to speak, ranging from zero to 7.

A. Russell contemplates moving back on his farm in the spring, and promises to furnish the boys one turkey a week while they sojourn in Detroit. The boys claim, however, if they can have but one, they prefer good Northern Spys.

Last week we announced the death of Lenardson Bros.' dog Grover. This week we announce that Lady, their celebrated female St. Bernard, has given birth to 13 fine puppies, the sire being John J. Orr's noble animal of this species.

A son of Mr. Tucker, while assisting in baling hay at Walter Exelby's the latter part of the week, received serious injury which will disable him for some time. He got his foot caught in the horsepower and the flesh was terribly lacerated from the bottom of the foot. He bears it like a hero.

At the public installation of the Hive and Tent officers of the order of Maccabees, held Thursday of last week at their hall, the ladies put the men in the shade, as they excelled them in every particular. The banquet was fine and enjoyed by the large company present, composed of members of the order and their families. These gatherings are productive of great good to the order.

The meeting of the Christian Union Church held last Saturday, James H. [illegible], treasurer, presented his report, which was most satisfactory. It showed all the expense incidental to the moving and repairing the church building, the parsonage, have been paid and a balance in the treasury. This of itself demonstrates that the society is in a prosperous condition.

Rev. E. Mudge received a telegram on Saturday night informing him of the death of his aged mother, who departed this life at the home of a daughter near Dowagiac, Cass county, at the ripe age of 82 years. She and her husband were pioneers of Michigan, having settled in Kent county, near Lowell, in 1838, when that part of the state was an almost unbroken forest. Rev. Mudge left on Sunday night to attend the funeral, returning Tuesday night.

The plans and specifications for the Reformed church are completed for the hands of the committee, who are ready to receive bids for contracts. They may be seen at the office of Dr. P. B. Hardy. The building under contemplation, when completed, will be an ornament to the village. It is to be of wood, the main building 36x40, with an annex 16x20, and the dome, or tower, to be 60 feet high. The funds have been raised for the edifice, which speaks volumes for the enterprise and generosity of our citizens.

Justus Lowe, one of the oldest and best known citizens of this community, died Saturday morning, aged 79 years. Mr. Lowe was born in Onondaga county, N. Y.; came to Tecumseh in early manhood, where he resided for a time, then settled in the township of Ridgeway, where he has resided 58 years. He leaves several sons and daughters and many grandchildren, besides a large circle of friends, to cherish his memory. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at the M. E. church, Edgerton, Rev. Campbell officiating.

Last Saturday Deputy Revenue Collector [illegible] came down among us and was the means of causing quite a [illegible] of commotion to [illegible] of our citizens. [illegible] informed that sufficient proof had been [illegible] to establish the fact that [illegible] had been dispensing [illegible] without a proper license—[illegible] they could settle with Uncle [illegible] consequences. Do you want to buy a good store building or a house and lot in Britton. If so, be quick, as I must sell at once. Enquire of J. BEASLEY.

Bishop McDonnell, of Brooklyn, accompanied by his private secretary, Rev. Father Barrett, will leave home on January 12, to visit the Pope. The Church requires that every bishop pay a visit to Rome once in five years to report the progress of his work. This will be the first visit paid to the Pope by Bishop McDonnell.

Again the angel of death has been in our midst and taken away another old settler and pioneer, making the third within a few weeks. Justice Lowe, who has been in feeble health for the past year, at times able to be about the farm until Friday, when he was taken down and within a few hours was called to try the realities of eternity on Saturday morning, in his eightieth year. He was born in Onondaga Co. N. Y., Nov. 9, 1815. From the age of nine months to thirteen years he lived with his grandmother, with whom he came to Tecumseh, Mich., arriving there on the 15th of July, 1828. He began doing business for himself at 18 years of age. When 22 years of age he settled on section 8, of Ridgeway, in which township he has since resided, always being prominent in town matters. He voted at the first election held in the township and at every election since; was one of the founders of the republican party in the town. He served the township as Supervisor for nearly nine years and as Justice of the Peace 16 years. In 1838 he married Miss Mary Lamberson, [illegible] blessed their union. [illegible] prominently identified with the [illegible] of Ridgeway, having been [illegible] and Supt. of the Sunday [illegible] a number of years and a worker for Christ. Waiter! Beefsteak, Ham and Eggs, for One.

"God gave us meat, but the devil sent us cooks", is a trite saying. From bad cooking fast eating and overeating comes a whole train of diseases, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, catarrh of the stomach, headache, dizziness, and the like. God also gave us a brainy man, who compounded the "Golden Medical Discovery", a corrective of all the ills resulting from overeating and bad blood. Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, has furnished in the "Discovery," a great desideratum in America, where everybody [illegible] in such a hurry to make money [illegible] have no time to eat, and scarcely [illegible] time to live. It invigorates the liver, cleanses the blood and tones up the system.

The unknown man is in more trouble. He has just been killed on a trolly road in Brooklyn.

Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Book of particulars 10 cents in stamps, mailed sealed in plain envelope. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

S. F. Fritz, of 877 Sedgwick street, Chicago, says: "I had a severe cough which settled on my lungs. I tried a number of advertised remedies and also placed myself under treatment of several physicians, with no benefit. I was recommended to try Foley's Honey and Tar. With little expectation of getting relief, I purchased a bottle. I had taken but a few doses when I felt greatly improved. I was enabled to sleep splittingly, blood eased, and by the time I had taken the second bottle I was [illegible] well. It saved my life." 50c. Sold by Orr & Temple.

Thousands are Moving South.

Where farming is more profitable than in the North. You can grow three crops each year from the same land, and have the entire year for out door work. No blizzards in winter or sunstrokes in summer. You can plant and harvest some crop every month in the year. The death rate is lower than in the North. Lands are still very cheap, but are beginning to advance, and in two or three years will be worth several times the present price. Improved farms, $10 to $15 per acre; unimproved land, $3 to $5 per acre, near railway stations. The best portion of America for raising fruits and early vegetables, stock raising and general farm crops is along the Mobile & Ohio Railroad in Eastern Mississippi and Southern Alabama. An illustrated pamphlet telling all about our country will be sent free to all who wish it. Very low rate excursions every month. Apply to F. W. Greene, General Agent, 108 N. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., or to E. E. Posey, General Passenger Agent Mobile & Ohio R. R., Mobile, Ala.

HEART DISEASE!

Fluttering, No Appetite, Could Not Sleep, Wind on Stomach.

"For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought that every minute would be my last. There was a feelling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I could not sweep a room without resting. My husband induced me to try and am happy to say it has cured me. I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. Its effect was truly marvelous."

Harper's Weekly

IN 1895.

Harper's Weekly is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately, and exhaustively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago railway strikes and the Chino-Japanese war, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korea the instant attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. Julian Ralph, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. Weldon, the well known American artist, now for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to cooperate with Mr. Ralph in sending to Harper's Weekly exclusive information and illustration.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in the special articles by the highest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

Fiction. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Cockade, a stirring romance of olden days by Stanley J. Weyman, and a novel of New York, entitled The son of His Father, by Brander Matthews; several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

Send for illustrated prospectus.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the number current at the time of receipt of order.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 each. Title-page and index sent on application. Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.

AN IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.

BY MRS. C. B. HOPKINS.

A little over a year ago, through the influence of Mr. Charles Bulkley Hubbell, a member of the municipal board of education, an Anti-Cigarette League was organized in Grammar School No. 68, New York city. During the brief period that has since elapsed, the movement thus inaugurated, has spread not only into every grammar school in the city, but has passed beyond the boundaries of the state into nearly all the large cities of the nation. In New York city forty thousand boys, and elsewhere more than two hundred thousand boys, have signed the league's pledge.

The plan is to organize anti-cigarette leagues in all schools where boys are taught. After consultation with their parents they are asked to sign the following pledge:

We, the undersigned, pupils of Grammar School No. ——, do hereby pledge ourselves upon honor:

From this date to abstain from ...king cigarettes in any form until ...each the age of twenty-one years.

To use all influence that we pos... induce all public school boys of ...quaintance to give up and abstain ...moking cigarettes until such boys ...tained the age of twenty-one ...

"EDGEWOOD FOLKS."

It was a decidedly appreciative audience which greeted Alba Heywood and his company upon their initial performance of "Edgewood Folks" in this city at the Grand last night. Had the merits of the attraction been known the house would have been filled. As was ... was ... enthusiastic ... of the season.

Alba Heywood is a genius in his line. "Edgewood Folks" is the name of the play, but the name as well as the play itself, was well nigh lost sight of in the great work of Heywood. ...lous public schools is to equip the youth of our land so that they can intelligently discharge the duties of citizenship. This equipment must include sound bodies, sound morals and sound minds. The state is interested in the proper development of these three. Another way of stating the proposition would be that health, character and intelligence in its citizens are necessary to the stability and prosperity of the state. Weak, puny boys make dependent men, recruits the hospitals and infirmaries. Weak and vicious character in its citizens fills the jails and prisons and imperils the very existence of the state.

Within the past ten years, and more particularly during the last five years a vice insidious and demoralizing has fastened itself upon the youth of the country, and especially upon our school boys, in a way to call for the most strenuous efforts to stamp it out, and that is the vice of cigarette smoking. This vice is a specific one. The juvenile cigarette smoker draws in the smoke with a quick inhalation that sends it well down into his lungs, where a deposit of nicotine, volatile oil of tobacco and the oil of paper remains after each operation. This deposit is quickly taken up by the circulation and distributed through the system, causing injury to health and character and appreciably diminishing mental power. Frequent and increasing indulgence is an almost unvarying characteristic of the vice. It is a facinating habit and soon compels a servitude, complete and almost helpless. The gold cure people realize this and will not treat any patient until he consents to abandon the cigarette habit.

The cheapest cigarettes are most popular, and two or three for a cent can be readily procured. A nickel buys a box of them, and that quantity is soon insufficient for a day's indulgence. The boy who cannot raise a nickle honestly will get it, if need be, dishonestly. He will deceive and rob his parents and others to provide the means of gratifying his unnatural appetite."

Take Your Home Paper.

No man is too poor to take ... home paper, says an exchange, and ... false economy to get along without it. Hardly a week passes that something does not appear in its columns that will be a financial benefit to the subscriber, and by the end of the year he has made or saved from one to twenty times its subscription price. The city papers do not take the place of a local paper, although some people seem to think they do. The city papers are all right in their way, but they don't give you what you are most interested in—your county news. You cannot learn from them when and where public meetings are to be held, who are dying or who are marrying, who wants to sell land—in fact, hundreds of items which it might be of particular importance to you to know. Such matter city papers cannot furnish, but the local paper can and does. If you can afford but one, by all means take one that is published in the county in which you live.

We offer this great book, which should be in every home, at a merely nominal price to subscribers of this paper as detailed in our "Special Announcement" elsewhere in this issue.

The "We Nine" circle of King's Daughters have been giving genuine pleasure to many, during the last few weeks. Before Miss Edith Woodward went to Chicago she organized this circle, and helped them fit up their club room, which is daintily decorated by the work of their own hands. Late in the autumn, Miss Agnes Woodward invited Miss Mana Monaghan and Miss Bertine Brewer to meet with the circle, to discuss the ways and means to do good, in the quiet way, peculiar to the King's Daughters. Their motto being, "Do the loving kindness, nearest at hand." Miss Minnie Corey and Miss Monaghan also met with the circle at their club room. Since this time, the ladies have had numerous work meetings and dainties to the sick, dispatched to needy, loving words to cheer the disheartened." All done quietly. Yet it is well to know that such things are going on.

The third entertainment in the Star Course came off last evening at the opera house. Edward Mare proved himself to be an expert prestidigitateur, and his two half-hour programs were more than interesting. He performed many new slight-of-hand tricks that had never been witnessed here. The recitations by Mr. Geo. P. Robie and the guitar and mandolin selections filled out the program very acceptably. The entertainment, taken altogether, made a very fair number in the course, as it gave variety thereto.

At the annual meeting of the Presbyterian society, held at the church, Monday afternoon, there was a very large attendance and the reports show the [illegible] to be in a most flourishing condition in every department. The treasurer's report showed the society free from debt, with a balance of nearly $100 in the treasury. The best report in [illegible]0 years. The rental of pews was [illegible] and large, showing a deep interest and a desire for continued prosperity. Henry Conklin was elected trustee for 3 years and Henry Nyland for [illegible] and F. A. Shepard treasurer. It was also decided to light the building with electricity. After the completion of the business part of the program came the annual social time supper, and, if one can judge from appearances, the best of feeling must exist in this large society, for everyone seemed to enjoy themselves to the fullest extent.

Wednesday evening, nine Princes, members of Acme Council, No. 101, Independent Order of Orientals, paid a fraternal visit to the Princes at Brooklyn, to witness the exemplification of the work of this popular order. They left at 6:30 via the Monroe turnpike. The day and evening was all that could be desired. Weather delightful, roads perfect, reception cordial, work admirably done and the entertainment royal. The Brooklyn council is one of the most flourishing ones in the State, numbering over 100 members, composed of the representative men of that pleasant town and surrounding territory. The council is well officered and the excellence of the work done by them is known all over the State. W. F. Raven, G.P.D.S. Princes Fred Clarke, Barstow, Teachout, Fish, Severance, Kline, Bartlett and others, were unremitting in their attentions to the visiting fraters. In this connection, would say to those contemplating organizing councils, that the proper paraphernalia for the work can be procured of John P. Kling, Brooklyn, Mich.

Wednesday evening, Jan. 2, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Baker, No. [illegible] 14th. ave., Detroit, at precisely 8 o'clock, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Mattie, to our townsman, W. W. Whiting. It was a beautiful home wedding. Dr. McLaurin, of the Woodward ave. Baptist church, performed the ceremony. Miss Etta Baker, a sister of the bride was the maid of honor and B. A. Garlinghouse, of this place, acted as best man. The guests, numbering about seventy, were relatives and most intimate friends. The newly married couple left on the night train for a short trip and expect to reach here to-morrow evening. They will reside in the Babbitt house on Potawatamie street which is all ready to receive them. We understand they received many useful and beautiful presents. Among the guests were B. A. & B. J. Garlinghouse, W. C. Burridge, A. W. Slayton, E. N. Satterthwaite, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, Mrs. E. C. Rogers and May Dolf Wolf from here, Miss Louise Van Dusen Mark, of Clinton, and several from Macon and other places.

The familiar form of Wm. D. Snell, always called James Snell, will [illegible] more be seen among us. He died very suddenly, at home, Tuesday, just after dinner. He was sawing wood when he was stricken down. Mr. Snell was about 85 years of age. He was born in Pennsylvania and came to Toledo when a young man. After a few years there he came to the township of Macon, making his home with Uncle John Hyatt, in 1848. He bought a small farm in the south-east part of Clinton township where they resided until about [illegible] years ago when they sold the farm to Israel Broder and came to Tecumseh to reside. Mr. Snell was an excellent mechanic and has always worked at his trade, being very active even up to his death. He leaves a widow and one son, Byron. The funeral was held at the home [illegible] day afternoon, Rev. W. H. Blackman officiating in the services.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Previous to the months of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year [illegible] prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value	$50 00
An Enderige B,	"	30 00
Wheeler & Wilson, No. [illegible]	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand,	"	19 00
Total value,		$124 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

Now is the time to pay up.

Mr. and Mrs. John Linton have been called upon to part with their six week old boy baby, Edward J. He was taken from them yesterday morning. The funeral will be held at the house to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. P. Varner will officiate.

Gordon Chosen Speaker of the House—McMillan Nominated for Re-Election as Senator—Burrows to Fill the Short Term.

LANSING, Jan. 3.—The legislative session of 1895 opened at noon Wednesday. Most of the members were present. The house was called to order by Lewis M. Miller, clerk of the last house. Rev. E. P. Patterson conducted religious services. The time until 12:50 p. m. was occupied in the swearing in of the members. Applause greeted the appearance of Mr. Donovan, of Bay City, the solitary democratic member. In the afternoon occurred the drawing of seats. By unanimous consent Mr. Donovan was given his choice. The action of the caucus in regard to the organization was then formally ratified. W. D. Gordon of Midland was made speaker by a roll-call vote. Mr. Gordon cast his vote for Mr. Donovan. The rules of the last session were adopted with the addition of such new committees as were needed, and the house then completed its organization by the formal election of the other officers on the list, Lewis M. Miller being chosen clerk and A. G. Butler, of Eaton, sergeant-at-arms. Committees were appointed to advise the senate and the governor that the house was ready for business. A message was received from Gov. Rich that he would be pleased to meet the legislature in joint session and the house adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday.

LANSING, Jan. 3.—In the senate Tuesday Lieut. Gov. Milnes called order and Rev. Clarence F. Swift asked the Divine blessing. Then the members were sworn in and Lieutenant Governor delivered a short address. J. R. McLaughlin, of Flint, was elected president pro tem and D. E. Alward, of Clare, clerk. The first bill of the session was introduced by Senator Smalley to incorporate the Saline plank road company. Senator Clapp, of Kalamazoo, gave notice of a bill which he would introduce changing the name of Kalamazoo county to Donovan. The senate then adjourned.

The joint session of the legislature Tuesday evening placed in nomination the name of Senator James McMillan for the long term as United States senator from Michigan. The formal election, as there is no opposition in the legislature, will be made by a rising vote.

Julius Cæsar Burrows was nominated by night nominating speeches for the short term in the senate. On the second ballot, Mr. Burrows received the unexpired term of Senator Stockbridge, ending March 3, 1899, thus giving him six years in the senate.

Votes received: Hubbell 5, Burrows 79, Olds, 32; Representative Gordon received the unanimous vote of the house.

MUNICIPAL COMMISSION.

Provisions of a Bill Which It Has Prepared.

LANSING, Jan. 4.—The municipal commission have completed the bill for cities of the fourth class, which includes all having a population of 10,000 or less. It is patterned largely on the present general law. It provides for the repeal of all previous charters for cities of this class and for their reincorporation under the new law; for boards of public works; and for bonding. The mayor is given power to appoint all officers save those whose election is provided for, subject to confirmation by the council. The power of removal, however, is vested in the mayor.

GRANTED A NEW TRIAL.

Mrs. Ketchum, Convicted of Sitting for Nude Pictures, Has Another Chance.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 7.—The supreme court has granted a new trial for Mrs. Catherine J. Ketchum, a local W. C. T. U. worker, who was convicted some months ago of sitting for nude pictures. The court says that the statute makes it an offense only when such pictures are procured for exhibition and circulation, and as there was no direct evidence showing this the circuit judge should have ordered a verdict of not guilty.

Grand Rapids Gas Works Sold.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 5.—Eastern capitalists have secured an option on more than a controlling interest in the Grand Rapids gas works, and as soon as a few formalities can be observed the deal, it is thought, will be closed. MUST STAY IN PRISON.

Supreme Court Decides Against Repke, One of the Molliter Murderers.

LANSING, Jan. 8.—Small hope was held out to the murderers of Albert Molliter who are now serving life sentences in the state prison at Jackson by the supreme court Saturday in its decision in the case of William Repke, one of the convicted men, who applied to the court for a new trial. The testimony showed that Repke took no part in the killing except to accompany the conspirators to Rogers City and to remain with them until the murder was committed. The murder, it will be remembered, took place in 1875, and the perpetrators were not discovered until a year or two ago, when five of them were convicted for the crime. The principal contention of Repke's counsel was that the circuit court was in error in directing the jury that if they found Repke guilty it must be of murder in the first degree. Upon this point the court says:

"Any other instructions than this under the facts and circumstances shown would have been improper, as there was no evidence warranting a different direction and the circumstances which would lessen the degree. It was a willful, deliberate murder, perpetrated by lying in wait, and the statute fixes the degree. The charge was not in violation of the statute. Neither is it in violation of any constitutional right. The charge was full and fair, presenting Repke's theory in all its phases and protecting every right to which he was entitled under the circumstances."

It was the unanimous decree of the court that the conviction must stand.

MARY T. LATHROP.

Death at Jackson of the Noted Temperance Worker.

JACKSON, Jan. 4.—Mary T. Lathorp died at 10:30 Friday morning of general neuralgia, aged 56 years and 3 months. She had been in failing health for more than a year.

[Mary Torrance Lathrop was born near this city April 25, 1838, and her childhood was spent amid the hardships of pioneer life. She was educated at Marshall and taught in the public schools of Detroit from 1852 to 1855, when she was married to Garnett C. Lathrop, then assistant surgeon in the Michigan cavalry. Two years after marriage she removed with her husband to Jackson, and, as the latter was a Methodist church, she united by letter. Dropped Dead in Church.

DETROIT, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Susan Rowe, an aged and charitable woman, dropped dead in the Woodward Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning just after contributing to the support.

Dr. PIERCE'S
Golden Medical DISCOVERY

Cures Ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of Consumption, in all its Earlier Stages.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but we have large percentage of cases, and we believe fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by well-known and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps.

Harper's Magazine

The Simpletons, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December number, 1894, and continue to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master in fiction; and The Simpletons may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Trilby—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, by the Sieur Louis de Conte. Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on Charleston and the Carolinas, the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empire. The next volume of Harper's Magazine will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the Magazine a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the short stories, there will begin in the January number the first chapters of A Three-Part Novelette, by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the Magazine.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

IN the senate on the 2d notice was given of several proposed amendments to the tariff bill, one being for the payment of a bounty on the present year's sugar crop of one cent a pound, and another to strike out all provisions for an appropriation for the collection of an income tax. The Nicaragua canal bill was discussed. In the house a bill was introduced for a tax of two dollars per barrel on malt, brewed or fermented liquors. The currency question was considered. Mr. McCreary (Ky.) advocated state banks.

THE senate passed the military academy appropriation bill on the 4th and the Nicaraguan canal bill was further discussed. Senator Lodge (Mass.) spoke on the resolution of inquiry as to why the United States warship has been withdrawn from Honolulu. Adjourned to the 7th. In the house a bill was passed granting an increase of pensions to Hiram Brown, aged 107, survivor of the war of 1812. The currency question was further debated.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

FOREMOST OF AMERICAN WEEKLIES.

Circulation 163,000 Copies a Week.

FLUSH finally from the overwhelming defeat of 1892, the New York Tribune patiently labored for two years to awaken the sleeping judgment of the Nation. Possessing an ... organization, equipped with a staff of competent and honest students of public questions, and itself having no object to serve except the welfare of the masses upon the farms and in the shops, scorning lies and sensational appeals, and satisfied merely to place the truth before its readers, the Tribune has sent to half a million earnest and reflecting people, month by month, a budget of honest facts, sensible arguments and friendly suggestions, which have at last borne fruit in the elections of 1894. The work of the people is, however, only half done. It is necessary in 1896 to place in the Chair which Grover Cleveland has not adorned, a constructive statesman of the Republican faith. To this task the Tribune now addresses itself, and invites the support of every American citizen who desires a return of the "good old times."

Roswell G. Horr, ex-Congressman from Michigan, but now of New York City, will continue to discuss Tariff, Currency, Coinage and Labor questions in the Tribune. By all odds the most witty, earnest and well-informed speaker upon the stump, he is every year sent by the Tribune to aid the local campaigns in every part of the country. He keeps in constant touch with the people, knows their wants, and addresses himself in the Tribune directly to the thoughts which are in their minds, and makes himself understood. He will gladly answer questions, asked in good faith, by readers.

All the regular features of the Tribune will be continued. For Western readers, a special array of Western news is supplied. For Eastern readers an Eastern edition is printed.

It is the intention to make the paper especially helpful to farmers and mechanics. Each class has its separate department in the Tribune; and the new invention of mechanics, who lack the means to exploit the product of their brains, are advertised free of charge in the hope of aiding them to find a purchaser or a partner.

The market reports of the Tribune ... long acknowledged to be the best in the country, will maintain their high standard.

The Semi-Weekly Tribune ... comparable paper for ... live beyond the range ... Tribune, but find it necessary ... in touch with the best ... Continent, higher interests of the ... and club agents. ...

Announcement for 1895.

What newspapers are you going to take during the coming year? Every man must settle that question for himself. The wise man, however, will have the "Old Reliable" on his list, and, in that connection, we offer our patrons a little good advice. It is needless to inform the public what to expect in these columns during the ensuing twelve months. As a first-class, up-to-date local newspaper the HERALD intends to lead the procession, as heretofore. Politically, it will continue to be independent, and it will strive to uphold the interests of the masses in matters of finance, taxation and public expenditures.

Recognizing the stringency of the times, our rates have been placed upon a hard-pan basis. A few extra combination offers are also presented, and the most favorable club list ever given in these columns. Here they are in detail:

THE S. W. FARMERS' CLUB.

The January meeting was held at "Wildwood," the home of John G. English, on Friday, the fourth. The day was cold but the roads were in superb condition, consequently a large company from Manchester, Sharon, Bridgewater, Saline and Norvell partook of the fine dinner and participated in the discussion.

The secretary, Mrs. J. F. Spafard, was not present and Wm. E. Pease was chosen secretary pro tem.

The president opened the meeting with a few well chosen remarks.

Miss Nettie English read an essay on this subject, "Where Am I At?" Mr. Pease said he had been experimenting with celery and found it a profitable crop. He has a piece of land that he has been growing celery on for the last three years. He has found that the best way to keep the celery is to bank it up in the field where it grows, and cover it with boards and straw. He has kept it in this way until the middle of March. He has also found that celery will stand a temperature of 20 degrees below zero without injury. He has found that the best way to blanch celery is to bank it up with boards and straw, and that it will blanch in about two weeks. He has also found that celery will keep better if it is not cut until it is wanted for use. He has found that the best way to cut celery is to cut it with a knife, and that it will keep better if it is not washed before it is cut. He has also found that celery will keep better if it is not exposed to the air after it is cut. He has found that the best way to keep celery after it is cut is to wrap it in paper and put it in a cool place. He has also found that celery will keep better if it is not frozen. He has found that the best way to keep celery from freezing is to cover it with straw and boards. He has also found that celery will keep better if it is not exposed to the sun. Richard Green said our great staple product should be corn. He finds he succeeds in obtaining a clover catch on stubble ground when he cannot upon a summer-fallow. He spoke of dressed pork bringing nine dollars per hundred two years ago, and he attributed it to Germany's opening her ports to its importation while since she placed an embargo on dressed meats, the price had fallen.

A. D. English said he read an article in the Michigan Farmer, a few years ago, written by A. C. Glidden, of Paw Paw, that said if farmers would feed twenty-five per cent of their wheat it would benefit the market. It sounded like a prophecy, likely to be unfulfilled. It seemed unnecessary, at that time, but is just what farmers are almost compelled to do to-day.

W. E. Pease thinks one needs to give their entire attention to celery growing if they would succeed, and does not credit it with being a crop for the general farmer.

The club adjourned to meet the first Friday of February with Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Palmer at their home at River Raisin.

The man looks uneasy. Apparently he is afraid of the result. Twelve men, good and true, may be too many for him. It wouldn't be for us. We are anxious to be put on trial, and not by twelve men but by twelve hundred or twelve thousand. The more the merrier. We want you to serve as one of the jury. We want an opportunity of proving to you that THE SEMI-WEEKLY DETROIT JOURNAL is the best, the cheapest and most satisfactory Home Newspaper ever offered the reading public of Michigan. It fills the bill completely for those who do not take a daily but who want to keep in closer touch with the news and markets than they can by reading the ordinary weekly. It is no more expensive than a weekly. Twice each week and ONLY ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. Less than a cent apiece. Each paper contains 64 columns. All the news, latest markets, choicest selections of stories, etc. Large type, clear print and easy to read.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lena...

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Lit... deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Probate Court of said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the residence of deceased, in the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 4th day of February, 1895 and on the 4th day of June, 1895, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days. And that six months from the 28th day of December, A. D. 1894, are allowed by said probate court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, January 3, 1895.

OREL HARMON,
CYRUS MONTONYE,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 24th day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Mather, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Hudson Carpenter, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his first annual account, and praying that said account may be allowed and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 28th day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendancy of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A BIT OF LOCAL HISTORY.

A Typographical Souvenir of Tecumseh in Course of Preparation.

For years past it has been the practice of the live cities and villages of the state to issue illustrated publications of various kinds, but generally of an elegant character, setting forth the desirability of the respective towns and cities as places of residence, the advantages they offer enterprise and capital, as well as commemorating the principal events in the growth and development of each. In some places this work has been done at the expense of the municipality, and in others by the aid of public spirited citizens and business men. In nearly all cases it would be safe to say that these brochures have proved valuable as advertising mediums, and have provided pretty souvenirs which will be kept and inspected with pleasure for years to come.

While there is probably no place in Michigan richer in early history and in present opportunities, Tecumseh has as yet essayed nothing of this kind. It gives us pleasure, however, to announce that a project is now on foot to issue an elegant little brochure, of about 50 pages, for the purpose above described. The pamphlet will be printed on fine enamelled book paper, illustrated with [illegible] half-tone engravings, bound [illegible] and with a specially designed [illegible]ved cover. The text matter [illegible]escriptive of the village and [illegible] from the earliest times to the [illegible]sent, and it is proposed to make it [illegible]t once interesting and an authority in [illegible]s respect.

[illegible] hoped to raise the funds necessa[illegible] the publication of this work by [illegible]ale of advertising space, which it is hardly necessary to state would be exceptionally desirable. The project is in the hands of Messrs. J. H. Smith and Chas. H. Reed, and we bespeak for them success in the enterprise and commend it to our fellow townsmen.

A Presentation Surprise.

The regular meeting of Tecumseh Lodge, F. & A. M., held at the Temple last Friday evening, was of more than ordinary interest to all present. Alf. James, who has served both lodge and chapter many years in different capacities, was resigning his position as secretary, which he has so ably filled for the past five years, and his friends in the different bodies had planned a surprise for him. He was called to the East, where P. S. McKinnon, who had been assigned the duty, presented him a beautiful charm, which had been designed and made for the occasion. It consisted of a solid gold keystone, having on the back this: "Alfred James, 1894;" on one edge, "Chapter 42, R. A. M.;" on the other, "Lodge 99, F. & A. M.," and on the bottom edge, "Tecumseh." The face bore several masonic designs, beautifully executed in black enamel. The letters forming the circle were on white enamel, while in the center of the circle was a fine diamond. It was a complete surprise to Alf., but he rallied and proved equal to the emergency by responding in a fitting manner. He will wear it with pleasure to himself and honor to the fraternity.

Educational Rally.

The teachers of Macon and adjoining townships, as well as all other persons who are interested in education, are invited to attend an Educational Rally at the school house in Macon village, on Saturday, Jan. 26, beginning at ten o'clock a. m. Subjects will be presented by Miss Maude Howell, Prof. Kellogg, John C. Howell, Edward Miller, Arthur T. Camburn and others, and music will be furnished by Miss Mary Richart and the Macon Ladies' Quartet.

Presentation to Phil. Bruner.

The Dennison (Ohio) Paragraph of Jan. 5th contains the following notice of a presentation. Mr. Bruner was in Tecumseh a few weeks ago with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Wood and formed many acquaintances here at that time, who will be glad to learn of his good luck:

Mat. Gordon, telegrapher of this city, presented to Mr. Phil. Bruner, superintendent of the C., L. & W. R'y, to-day, in behalf of the employes, an elegant diamond shirt stud, valued at $275. It being kept exceedingly quiet, Phil. was taken very much by surprise, but in his usual cool and gentlemanly manner he made a few appropriate remarks, thanking the boys for their valuable and handsome gift. Mr. Bruner has been with the C., L. & W. for several years, and is very popular among his employes, as well as the public. He ranks as one of the finest railroad men in the country, which makes his services very valuable to the C., L. & W. He served through the late war with distinction, ranking as captain, and holding the very important position of cipher translator with General Thomas up to the time of the General's lamented death, and afterward with General Sherman in his march to the sea.

A BLACK MAN TURNING WHITE.

A Wonderful Freak of Nature Now on Exhibition in Tecumseh.

We stepped in to see the spotted man yesterday who is on exhibition in the store room lately occupied by Moses Long. To our surprise we found in him one of the greatest living curiosities we ever beheld. After listening attentively to a very complete description of the transformation going on in Mr. Wilson, by our townsman, Theodore P. Wood, who delivered it in his most effective manner, we sat down and had a very pleasant chat with Mr. Wilson. We found him to be a very intelligent and genial gentleman, not given to extravagant assertions, but modest and quiet of manner and utterances. His is certainly a wonderful case. We have often seen colored people who were said to be turning white, but they were not as all like Mr. Wilson. Where he is white it is such a clear and pure white that even our own fair skin, of which we have been so proud, was put in the shade. It is so clear that our fairest young ladies would be delighted with a skin so clear and soft; to touch it is like a baby's. Mr. Wilson possesses a fine physique and weighs 200 pounds. Aside from colds, incident to his necessary exposure, he has never been sick. In our conversation we gleaned the following information: He was born in Springfield, Ohio, Sept. 16th, 1838, but for many years has resided at Perrysburg, Ohio. He married at the age of 21; has 6 children grown to man and womanhood, who are married and have children of their own, none of whom have any of his peculiarity of skin. Up to the age of 40 his skin was of one color, and that was darker than Theo Wood's. At that time a spot appeared on his right shoulder, which in three years grew to the size of a silver half-dollar. After that time other spots came and began to spread more rapidly, and have increased as the years passed, until now two-thirds of his person is perfectly white. At this rate he thinks in about 3 years he will no longer be a freak or curiosity, but a white man to all appearances. About 5 years ago he was induced to take the road, since which time he has been in all the large museums in most of the large cities; has appeared before classes in medical colleges and has been examined by eminent physicians, all of whom pronounce his case wonderful. Having a little time at his disposal, and being an acquaintance of Theo Wood, of long standing, he came to visit him. He will remain a short time longer, so that all may have an opportunity to see him. No one should miss this privilege. Ladies and children are especially invited to call.

Oranges Frozen Solid.

J. B. Clement, a former resident of Blissfield, writes from Mt. Dora, Florida, under date of Dec. 31st, giving a few details about the frost which ruined the orange crop:

Florida has just received the worst black eye in the history of the State. Friday morning, 28th inst., the mercury went down to 17 above zero, and every orange in the State was frozen as hard as a brick and will be a total loss to the growers. The estimates of the transportation men who have been over the State would produce five million boxes this year. There have been about two million boxes marketed so far, which is unusually large for this season of the year, leaving about three millions on the trees a total loss. And this is but a small part of her loss, as the young trees are all killed, and the old ones hurt so badly that they will not recover in a number of years. The great freeze of 1886 lasted three days. The coldest was 22 degrees above, and that killed all young trees. Saturday morning it was 23 above, and there was ice on a barrel of water at the north end of my house one and a half inches thick. I saw a report from Eustis made Dec. 27. This is the home of Col. Hazzard. It was estimated that they would have 15,000 boxes more in this locality than last year's yield. About 2,000 boxes have been shipped so far this season from the depot at Eustis, and about 58,000 remain on the trees. The fruit is principally Russets, but of a superior quality.

A Deerfield Pioneer Gone.

George Ferguson died suddenly at his home in this township, Monday night, of apoplexy. Mr. Ferguson was a pioneer of Lenawee county. He came to Deerfield in the spring of 1834, and thus has lived more than sixty years in this township. Fifty-three years of this time he lived upon the farm on which he died.

He was eighty years old last September, and while not the oldest man in the township, he was the oldest resident in this part of the county. He owned one of our best farms, and by frugality, and square dealing had acquired a handsome property. He was ever ready to extend a kindly hand to the needy, and the memory of many who have felt his generosity will rise up and call him blessed. —Adrian Times.

A WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

She's got the right to be taxed—so hasn't
And nobody can have more!
She can't intimidate to use her tongue,
And she never can want any more.
And she has her representative now,
A piece of a man—somewhere—somehow—
Mixed up in all the political row—
And now can she want any more?

Miss Myrtle M. Maxwell, of Onsted, is a believer in woman's rights—not the theoretical, sentimental, fashionable kind, which begin with wind and end in smoke, but the common sense, practical kind, which permit and encourage a woman to earn a livelihood at any honest occupation. She is the owner and sole manager of the Onsted News. She fills the several positions of editor, proof-reader, compositor, job foreman, pressman, book-keeper, solicitor and office devil, and is an adept in every department. The work is all well done and the paper is issued on time every week. When business calls her out of town, however, the whole mechanism stops, like a run down clock; but upon her return the clock is again set in motion and the print shop proceeds. The News has improved in both appearance and contents since the present pilot assumed the helm.

The editorial sanctum of the HERALD has shown with a brilliant effulgence and the editorial heart has been supremely happy during the past week. The cause of this unusual phenomenon is the daily receipt of the Legislative Journal, which arrives at this office as promptly and punctually as a dunning letter or a wrathy subscriber. This model of typographical beauty is a sort of panacea which cures all ills which editorial flesh is heir to. It is as interesting reading during a leisure hour as Webster's dictionary. For a tonic it rivals old rye, with no evil after effect. For a target to swear at, it beats the office devil. In slack days, when the copy hook runs empty, it affords a never-failing supply. It replaces the old, worn out door mat to perfection. As kindling for building a fire, it is better than basswood and cheaper than kerosene. As a vade mecum of political information, it is unrivalled. As an old paper supply for the rag bag, it distances all other exchanges. May the Solons continue their sessions at Lansing for the next six months, and may the Journal continue. Its benign visits at the literary sanctum

Announcement for 1895.

What newspapers are you going to take during the coming year? Every man must settle that question for himself. The wise man, however, will have the "Old Reliable" on his list, and, in that connection, we offer our patrons a little good advice. It is needless to inform the public what to expect in these columns during the ensuing twelve months. As a first-class, up-to-date local newspaper the HERALD intends to lead the procession, as heretofore. Politically, it will continue to be independent, and it will strive to uphold the interests of the masses in matters of finance, taxation and public expenditures.

Recognizing the stringency of the times, our rates have been placed upon a hard-pan basis. A few extra combination offers are also presented, and the most favorable club list ever given in these columns. Here they are in detail:

NO. ONE.

Every subscriber, either old or new, who pays all arrearages and one full year in advance to Jan. 1st, 1896, will receive, gratis, a neat portfolio entitled [illegible]es of the White City; the Mid- This is similar to the Ferris [illegible]eel portfolio, given to our patrons last year. It will be a free gift to all advance paying subscribers, and will hold good until Feb. 1st, 1895.

NO. TWO.

The "Columbian Gallery" consists of twenty numbers of World's Fair Photographs, published by the Werner Co., of Chicago. This is the finest collection among all similar publications. There are 256 full-page plates, size 11 by 13 inches, beautifully bound in one large volume. The price of the book is $3, with one year's subscription to the HERALD thrown in.

NO. THREE.

The "Graphic History of the Fair" is the finest and most complete history of the Fair ever presented to the public. It is a book of 300 pages, containing over 1900 illustrations, elegantly bound, and sells for $3. This book will be furnished for that amount, including a full year's subscription to the HERALD.

NO. FOUR.

The "Land of Christ" is one of the most beautiful serials published, giving a very fully illustrated history of Palestine. It is published in twelve parts, and will be furnished in separate parts to subscribers. This work sells for $2. We can furnish the same at the regular price, with a year's subscription to the HERALD included.

Sample copies of all the above books can be seen at our counting room. Call and examine them.

CLUB LIST FOR 1895.

We are prepared to name better club rates this year than ever before on outside publications. With the periodicals named in the following list we have special terms, but we can obtain subscriptions, at reduced rates, for any newspaper or magazine published:

CLINTON, MICH., JAN. 18, 1895.

Geo. A. Kies was home over Sunday.

Mrs. Alma Tate was in Tecumseh Monday.

Cris Schmidt and wife visited Tecumseh Tuesday.

S. W. Demuth was in Detroit on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Ed. Semark visited Tecumseh friends Wednesday.

Charles Carroll has been on the sick list but is out again.

Wm. C. Rogers was taking in poultry in large quantities Tuesday.

Ed. A. Clark was on the sick list for several days the past week.

Walt C. Burridge and Mat Root, of Tecumseh, were in town Tuesday.

Mrs. H.W. Stevens, of Tecumseh, visited her mother and sister Tuesday.

C. A. Slayton and Rev. C. M. Brown of Tecumseh, were in town Tuesday.

Miss Eva Shimmen visited her sister at Hudson from Friday until Tuesday.

Born, Sunday morning, to Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Marshal, a son. Congratulations are in order.

Geo. Runyan went to Detroit Monday to attend the Grand Masonic bodies in session there this week.

Mrs. Fane Smith, Addie Wells and Della Kies visited Mrs. Alice Anderson at Tecumseh, one day last week.

Miss Anna Glasford, after several weeks visit with her aunt, Mrs. Eugene Palmer, has returned to Britton.

Will Mobbs and Wade Waring, of Tecumseh, attended union service at the Congregational church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Lucretia Amspoker gave a pleasant pedro party to a small company of friends at her cosy home the last of the week.

Codling & Machin have rented Soloman Parker's barn and turned it into an ice house which they are filling this week.

Misses Laura Clark and Grace Stevens and Alex Kennedy and W. H. Beehler visited Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Blachford at Tecumseh Saturday.

Mrs. J. W. Bradner left Tuesday for a visit with Mr. B's grand-son Fred in Chicago. From there she contemplates going to Texas to visit their son Seth and family.

D Woodward and wife left for Detroit, Saturday, for a visit with friends. David was, as usual, in attendance at the meetings of the Grand Council and Grand Chapter.

The Postmaster General has notified Postmaster Kishpaugh that the old Clinton Plow company were entitled to the mail bearing the address of "The Clinton Plow Co.," so that settles the question for the present.

Fred Wright, of Denver, Colorado, is visiting friends in this vicinity. His wife and children have for some time been with her parents, B. J. Bond and wife, and Fred joined them recently and expects to spend some time among his old friends and relatives.

A committee from the High School consisting of Leon Clark, Claude Hause, Ray Wood, Melinda Nase, Ollie Mills and Sadie Huntington purchased a fine gold pen holder and two fine volumes for Prof. H. W. Daniels, and they were presented to him at his home, Tuesday, in a fitting manner.

Peter Morton and daughter, while driving into town Monday were upset east of town, and the horse came into the village minus a driver. Leon Clark caught the horse and started back meeting Mr. Morton and girl on the Calhoun hill. Save the seat being torn from the cutter no damage was done.

Mrs. Mary Collins met with a painful if not serious accident, a few days since at her home. In going to the woodshed she stepped on some ice, her feet slipped and she fell striking on a pail that was near by. She hurt one hip badly and has suffered great pain in consequence.

Mat Lancaster, while working on the ice with a horse, thought to have a little variety by way of a change, and both he and the horse had it. They both went down, and after floundering, or rather sporting, in the water for a while, were rescued. Guess they enjoyed it, at least neither suffered any inconvenience from it.

Robert Redick has the contract for the stone and brick work of the Clinton Plow Company's new plant and Fred Sherwood the wood work. They have began active labors and it is expected the company will be occupying the building within sixty days. About 20 men are at work in the different capacities and the work is progressing rapidly.

A letter received recently by W. D. VanTuyle from [illegible] Bruce states that she has charge of her quarters from the island of Koha[illegible] to Kanai, another of the Sandwich Islands. She now has charge of the Lihue Kanai Industrial School for boys. This is a much better position than she held and is a compliment to her ability, not only as a teacher, but also to her executive talents. We are glad to hear of this recognition of her abilities.

There is a feeling of gloom pervading this entire community, in consequence of Prof. H. W. Daniels being obliged to resign his position as superintendent of schools, owing to impaired health. For some time he has been threatened with nervous prostration, but hoped to rally, but Monday he was obliged to give up. He has been conscientious and faithful in fulfilling his arduous duties and has done grand work in the school. It is hoped, that with care and quiet, he may be restored to perfect health. Many have felt he was working too hard, as he gave himself entirely to his work as well out of school as in. The High school room has been closed until a teacher can be secured. Wm. S. Kimball and John Hause drove to Ypsilanti Tuesday to see what could be done. They hope soon to have a teacher here.

They had a very enjoyable time at Maccabee hall Tuesday eve., the occasion being the installation of officers in both Tent and Hive, W. B. Keyser acting as installing officer for the Tent and Mrs. Auchampaugh, of Adrian, for the Hive. While not exactly public, there were a number of invited guests present, who were not members of either order. Immediately after the installation ceremonies, Mrs. Carrie Woodward, the retiring lady commander who has ably served the Hive in that capacity since its organization, was presented with a beautiful chair by the members of the Hive. This proved a complete surprise to her, but the spirit prompting this token of esteem was none the less appreciated. Then followed the banquet which was such as these ladies are noted for giving and was enjoyed to the fullest extent.

During the session of the board of supervisors Saturday morning, the retiring clerk, Ira Waterman, was presented with a handsome gold-headed cane by his friends of the board and about the court house. The head was inscribed "To Ira Waterman, from his old friends, January 12th, 1895." L. H. Salsbury made the presentation speech, and Mr. Waterman responded gracefully. He has been one of the most efficient and painstaking clerks Lenawee ever had, and is deserving all the honors he receives.

When Teddie Perkins lit his morning cigar yesterday he threw the match in the cuspidor at his home on High street—or, he thought he did. But after he had left for over town, Mrs. Perkins heard a roaring noise and, coming into the sitting room, found the curtains in the archway leading to the parlor all ablaze. The flames had extended to the arch and were working up into a partition on the 2d floor. An alarm was given and the East Side hose boys were soon on hand, but the fire was put out without their help.—Hudson Gazette.

He was taken sick here and died, but before he passed away he requested that his head be severed from his body and sent to Prof. O. S. Fowler, of New York, and his body be buried with the feet toward the south, in token of his hatred of the slaveholders. We understand that his wishes were complied with and that his bones are mouldering to dust in the old burying grounds on Washington street.

What a Word Will Do.

Byron reminds us that a word is enough to arouse mankind to mutual slaughter. Yes, there is power in a word—Marathon, for instance. Waterloo, Gettysburgh, Appomatox. Great these, but what a great battle is going on in many a sick and suffering body. In yours, perhaps. Take courage. You can't win. Call to your aid Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts powerfully upon the liver, cleanses the system of all blood taints and impurities, arouses all humors from a common Blotch or Eruption to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially potent in curing Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip Joint Disease, "White Swellings" and Enlarged Glands.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure permanently constipation, billiousness, sick headache and indigestion.

The Outlook

A Family Paper.

The Outlook is twenty-five years old on New Year's Day. 1895. Its first number appeared January 1st, 1870, under the title The Christian Union. It was established as "A Family Journal, drawing materials of interest, and instruction from every department of human life." Its field is the world; its platform, a better world; its aims, to teach men and women how to live, and to help them to be happier and better while living. The Outlook contains not less than forty pages every week, with from twelve to forty additional pages in each of its seven annual Special Numbers. It is clearly printed from exceptionally large and legible type, on fine toned paper, and is usually illustrated with portraits and other pictures designed to interpret the text. The editorial staff of The Outlook comprises Lyman Abbott, Editor-in-Chief; Hamilton W. Mable, Associate Editor; R. D. Townsend, Managing Editor; Mrs. Lillian W. Betts, who has charge of all matters pertaining to the interests of women and children; Nancy H. Bradford, who prepares the department called The Religious World; Charles B. Spahr, whose specific work is in the line of economics and social science; and Elbert F. Baldwin, who conducts The Business World, besides writing on art and literary topics. Eminent specialists in many fields also contribute editorially and with signed articles.

REGULAR FEATURES OF THE OUTLOOK.

The Week: A history of the world's movement and progress, conveying fully and clearly the news of the week, and interpreting it impartially. With frequent portraits of leading men and women. Editorials: Discussing timely themes with vigor and directness, in sympathy with all progress. Signed Articles: By leaders in all departments of the world's work. Frequently illustrated. Sermons: By Lyman Abbott and other leading preachers. The Home: Helpful to women in all departments of living. Bright stories for boys and girls. Stories: Wholesome fiction every week. Striking short stories by leading writers. Books and Authors: Recording the literary progress of the world and reviewing by specialists all important new works. The Religious World: Telling the story of the religious progress in all denominations and in all lands. The Spectator: Entertaining table talk about men, books and out-of-doors. Anecdotical and gossipy. The Business World: Presenting the current history of finance, commerce, and industrial progress.

The subscription price of The Outlook is $3.00 a year, in advance. Clubbed with the HERALD at reduced rates.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Sam Hatch, who has been on the sick list, is recovering.

The suit between E. Osgood and Heman Hand is finally settled. Osgood pays $60 and costs.

The ladies of the M. E. church gave a social at the home of Dr. Slaght on Wednesday evening, Jan. 16.

County Commissioner Field will hold a teachers' association meeting at the school house on Saturday, Jan. 26.

In spite of the stormy night, several of our young people had the benefit of the entertainment on Jan. 10th in the Tecumseh lecture course.

A number of Macon members and friends of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. attended the public installation of officers at the Tecumseh opera house.

Owing to the very stormy night, the graphuphone entertainment given by J. R. Collier at the M. E. church on Friday night was not very generally attended. It would probably pay Jesse to repeat it on a more favorable night.

The W. C. T. U. will hold their monthly dinner party and business meeting at the home of Mrs. Isaac Mills, on Friday, Jan. 25. Please come early, as the days are very short and there will be some important business to bring before the society.

The ladies of the Reformed church have just finished a beautiful silk quilt which they will sell at auction on Friday evening, Jan. 25, at the home of Wm. Osgood. An excellent program will be rendered and supper served. All are cordially invited to come and help in a good cause.

The familiar face of another of the old residents of our place, Mrs. Margaret Maples, will be seen among us no more, for on Friday, Jan. 11, our friend, who had been for so many years so active, went to her long rest. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. P. Varner at the home of her daughter in Franklin, where she has lived since her own home was broken up.

SOUTH MACON SIFTINGS.

The weather is fine and the sleighing is good.

Mrs. Geo. Graves is under the doctor's care.

The weather was so inclement Sunday that Rev. J. I. Gulick did not venture out.

Considering the night, there was a good attendance at the Christian Endeavor last Friday evening. After a short meeting, officers were chosen. If the social committee, in a social mood, would decide to have a social, we think all might enjoy a sociable time.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year in the Macon Grange;

W. M.—J. W. Osborn.
W. O.—J. W. Baker.
W. L.—M. J. Mastin.
W. S.—N. Skinner.
W. A. S.—L. Skinner.
W. C.—Rev. J. I. Gulick.
W. T.—C. F. Morley.
W. S.—R. C. Bailey.
W. G.—L. Burleson.
W. L. A. S.—Mrs. C. F. Morley.
Pomona—Miss Emma Bailey.
Ceres—Miss Annie Miller.
Flora—Miss Virginia Baker.

IDEWAY RAMBLES.

Saturday was an old time winter's day.

Harvey Haight was on the sick list the last of the week.

Sarah Van Duser went to Toledo Tuesday to visit her father.

The snow is nearly a foot deep on the level and sleighing is good.

Mrs. Catherine Cox visited relatives at Macon village last week.

John Jackson, of Macon, called on relatives in this village Thursday.

A. J. Terwilliger, of Detroit, was the guest of Emma Miller over Sunday.

Mrs. Lewis Wyckoff, of Tecumseh, called on her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Arner, Monday.

H. J. Williams, of Adrian, the hustling Page wire fence agent, was in the village Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Campbell, of Owosso, came Thursday of last week for an indefinite stay with Mrs. Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Sisson.

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the north-west where wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Go to Virginia; land is cheap, climate perfect all the year round. Ask any one who knows and he will tell you that in the tidewater section one acre of land has produced as high as $2,000.00 in one season. It is worth looking into. Apply to C. H. Bovee, Gen'l. Land and Excursion Agent, Coldwater, Mich., for pamphlet "Facts for Farmers" free. No statements made that are not corroborated by practical farmers who have grown rich on their Virginia farms.

Despite the prevailing style which permits women of all ages and sizes to wear mens' hats we can not refrain from saying to these followers of an ill-advised fashion, "don't." When a young woman dons a man's hat she surrenders the delicacy and grace which ever has been and ever will be a woman's chief charm, and which men prize in her so highly. It is true there are many women who pride themselves on their refinement and accomplishments just now wearing men's hats who would be shocked to know that in the eyes of others they appear "loud" or "mannish." And yet they persist in following the fashion even at the sacrifice of modesty. A woman never appears so well as she does in modest attire, and she can never appear modest in a man's hat.—Ann Arbor Democrat.

Dave Hill refuses to be dragged into the Croker-Cockran shindy. David has not yet recovered from the effects of a row of which the country knows all the particulars.

Right Arm Paralyzed!
Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 31 pounds. Her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."
MRS. B. E. BULLOCK, Brighton, N. Y.

Harper's Weekly IN 1895

Harper's Weekly is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately, and exhaustively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago railway strikes and the Chino-Japanese war, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korea the instant attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. Julian Ralph, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. Weldon, the well known American artist, now for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to cooperate with Mr. Ralph in sending to Harper's Weekly exclusive information and illustration.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in the special articles by the highest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

Fiction. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Cockade, a stirring romance of olden days by Stanley J. Weyman, and a novel of New York, entitled The Son of His Father, by Brander Matthews—several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

Send for illustrated prospectus.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the number current at the time of receipt of order.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 each. Title-page and index sent on application. Remittances should be made by Postoffice Money Order or draft, to avoid chance of loss. Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the oldest and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages, has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASES.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venereal Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 18 ounces, or 60 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you. It will be cheaper both for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 18, 1895.

Mr. Ingalls is too polite to ask for a second piece of senatorial pie, but he can't help looking wistful.

The fellow who had the nerve to steal a redhot stove from the White House is out of his proper field of action. His place is in Congress.

We don't see why Coxey might not just as well run for president as for congress. It is a harmless amusement and seems to please him.

If Cleveland had been searched on his return from South Carolina one of those dispensary flasks might have been discovered in his hip pocket.

If Cleveland and Hill had dined together earlier and oftener the result in New York might have been several hundred-thousand votes different.

Mr. McKinley will now be able to get his clothing so much cheaper than he bought it under his own law that he will soon begin to consider himself cheap and nasty.

There are 441 senators and representatives, and at least 100 of these, when they find themselves members of the next congress, will wonder how they happened to get there.

Colonel Breckinridge is posing as the compromise candidate in the Kentucky senatorial fight. Most men in Colonel Breckinridge's fix would think they had been compromised enough.

Senator Vest's opinion that nothing will be done in the senate was evidently formed before the Cleveland and Hill alliance. It may need revision after that extraordinary combination gets fairly to work.

It was Brother Andrew Carnegie who the other day said it was a sin for any man to die rich. Perhaps Brother Carnegie has just cut the wages of his employes from 35 to 50 per cent, in his solicitude to prevent them from dying sinners.

The South Dakota Republicans have lost one of their most active and able leaders in the person of State Treasurer Taylor, who has left the state without accounting for $350,000 of the state's money. There seems to be no doubt that the good old Republican times have come back—but not to stay.

Hon. William L. Wilson stated the situation with his accustomed force when he said at the Jackson Day banquet in Philadelphia that recent events have shown that either the trusts or democracy must be the governing influence in the United States. That is the issue, and it is a very clearly defined one.

The District of Columbia decision that the Louisiana sugar planters are not entitled to collect bounty after the law granting it has been repealed, ought to satisfy them that the best thing they can do is to go home and go to work for a living, as the planters of corn, cotton and wheat are obliged to do. Why shouldn't they?

No bill that is not satisfactory to the silver senators can pass the senate. In fact, a conference of silver senators last week decided that no bill should be allowed to reach a vote which does not provide for the unlimited coinage of silver. Speaking of this decision Senator Teller said: "We shall not yield an inch so far as unlimited coinage is concerned. I do not say that we shall have to have free coinage. On the contrary, I think that the government might charge, as it is proposed, the difference between the market and the coined value of the bullion as seigniorage for coining. What we insist upon is that coinage shall not be limited to $50,000,000 or to any other sum."

Now that the Lexow Commission has exposed the price mark on several persons, it turns out that Mr. Anthony Comstock is by no means the most expensive goods on the counter.

A gospel missionary ship is to be put in commission to carry out missionary work in Puget Sound. If the New York minister who denounced Dr. Parkhurst would go out in her the country might have a rest.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

The Woes of Drunkards' Wives.

No pen can portray the heart agony, nor even the mental and physical woes of the wives of drunkards. Tied up to monsters whom they married for men, impoverished, disgraced, disheartened, weakened by starvation and disease, suffering from kicks and blows, maulings and terrorization, afraid to fly, unwilling to leave their children, having no refuge to which to turn, their case is pitiful indeed, among the hardest on earth, and indeed the very chamber of hell. Few people stop to think how numerous these cases are, or how awful the experience. We pity the drunkard and detest the drunkard maker, but we do not take to heart as we ought the dreadful sufferings of drunkards' wives and children. Some men are drivelling idiots when under the influence of liquor; others are veritable demons. In either case, their families suffer horrors unknown from their most despicable habits. In Washington, D. C., the other day, a wretched demoniac at the close of one of his sprees, with a drawn razor, stood over his helpless wife and compelled her to drink a half bottle of household ammonia. The poor woman was then permitted to run, screaming into the street. Before she could reach a physician she was in mortal agony, her stomach and intestines being terribly burned, and she at the verge of death. When the police sought for the brutal husband, they found him in bed, unconcerned, and when arrested, he coolly asked: "Well, is she dead yet?" He had once before tried to kill his wife by shooting at her with a revolver. This is only one case in fifty thousand. All through the country these wretched vagabonds are permitted to abuse their families through a long course of years, and generally only to quit when they have killed their victims or come to death themselves. And for this state of things we Americans claim that there is no remedy. We must not interfere with the "personal liberty" of wicked men, even though helpless women and innocent children are imprisoned and exposed to the whimsical freaks of incarnate fiends.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

A Carnival of Lust.

The greater facilitates for transmitting news, giving us a much wider field of observation, may explain the larger number than formerly of reported outrages. And so the per cent. may not be so much greater as the press dispatches would indicate. Be this as it may, two things should be considered. First, these crimes are by no means confined to the blacks. Scarcely a day passes but chronicles the criminal disgrace of whites as well as blacks, of natives as well as foreigners. Second, these are only the extremes of a carnival of sensuality which shades off by imperceptible degrees from these damnable crimes to the "refined" libertinism winked at by fashionable society. Domestic life is being sapped and mined by licentiousness. Illegitimacy ceases to excite its old-time horror. Criminal knowledge invades our schools and our families. The altar-fires to Ashtaroth are being constantly replenished. Young and old are being set on fire of hell.

Imprisoning or hanging the brutes who commit these crimes, is like removing a pimple when the blood is thick with corruption. The way to avoid the consequences is to remove the cause. Never was a system of education more thorough and effective than that to which the rising generation is practically compelled. A sensational press, reeking with details of domestic scandal, excites prurient imagination and inflames unholy passion. Police Gazettes, with graphic delineation of sensual orgies and lustful crime, add point to the flames. Vile literature, with vilest illustrations, are clandestinely sold on trains and in bookstalls, or given as premiums with tobacco and cigarettes.

Dead walls, sometimes fronting the school-houses, are placarded with indecent pictures grossly suggestive of the reeking abomination enacted in dance-halls, variety shows, and spectacular theaters. The nude in art becomes the nude in flesh and blood, and the sacred secrets of sex are sold to children at half-price in the market place. Wine and beer and whisky lend their ready aid. The wind is sown; the whirlwind is reaped. What can we expect but rape, and seduction, and adultery, and murder? We need no new laws to suppress these breeders of pestilence. Philadelphia has freed herself of "living pictures" and their degrading concomitants. So can every city and hamlet in the nation. All that is wanted is an aroused American womanhood and true American manhood, girded to the battle for an inviolate and happy hearthstone.

O, decent manhood, virtuous womanhood, bestir yourselves in this fight to the finish in the battle for your lives!—Western Christian Advocate.

The absence of all snow-balling about the school building is remarkable. The boys seem to be willing to let "the law take its course."

The class in Philosophy are interested in voltaic electricity. Some very interesting experiments have been performed.

This has been a busy week at Ed. Williamson's; in and around that corner has been a scene of great activity. He has been filling his cold storage building with ice during the day and at night had a force of 20 dressing poultry. He finished his ice business this noon, being just 5 1-2 days doing it, and the ice has been par excellence. One day they dressed four tons of poultry. Ed. is a hustler. If we all were such pushers as the poultry men, Tecumseh would be one of the great business centers of the country.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Calendar for 1895 is out and may be obtained at the drug stores. It is one of the most beautiful that the firm has ever issued and the edition was the largest ever printed by any one concern; being over ten millions of copies. There are two faces on the calendar, both of children, representing "Summer" and "Winter." The design was by one of the most gifted artists in the country, and the coloring is most exquisite. The calendar is not only beautiful, but it is also useful, as it presents all the desired information concerning astronomical events during the year. If your druggist does not have Hood's Calendar it may be obtained by sending six cents in stamps to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

An Interesting Letter From an Old Time Friend and Citizen.

It is with great pleasure we print the following interesting letter from our old time friend and fellow citizen, Rev. Wm. H. Babbitt, now at Glenwood, Florida:

GLENWOOD, FLA., Jan. 18, 1895.

EDITOR HERALD:—It is marvellous with what celerity 1895 is getting on its way. Already the date has become familiar and my calendar says 18 days past—days to come, 347.

In the lull after holidays there may be room for a few items from this land of Florida. Your readers have all heard of the great freeze with which 1894 was closed. Its memory is kept, not green, but brown here, by the sorry looking orange groves. I should think that hardly more than one-tenth of the orange crop around here had been gathered when the frost king waved his deadly sceptre over us. Many car loads were shipped after the freeze, in the hope of realizing something. But the loss was almost complete, for of all the loads hastened on few paid anything over transportation expenses. For a sample, a load to Milwaukee paid one cent a box net, or $3 for what would have been worth ordinarily near $300 to the sender. The ground is covered now, under almost every tree, with more oranges than you would think it possible the tree could have borne. All that can be done now with this fine crop, on which so many hopes were built, is to rake it up and bury it, as so many other hopes get buried that once were bright. The loss to Florida in fruit alone is probably two millions of dollars, besides damages to trees and to various occupations depending on the orange business. It is hoped that the trees in this region are not badly damaged and that new leaves and blossoms will appear in March. But it is too early to tell certainly whether this will be the case or not. One compensation for present loss is sure to come to the growers, oranges will bring a higher price next season, at least Florida oranges will. While, if the crop of this year had been safely marketed and the new groves and old ones had borne well next season, there would have been a drop in price which would have operated somewhat like this freeze.

Michigan has been honorably represented in Glenwood this winter by several of her young men: Colbath, Bryant and Shultz, of Adrian and vicinity; Miller and Smith, of Port Huron; Hipp and Loomis, of Romeo. Other states have been represented with equal honor, if not in equal number, by young men who have been with us. But the busy season is now ended, prematurely, and some who came to stay until spring will soon be leaving us. Those who came as invalids will stay, if possible, for the weather strongly urges them to do so.

It is pleasant to hear that Tecumseh is keeping up its reputation for enterprise and improvement so well. Your entertainment course is up to the mark. Your public schools and your churches are doing well. Your reading circles flourish. What I am especially glad to hear is that a free reading room has been established and the library joined with it. This is something which has long been advocated, but only recently brought about. I understand that for the present this excellent move is supported by voluntary subscriptions obtained by the ladies. Why should not these worthy ladies be freed from their arduous work and their perpetual anxiety about the success of this enterprise, by the raising of an endowment fund or by voting a slight increase in the tax rate to make this institution a permanent one? It is certain to benefit everybody and to be an honor to the pleasant, attractive little town that supports it.

This has been a lovely day—one that has had what you would call a June-like brightness and softness. But I have had a sober duty to perform in it: to officiate at the funeral of a bright and promising young man of twenty, the child of a wealthy father, and a student of Stetson University at Deland, five miles from here. I would not make this a matter of public mention, but for the fact that this sad death was caused by the barbarity of foot-ball as at present conducted. At a match game on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day the injury was received, the result of which I report. An only child has thus been sacrificed to this fashionable moloch. Instances of a similar kind are occurring constantly. Foot-ball may be all right, but these match games are simply horrible. There will be no more of them at Deland University, and it would be glad tidings to hear that there would be no more of them anywhere. How any christian college president or professor can say a word in their defence is past my comprehension. Hazing, which is not half so deadly, has received its quietus, but this foul blot on our system of college education remains.

W. H. B.

GONE TO HIS REST.

Another of Tecumseh's Noblest Citizens Passes Away.

One by one the old residents of this community are crossing the river, and we are again called upon to chronicle the decease of one of our best citizens.

Rev. Josiah Phelps peacefully passed away at his residence in this village yesterday morning. His condition for several weeks has been such as to cause his family much anxiety; his physical system gradually but surely breaking down under the weight of years. He was 74 years old at the time of his death. His whole life had been devoted to the ministry, and for half a century he had faithfully given his time and toil to the service of the Master. He had served as rector of Episcopal churches at Battle Creek, Port Huron, Marquette and Tecumseh. He had served the Tecumseh parish in that capacity nearly twenty-two years. In October, 1893, he was compelled by failing health to resign his charge, and since then has been living a quiet and happy life in his own domicile. He purchased a house and lot on Shawnee street and has taken much pride in transforming the place into a model home. But Providence had decreed he should leave this earthly sphere and seek a higher home in heaven.

During his long residence in Tecumseh he has endeared himself, not only to the members of his own congregation, but also to the entire community. He was one of nature's noblemen, as gentle as a child in his social intercourse with friends, but as firm as a rock in pursuing the pathway of right. During these years of service in the cause of his Divine Master, he has comforted the mourner, lifted up the fallen, cheered the down hearted, admonished the erring and left the impress of his noble character upon all with whom he associated. A sketch of his long and useful life, with a suitable tribute to his memory, will appear hereafter.

The funeral obsequies will be observed next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Peter's Episcopal church.

ANN ARBOR LETTER.

ANN ARBOR, Jan. 18, 1895.

MR. EDITOR:—The end is approaching. The semester, I refer to, that awe-inspiring name for half of a college year. The throes of this dying semester are terrible. The tutors and professors threaten; students grind and sweat for something to come: their credit. Credit is not merit, nor praise, nor glory; but is a slip of paper, a receipt; a symbol, that by hook or crook John or Jemima has learned, or seemed to have learned so much Sanscrit, Metallurgy or Palaeontology. If John and the co-ed get a certain number of these symbols they are granted a degree. This degree enrolls these two J's among the savants of this world. John is satisfied and goes back to father's butcher shop to apply his knowledge of invertebrates and mammalian anatomy. Jemima gets married and continues her studies in the embryology of beafsteak, or, alas! goes down to a schoolmistress' grave.

When I lapsed into this dissertation I was talking about the last hours of a semester. One, not a student, can hardly grasp the import of this. Notes or letters are brought out and "ground" way into the drowsy night. "Ponies" of every pedigree and language are dragged out and ridden until beast and rider are jaded. Our senior friends and elder brothers and every "shark" (this unholy term is applied to one especially excellent in study,) in our classes is a recipient of our prayers for aid. We lose our appetite and sleep is wooed in vain. There is in our brains a confused medley of Silurian fossels and Greek verbs. When we seek for the facts about the "Reign of Terror" we get a phantasmagorial image from animal morphology. This is all evanescent and in one short month these perplexed brains will turn their trained efforts to socials and dances again.

The snow has ushered in the sleigh-ride and the accompanying horns. If Gabriel should blow his horn on some of these fine evenings it would be in vain. He would be drowned out and the world could not come to an end.

THEY ARE WISE WHO ADVERTISE.

Oh! they are wise
Who advertise
In winter, spring
And fall;
But wiser yet
Are they, you bet,
Who never let up
At all.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

The poet Tennyson could take a worthless sheet of paper and by writing a poem on it make it worth $65,000—that's genius. Vanderbilt can write a few words on a sheet of paper and make it worth $5,000,000—that's capital. The United States can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and stamp upon it an "eagle bird" and make it worth $20—that's money. The mechanic can take material worth $5 and make it into a watch worth $100—that's skill. A merchant can take an article worth 75 cents and sell it for $1—that's business. A lady can purchase a very comfortable bonnet for $3.75, but she prefers one that cost $27—that's foolishness. The ditch-digger works ten hours a day and shovels three or four tons of earth for $2—that's labor. The editor of this paper can write a check for $80,000,000, but it wouldn't be worth a dime—that's rough.—Young Lutheran.

Last week Thursday evening a prominent and well known farmer living near Holloway, a Sunday school superintendent, and for many years an active christian worker, or supposed to be, went to an entertainment in Tecumseh and was induced to go upon the stage to assist the gentleman in the performance of some of his feats of legerdemain. The most astounding trick performed during the entire evening was when the gentleman reached his hand, apparently, down the back of our Sunday school superintendent and pulled out nearly an entire pack of playing cards, which he exhibited to the audience. To say that our religious friend was dumbfounded, is but drawing it mild, and he declared he didn't know an ace from a ten spot. Whether he can explain the matter satisfactorily and regain the confidence of his friends remains to be seen. We withhold the name out of regard for his wife, who was deeply mortified at the exposure.—Adrian Press.

A STORY OF TARSNEY.

Tarsney, of Missouri, who stood out against the caucus action of the democrats on the senate bill, is a brother of the adjutant-general of Colorado and also of Tim Tarsney, who was for several years a member from Michigan and brought up at Hudson. The latter used to tell an anecdote of his reception in a Connecticut city, where he was sent by the congressional campaign committee to do some political missionary work. The people turned out with becoming enthusiasism and the hall was packed. The chairman had prepared a speech for the occasion. It was short, but a miracle of oratory.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "this tremendous and cultured audience that has assembled this evening will have the extreme felicity of listening to an orator whose voice has resounded with telling effect in the hall of the national legislature. He has often been honored by the people of his state with election to that great body, the house of representatives, and so great and potent has been his labor for his countrymen, that throughout the length and breadth of this broad land, his name has become a favorite household word."

"I now have the most gratifying pleasure of introducing to you Congressman Larceny."

Announcement for 1895.

What newspapers are you going to take during the coming year? Every man must settle that question for himself. The wise man, however, will have the "Old Reliable" on his list, and, in that connection, we offer our patrons a little good advice. It is needless to inform the public what to expect in these columns during the ensuing twelve months. As a first-class, up-to-date local newspaper the HERALD intends to lead the procession, as heretofore. Politically, it will continue to be independent, and it will strive to uphold the interests of the masses in matters of finance, taxation and public expenditures.

Recognizing the stringency of the times, our rates have been placed upon a hard-pan basis. A few extra combination offers are also presented, and the most favorable club list ever given in these columns. Here they are in detail:

NO. ONE.

Every subscriber, either old or new, who pays all arrearages and one full year in advance to Jan. 1st, 1896, will receive, gratis, a neat portfolio entitled "Echoes of the White City; the Midway." This is similar to the Ferris Wheel portfolio, given to our patrons last year. It will be a free gift to all advance paying subscribers, and will hold good until Feb. 1st, 1895.

NO. TWO.

The "Columbian Gallery" consists of twenty numbers of World's Fair Photographs, published by the Werner Co., of Chicago. This is the finest collection among all similar publications. There are 250 full-page plates, size 11 by 13 inches, beautifully bound in one large volume. The price of the book is $3, with one year's subscription to the HERALD thrown in.

NO. THREE.

The "Graphic History of the Fair" is the finest and most complete history of the Fair yet presented to the public. It is a book of 300 pages, containing over 1200 illustrations, elegantly bound, and sells for $3. This book will be furnished for that amount, including a full year's subscription to the HERALD.

NO. FOUR.

The "Land of Christ" is one of the most beautiful serials published, giving a very fully illustrated history of Palestine. It is published in twelve parts, and will be furnished in separate parts to subscribers. This work sells for $3. We can furnish the same at the regular price, with a year's subscription to the HERALD included.

Sample copies of all the above books can be seen at our counting room. Call and examine them.

CLUB LIST FOR 1895.

We are prepared to name better club rates this year than ever before on outside publications. With the periodicals named in the following list we have special terms, but we can obtain subscriptions, at reduced rates, for any newspaper or magazine published:

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kind assistance during the sickness, death and burial of our mother. We also express our appreciation of the music rendered by the choir.

MR. AND MRS. GARRETT DERBY.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., JAN. 25, 1893.

Howard Hause was away over Sunday.

Will O. Silvers visited Norvell friends last week.

The Maccabee Regular's occurred this week.

James Montague, of Tecumseh, was here Saturday.

James Hamilton was over from Detroit Tuesday.

Miss Carrie Alvord is visiting friends around this way.

Eugene Palmer and wife visited Britton friends Saturday and Sunday.

Quite a number from Tecumseh came up last night to hear Sisky March.

Mrs. Alonzo Clark returned Saturday from a short visit with Jackson friends.

Frank L. Woodward came over from Hudson and spent Sunday with his family.

Will Niblack joined Mrs. N. and daughter at Macon Sunday. They returned home Tuesday.

Frank Rowland, of Toledo, was in town Tuesday. He is traveling for the Toledo Baking company.

Mrs. Will Cook, of Tecumseh, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. D. Haggert, Sen., the first of the week.

John Hendershot and family, of Tecumseh township, passed Sunday with his son Serville and family.

We hear that Mrs. E. F. Muir is very seriously ill with pneumonia and that Mr. Muir himself is sick abed.

Special meet of Golden Rod Chapter No. 85, O. E. S. next Wednesday evening. A full attendance is desired.

Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Stout visited Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Marshall at Saline the last of the week. The gentlemen are cousins.

Wm. C. Rogers is doing a rushing business with his fence and Tuesday returned to Napoleon, where he has been some time.

There was a fair representation of Clinton Masons at the laying of the corner stone of Masonic Temple at Detroit yesterday.

Frank E. Brown was home from Saturday until Monday. Frank says he finds no town giving evidence of greater prosperity than Clinton.

Miss Allie Kebbe, Philip Keusch, John Keusch and wife attended the meeting of the Farmers' club at the fine home of Philip Kebbe, Tuesday evening.

Mr. French, a representative of Pease & Co., Bangor, Aroostook county, Ohio, arrived Wednesday. He expects to sell an engine to the Clinton flour company.

Mr. Stevens, foreman of the Lord Contracting Co. of Jackson, has been superintending the laying of the cement floor in the Woolen Mill, also new engine house, this week.

Mrs. Geo. Lindsay returned Saturday from Saline, where she, for two weeks, has been caring for Mr. Lindsay's mother, who had a severe paralytic stroke a short time since.

Chas. W. Parker of Ellsworth, who is working Tecumseh this week in the interest of the Capital Investment Association, has been staying nights with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Parker.

Tate and Stoner shipped two decks of sheep and one of hogs Wednesday. One hog weighed 765 pounds and was bought of C. M. Mills of Macon. Elgan others, bought of Elisha Woodard weighed 3790 pounds.

Will Silvers was passing the cigars around quite freely on his return home from Norvell, and many were the surmises as to the cause. Will, who loves to deal in mysteries, smiles and maintains complete silence.

Mrs. Margaret Eagan, one of Cambridge's oldest residents, died Saturday last. She had reached the musical age of 96 years. Her funeral was held at St. Joseph's church Monday morning, Rev. P. J. Ternes officiating.

B. F. Greenleaf, who started out for the Plow Company last week, while at Jackson was taken ill and for a few days was unable to get away. He returned home Saturday. He is gaining rapidly and is able to be around again.

The Baptist ladies packed and shipped a barrel of clothing Tuesday to Harrison, Nebraska, to be distributed among the suffering ones there. It was sent to Mrs. Bussell, a missionary at that point. It is expected it will reach Will Tuesday.

The social club is flourishing like a green bay tree. They now number 28, having recently taken in John T. Clark, C. S. Burroughs, J. E. White and Jas. Hamilton as members; 30 is the limit, so the next one will be of great importance—he will be the cops some, as it were.

The school board have engaged Prof. Wilcox to finish out the school year as he began his duties Monday morning. His names will recommended and duties acted in a manner that demonstrate to the fitness for the position and that our board were fortunate in securing his services.

Prof. and Mrs. H. W. Dingle's depart soon to Fern Acres Thursday. The understand he made arrangements before entering the University, where he will take a full literary course, providing time permits will permit. He is now engaged in packing his household goods and expects to move as soon as possible. We should regret to lose both him and Mrs. Dingle while the one gossips, have become greatly attached to them. The best wishes of all will accompany them.

David S. Goodrich, who submitted to an operation last week, rallied nicely and so far has been improving rapidly. Dr. J. L. Tuttle performed the operation. David has had a long, painful and serious illness and has borne all with remarkable patience and fortitude. It is hoped that he may speedily be restored to perfect health.

Our people enjoyed a great musical treat last evening at the Congregational church. Baby Marie, the prodigy of the century, charmed all by her wonderful ability, she being but 6 years of age. She was accompanied by her father and brother. This entertainment was given by the young people's societies of the Baptist, Methodist and Congregational churches, and the proceeds were divided among them.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Little Eva Allen is better.

George Allen is down with a severe cold.

Many people are nearly sick with colds.

Clarence Wisner is improving very slowly.

Mrs. Frank Marshall has an attack of sore throat.

Clarence Wisner has had a severe tussle with the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wisner visited at Wm. Beebe's Sunday.

Remember the Lyceum at J. C. VanDoren's Saturday night.

Mrs. Ara VanTuyle spent Monday and Tuesday with her grandmother.

Mrs. Wm. Fisher went to Ypsilanti last week to see her daughter, Visa.

The students of the Normal are preparing for final examination; it keeps them busy.

A little too much boot on S. N. Wisner's cut foot has confined him to the house again.

Wm. Rundell, F. Bradley and C. Wells, were hauling ice from Twin Lakes last week.

Mrs. G. W. Allen, Leon Allen and Herbert Munger, drove to Ypsilanti Sunday returning Monday.

Ten acres of wood, including sawtimber, on the old Peter Kishpaugh farm, is to be laid low this winter.

While working about the stove last Friday, Mrs. Mary Deming aged 85, suddenly fell over backwards, breaking one rib and otherwise bruising herself. Dr. Rice made her as comfortable as possible, and at last accounts she was doing as well as could be expected.

OBITUARY.

Elijah Buck, the subject of this sketch, was born at Springport, Cayuga county, N. Y., on May 31, 1836. He came to this state with his parents in 1835 and settled on a farm in the township of Franklin, Lenawee county. He was of a studious mind and soon found means to pursue his education in the Tecumseh high school, from which he graduated in 1860, when he engaged in mercantile pursuits, and in some form of which he continued up to his death. Mr. Buck was a man of the highest character for morality, sobriety and honesty, and was honored by his fellow-townsmen with the office of treasurer for many years, and no more painstaking and faithful public servant ever lived. He was also postmaster at Tipton and again at Pentewat, where he kept a general store several years. When quite sixteen years old he left the home of his infancy and was obliged to [illegible] the battles of life. [illegible] the support of his aged grandfather and the latter and mother in their declining years. He married Miss Emma Hamilton of Lodi and the two passed half a century of unbroken happiness in their wedded relations. In January, 1891, Mr. Buck was prostrated by a shock of paralysis, which affected the use of his left hand, and for two years he was a helpless invalid, and married in its every relation. But in all, he never ceased to be the kind husband and father, and his wife was [illegible] and [illegible] and he suffered a second shock [illegible] from which he never recovered, dying Jan. 6, 1893. Dr. Rice's attendance was always a welcome one in every home where he visited, and no young man has more influential friend [illegible] than he. In [illegible] he was a student of the Methodist church, and his life was [illegible] with the most earnest solicitude with his last spoken words.

CAMBRIDGE CHATTER.

News is just received of the death of Mrs. Hilda Drake, wife of Stephen Drake. She died Tuesday afternoon.

C. A. Blackman who has been very ill with pneumonia is now improving slowly and his friends have good hopes of his full recovery. Mrs. Blackman has also been quite ill with the prevailing epidemic cold.

Died, at her home in Cambridge, Jan. 19th, 1893, Mrs. Perry Eagan, wife of Edward Eagan, of old age, she being [illegible] of the years of her exact age is somewhere. She was born [illegible] in the county of Ireland. She was married there and came to this country with her husband in 1851, and settled on their farm in Cambridge in 1852 where they have lived for 41 years. She leaves [illegible] husband and several children to mourn her loss. The deceased was an exemplary member of the Roman Catholic church, in which faith she lived and died, a firm believer. The funeral was held at the Catholic church Jan. 21st.

MACON MUSIC.

Will Gibson is making preparation for several weeks visit in Indiana.

Dame Gossip informs us of the marriage of Mr. Boise of Cone, to Mrs. Kriedler, a former resident of this place.

On Friday afternoon, at Tecumseh, is to take place the suit against Ed. Miller for severe punishment of Harry Dorrell. In times past our district has had the reputation of sustaining discipline and the teacher's authority in school. Are we going to break our record now?

An earnest effort is being made this week to secure clothing and food for the Nebraska sufferers. Solicitors are appointed to canvass every street for aid, supplies to be left at R. V. Sawdon's store. The ladies of the W. C. T. U. are making an extra effort to finish a comfortable in time to go into the box.

We wish to correct the statement made in last week's issue in regard to the suit of Hand and Osgood. Mr. Osgood does not pay all the costs as was stated last week. The jury brought in a verdict of $50 judgment and the cost of the last suit, and the suit which commenced in May and finally adjourned, was left for the judge to decide who should pay the costs. The judge decided that as Hand wished to amend the declaration and adjourn the case, he should pay the cost of that suit, which will now off-set the cost of the last suit.

Com.—Mrs. Rose Hatch.
Lt. Com.—Mrs. Elmira Camburn.
R. K.—Mrs. Ellen Richart.
F. K.—Mrs. Clara B. Pennington.
Chaplain—Mrs. Martha Reston.
Sergt.—Mrs. Ellora Wilkins.
M. at A.—Mrs. Alta Chambers.
Sentinel—Mrs. Iva Sloan.
Picket—Mrs. May Morden.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last for hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Orr & Temple's Drug Store.

The Development of the South.

Is being furthered by the Queen & Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to Southern points at One Fare for the Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinnati, O., and Lexington, Ky., on November 6th and December 4th; good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates to all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisiana.

Stop-overs are permitted on these excursions at any point south of the Ohio River, within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go South to look into the present great movement of Northern to that section.

The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3.00 to $5.00 per acre, on easy terms.

and all other men who have to look neat while at work, should know about "CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS. They look exactly like linen, wear well and being waterproof do not wilt down with heat and moisture. They do not soil easily and can be cleaned in a moment by simply wiping off with a wet sponge or cloth. Do not confuse these in your mind with composition goods. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Ask for these and refuse anything else if you wish satisfaction. Remember that goods so marked are the only waterproof goods made by coating a linen collar with waterproof "Celluloid," thus giving strength and durability. If your dealer should not have the "Celluloid" send amount direct to us and we will mail you same post-paid. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair. OBITUARY.

Charles Holtz, the subject of this sketch, was born in Queion, Prussia, Aug. 6, 1836, and died at the home of his daughter, about two miles south of Britton, on Jan. 15, 1895, and hence was 58 years, 5 months and 9 days old when he died. He crossed the ocean in June, 1865, and after spending about 10 years in Fulton county, N. Y., he came to Michigan and settled in the township of Ridgeway, where he has since resided. He married Sophia Fosse, the surviving companion, in Prussia Aug. 18, 1863. To the union were born seven children, only three of whom are now living, namely: Mrs. Chas. Lister, of Ridgeway; Mrs. Edward Henderson, of Mooreville; Mrs. Wm. Beasley, of Ridgeway, where his last days were spent. The deceased united with the Christian Union Church of Ridgeway in 1878, and was regarded by all who knew him as an industrious, honorable and exemplary citizen. He never was sick until a little over one year ago, when he had the grip, culminating in congestion of the lungs, from which he never fully rallied, and consumption setting in he was taken suddenly to the grave. The funeral took place at the Ridgeway M. E. church, conducted by Rev. Mudge, assisted by Rev. Canfield. The family have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

BUILDING NOTICE.

Plans and specifications for the Reformed church in Britton are completed and in the hands of the committee, who are ready to receive sealed bids for contracts. They may be seen at the office of Dr. P. B. Hardy. All bids must be ready for inspection Feb. 7th. The committee reserve the right to accept or reject, according to their judgment.

The ladies hold their social at Mrs. Wm. Doty's this week Thursday. Every one cordially invited.

Miss Eva Doty was a passenger to Detroit, where she takes music at the Conservatory of music in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy McWilliams were surprised last Thursday evening by a load of young people from Tecumseh. All report a pleasant time.

S. F. Fritz, of 677 Sedgwick street, Chicago, says: "I had a severe cough which settled on my lungs. I tried a number of advertised remedies and also placed myself under treatment of several physicians, with no benefit. I was recommended to try Foley's Honey and Tar. With little expectation of getting relief, I purchased a bottle. I had taken but few doses when I felt greatly improved; I was enabled to sleep, spitting of blood ceased, and by the time I had taken the second bottle I was entirely well. It saved my life." 50c. Sold by Orr & Temple.

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the northwest with wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Go to Virginia: land is cheap, climate perfect all the year round. Ask any one who knows and he will tell you that in the tidewater section one acre of land has produced as high as $2,000.00 in one season. It is worth looking into. Apply to C. H. Bovee, Gen'l. Land and Excursion Agent, Coldwater, Mich., for pamphlet "Facts for Farmers" free. No statements made that are not corroborated by practical farmers who have grown rich on their Virginia farms.

The Hillsdale College Glee Club is "catching on." They have completed arrangements for a tour of the state.

The Jonesville Independent says that Hon. E. O. Grosvenor, of that place, is the oldest living ex-lieutenant governor and the oldest living ex-treasurer of the state.

The Clinton plow works have been consolidated with the Bean-Chamberlain works at Hudson, a move that is thought will prove advantageous to both concerns.

An old toper out in Woodstock says he always knows when to quit drinking, and that is when his money is all used up. That's about the time most of the old soaks quit.

New York papers report an epidemic of grip prevailing in the cities, and the health authorities report many cases resulting fatally. They say the old grip was bad enough, but the new is worse.

The president of Hillsdale college has come right out flat-footed against dancing and kindred amusements and says hereafter any of the students participating in such affairs can pack up his duds and get.

The water mill is being fitted with a set of rollers and will soon be in shape to make flour along with the best. Blissfield will then have three gristmills and the farmers can take their choice.—Blissfield Advance.

Miss Julia Armstrong, the Madison school-teacher who outrageously whipped one of her pupils and was arrested therefor, settled the matter by paying $10. She will probably not allow her temper to get the start of her again.

Strange as it may seem, Adrian acknowledges to having "questionable resorts" within its environments, and a ministerial social purity movement is soon to begin to root them out. Will it include the Ananias Club?—Blissfield Advance.

An Adrian dealer advertises "Best men's rubber boots." There is quite a demand for the article at weddings in Lenawee's county seat city, where the groom wears patent leather and the "best man" appears in rubbers.—Hudson Post.

If the coat is cut according to the cloth and the size of the cloth depends on the prosperity of the people, this country must be coming around all right, judging by the amount of cloth required for the late styled sleeves on women's gowns.

A little west side girl came home Saturday with her face bunged up as if she had been in a prize fight. When questioned as to the cause of her dilapidated appearance she responded, "Oh, nothin', only jumpin' on a bob." Probably as long as boys and girls and snow and bobs are in existence to form a combination, there will be just such accidents, or worse. It is a dangerous pastime, and the little folks can't be too careful in indulging their hobby of jumping the bobby.—Evening Telegram.

The order of the Lake Shore to arrest all persons jumping on and off moving trains is an eminently wise one and should be followed by a similar edict from the Mackinaw, for there has been too much indulgence in that practice on both roads in this city, with more desperate carelessness about the Mackinaw grounds. City officers should unite with the railroad representatives in enforcing the mandate to the very letter. It may be regarded as a severity by the careless youths who take such serious chances, but it is a severity of the merciful variety.—Hudson Gazette.

According to the following statement of the Advance, Blissfield has been entirely too liberal to the tramps stopping in that village: The generous treatment accorded tramps by Blissfield is giving us fame among that class of tourists, and they are all steering this way. The marshal was informed by a hobo the other day that as far west as Elkhart the good meals provided for tramps was known among the fraternity. They have hitherto been given a "square" meal either at the hotel or Plunkett's, but the marshal now has instructions to furnish each with a half loaf of bread and a piece of bologna, together with a cup of coffee, and let them take that or nothing.

Harper's Weekly

Harper's Weekly is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately, and exhaustively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago railway strikes and the Chino-Japanese war, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korea the instant attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. Julian Ralph, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. Weldon, the well known American artist, now for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to cooperate with Mr. Ralph in sending to Harper's Weekly exclusive information and illustration.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in the special articles by the highest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

Fiction. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Cockade, a stirring romance of olden days by Stanley J. Weyman, and a novel of New York, entitled The Son of His Father, by Brander Matthews—several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

Send for illustrated prospectus.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the number current at the time of receipt of order.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 each. Title-page and Index sent on application. Remittances should be made by Postoffice Money Order or draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages, has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 1½ ounces, or 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you. It will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan, 18, 1895.

The silver men in Congress are masters of the situation to the extent of being able to prevent legislation they do not want, but there is little probability of their power extending further; hence, the certainty that there will be no financial legislation at this session. There is a scheme on foot to let the whole question rest until a few days before the close of the session and then to attempt to rush a bill through the House and the Senate authorizing the issue of bonds at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. This scheme is the result of the combination of those democrats and republicans who think nearly alike upon financial questions, and will, as a matter of course, be opposed by the silver men.

Somebody has either been very shrewd or very careless. It has just become known that a clause in the bill regulating the publication and distribution of public documents, known before Congress as the "printing bill," which this week received the President's signature and went into effect as a law, partially revives the franking privilege. The Vice President and members and members-elect of Congress being allowed to frank letters not exceeding one ounce in weight. Not a word was said about this clause when the bill was before either the House or the Senate, and every Senator and Representative whose attention has been called to it professes ignorance of its having been in the bill, but it is not likely that any of them will on that account fail to take advantage of it.

Senator Morgan made a speech at the seventy-eighth annual meeting of the American Colonization Society that has attracted consideration, in view of his position in Alabama, where many have insisted that the negro laborers were a necessity. Senator Morgan advanced the opinion in his speech that the most beneficial solution of the negro problem, so far as the negro himself is concerned, is to be found in their emigration to Africa, which he declared to be the richest country, in resources, on earth. The Senator urged the formation by negroes of a line of steamships to run between Charleston or New Orleans and Africa, and pledged himself if that were done to secure commercial treaties with Siberia and the Free Congo State allowing free trade between them and the United States.

If Senator Gorman was correct in saying that only once in the history of the Senate has a bill having a majority in its favor—in 1850, when Robert Tooms, of Georgia, defeated an appropriation bill by holding the floor during the last two hours of the session—been defeated by failure to reach a vote on it, some mistakes have been made by those who have assumed to say in advance now all the Senators should vote. Measures have certainly failed to reach a vote which were supposed by the public to be favored by a majority; but of course, Senator Gorman ought to know more about it than the public.

The House Judiciary committee has decided by a vote of 7 to 6 to report a resolution of impeachment against Judge Ricks, of Ohio. The seven votes for impeachment were all cast by democrats, except one, Representative Updegraff, of Iowa, who is a republican: and the six votes against impeachment were all cast by republicans, except that of Representative Goodnight, of Ky., who is a democrat. Representative Bailey, of Texas, will draw up the resolution of impeachment.

It begins to look as though the Nicaragua canal bill is dead so far as this present session of Congress is concerned. The bill has been steadily losing ground, even in the Senate, ever since it was pointed out that no official government investigation had ever been made, either of the feasibility of the proposed canal company, or, of what has actually been done towards building the canal. There are plenty of statements as to these things, but they all emanate from those who are interested in the Canal company. There is much more probability that Congress will merely authorize an official investigation to be made than that it will pass the canal bill. If such an investigation was thoroughly made some very interesting things would be found out.

The income tax appropriation went through the Senate without a division.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

Rev. Dr. Eccleston, D. G. M.

The Rev. Dr. Eccleston, leading Episcopal clergyman on Staten Island, is entitled to a new degree, the degree of D. G. M.—Defender of Gin-Mills.

In the recent election, the Christian Endeavor Societies of Richmond county (Staten Island) inaugurated a movement for the election of no-license excise commissioners. A no-license association was formed, a ticket was put up, and such strength did it command from citizens of all parties that the politicians, the saloon-keepers, and Rev. Dr. Eccleston became seriously disturbed over the prospects. He wrote a letter that was widely published to stem the tide among church people, in which he stated with emphasis that beer is just as much a necessity to many as coffee and tea are to many others. Therefore he opposed the no-license movement but thought it desirable to limit the number of saloons.

A few days later three young men were arraigned for murder in the Richmond county-house, on Staten Island. One was 17 years old, and the other two about 19 and 20. They were not bad-looking young men. It was stated that they came of good families. Nothing had been charged against them previously except what the judge termed mere "peccadilloes." Yet there they stood, arraigned for murder, facing the State prison; and the old mother of one of the boys sat behind the railing weeping as though her heart was breaking, as no doubt it was. They pleaded guilty and were sentenced to various terms in the penitentiary. And when the judge sentenced the last boy to a felon's cell and a convict's garb, at least one of the jurors sitting there came within an inch of breaking over all rules of decorum and rising to ask the judge when sentence would be pronounced on the real murderer—the Staten Island ginmills. For the young men, at least two and perhaps three being minors, had gone into a ginmill to indulge in what Rev. Dr. Eccleston is teaching the youth of Staten Island is as much of a necesity as coffee and tea. Under the influence of that "necessity" they engaged in a brawl, and without weapons, without apparantly any previously formed malice, they knocked down and, in drunken rage, kicked a fourth boy until he lay dead in the street. One boy dead, three boys in State prison, four mothers' hearts wrung with lasting agony, and in the background the venerable figure of the Rev. Dr. Eccleston, clad in surplice and stole, with arms outstretched blessing the ginmills, serving notice upon all other mothers' boys that beer is as much a necessity as coffee and tea, and exhorting voters to go to the ballot-box and vote to perpetuate this condition of things! What a sight for God and the angels to look down upon!

Now, this sort of thing may be popular; but if an archangel from heaven came down and told us it was right, we would tell him to his face that he lied. It is not right; and all the venerable clergymen in America can't make it right, and all the four million church-going voters can't vote it right. Avalanche may succeed avalanee at the ballot-box, and license party may triumph over anti-license party, but none the less, this American ginmill is wrong—horribly, hideously, devilishly wrong; and we, for one, stand here to fight it till it goes down or we go down.

The saloon must go!

THE FARMERS' UNION.

The next meeting of the Farmers Union will be held at the residence of Mrs. McLain, Tuesday evening, Jan. 29, 1895. Program:

Music—Mrs. Edwin Taft.
Reading—Maggie Welliver.
Dec.—Leon Benedict.
Essay—Miss Carrie Colvin.
Rec.—Leora Boyd.
Music—Florence Bros.
Rec.—Nellie Wilsen.
Reading—Joe Eaton.
Music—Eva Doty.
Question—Can farmers afford to buy commercial fertilizer to grow crops at present prices? Led by Geo. Holloway, A. Macham and others.

There is no need to sound the phonograph's praises. It speaks for itself.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Philip Kehoe's spacious farm residence was thrown open for the entertainment of the Farmers' Social Club, Tuesday evening, Jan. 22d. The attendance was not as large as had been anticipated, as the inclement weather prevented a great many from being present, but all who ventured forth, both members and visitors, felt amply repaid for the effort made, for once within the bright and pleasant rooms all forgot the boisterous element without. Conversation and laughter held sway until after 8 o'clock, when the president called the meeting to order. An interesting program was carried out. As several who were on the program were absent the omissions were kindly supplied by others present. Misses Halsted, Murphy and Kehoe supplied the music for the evening. Mr. James Mellon gave an amusing selection, setting forth the trials of boyhood, and also favored the Club by reading a humorous sketch of a farmers' club. Earl Rector gave a cute declamation, which was heartily applauded. The charade, acted by a couple of the young people of the Club, assisted by Miss Clarkson, came near being too much for the crowd. Lovisa Schreder and Fred Rector each recited a piece in their usual manner. The dialogue "An Object of Charity" gave the audience a hearty laugh, the part taken by Andrew Kehoe being especially ludicrous. The question, Construction of drains—general effects, was not discussed very fully, as the hour was late. I. H. Schreder approves of shallow draining, prefering tile to be placed about 18 inches in heavy soil. Philip Kehoe thinks tileing one of the safest banks for the farmer to deposit his money in. Mr. Rettore would rather place tile 3 or 4 feet under the surface than less. The other gentlemen present evidently came for information, as they declined to speak on the subject. The Club then adjourned, to meet Tuesday evening, Feb. 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Schreder. Program:

Music.
Poem—Mrs. O. P. Remington.
Dec.—Delmar Finch.
Rec.—Ora Bowen.
Dialogue—Andrew Kehoe.
Dec.—Ralph Gillespie.
Vocal Solo—Cora Halsted.
Select Reading—Mrs. O. B. Finch.
Dec.—Stouten Strong.
Dialogue—School children.
Music—Mary Murphy.

All who attend will please bear in mind that the meeting will positively commence at 7:30 o'clock.

A Just Tribute.

When traveling to New York recently on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, says Tallie Morgan, I met a traveling man with whom I very soon had a discussion on the temperance question. In the course of our conversation he said: "The railroad companies are doing more for the cause of temperance than all the churches in the nation put together. Take the Central Railroad of New Jersey, for instance. I have traveled for years over this road, and I have yet to see the first employe taking a drink. I have offered it to them myself, but they always say, 'Against the rules,' and will not touch it. You never hear of an accident on this road, and though it does a tremendous business the personal habits of its employees are such that a man feels safe while in one of their trains." It is undoubtedly true that of late years the railroad companies have become more strict on their men, that the cause of temperance has been greatly advanced as a result.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient: but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

The Development of the South is being rapidly pushed by the series of excursions offered by the Queen & Crescent Route running each month, to principle southern points.

Cleanable Collars and Cuffs.

"Celluloid" collars and cuffs are one of the greatest blessings that was ever brought mankind by the genii of invention, especially the man whose occupation demands that he wear his Sunday clothes every day, as Bill Nye puts it. A Daily change of linen runs into a considerable laundry bill in the course of a year. "Celluloid" makes it possible to add this item to the year's savings. Many men when buying waterproof collars and cuffs make the mistake of believing that it's all the same so long as they are called "celluloid." This is a grievous error. The genuine "Celluloid" collars and cuffs are peculiarly made, being in reality a linen collar or cuff covered on both sides with pure waterproof "Celluloid". This prevents cracking, and increases the durability of the article. When soiled it can be wiped off with a damp cloth and made to look equally as well as the most skillfully laundered linen. All dissatisfaction with "celluloid" collars and cuffs can be avoided by looking for the trade mark, "Celluloid" stamped on the inside of every piece.

He has met with unqualified success in other places and no doubt will form a strong auxilliary here.

The Louisville Courier Journal says: "Of Edgewood Folks nothing need be said, except that it is as good fun as ever. It has the merit of introducing, besides the marvelous leading character, two charmingly contrasted types of soubrette. Two typical village old men and a delightfully funny specimen of the flirtatious old maid. The soubrettes of the present company, Miss Davis and Miss Stoy, are both pretty and both well up in their parts, Miss Davis' singing being of a quality unfortunately exceptional on the non-operatic stage. The parts of Deacon Hardwick and Fosdick Skinner were interpreted to the full by Messrs. McElhaney and Meade, the latter made up irresistibly as a twin brother of the immortal Bill Nye. Indeed, every part in Edgewood Folks is well taken by the company this week at the Avenue theatre.

The Sophomore Party.

Last Tuesday evening about forty young people of the high school, mostly of the Sophomore class, gathered at the home of their classmate, Harold Hoag, west of town, where they spent a very enjoyable evening. Light refreshments were served about nine o'clock, after which the rest of the evening was spent in the playing of games. Especially noticable was one by the name of "Wink," in which everybody could wink at everybody else. About midnight a few of the sleepy ones began to think of the examinations next day, and expressed a desire to get a few "winks." Nearly everyone else seemed to have the same thoughts, and soon two loads of very tired, but happy young people were on their way home. It was not surprising next morning to hear of a few frosted fingers and toes, though it ought not to have been so, as far as the fingers were concerned, for if everybody did as the writer they would have kept themselves, as well as their neighbor, perfectly comfortable. Taking it from beginning to end, it was a very pleasant affair.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$30 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Wheeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand,	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

BANKING AFFAIRS.

Suggestions in the Report of Commissioner Sherwood at Lansing.

LANSING, Jan. 18.—In his report for the year ending December 31 last, Commissioner of Banking Sherwood renews his recommendation that building and loan associations be placed under state supervision. It is urged that "private bankers be no longer permitted to deceive the public by using names which convey the idea that the firms are incorporated. Some of the members of the present legislature are agitating the enactment of a law prohibiting officers and directors of a bank from borrowing the funds of the institution with which they are connected. Commissioner Sherwood is opposed to this, as it would keep active business men from serving on boards of directors. The attention of the legislature is called to the necessity of making provision for the extension of bank charters, several of which will expire by limitation during the next few years. Commissioner Sherwood says the law should be amended so that these banks may extend their charters if they wish to.

FIRE IS SET BY THIEVES.

T. M. Wells' Old Mercantile House at Negaunee Destroyed.

NEGAUNEE, Jan. 21.—The large mercantile store owned by T. M. Wells, doing business in one of the oldest and largest buildings in the city, in fact one of the pioneer buildings and owned by the old Iron Cliffs company, was destroyed by fire between 5 and 6 o'clock Sunday morning, together with the entire stock, valued at between $20,000 and $25,000. Nothing but a few books were saved and probably some valuable papers contained in a safe. Adjoining property was only saved by heroic work. That it was of incendiary origin there is no doubt, as at the time the fire was in progress several business places were robbed. The tailoring establishment of H. C. Peterson was robbed of over $200 worth of made-up clothing, and a saloon adjoining of money and valuables. The police have obtained several clews which will probably lead to the conviction of local crooks. Mr. Wells had an insurance of $11,000 on his stock.

TO HEAD OFF IMMIGRATION.

A Michigan Legislator Wants Stronger Laws Enacted.

LANSING, Jan. 18.—Representative Kelly, of Muskegon, has a joint resolution protesting against the present system of national immigration and requesting the Michigan delegation in congress to present some plan that will make immigration practically prohibitive as applied to the pauper and convict labor of Europe, as well as to anarchists and those who are forced by their countries to leave. The resolution attributes the present surplus of labor and the low wages of this country to the practically free importation of this class in the past.

DISABLED COUPLE WED.

J. C. Baldwin, of Mason, Abandons the Straw-Hat Habit and Marries.

MASON, Jan. 20.—J. C. Baldwin, aged 77, married Saturday night Mrs. Elizabeth Parkers, of Bay City. She is aged 73 years and has been visiting here a few days. The affair has created a sensation, as both of the contracting parties are well-nigh helpless physically. When securing his marriage license Baldwin said it was a case of love at first sight, as he only knew his bride's name and age. The groom has been a unique figure here for some years. He has worn a straw hat the year round until to-night, when in honor of the occasion he donned a felt hat.

Trial of Cashier Bradley.

LANSING, Jan. 21.—Great interest centers in the trial of Nelson Bradley, cashier of the defunct Central Michigan savings bank, which went to the wall in April, 1893. The case is set for Tuesday. The charge against Bradley is that a few days before the bank closed its doors he made a report to Bank Commissioner Sherwood, which subsequently proved to be false in all essential particulars. He had doctored it up so as to show the bank to be in excellent shape. His arrest soon followed.

Michigan Salt Company.

SAGINAW, Jan. 19.—The Michigan Salt company's annual meeting was held here in the city council chamber with 3,719 shares represented. The president's report showed the total amount of salt manufactured in Michigan the past year to be 2,484,425 barrels, an increase over last year of 192,- 000 barrels. No change is anticipated in the price of salt, which remains at sixty cents per barrel.

Grand Rapids Gas Works Turned.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 19.—The Grand Rapids gas works have been sold to an eastern syndicate, represented by Emerson McMillan & Co., of New York. The purchase price is $1,300,000, and over one-half of it was paid Friday, the balance to be paid in ninety days. The price paid is double the par value of the stock. The company will probably be capitalized up to the purchase price.

Forced to Leave Town.

DETROIT, Jan. 20.—A warrant was sworn out against Eliza Curts, known as Queen Michael of the House Israel, a small and queer religious sect, charging her with violating the law in performing a marriage ceremony between two of her followers without lawful authority. Before the warrant could be served Eliza quit town.

Millions of Fish Fry.

ISLE RAPIDS, Jan. 20.—The state fish hatchery at Paris is breaking all records. About the first of the month 2,000,- 000 brook trout and 1,000,000 salmon trout will be ready for delivery and the car start out on its mission. Some 250,000 Germain or brown trout eggs are also in process of incubation. Something like 2,000,000 trout fry have been sent from Paris to the "500" hatchery. The total output of white fish eggs this season at the several hatcheries was 180,000,000—breaking the record.

Died at a Funeral.

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—The funeral of Mrs. H. J. McNulty on Friday closed a drama of life. Two days ago she fell dead at the funeral of a friend. Afterward it transpired overwork had produced heart failure. She was trying to earn money to fit up a small home for her husband, who was a convict at Ionia house of correction. He was to be released next week. Gov. Rich pardoned him to attend the funeral of his wife.

Married an Ann Arbor Girl.

ANN ARBOR, Jan. 19.—The news from Honolulu will be read by the people of this city, especially of the university, with mingled interest and sorrow because of the death of Charles L. Carter, a former resident who came here to complete his education in 1887, at the University of Michigan. He became a prominent member of society and in 1889 married Miss Mary Scott, of this city.

Condition of State Banks.

LANSING, Jan. 20.—The commissioner of banking's statement of the condition of 174 state banks of Michigan on December 19, the date of the last call, shows that the total deposits were $58,440,737, of which $35,909,997 were savings. This shows an increase since October 3 of $1,736,564. Loans have increased $952,102 during the period.

Shot Dead by a Companion.

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—While playing with a crowd of young companions in a hut which they had fitted up in wild west style in the heart of the city, Ethelbert Draper, aged 11, was carelessly shot to death Sunday night by Frankie Lane, aged 16. The boys claim the shooting was accidental, but four of them were locked up by the police.

Andrew and Mercer White Acquitted.

LENAWEE, Jan. 20.—Andrew and Mercer White, charged with having shot and killed Joseph Mercer at Rapid River last October, were tried in the circuit court here this week, and the jury Saturday afternoon, after being out less than three hours, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Compulsory Education Favored.

LANSING, Jan. 18.—In its biennial report the blind school board recommends that the minimum age for admission to the school be lowered from 10 to 5 years, and that education be made compulsory. [illegible] blind persons in the state, so might profitably attend the school.

LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 15.—The legislature of Michigan in joint session Tuesday afternoon reelected Hon. James McMillan United States senator from Michigan for the long term. Mr. McMillan received the unanimous vote of the legislature. John Donovan, of Bay, the lone Democrat voting for him. Hon. Julius Caesar Burrows was elected United States senator for the short term. Mr Donovan voted for Hon. John Strong, of Rockland.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 16.—A large number of bills were noticed in both houses Tuesday, and a few of importance introduced, the most prominent being one for reduction of the salaries of justices of the supreme court from $7,000 to $5,000, a uniform text book bill providing for the repeal of the special charter of the Michigan Central Railway company, appropriating $2,500 in support of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society, a senatorial and congressional apportionment bill, for the establishment of a marine hospital at Sault Ste. Marie, reducing railroad fares in the upper peninsula from four to three cents per mile, a state library extension bill, for placing building and loan associations under state supervision, to disorganize the county of Flandreau and attach the territory to the counties of Emmet and Ionia, to amend the tax law of 1893 by providing that 50 per cent. of the property-owners' assessment must be paid in December, or the whole will become due January 1, with a penalty of 4 per cent added, also providing that if 50 per cent. be paid in December the payment of the balance may be deferred until June.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 17.—Tuesday's vote for the two United States senators was ratified Wednesday by the two houses of the legislature in joint convention. Congressman Burrows was present and made a speech in each house, expressing his thanks.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 17.—In the senate Wednesday Senator Jameson gave notice of a bill establishing a physio-medical department at the university and for the appointment of two professors therein. A bill which has the indorsement of the state board of education provides that the first Monday of May of each year shall be known as Arbor day, whereupon five trees shall be planted on each piece of school property in the state.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 18.—The senate on Thursday concurred, after considerable discussion, in the house resolution for the usual ten-day adjournment from to-night until January 25 to give the state institution committees time to visit them. A resolution was adopted limiting the mileage of visiting committees to three cents per mile and expenses to three dollars per day. A bill was introduced providing for the parole of prisoners by the governor on the advice of the prison board. Life convicts and those who have served a former term are exempted from the operations of the law, and no convict is to be paroled until after one-half of his sentence has been served.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 19.—Both branches of the legislature adjourned Friday until January 29 to enable the standing committees to visit the state institutions. A bill was introduced in the senate to set apart 10 per cent. of the military fund for the benefit of the naval brigade. Other bills introduced were to prohibit saloon-keepers from going outside their own township to secure businessmen to provide for a state tax commissioner for general registration before spring elections; prohibiting contracts for a higher rate of interest than 6 per cent., and for the organization of literary and scientific societies. Gov. Rich sent the following nominations to the senate: George W. Hill, Saginaw, state inspector of salt; Freeman B. Dickerson, Detroit, member of state fish commission.

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—The mental junket of the members of the Michigan legislature to the various state institutions started from this city Sunday night. The party comprised about fifty members and as many more guests and hangers-on, and will be treated to a grand round of banquets and receptions. They will spend this week visiting successively the northern asylum for the insane at Newberry, the upper peninsula prison at Marquette, partake of a banquet at Ishpeming, visit the Lake Linden and Calumet & Hecla mines, and inspect the mining school at Houghton. Saturday will probably be spent at Madison, Wis., where the legislature of that state is in session, and Sunday morning the party will reach Chicago, remaining until Monday night. Tuesday morning they will reach Detroit. Banquets have been arranged at nearly all the stopping places.

House.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 17.—In the house Wednesday a bill was introduced providing for the appointment by the governor of three commissioners who shall have charge of the 7,000,000 acres of delinquent tax lands which have from time to time come into the possession of the state, and which are permitted to lie idle. Representative Donovan, of Bay, has noticed a bill to require railroad companies operating in this state to issue mileage books which not only shall be good on all roads in Michigan but which also shall be redeemable and interchangeable. The house adopted a concurrent resolution that when the legislature adjourns on Friday of the present week it will be until Tuesday, January 29.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 18.—In the house Thursday a resolution was presented requiring the heads of the several departments to make a detailed report of the number of clerks employed, salaries paid, how long employed, other previous occupation, average number of hours per day they are occupied, whether the employment be permanent or temporary, the amount paid for matter of stationery, and an estimate of how much will be required to maintain the departments for the coming two years.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 19.—The house on Friday passed a joint resolution providing for the submission to the people at the spring election of a proposition to amend the constitution so as to provide for indeterminate sentences for convicts. The military committee reported favorably a bill appropriating $20,000 for marking the position of Michigan regiments at Gettysburg and Chickamauga.

State Trespass Agents Named.

LANSING, Jan. 19.—Mayor P. C. Heald, of Midland, and Menzo Swart, of Flint, have been appointed state trespass agents for the upper and lower peninsula respectively. State Land Commissioner Brenck says there are 200,000 acres of state land in the upper peninsula which need special and careful attention.

ADRIAN, Jan. 18.—The recent small-pox scare here is succeeded by a reign of typhoid fever. Twenty-one cases are reported. Water from the city and private sources of supply is being analyzed for the board of health.

A Gentle Corrective

is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. That's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're free from the violence and the griping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, constipation, sick headache, biliousness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in sealed glass vials, thereby always fresh and reliable. Whether as a laxative, or in larger doses, as a gentle cathartic, these little "Pellets" are unequaled.

As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They are tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules. Any child readily takes them.

Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.

A free sample (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card.

Harper's Magazine

IN 1895.

The Simpletons, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December number, 1894, and continue to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist fascination, and The Simpletons may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Trilby—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on Charleston and the Carolinas, the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empire. The next volume of Harper's Magazine will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the Magazine a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the short stories, there will begin in the January number the first chapters of a Three-Part Novelette, by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the magazine.

Send for Illustrated Prospectus.

The Volumes of the Magazine begin with the numbers for June and December of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the number current at the time of receipt of order. Cloth cases, for binding, 50 cents each—by mail postpaid. Title page and Index sent on application.

Harper's Bazar

IN 1895.

Elegant and Exclusive designs for Out-door and In-door Toilettes drawn from Worth models by Sandoz and Chapuis, are an important feature. These appear every week, accompanied by minute descriptions and details. Our Fashion Letter, by Katharine de Forest, is a weekly transcript of the latest styles and capriccios, the models under the head of New York fashions, plain directions and full particulars are given as to shapes, fabrics, trimmings and accessories of the costumes of well-dressed women. Children's Clothing receives practical attention. A fortnightly Pattern-sheet Supplement enables readers to cut and make their own gowns. The woman who takes Harper's Bazar is prepared for every occasion in life, ceremonious or informal, where beautiful dress is requisite.

An American Serial, Doctor Warrick's Daughters, by Rebecca Harding Davis, a strong novel of American life, partly laid in Pennsylvania and partly in the far South, will occupy the last half of the year.

My Lady Nobody, an intensely exciting novel, by Maar en Maartens, author of "God's Fool," "The Greater Glory," etc., will begin this year.

Essays and Social Chats. To this department Spectator will contribute her charming papers on "What We are Doing" in New York society.

Important Intelligence From All Parts.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

IN the senate on the 14th Senator Sherman introduced a bill providing for carrying into effect the international arbitration resolution adopted by congress in 1890. Speeches of Senator Gorman, of Maryland, and Senator Hill, of New York, on various phases of the tariff and financial situation, at times were full of keen personal criticism and satire directed at each other.... In the house the resignation of John C. Black as representative at large from Illinois was tendered. The oleomargarine bill was discussed and a bill to provide for the enlargement of the judicial system of Indian territory was passed.

THE time in the senate was occupied on the 15th in further speeches in which the income tax served as a text for a wide range of discussion on the tariff, the currency and the populist platform.... The day in the house was devoted to the Indian appropriation bill ($648,220), but no progress was made before adjournment.

THE senate on the 16th passed the urgent deficiency bill, including the income-tax provisions. During the debate in the house on the Indian appropriation bill Messrs. Walker, Warner and Reed engaged in a discussion of the currency question. The sundry civil appropriation bill ($38,140,021) was reported.

IN the senate on the 17th Senator Sherman presented an emergency currency bill and Senator Pugh offered a measure in the same line. The pension bill, appropriating $141,000,000, was passed with two amendments, one making $6 the lowest rate for pension disability and another repealing the present law cutting off the pensions of non-residents. The army bill, appropriating $23,350,000, was discussed.... In the house the senate amendments to the urgent deficiency bill were disagreed to and the bill was sent to conference. A bill devised by Attorney General Olney was introduced by Mr. McGann for arbitrating labor troubles. It makes the interstate commerce commission and the commissioner of labor the permanent body to hear disputes, one member of the deciding body to be named by each side.

ON the 18th the senate passed the army appropriation bill, carrying $23,000,000, and the bill which in effect advances Gen. Schofield, in command of the army, to the rank of lieutenant general. Aside from this the day was given to debate on the Nicaraguan canal bill.... In the house the Indian appropriation bill occupied the time during the day. At the evening session private pension bills were considered and hot speeches were made because two bills were blocked by the obstruction of Mr. Jones, of Virginia.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

FOREMOST OF AMERICAN WEEKLIES.

Circulation 168,000 Copies a Week.

First to rally from the overwhelming defeat of 1892, the New York Tribune patiently labored for two years to awaken the sleeping judgment of the Nation. Possessing an enormous circulation, equipped with a staff of competent and honest students of public questions, and itself having no object to serve except the welfare of the masses upon the farms and in the shops, scorning lies and sensational appeals, and satisfied merely to place the truth before its readers, the Tribune has sent to half a million earnest and reflecting people, weekly, a budget of honest facts, sensible arguments and friendly suggestions, which have at last borne fruit in the elections of 1894. The work of the people is, however, only half done. It is necessary in 1896 to place in the Chair which Grover Cleveland has not adorned, a constructive statesman of the Republican faith. To this task the Tribune now addresses itself, and invites the support of every American citizen who desires a return of the "good old times."

Roswell G. Horr, ex-Congressman from Michigan, but now of New York City, will continue to discuss Tariff, Currency, Coinage and Labor questions in the Tribune. By all odds the most witty, earnest and well-informed speaker upon the stump, he is every year sent by the Tribune to aid the local campaigns in every part of the country. He keeps in constant touch with the people, knows their wants, and addresses himself in the Tribune directly to the thoughts which are in their minds, and makes himself understood. He will gladly answer questions, asked in good faith, by readers.

All the regular features of the Tribune will be continued. For Western readers, a special array of Western news is supplied. For Eastern readers an Eastern edition is printed.

It is the intention to make the paper especially helpful to farmers and mechanics. Each class has its separate department in the Tribune; and the new invention of mechanics, who lack the means to exploit the product of their brains, are advertised free of charge in the hope of aiding them to find a purchaser or a partner.

The market reports of the Tribune, long acknowledged to be the best in the country, will maintain their old standard.

The Semi-Weekly Tribune is an incomparable paper for residents who live beyond the range of the Daily Tribune, but find it necessary to keep in touch with the best thoughts and higher interests of the world at large.

A few premiums are offered to readers and club agents.

The Weekly, $1; The Semi-Weekly, $2; The Daily Tribune, $10 a year. The Tribune Almanac for 1895, ready in January, 25 cents a copy.

Current Topics in the Schools.

The suggestion that every teacher, whether in city, village or district school, should strive to interest his pupils in the study of current topics is an excellent one. The primary object of school instruction is not merely to carry the pupils through so many text-books on so many different subjects, but so to guide their growing minds as to develop the best manhood and, womanhood. To accomplish these results, the teacher must go outside the text-books, must put life into his teaching, and must connect the school work with the life and thought of the day, especially the broader thought of the great outside world as yet but little known to the pupils in the schools. The first requisite for the successful study of current topics in the schools is a teacher who is himself in sympathy and in contact with the best thought of the day. The next requisite is a journal that can be used as a text-book; one that will furnish the necessary record of events and comment thereon, with a good range and variety of reading. With such a journal, the teacher can make the study of current topics of great benefit, not only to the scholars but to himself. A weekly journal that fairly presents all sides of every important public question, and that admirably meets the requirements for the study of current topics in the schools, is Public Opinion, published at Washington, D. C., at $2.50 per year. A contribution of ten cents apiece from 25 pupils will pay for Public Opinion for one year, or five cents apiece will pay for six months. The weekly issue can be used as text-books in the reading classes, and if preserved and bound they make a valuable addition to or nucleus for a school library. Send for specimen copy.

Farm Home Reading Circle.

The Michigan Agricultural College has taken another step forward by inaugurating a college extension course of reading. This plan aims to furnish a systematic course of reading on subjects relating directly to agriculture and kindred subjects. While the course as planned recommends a progressive line of work, discussing first the underlying principles of agriculture, and later taking up special departments, yet it is largely elective and so flexible that a person interested in any branch of farming may select books pertaining only to his chosen line. For example, the class devoted to live stock aims to give a general knowledge of feeding, breeding and handling of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, and includes also a book on dairying. If, for any reason, the reader does not desire to take all the work in the class devoted to live stock and is especially interested in dairying, he may select only that portion relating to dairy work, and receive proper credit.

The course comprises five classes, Soils and Crops, Live Stock, Garden and Orchard, Home Making and Political Science. Certificates are given on the completion of the work outlined in each book and class, and on the completion of three classes the reader is presented with an appropriate diploma. The examinations are all optional, and any person may read in the course without sending in reports or taking examinations of any kind.

This course was but recently established; yet it has readers all over the United States and Canada, and the great interest manifested by those who are now enjoying its opportunities is a good indication of its value. Its popularity arises from the fact that it is prepared by busy men; it is short, practical and instructive; it offers a scheme of advisory correspondence with the college authorities which makes it possible to become intimately acquainted with the work of the experiment stations.

Send a postal card to the secretary for full information regarding this course.

A Great Newspaper Combination.

For the past 52 years, over half a century, The Michigan Farmer has been published, and it is the oldest regular agricultural journal under one name on this continent.

With largely increased capital and under new management that has had 23 years successful experience in agricultural journalism, this great paper is making rapid strides toward the top in the galaxy of agricultural literature of America. It is most beautifully printed on high grade paper, and employs the most eminent writers on the science and practice of Agriculture, Horticulture, Live Stock, Dairying, Apiary and Poultry. Has a standard veterinary department for free treatment of all diseases of farm animals. A legal and medical department; contains all the agricultural news of the country and an invaluable literary and household department every week. Admits no swindling nor immoral advertisements and is in fact in every way a great, sound, practical, agricultural, live stock and family journal, that the agriculturists of Michigan may justly feel proud of, and subscribe for with satisfaction and profit. We are pleased to be able to announce that we can furnish to our subscribers the Michigan Farmer and the TECUMSEH HERALD, both one year, making a total of 104 papers, for the low price of $1.75; certainly a bargain that should be liberally patronized. Specimen copies free.

A Sign of Peace

is the downcome of war time prices.

The during-the-war price of baking powder was 45 to 50 cents a pound. Cream of tartar was then 49 cents a pound, soda, 6 cents. Cream of tarter is now 18 cents, soda, less than 3½ cents.

Still the would-be monopolists want the same "war" prices (45 to 50c. a pound) for their products.

PRIZES ON PATENTS.

How to Get $100 and Perhaps Make a Fortune.

We secure patents and to induce people to keep track of their bright ideas we offer a prize of one hundred dollars to be paid on the first of every month to the person who submits to us the most meritorious invention during the preceding month. We will also advertise the invention free of charge in the National Recorder, a weekly newspaper, published in Washington, D. C., which has an extensive circulation throughout the United States and is devoted to the interests of inventors.

NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

The idea of being able to invent something strikes most people as being very difficult; this delusion the company wishes to dispel. It is the simplest things and small inventions that make the greatest amount of money, and the complex ones are seldom profitable. Almost everybody, at some time or another, conceives an idea, which, if patented, would probably be worth to him a fortune. Unfortunately, such ideas are usually dismissed without thought. The simple inventions like the car window which could be easily slid up and down without breaking the passenger's back, the sauce pan, the collar button, the nut lock, the bottle stopper, the snow shovel, are things that almost everyone sees some way of improving upon, and it is this kind of inventions that brings the greatest returns to the author.

The prize we offer will be paid at the end of each month, whether the application has been acted upon by the Patent Office or not. Every competitor must apply for a patent on his invention through us, and whether he secures the prize or not, the inventor will have a valuable patent.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Litchard, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Probate Court of said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the residence of deceased, in the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 4th day of February, 1895 and on the 24th day of June, 1895, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days. And that six months from the 24th day of December, A. D. 1894, are allowed by said probate court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, January 3, 1895.

OREL HARMON,
CYRUS MONTONYE,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 13th day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Mather, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Hudson Lariviere, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his first annual account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 28th day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendancy of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

A TRIP TO CALIFORNIA

By the Overland Route, Just Forty-two Years Ago.

LETTER FROM AN OLD TIMER.

Some Experience of a Former Resident, Away Back in the Fifties.

LOMPOC, CAL., Jan. 16, 1895.

EDITOR HERALD:—Your paper is a regular visitor at our home. Newsy and full of life. Don't know who sends it; probably Charles Burleson, our brother-in-law. B. is a diamond in the rough, but a real diamond. We often see names that call up memories of long ago—Ben Reynolds, Brunt Knapp and others, who were our old schoolmates. I believe I heard your father make the last political speech I heard in Adrian, over forty-two years ago.

In 1853 we started for California. Was twenty years old, very fond of hunting, with head chuck full of Fenimore Cooper's bifalutin ideas of the Indian. We didn't expect to be gone more than a year, but alas! man proposes and God disposes. Raised among the hills, lakes and tamarack swamps of Michigan, having never been twenty miles from home, our knowledge of other parts of the country was rather limited. But when the train, the first we were ever on, rolled along through the low, marshy country of northwestern Indiana bordering the lake shore and out on the rich prairies of Illinois, it was a grand sight, of which we had read and dreamed but never seen. This, I believe, was only eight miles from Chicago. To except the station house, the country looked as wild as Nebraska. The prairie grass was four or five feet high, extending westward, and seemed as limitless as the sea. Chicago, with its 15,000 or 20,000 people, was a hustler and seems to have been hustling ever since. Seven years ago we met a man in San Diego who had just arrived from Chicago. He was a speculator and said they were selling climate in San Diego higher than land was bringing in his town, a city of 700,000 inhabitants. With no serious misfortune, Chicago in twenty years will probably be the world's metropolis. We went west by rail as far as Rockford, Ill., and then by stage to the [illegible] Iowa. The same rich prairie land extended everywhere, and mostly in a wild state. The two very needful elements of a rich country, water and timber, were abundant. And what surprised me a great deal, was to find in many of the log cabins libraries of the best books, and many other indications of New England civilization. And, as some one has expressed it, New England, like a pan of milk, had been turned up and the cream had run off out west. The dews of heaven were never kinder than the twins, Charity and Hospitality, found among the early settlers of the west. Game was plentiful and it was not unusual to find on the table prairie chicken, wild turkey and venison. There were still some buffalo in the northern part of the state, several having been killed the winter before near Cedar Rapids. Corn was used almost entirely for bread. My traveling companion was a young man by the name of Henry Marlette, from Indiana, and about my own age. He carried with him a violin. Music was always at a premium. As there was no staging in this part of the state west of the Mississippi we were generally afoot. West of Des Moines river houses were from ten to twenty miles apart. One day, after crossing one of those interminable prairies of nearly twenty miles without a habitation, we came to a little shack some distance from the road. My partner, with more experience than I had, took a good look and said, "I pass." Being very hungry and tired I concluded to investigate, while Marlette stopped at a spring some distance ahead to rest. The puncheon door was partly open. I timidly knocked, when a daughter of Eve came to the opening and nearly paralized me by saying: "Why don't you come in?" She would have weighed at least 300 pounds, was barefoot, only partly dressed, and of uncertain color. I thought possibly this was one of Cooper's Indians, as yet we had seen none. I felt greatly disappointed and asked if there were any Indians about here. "Only a few Ottos," she said; "there are plenty of them along the Missouri, forty miles ahead." "Could I get something to eat?" "I reckon," was the response. "Where are you from?" I asked. "Old Kaintuck. Bill, that's my man, is out after a deer or bar." I took a seat on a box. The dirt floor was two or three feet below the ground outside. This was for warmth and defense. She rolled a pumpkin from under the table, cut off a large slice and put it near the fire to roast, then put some corn dodgers on the table. When the pumpkin was done she laid it beside them and told me to eat, while she took a pail and went to the spring for water. The corn dodgers were cooked in the ashes and were so hard I could make no impression on them with my teeth. So I hunted around and found the ax, pounded up several, and had just stuck the ax in the pumpkin when she appeared at the door and allowed I was making myself pretty free. They didn't seem to know the use of salt. I asked the price of so elaborate a dinner. "A bit, I reckon," she replied. I found Marlette at the spring, entertaining a party of Otto Indians with the violin. They were greatly pleased and gave us our first dried buffalo meat. These were real, wild Indians, the first we had ever seen, wearing nothing on their heads, and for clothing on a blanket or buffalo robe. We stopped that night with a half-breed family, near a fine body of timber. Plenty of corn dodger and a variety of wild meat, but no salt, butter or milk. Next day about noon, from the top of a hill, off to the west some t[illegible] away we could dimly outlin[illegible]ding belt of timber, which [illegible] surmised was the great [illegible] river bottoms. Council Bluffs was our destination, where we arrived the next day. The Missouri is always disappointing at first sight. Its yellow, muddy water looks shallow. At this time it was a mile wide and booming, probably from heavy storms on some of its large tributaries. Here was my first opportunity to see and admire, and to mix and mingle with these children of the forest and prairie, as the novelists call them, and it was a setback from previous ideas. They were here, and numerous hundreds of them: Ottos, Omahas and Pawnees. The wild meadows of Nebraska were just across the river from Council Bluffs. St. Mary's twelve miles below, and on the west side of the river was the general rendezvous. Here was a large Indian school; here, too, was where their great feasts and war dances were held. We stopped here a month, and while here the American Fur company came down the river in barges from near the Rocky Mountains. They had been trapping and hunting for three years and had with them 30,000 buffalo robes, tanned ready for market, and great quantities of other fur. Here they unloaded and waited for a steamboat. The men of this outfit numbered forty, and was the toughest lot I had ever seen. They had scarcely tasted bread, coffee, or any other civilized food for three years. The great man among the Indians here at this time was Logan, the Omaha chief, probably named after the great Mingo chief, and was the finest specimen of the Indian I have ever seen. He was ambushed and killed, while we were crossing the plains, by the Sioux. He didn't know the alphabet, but was in courage and address a real Napoleon.

Well, Mr. Editor, this was in the "Auld Lang Syne." Here we sit, old and grizzled, by our fireside on our ranch in California, with plenty and happiness smiling all around us. It is raining, and the country looks like the middle of May in Michigan. The hills and valleys are covered with grass and flowers; the past year was dry and cold for California, while this is warm and wet. We have not had frost enough to injure the tenderest flowers. Calla lilies and roses are blooming in our yard like in midsummer. If you should ever visit California of course you will go to Santa Barbara. Come and see us. We will treat you to a real ocean beach clam bake and the finest shore drive in the world.

Fraternally yours,
CHARLES LARZELERE.

The Gold Flower.

This flower, so fittingly called Gold Flower, was produced by M. Moser, of Versailles, France, and introduced in Europe last season, the plants selling at a very high figure, only a few plants coming to America. The flowers are two or three inches across, of a bright, shining golden yellow and bearing numerous handsome stamens. The plant is of low, spreading, branching growth, with handsome leaves, the upper side much darker than the lower. It is perfectly hardy, forms an excellent border, or is grand for bedding, while as a single pot plant it is charming with its clean, bright green foliage as a background for the flowers, great, shiny yellow disks, brilliant in their reflections as burnished gold.

This year an enterprising firm is offering it at the price of ordinary plants, viz., 25 cents a plant.

By sending 10 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for Vick's Floral Guide, (which amount may be deducted from first order), you will learn all about this beautiful plant Hypericum Moserianium, and also regarding their offer of $300 cash for a name for the New Double Sweet Pea.

The Modern Invalid

Has tastes medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, truly beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. If really ill he consults a physician; if constipated he uses the gentle family laxative Syrup of Figs.

KILLED BY A FALLING TREE.

Robert P. Joyce, the Unfortunate Man, while at Work for Michael Smeltzer.

Tuesday about 6 p. m. our community was startled by the report that Michael Smeltzer's hired man had been killed while felling trees in the woods a short distance from the house. It proved only too true, for Undertaker Tansley was summoned, and from him we have obtained all the facts so far as can be known.

Mr. Joyce, at different times in the past, worked for some of our best farmers, among them being John Fisher, A. P. Coddington, B. Hurry and Clement Bramble, all of whom speak highly of him. A short time since he returned and for a week or more was at the Lilley House, where by his quiet ways and gentlemanly deportment he made pleasant acquaintances.

On Tuesday Jan. 22d, just one week before his tragic death, he began working for Michael Smeltzer. At the time of the accident he was alone in the woods, as after dinner Mr. S. came to town.

It was the custom at 4 o'clock to begin the chores for night, and about 5 o'clock as Mr. S. was driving home and coming by where Mr. Joyce had been working, and failing to see him, supposed he was doing the chores. On arriving home and finding no chores done, he rang the bell; after waiting some time he rang it again. He not coming Mr. S. said to his wife he feared something had happened, and started for the woods. What his feelings were when he found the body and took in the situation, can be better imagined than described. The neighbors were informed, a jury empaneled and the body taken to the house. The tree which caused his death was a second growth oak about eight inches in diameter. Judging from appearances it is supposed that in falling it struck a smaller tree, which threw the trunk backwards, as that was the way he lay with the tree laying over him lengthwise. The blow on the head evidently killed him instantly, for there was no evidence that he moved. The crystal of his watch was broken and it had stopped at 4:50 o'clock, showing conclusively the time the accident occurred.

In looking over his effects a card showing him to be a member in good standing of Vincent Town Lodge No. 93 I. O. O. F. was found. Many letters were also found from relatives and friends, who were notified of the sad event.

Mr. Joyce was about 6 feet tall, dark hair, and full beard of nearly the same color. He was not far from 50 years of age. His remains left for Vincent Town, New Jersey, this afternoon, via the Lake Shore.

ALBION COLLEGE NOTES.

Two weeks ago the announcement was made from the Methodist pulpit that Rev. Washington Gardner would preach on the following Sunday morning. The announcement drew a large congregation. This evidently was anticipated, for the Rev. Gardner, taking advantage of the presence of the large congregation, very cleverly turned the conclusion of his sermon into an eloquent appear for help in behalf of the college. About five hundred dollars was quickly raised. In the course of the remarks Dr. Fiske made the statement that Albion college spent annually in the city of Albion, one hundred thousand dollars, thus showing how the city and the business men were benefited by the college.

With the snow have come the sleighing parties. These have been quite frequent of late, and in the arrangement of them one detail seems to have been persistently neglected by the gentlemen. Dr. Fiske remarked in the chapel one morning, that he was to speak, very reluctantly indeed, about something concerning which he had never spoken before. In a very fatherly way he then proceeded to make a few kindly suggestions to the gentlemen in regard to the beautiful snow, the manifest affection of the young gentlemen for the ladies, the pleasant sleighing parties, and the chaperons which had not been provided on these occasions.

The winter term is now well started. All is comparatively quiet and all working hard.

A Great World's Fair History.

No more fascinating work has been issued in years than "The Graphic History of the Fair." Hon. George R. Davis, Director-General of the Columbian Exposition, is enthusiastic in its praise, declaring it to present "a very just record of the operations of the World's Columbian Exposition, with most excellent and profuse illustrations of its most interesting features." This grand work with over thirteen hundred illustrations can be obtained at less than one-half price by our subscribers as stated in advertisement elsewhere.

GUMBO'S GRAB BAG.

IT CAME BACK.

He wrote a funny poem
And entitled it "The Cat."
He chuckled as he read it.
For the lines were smooth and pat.
He sent it to the publishers
In cheerful mood—elate!
Instead of cash, invariably
"The Cat" came back.

DO YOU BELIEVE?

That this is to be an extra cold winter?

That every man means what he says?

That your last winter's bonnet can be made over to look as good as new?

That a man wouldn't take a drink if he hadn't the grip?

That the average boy is as innocent as he looks?

That a parent whips a child because he is sorry for it?

That the market turkey was "just killed this morning?"

That a young man wouldn't marry an heiress only for love?

That the greatest satisfaction of wealth lies in giving it away?

That grandpa used to play outdoors, barefoot, in colder winters than this?

That the second piece of pie is unhealthy for the boy?

That the statesman only seeks the public good?

That grandma used to do eight times the work of the ladies of to-day, and wore one frock for seven years?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GOT IT ON THE NOSE.

Clarence Zibble, of Britton, has been brought into prominence again during the past week, and as we must confess our esteem, admiration, and even veneration, for the scions of the manly art, will tell you about it. Last Friday evening a number had congregated at the depot, among them Clarence and Walter Beasley. It was proposed that they put on the gloves (which fortunately were at hand) and give their admirers an exhibition of skill and dexterity. It meeting with their approval, they were donned and the sport began. Being quite evenly matched, for several rounds neither gained any marked advantage, as first one and then the other would get in a blow. Finally, in an unguarded moment, Clarence left an opening, which Walter was quick to see and take advantage of, and the result was received a blow which, owing to the lining being minus in the glove used, completely pealed the skin off Clarence's nose down on his cheeks. Then was when Clarence's troubles began; for, you know, everyone has a different remedy for injuries or disease. First his face was bandaged. Next morning some friend, fearing he might take cold, advised putting on court plaster, which was done. The next said that would draw and make a bad sore, and knew iodine would be the best. And so it went until he went to a physician and was properly attended to. He then left the city and sought the bracing air of the country, where we trust he will soon recover from his temporary disfigurement and return to Britton as bright and shining as the morning star. Clarence is not vanquished by any means, nor disheartened, and in future his opponents want to "look a little out."

There is a pretty story in the Vaux family of Philadelphia, in regard to the late Richard Vaux's gallantries at the court of St. James, when he danced with the young and yet unmarried Queen Victoria. The family was of Quaker faith, and, according to the story, when the news came from abroad of the favor the young man found with the queen, his mother spoke of his attentions to the royal lady, and then added: "But I hope Richard will not marry out of meeting."

New stories are continually coming to light about the lamented Abraham Lincoln. Here is a late one from the Century: "President Lincoln, who loved to hear stories of the soldiers and their humorous pranks, told me of a soldier who was being carried to the rear in a great engagement seriously wounded and likely to die. He spied a sutler-woman with leathery looking pies, driving her trade on "the devious verge of battle fought." The bleeding soldier grinned at the woman and said: "Say, old lady, are those pies sewed or pegged?"

The strike commission bill, having been amended to meet the approval of a number of the labor leaders, has been favorably reported to the House. Accompanying the report were letters endorsing the bill from Gompers, Hayes, Denning and Sovereign. The interest in Congress in the Brooklyn trolley strike is expected to have a tendency to hasten action on the bill.

CLINTON, MICH., FEB. 1, 1895.

Mrs. E. R. Smith was quite indisposed this week.

Charles Avery, of Jackson, was calling on customers Monday.

Mrs. Mina Parker and daughter Ruth arrived Friday for a visit at her old home.

Geo. Semark made his regular visit to Norvell Friday, a young lady being the attraction.

Prof. F. E. Wilcox has taken rooms at Doctor Fowler's and will board at Mrs. Geo. Belding's.

Miss Lina Jones is unable to be at her place in Freese & Son's store. She has been quite ill this week.

Will Dewey has sold his house in town to Peter Alexander and will move back on the farm in the spring.

Richard Steffins will again take possession of the Atlas Mills and expects soon to be settled in his old quarters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lewis, from the west, were the guests of Deacon and Mrs. H. P. Downs the first of the week.

Mrs. Wm. C. Rogers entertained a company of lady friends at her pleasant home on Jackson street Monday evening.

Mrs. Hattie Johnston gave a dove party at her cosy home on East Chicago street Friday evening. They played pedro.

We are pleased to say that Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Muir are both better and hopes are entertained for a speedy recovery.

Bainbridge & Hause were kept busy Monday. Dar attended the funeral at Macon and James the one at Bridgewater.

They began laying brick at the Plow company's plant Monday and it will not be long ere they will make quite a showing.

I. Mattis will leave the Silvers farm in the spring and expects to move back on the old Pykett place, now owned by E. S. Tate.

S. W. Demuth and C. G. Ward went to Detroit Wednesday to make arrangements for machinery to be used in the new foundry.

Morrow's Photo-rama drew a large house Saturday night and gave good satisfaction, the views of Scotland being particularly fine.

Our aged friend, C. H. Randall, has been quite bad for some days. At best he is quite feeble, but this change has been quite marked.

B. K. VanDeVenter, of Dundee, is doing quite a thriving business here this week taking orders for the new standard dictionary.

Mrs. C. B. McMaster is making glad the hearts of her many friends by her presence. She makes her headquarters at Mrs. Will Dewey's.

Miss Laura Clark entertained a company of friends at her home on Lenox street Friday evening. Cards and dancing were indulged in.

Mrs. Newcomb Brown and her sister Hattie and Effie, of Jackson, who formerly lived in this vicinity, left Tuesday for a trip to the Pacific coast.

Quite a large number attended the funeral of Rev. Joslin Tiedle at Tecumseh Saturday afternoon. But the inclement weather made it impossible.

Solomon Tate returned Saturday night from his Buffalo trip quite run-down, and for a few days it seemed as if he was in for a sickness. He is much better at present.

The report that the Newburgh mill would be turned into a woolen mill seems to have been rather premature, as no one seems to know what gave rise to the rumor.

Prof. and Mrs. H. W. Daniels spent several days with friends at Onsted the past week. They went over the last of the week, expecting to return Monday, but prolonged their stay.

Augustus Kotts leaves the Howell farm and goes to the Section farm of E. R. Smith as soon as John Schreder vacates. It is not decided as yet who will work the place he has been on.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Friday night, a daughter. Her advent was most welcome, as the two boys will need the refining influence of a sister in days and years to come.

The Methodist society expect to commence a series of revival meetings in about two weeks, and it is expected that Mr. Ramsdell will be assisted by Rev. David Lewis, of Tecumseh.

Wm. C. Rogers returned from Jackson county Tuesday, having disposed of the entire county for his patent fence. He will remain home this week and will leave next week for Ingham county.

The condition of Mrs. John VanTuyle seems more favorable for a few days, but still no hopes are entertained for her recovery, as her trouble, being Bright's disease, is considered incurable.

Fred Chandler has been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. J. S. Kies, the past week. Fred has been in the employ of railroad companies for some years; was at Milan some time, and more recently at Owosso.

John Kelly, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, is visiting friends in this vicinity for a season. No matter how far away from childhood's home or how pleasant the surroundings, one likes to wander back and go over the old stamping grounds.

Fred Breese expects to engage in the grocery business at Lansing. Fred has made many warm friends here who dislike to have him leave, but still if he feels it to his advantage, they wish him abundant success wherever he locates.

Leon Clark gives the first social for the Juniors Friday evening at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Wm. C. Rogers. All are cordially invited to be present. The proceeds go towards defraying the expense of a reception to be tendered the Seniors hereafter.

James Breese has bought a flouring mill at Fennville, Allegan Co., this state, and with his family expects soon to leave for their new home. Their departure will leave a void not easily filled, as they have been active in church, society, and the different orders. They will leave a large circle of friends whom they have drawn to them during their sojourn in our midst.

Next week is the week for regulars in the secret bodies or societies. Tuesday evening the Royal Arch Masons and L. O. T. M.'s meet at their respective halls; Wednesday evening, the Eastern Star; Friday evening, the K. O. T. M., and Saturday evening, the Blue Lodge, F. & A. M.

Benjamin Vest, of Lake View, Montcalm county, Mich., is visiting the place of his boyhood for the first time in many years. Ben, or "Stout," as he was called in the days of Auld Lang Syne, begins to show the effects of old age, but at heart is as young as ever and is the same genial, kind hearted fellow as of yore.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett D. Ellis mourn the loss of their little daughter, who died Saturday and was buried at Macon Monday afternoon. She was about three years of age, and since she was eight or nine months old has been very frail, requiring constant and most tender care. She was their only child. They have the sympathy of all in their affliction.

It is reported that Clinton is soon to have a new industry. Negotiations are being made for the establishment of an extensive Granite Works. Let them come, the more the better. Clinton affords advantages second to no other town and her people are always willing to respond nobly to any demand that will be for the prosperity of the town and people.

At the elegant home of A. C. Huntington on Church street, Monday evening, was given a charming musical, in honor of Mr. Edwards and Baby Marie, by the St. Ambrose Society. Mr. Edwards and gifted little daughter contributed largely to the enjoyment of the occasion. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington during their stay in Clinton and made many friends. They left Wednesday for Ypsilanti, where they gave an entertainment in the M. E. church.

Mrs. Lowry, relict of Joseph Lowry, of Bridgewater, who has been in poor health for some time, passed away Saturday morning, aged 69 years. Her funeral was held at the house, Monday at 1 p. m., Rev. T. H. Warner officiating. Mrs. Lowry was always a great home body, quiet and retiring in manner, but was possessed of sterling qualities that endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. She was content to remain within the sphere of home, and here she was queen, holding sway by the power of love and its influences. Two sons, Arthur and Joseph, survive her.

The following is taken from the Adrian Press and as it is the truth, and nothing but the truth, and will receive the sanction of all who know the work done, we print it entire: "It is with keen regret that we learn of the resignation of Prof. H. W. Daniels, principal of the Clinton schools, on account of ill health. He suffered from nervous prostration to such an extent that further service at present was absolutely impossible, much to the regret of the [illegible] patrons and pupils, he [illegible] last week resigned, and will for a time rest from mental work till he can regain his health. He has been enthusiastic and devoted in his work, and ranks among the foremost educators of the [illegible] progressive, practical and earnest. He served with great fidelity as a member of the board of examiners, discharging his duties zealously and intelligently, and in the school's at Clinton, has long watched his special duties for his high calling. We shall hope to see him speedily restored to health and vigor and strength, and with renewed energies again take his place [illegible] E. B. Wilcox, of Addison, was selected to succeed him."

Frank L. Woodward filed a bill Saturday against the Clinton Plow company, a corporation doing business in Clinton. Mr. Woodward alleges in his complaint that his father, himself and those associated with him, have been since 1859 engaged in the manufacture of plows, and the selling of the same. That by reason of making a good plow, and fair dealing they had built up a large and profitable trade, but for the purpose of strengthening and extending the business, he had an opportunity to make a profitable arrangement with the Bean-Chamberlain Co. of Hudson. He also alleges that for the past several years he did business under the name of Clinton Plow Co., that some plows were marked "Clinton Plow Co," and some "The Clinton Plow Co.," and that the defendant Clinton Plow Co., on December 31st, organized a corporation, assumed and used the name of the Clinton Plow Co., to which they are not entitled. The bill further declares that this new company has been claiming the right to and has been receiving the mail of the Clinton Plow Co., until stopped by the postmaster general. The new company are also building a factory, according to the bill, are making patterns from the old Woodward plows, and sending out catalogues claiming to be successors to the old company, and that they are the only manufacturers of the original Clinton and Woodward plow. Through Watts, Bean & Smith, Saturday, an injunction was granted by Judge Lane, covering the grounds claimed by Mr. Woodward, and the new company will be restrained from proceeding further on the lines alleged until the matter is adjudicated before a proper tribunal.—Evening Telegram.

THAT'S QUEER!

You say a collar and cuff that are waterproof?

Yes.

And perspiration will not affect them?

Yes.

And when dirty you need only wipe them off with a wet cloth or sponge?

Yes.

Wonderful! How are they made?

A linen collar covered on both sides with waterproof "CELLULOID." Looks exactly like a linen collar.

Is it the only waterproof collar and cuff made?

No, but it is the only one made with the linen interlining and consequently the only one that can give entire satisfaction, because it is the best.

How can I know that I get the right kind?

Because every piece is stamped as follows:

BRITTON BUDGET.

Art Lee is contemplating a trip to Cope.

Herbert Allen was in Toledo Monday and Tuesday.

Leon Gripton took a run over to Ypsilanti Wednesday.

Joseph Thackery made a business trip to Toledo Tuesday.

Will Babcock made a business trip to Albion the last of the week.

The regular review of the K. O. T. M. tent next Tuesday evening.

Jimmie Elliott, of Tecumseh, late with Jas Lowry, was calling on Britton friends Wednesday afternoon.

Annual roll call of members at the Christian Union church on Saturday afternoon. General attendance solicited.

Mr. Roberts, an aged gentleman who resides with his son east of the village, fell on the ice last week fracturing the bone near the hip.

E. T. Head, the hay buyer, who went to Chicago about two weeks ago, has not returned as yet, sickness in his family preventing.

The question before the house is—who belongs to the hat found hanging on the door knob of the Exelby house Wednesday morning.

Geo. Exelby is building another grain elevator. At present it is suspended in mid air, but liable to settle on a solid foundation at any time.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cheever rejoice in a fine daughter, which was born to them Monday night. Now the all absorbing question is, What shall we call her?

Mrs. Geo. Oliver's condition is becoming more alarming and but little hopes are entertained for her recovery. Dr. Jenkins of Tecumseh was called Tuesday.

Ed. Bachman is building an elegant antique oak dresser for Herbert Allen's new barber shop. Herb expects to move next week, and when he gets settled his shop will be a Lulu.

James Haight would call special attention to his fine assortment of Anti-Rust Pails. They are much more economical to buy than any others for they are so much more durable.

The ladies' christian aid society meets at the church, Wednesday, Feb. 6th, at 2:30 p. m. Supper served from 4 to 6. As the supper is elaborate, consisting of mush and milk, let all turn out

Charles Shay has commenced driving team for Andrew Gogeline, who is bringing in some elegant building sticks from the Squires farm in Macon. Some of them are from 30 to 40 feet long.

E. M. Lewis, who formerly run the coal kilns, has again taken them in charge and will run them for all there is in them. He has engaged Peter June to fill, burn and put coal on car.

The annual donation for the benefit of Rev. E. Mudge will be held at the church on Friday evening, Feb 8th. A general attendance of the friends of the church and congregation is earnestly solicited.

The township is somewhat exercised over the result of the Turner affair and the query seems to be where the blame lies; that the matter was not properly looked after before the supreme court, thus allowing it to go, as it were, by default.

It is said misfortunes never come singly. Jeff Pilbeam thinks it is true; he recently lost one of his matched team and now the other one is seriously hurt. In turning the corner by Robert Taylor's the tongue dropped down and struck the horse's foot, lacerating it terribly; in fact, split the hoof. It may make him utterly worthless.

Bert Duffy, of Columbus, Ohio, has become a resident among us. He and family have moved over the meat market, and he has his shoemaker's bench in with Willis Helm, east of the track. Mr. Duffy is a rapid and expert workman, and any one having work in his line will do well to call on him, as he will be sure to suit both as to price and class of work done.

Alexander Champlin, who works for Andrew Gogeline, while drawing logs from the Squire's farm Tuesday, met with a painful accident. He had a load all ready to move when the bindor pole broke and the hook on the chain struck him in the face, knocking him senseless. On coming to he discovered a deep cut in one cheek which required four stitches to mend; under the circumstances he was fortunate in not being more seriously injured.

They came near having a serious fire Friday morning at the residence of E. R. Wells. While at breakfast there was a strong smell of smoke, indicating fire. Upon investigating they found in one of the chambers a quantity of bedding, underclothes and dresses, which were near the stovepipe on bars, to be in flames. They were speedily extinguished and, aside from the loss of clothing, but little damage was done. People cannot be too careful in these matters during the cold weather.

Saturday evening in at Lenardson's, there was enacted a scene that was highly amusing and productive of great merriment. Charles Allen, the teacher, was there, and when about to start for home he took out of his pocket a pair of ear muffs and proceeded to put them on. Clarence Zibble, who was present, watched him intently for a moment when he was seized with an uncontrolable fit of laughter, which caused all to smile audibly, and then asked, "What are them things; are they lobsters?" The curtain then rang down and we came away, though we have since heard that Lafe Babcock nearly had spasms and has hardly got over laughing yet.

We are informed by most reliable parties, that Al Lee and Lawrence Brown, a few days since chased a rabbit 7 1-2 miles, (not a rod less,) and then did'nt get it. The rabbit was as coy and coquettish as some girls, and led the boys a wild goose chase. It would run some distance and then stop and look around and smile. Some say it actually laughed aloud.

Last week some parties were here from Detroit, looking the town over with a view of buying land and establishing a Plow factory and building some stores. They wanted to get outside the cold water limit and were quite taken with Samuel Underwood's land. They offered him $200 per acre for three acres and wanted the refusal of ten more at the same price. They did not complete the bargain but expect to be here again soon.

Tuesday afternoon the Reformed Society here in Britton gave their Sunday school a sleigh ride. The day was bitter cold, but we tucked twenty-five of them in a large sleigh, covering them with the warmest of robes. Our superintendent got in and gave them a ride of about ten miles, bringing all safely back to the hall, where we older ones had in waiting a nice supper, consisting of oysters hot and oysters cold, and many other things that children like. Our pastor here fervently asked God's blessing to rest on all, that they might become good and useful men and women and better able to fill the places we now occupy. After supper they were again loaded into the sleigh and taken to their homes. We all felt amply paid while we looked upon their happy, smiling faces, as they said: "Yes, we will surely try to always be present at Sabbath school."

It is not absolutely necessary to wait till the first of May to move, so the All Penny Ante Society concluded for several reasons to change their quarters Monday. It is said many hands make quick work, and so it proved in this case. The members responded nobly to the call, and so admirable were all the arrangements that no damage was done to any of the elegant furnishings. While the present quarters are not quite so imposing and commodious as the old ones, yet they have their advantages. The principal one being, they are situated nearer the railroad track, making it less laborious to secure fuel. The membership is constantly increasing, and would more rapidly if they were not inclined to be so critical. Why think of it; even F. E. was denied admittance the other day. Among the new accessions are reported several limbs of the law, one being deputy sheriff. We have not as yet discovered the requirements necessary to membership, but must confess to a growing desire to be a member. You know people are generally anxious to fathom anything mysteriously secret.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

The blizzard of Friday and Saturday was the most severe one this winter.

Mrs. Mary Bird, of Tecumseh, visited her niece, Mrs. L. V. Miller, over Sunday.

Prof. Howell was called to Tecumseh Friday afternoon as a witness in the suit of Ed Miller and Mr. Harrell, of Macon.

Lou Arner, who has been in Chicago several weeks with her friend, Mrs. Fannie Chapman, returned to her home Friday night.

By the number of granite and marble representatives that were in the village Friday, a person would think that a granite convention was in session; Jackson, Adrian and Ypsilanti being represented.

Again the angel of death has been in our midst and taken from us Miss Katie McDonald, better known as Katie Curry. She was taken seriously sick with congestion of the lungs, Saturday morning, while at work for Mrs. Chas. Foote. Monday morning, a little past seven, her spirit took its flight to God, who gave it. Her death was a shock to the citizens of the village, as her sickness was known to only a few of the near neighbors. Her life has been spent in our village and vicinity, living with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Curry. Her life was one of toil and hardship, being frail and poorly, but she met her life's duty with a willing heart and ready hand, always being cheerful, with a jolly word for all whom she met. We can safely say that she had not an enemy on earth. To her uncle and aunt she was their only hope and stay, in their old age, and the vacant chair and silent voice will be deeply felt by them. As she lay in the white casket that held her remains she bore the appearance of one asleep, as a smile appeared on her pale face. A cross of flowers and Calla lily were placed upon the casket by kind friends, which helped to remove the cold reality of death. The funeral services were held at the Catholic church, near Cone, Wednesday morning, Father Kennedy, of Ypsilanti officiating. The remains were laid at rest in the family lot by the church. Mr. and Mrs. Curry have the heartfelt sympathy of their friends and neighbors in their lonely hours.

CARD OF THANKS.

With hearts nearly broken with grief, we desire to express our heartfelt appreciations to neighbors, who so willingly administered to the wants of our neice during her sickness and death; also for the many acts of kindness and attention shown us at the funeral service.

MR. AND MRS. PATRICK CURRY.

Table Talk.

The January issue of Table Talk, that bright little magazine published in Philadelphia, for housekeepers and now entering its tenth year, is again before us and while, as usual the dining room and kitchen are brought prominently to the front, the literary part of the magazine is exceptionally good touching upon the New Year, "A Breakfast with the Autocrat," "Fashion's Horoscope for 1895," "A pretty story of Napoleon and the all popular Violet," "The Life Line," (in which the pathetic story of "Captain Jim" of the Life Saving Station is made illustrative of the importance of understanding and using the life-lines thrown out to each and all of us) and so on. A chapter on Dietetics is a new and valuable addition to the subject matter of the magazine and will appear every month during 1895.

MACON MUSINGS.

Mr. Al. Cavenaugh spent Saturday and Sunday at Macon.

The Dorrell-Miller trial was adjourned to Saturday, Feb 2.

Considering the extremely bad weather, the Teachers' Association was fairly well attended.

Next Sunday, being Christian Endeavor Day, will be observed here by a Sunday evening service.

Dr. J. D. Chambers, of Fort Wayne, Ind., has been spending a week with his sister and other friends.

The social which was to have been held at Wm. Osgood's on Friday evening of last week, was postponed to Wednesday evening of this week.

Socials are the rounds in Macon and the Y. P. S. C. E. of South Macon will give a Cheese Fun Social at the Grange hall, Friday evening, Feb 8. Appropriate entertainments and program. Charge, 10 cents.

Our citizens have responded liberally to the call for help for the Nebraska sufferers. On Saturday the gifts of wheat, clothing, and money were estimated at $35 and there was still some collecting to be done.

The society of the Reformed church, of which Rev. Mr. Gulick is pastor, have for some time felt that something must be done to make their church more comfortable. One of two things was necessary, either to repair or build new; the former would require quite an outlay of money, and still be an old building. The latter would take more money. After canvassing the matter pro and con, committees were appointed to solicit pledges and see what can be done. Frequent meetings have been held of late, and the reports thus far have been very encouraging, for a new building. A new building is not only a necessity to the society, but will be an ornament to the community and a public improvement. Let all members and others lend a helping hand, and it will be accomplished. $1,500 is the amount needed.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Miss C. E. Winship visited in Adrian Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Fowler is quite poorly under the efficient skill of Dr. Frost.

Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Laing celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Wednesday.

Hartman Bros' dance was not largely attended, only about eighteen numbers sold.

Mr. A. D. Macham is striving to do his Master's will, as he runs the gospel wagon night after night at the church.

Mrs. F. G. Florance's brother from Council Bluffs is making her a visit. They have not met before in ten years.

The social at Mrs. Wm. Doty's was largely attended and a bountiful dinner was served. Everyone enjoyed themselves. Net receipts, $5.

Thursday evening of last week Rev. Charles M. Brown delivered an able address to a delighted audience. Dr. Frost, of Tecumseh, also gave some interesting remarks, by which we all may profit.

John Richards was surprised at his home Tuesday evening, it being his birthday, by a company of young people, who made it lively for John in remembering the occasion. They report a merry time.

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the north-west with wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Go to Virginia; land is cheap, climate perfect all the year round. Ask any one who knows and he will tell you that in the tidewater section one acre of land has produced as high as $2,000.00 in one season. It is worth looking into. Apply to C. H. Bovee, Gen'l. Land and Excursion Agent, Coldwater, Mich., for pamphlet "Facts for Farmers" free. No statements made that are not corroborated by practical farmers who have grown rich on their Virginia farms.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Orr & Temple's drug store. 3

Thousands are Moving South.

Where farming is more profitable than in the North. You can grow three crops each year from the same land, and have the entire year for out door work. No blizzards in winter or sunstrokes in summer. You can plant and harvest some crop every month in the year. The death rate is lower than in the North. Lands are still very cheap, but are beginning to advance, and in two or three years will be worth several times the present price. Improved farms, $10 to $15 per acre; unimproved land, $3 to $5 per acre, near railway stations. The best portion of America for raising fruits and early vegetables, stock raising and general farm crops is along the Mobile & Ohio Railroad in Eastern Mississippi and Southern Alabama. An illustrated pamphlet telling all about our country will be sent free to all who wish it. Very low rate excursions every month. Apply to F. W. Greene, General Agent, 108 N. The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art yet cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so pertinacle and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine. In every one of its numerous departments which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day, Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $1.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Although not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion plates and its articles on family and domestic matters, still hold superlative interest to those possessed of the Formative Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, shortness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong especially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with it, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that using THUMB TELLS has not been in vain. (Further hints by reading in the Magazine regarding Marital, the Life and Heart lines.)

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such, that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 1, 1895.

The railroad pooling bill has been favorably reported to the Senate without amendment, but, although a majority of the senate is believed to favor it, there is much fear privately expressed by the railroad lobby that it may not be voted upon at the present session. Several shrewd Senators, among them Senator Gorman, are reported to be determined to prevent action on the measure. If this were really true the bill would have no chance at all, but such statements are often given out for a purpose—sometimes for a good purpose, but oftener for a bad one.

President Cleveland's message on the financial situation, sent to congress last Monday, is a very forcible document, and it will rank among his ablest state papers. The present mongrel system of finance, brought upon us by Republican legislation, should certainly be terminated at the earliest possible opportunity. The government should issue all paper money, retiring all private bank notes, or the government should retire from the banking business and surrender the issuing of paper money wholly to banking institutions. Much can be said in favor of both these plans but either would be far preferable to the present "alf-and-alf" system.

Justice Harlan last week delivered an opinion giving his reasons for dissenting from the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court in favor of the sugar trust, in the case brought against that trust under the Sherman anti-trust law, that may make him President of the United States. At any rate, it would certainly be desirable to have a President who would hold the views expressed in this opinion by Justice Harlan. He believes with thousands, nay millions, of patriotic citizens that the unchecked growth of gigantic monopolies and trusts for the control of the necessaries of life is a menace to the existence of our government, and that they must be made amenable to law.

In commenting upon the coming municipal election in Philadelphia, the N. Y. World says: The issue in Philadelphia to-day is the same as the issue in New York last November, with the difference that we had Democratic rascals to chastize where they have Republican rascals. But the principle is the same. The wider difference lies in the disheartening fact that the organs of Republican opinion in Philadelphia, instead of following the Democratic example of New York, have allied themselves with the nominee of an exposed and credited Boss, "Dave" Martin. They declare that in a choice between Republican corruption and Democratic reform they favor a continuance of that corruption which has long been a standing disgrace to their city.

A bill has been introduced into the Michigan legislature entitled, "An act to prevent the adulteration of drugs, food, and spirituous, fermented and malt liquors in the State of Michigan." This bill is a very innocent one, so far as its title goes, but the real design of it is to stop the manufacture and sale of all proprietary medicines. It is probably instigated by a few impecunious doctors whose practice has been interfered with by the sale of patent medicines. There are doubtless quacks among patent medicine men, as well as in the regular profession, but it would be a gross outrage upon the masses of the people to prohibit the sale of all patent medicines. The bill should be killed.

The court estimate of the Gould estate at $80,934,580 79 is as interesting as it is important in the affairs of a country in which every man is supposed to earn all he gets. When a man earns a dollar he gives a dollar's worth or work or skill or genius in exchange for it. Unless he steals it or defrauds the world of it he gives back for every dollar he takes at least a dollar's worth. No one can deny that this is the law of property. No one can reasonably assert that this immense accumulation conforms to it. The estate was accumulated by the very simple system of printing figures and dollar-marks on pieces of cheap paper, and then by corrupt control of the lawmaking power of the people forcing the workers of the country to surrender enough of their earnings to give value to the paper. That is financiering. It differs from stealing because thieves are not invited while the heirs of financiers dine with the Prince of Wales.—N. Y. World.

Governor St. John's Medal Presentation Speech.

[Extract from a speech delivered by ex-Governor St. John in presenting the diamond medal, awarded to Miss Minnie Warren, at the Demorest contest, Music Hall, Cincinnati, June 28, 1893.]

We little realize to-day just what all this means. We look upon this young lady and say with one accord, "Isn't she beautiful?" and "Wasn't she grand?"

Eight thousand bright eyes are now centered on this magnificent, diamond mounted gold medal. Everybody seems happy, even the defeated contestants who acquitted themselves so nobly join in their heartiest congratulations.

A generation from now the fact will have dawned upon us that back of this young woman and back of this medal is a great cause. And two generations hence the world will know that the cause and inspiration that enabled her to move this audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm were of God.

It requires no great stretch of imagination to look ahead 60 years and see the winner of this prize, now still in her teens, an old, white haired grandmother, who had passed her three-score and ten. It seems we can almost hear her great-grandchildren, as they gather around her and say:

Grandma, please tell us a story.

Well children, what kind of a story would you like?

Will grandma tell us about what happened when she was a young lady?

Yes, yes, do, cried the rest with one accord.

Without another word of reply she moves slowly across the room, opens the upper drawer of an old fashioned bureau and takes therefrom a little box, and as the children watch eagerly she quietly unwraps from around it yards of what was once white cotton tape, but now yellow from age, and at last the box is opened, and from the midst of some cotton batting she brings forth this medal.

The children's eyes as they watch her fairly stood out as they exclaim, Oh, grandma, what's that?

A Demorest diamond mounted gold medal, children.

Demorest! Who was Demorest!

Why, children, he was a Christian philanthropist who a long time ago lived in New York city. He was once a poor boy, but by his industrious habits, as he advanced in years, he increased in wealth until he was enabled to spend thousands of dollars annually for the good of humanity. He organized what then was known as the Demorest medal contests. I won it when a girl.

What made that mark on it, grandma?

Why, I gave it to Dot's papa to play with when he was cutting his teeth, and he bit it!

Oh, the naughty little thing!

What were the contests all about, grandma?

Why, you see, children, Mr. Demorest wanted to get rid of the saloon.

Saloon? Why, grandma what's a saloon?

Why, the saloon was a place where they used to sell a poisonous drink that made men so crazy that they would rob and steal and murder and sometimes even kill their own children.

Oh, my, wasn't that awful? Why did they let them keep such places?

The laws authorized them to do it if they only paid money for it.

Who made such laws, grandma?

The Democrats and Republicans? Why what's a Democrat and what's a Republican?

Well, children, they belonged to political tribes that used to inhabit this country, but they are extinct now.

Don't they have 'em in the circus, grandma?

No.

Oh, how we wish we could see just one!

If ever you visit Washington city, children, you can see a few specimens of mummified Republicans in Smithsonian institute.

Well aren't there Democrats there, too, grandma?

No, they couldn't preserve them. They tried it, but they wouldn't keep.

But were there no churches then?

Yes, children.

Well, what did they do, grandma?

They passed resolutions.

What did the preachers do?

Why, most of them said they were holy men of God and didn't want to mix politics with religion.

Well, you mixed 'em, didn't you, grandma?

Yes, children.

Did grandpa mix 'em too?

Well, children, it has been a long time since then, and your grandma's memory is not as it used to be, but I can say that your grandpa said grace and held family prayers twice a day and was always very kind to me.

What became of Mr. Demorest, grandma?

He went to heaven long ago, and today in Central park, New York, is a monument upon which is inscribed:

"In memory of William Jennings Demorest, the friend of children and the friend of the downtrodden and oppressed of every land, the man who dared to do right because it was right and condemn the wrong because it was wrong."

And now, my young friend, begging your pardon for this imaginative picture, which some day may come true, I take very great pleasure in presenting to you this beautiful handiwork of man, so fairly and grandly won by you in the cause of right. May your path through life be strewn with many victories for "God and home and native land."

FEAST OF THE RHAMADAN.

The Great Turkish Feast Observed by Acme Council No. 101 I. O. O. Orients.

Last evening, at Odd Fellows' Hall, the Princes of Acme Council held their first great feast, and it was an unqualified success. Preparations for which had been in progress for several days. Wednesday evening occured the regular meeting of the council, and ten new members were added to this prosperous body. It was expected that a number of pilgrims from Clinton would be here to receive the degrees last evening, but at the last moment word came that it would be impossible for them to be present. Although rather late to notify those here, whose petitions had been elected for the degrees, it was necessary in order to properly observe the season that there should be degree work, and when all seemed cast down, lest the event might be in a sense a disapointment, word was received that John J. Orr, of this place, and W. W. Fisk, of Toledo, were asking admittance to the order. The faces of the Princes changed expression as they realized the assistance of Mohammed's spirit in their effort to properly observe the laws of the Medes and Persians in all their original splendor and grandeur. It is safe to say that no weary pilgrims were ever accorded a more cordial reception.

The banquet was under the supervision of Princes Tansley, Mobbs and Eagan, and was suitable to the occasion. The pleasure of the evening was greatly enhanced by the presence of Princes W. W. Hewitt, of Jackson, and M. F. King, of Toledo, who, together with Princes John Orr, W. W. Fisk and S. C. Stacy, responded nobly to the calls for speeches, and the Glee Club furnished vocal music.

The Japanese treaty can wait. There is a good deal of information about Japan which should be utilized in the making of treaties with that country.

Careful inquiry would probably show that Mr. Croker had gone South to find a nice warm climate where his heated opinion of Mr. Cockran would not be at variance with the temperature.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Sam. McClure made a business trip to Toledo yesterday.

Harry Tansley enjoyed a visit from his father yesterday.

Mrs. Hope, the mother of Mrs. M. A. Freeman, is quite ill.

Arthur Hughes and wife, of Britton, visited his people over Sunday.

The Co. C. boys are making arrangements for a fine party next Tuesday evening.

The Stimpson Scale Co., are getting finely started. Orders are coming in quite plentifully now.

Mr. A. W. Mills feels happier than usual this week. A boy arrived at his home last Tuesday evening.

That the Souvenir of Tecumseh will be issued about the first of April, is well nigh a certainty. The advertising space is going like hot cakes.

The social given by the Friend's church last evening at the residence of Rev. D. J. Lewis was largely attended and very enjoyable. The refreshments were up to the standard.

H. M. Bailey of Macon is selling the work "Our Own Country", one of the best pictorial series now extant. He controls the county of Lenawee and will doubtless meet with success, as it is an excellent work.

Last evening twenty-one, under the leadership of Joe Smith and Frank Bryan, provided with oysters and other good things, proceeded to Dick Gillespie's and took possession of the house and spun them around. They had fun galore.

The first quarterly meeting of the Friends' church for the year will be held at Raisin Center, commencing today and closing Sunday afternoon. Several noted persons will be present. A cordial invitation to any or all of the services is extended to the public.

Charlie Beebe, this forenoon while at work in the Table factory, met with a painful accident. While cutting on the mitre saw he reached to take a piece of wood away, when his thumb was drawn on the saw and it was quite badly cut. Dr. Woodward dressed it for him.

High School Happenings.

Boys, don't catch on the bobs.

Rhetoric class has thirty seven members. They occupy the whole of the tenth grade room.

Miss Mae Borne has not returned from her holiday trip yet.

Frank Harris was absent Monday.

Arithmetic class played buzz Thursday; two minutes were very profitably spent.

The scholars seem to patronize the reading rooms to a considerable extent. They read Puck and Judge with much profit.

Alba Heywood at the Opera House

Alba Heywood, the distinguished young comedian will appear at the opera house Saturday evening in "Edgewood Folks" and "Down in Injianny" a double bill of unusual excellence and strength. "Edgewood Folks" is the best of the many comedies dealing with New England types of character and this season is better than ever having been entirely rewritten and revised up to date. It is replete with the best class of specialties, including among others the character impersonations of Mr. Heywood, the dances of Miss Genevieve Stoy, the popular selections of the Elgewood quartette and the ballads of Miss Nellie Louise Davis. Another pleasing feature will be the appearance on the stage during picnic scene of 20 little school children of this city. "Down in Injianny" which opens the performance is a charming little dramatic bit of fun and pathos.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

Better AND Cheaper.

THE ROYAL BAKING POWDER is more economical than other brands because of its greater leavening strength, as shown by both the U. S. and Canadian Government Reports.

The other baking powders contain from 20 to 80 per cent. less leavening gas than the ROYAL. So the ROYAL, even should it cost more than the others, would be much the cheaper.

In addition to this the superior flavor, sweetness, wholesomeness and delicacy of the food raised by ROYAL BAKING POWDER would make any difference in cost insignificant.

Highest of all in leavening strength.—

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Alba Heywood Saturday evening.

Remember the military ball next week.

Adrian has a new social organization called the "cold cut club."

Oscar P. Bills is at home from Saginaw two or three days this week.

Frank Davidson will engineer an auction at Dundee to-morrow afternoon.

Services in St. Peter's church during February will be held in the morning.

It is splendid sleighing this week, and the young people are making the best of it.

The blizzard that visited this section last Friday and Saturday was the worst of the season.

C. A. Wright has placed some fine new show cases in his store, which will be both useful and ornamental.

The Maud Powell string quartette is the next entertainment in the Star Course. Remember the date, Tuesday evening, Feb. 12th.

M. J. Tremaine took the old HERALD fourteen years while he lived in Tecumseh, and he can not afford to stop it now while a resident of Chicago. He finds it a welcome weekly visitor.

We have a few copies of the Midway Souvenir left on hand from the last invoice. These will be given out to advance paying subscribers until the supply is exhausted. Hustle in your subscriptions at once. First come, first served.

The village dads of Tecumseh are going to have a committee investigate the cost of an electric light plant, with view of letting the voters pass on the propriety of raising $10,000 by bonds, to build an electricity shop for the village. —Adrian Press.

Miss Nellie Louise Davis, of the Alba Heywood company, that appears at the opera house to-morrow evening, is the daughter of a prominent Peoria banker, and is one of the handsomest young women on the stage. Miss Davis is a very clever actress and a cultured vocalist.

Miss Powell has for several years been one of the favorite local violinists, and every year adds to her popularity, because, instead of resting on her laurels, she continues to polish her style and enter deeper into the spirit of music, so that her playing is a genuine treat.—New York Evening Post.

The annual meeting of the Commercial Telegraph Company to receive reports from its officers and for the election of directors and officers and for the transaction of such other business as may lawfully come before it, will be held at G. A. R. hall, in this village, on Monday next, Feb. 4, 1895, at 1:30 p. m.

A horse belonging to Joe Meach, residing two miles south of Ogden Centre, near the line, disappeared last week. A farm hand by name of Frank Smith went away about the same time, and neither horse or man have been heard from or seen since. Deputy-Sheriff Harrington, of Blissfield, is looking for the missing man and property.

Ed Miller, a teacher in Macon, has been complained against by Joseph Dorrell, of the same town, for whipping his son with a ruler, inflicting painful and unnecessary injury, according to the complaint. Suit was begun here last Saturday, before Justice Frazer, but was continued until next Saturday. It is stated that the father offered to settle for $35, but this was refused, hence the suit.

Prof. Joseph Morrow's Photo-rama was a very superior stereopticon entertainment. He uses a double dissolving Chicago Model lantern, one of the best made. The views themselves are well selected, and well made, as he makes his own slides, and the descriptive sketches are concise, but instructive and finely delivered. We can cordially recommend the entertainment as one worthy of patronage.

Alba Heywood is coming. "Down in Injianny."

Dr. Hyndman, of Norvell, was in town Tuesday

Editor C. F. Field was an Adrian visitor yesterday.

Walter Hurridge was at Adrian Wednesday on business.

Remember McCann Bro's slaughter sale closes to-morrow night.

Mrs. Chas. Eagan and daughter Beatrice, are visiting friends in Adrian for a few days.

Ernest Cummer, of Jackson, was the guest of his brother-in-law, Chas. Egan, the first of the week.

Miss Nettie Southworth left last Saturday for a two months' visit with friends in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. S. W. Demuth and Mrs. G. R. Wolfe, of Clinton, were the guests of Mrs. Abner Wilson Wednesday.

Ada Gray, who gave the first performance in the Tecumseh opera house, is playing "East Lynne" in Detroit this week.

On Saturday, Feb. 9th, there will be an educational rally at Onsted. All the teachers in that vicinity will please take notice.

Zack. Cook, of Adrian, was over yesterday and made the HERALD a pleasant call, as also did Martin Gooding, of Macon.

James A. Kellam, Archie J. Hall, W. J. Payne and Florence Kellam, of Manchester, were in town Tuesday and took tea at the Lilley House.

An Epworth League column will be a regular feature of the HERALD for a few weeks, and perhaps permanently. It is on the seventh page this week.

Mrs. Wm. Nicholson, of Adrian, a sister of Chas. Egan, came over Tuesday and took Mrs. Egan, who has been ill, and little Beatrice, back with her for awhile.

W. H. Whitmarsh, of Milan, has been here all the week, and T. W. Barnes, of Dundee, was here two days. They are connected with the Stimpson Scale Company.

The Adrian Teachers' Association will hold their next meeting at the Colvin school house, two miles south of the village, on Saturday, Feb. 9th. A good program will be presented.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church will observe Christian Endeavor day next Sunday. The evening service will be conducted by them and will consist of papers by different members upon the work and aims of the society.

Miss Powell possesses an immense amount of not only musical understanding, but also what the Germans call "temperament." She is musical to the finger tips, and her playing last night was by all odds the feature of the concert.—Boston Post.

A Macon man last week, for a pain in the back, spread what he supposed was a balsam plaster. It proved to be varnish, which 'set' during the night, and was there yet at last accounts. His neighbors advise strapping him to the floor and jerking it off with tackle.—Adrian Times.

The members of the Royal Arcanum and their families are improving the sleighing and having jolly times among themselves. Last week they were at Wm. Schofield's one evening and Tuesday eve of this week they were all at Norman Mattison's. They enjoyed both evenings immensely.

Monday night about thirty young people, loaded into two large bob-sleighs, went to the home of Miss Lizzie McCarbery, of Macon, and had a jolly time. That all had a jolly time is needless to say, as any one always does under Mr. McCarbery's hospital roof. They arrived home just in time for—well, just ask Earl Updyke.

On Wednesday, Jan. 30, Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Laing, of Raisin, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. Among the guests there was only one present who witnessed the ceremony forty years ago, Mr. A. W. Aldrich of Adrian, who was best man. A letter was read from Rev. A. J. Eldred, who married them, wishing them many more years together.

The Courier-Journal says: "About this clever little curtain-raiser, 'Down in Injianny' it must be said that Mr. Heywood has shown a very wise and discriminating ambition in adding it to the list of his attractions. The story is a slight one—an old man who has outlived his practical usefulness is an inmate of his son's house. A hard-hearted termagant of a wife persuades the son to send his father to the poorhouse. The execution of this design is interrupted by the arrival of a gang of white-caps who are about to administer a whipping to the son when the old man interferes to save his boy, telling the regulators that going to the poorhouse is just what he himself most desires. The curtain falls on the death of the old father. As Grandfather Pelgen, Mr. Heywood has his opportunity of showing that he can do more than the mere clever, versatile work of the popular entertainer. It affords a field far wider than that of Tom Dilloway for a display of genuine artistic power, and Alba Heywood is in nowise wanting to his opportunity.

C. H. Hopkins, of Battle Creek, is visiting friends in town.

Our Pentecost letter arrived too late for insertion this week.

Rev. W. R. Blachford attended the convocation at Jackson yesterday.

Zero weather has been the regular program every morning this week.

Special meeting of Tecumseh Lodge F. & A. M., this evening for work in second degree.

The Armenian missionary lectured at the Friend's church last Sunday evening to a crowded house.

Mr. Peter Phelps and Miss Editha Phelps have decided to remain in town a few days with their mother.

H. Brewer & Co., shipped three tile machines in January, and the outlook is good for a fair spring business.

McCann Bros' quarter off sale has been continued until Saturday night, Feb. 2d. They have many big bargains left.

The auction sale of the Snell property was postponed last Saturday, on account of the storm, until to-morrow at two o'clock p. m.

The ladies' social of the Baptist church will be entertained by Miss Ellen Fisher and her committee on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 7th.

The postponed entertainment to be given by the Junior Auxiliary of St. Peter's church, will be given Feb. 14th, at the Armory Hall. Full particulars next week.

Mrs. James Elliott returned to her home yesterday afternoon. Her mother still remains in a helpless state and it is only a question of time how long she will survive the stroke.

Subjects for Sunday, Feb. 3d. at the Universalist church. In the morning Rev. T. E. Dotter, of Iowa, will occupy the pulpit. Evening, "The world is my country, to do good my religion."

M. de L. Bocher will be here Thursday next, Feb. 7th, and give us his lecture, "Way down upon the old Plantation." Don't fail to hear him. Tickets 15cts; at the Universalist church.

An unusually pleasant feature of "Edgewood Folks," which will be presented at the opera house by the Alba Heywood company Saturday evening, will be the appearance on the stage in the picnic scene of twenty little school children, of this village, who are now being selected by Manager Sutton.

Electric Power begins a new volume in January and comes out in magazine form, about the size of the Cosmopolitan. It is the best publication extant on the subject of electricity, being suited not only to electrical students and experts but also to the general public, terms $1.00 per. year, 35 Cortland St. New York City.

The series of three lectures on Romanism, given by Mr. Tavener were a treat to those who heard them. People who expected to hear a tirade against the Roman Catholic church were disappointed. He gave his own experience, but did it in a gentlemanly way. He is an easy, fluent talker and his lectures are very interesting. At the Sunday afternoon meeting the Social Concert orchestra assisted with some of their music.

On Monday evening last a company of over forty, friends of Grandmother Amy Berger, assembled at the residence of Dr. E. Hause, to celebrate with prayer and song the anniversary of her 84th birth day. The event was a treat to her and a very enjoyable one to the visitors. Mrs. Berger is now too feeble to attend church and hence this surprise was all the more welcome to her. Her sister, Mrs. Eliza Kniffen of Britton, was present, but the rest of the company were village residents.

General Lord Wolseley makes a most important contribution to the literature of the China-Japan war. In an article for the Febuary Cosmopolitan, he discusses the situation and does not mince matters in saying what China must do in this emergency. Two other noted foreign authors contribute interesting articles to this number. Rosita Mauri, the famous Parisian danseuse, gives the history of the ballet, and Emile Oliver tells the story of the fall Louise Philippe From every part of the world, drawings and photographs have been obtained of the instruments used to torture poor humanity, and appear as illustrations for a clever article, by Julian Hawthorne entitled, "Salvation via the Rack." Mrs. Reginald de Koven, Anatole France, W. Clark Russell, Albion W. Tourgee, and William Dean Howells are among the story tellers for the February number of the Cosmopolitan.

The funeral obsequies of the late Rev. J. Phelps were held at St. Peter's church last Saturday afternoon. A fearful storm raged without, but the church was nearly filled with old friends of the deceased who had braved the elements to pay this tribute to his memory. The beautiful funeral service was read from the Episcopal ritual, Rev. W. R. Blachford, rector, and Rev. Mr. Channer of Adrian, conducting the services. At their conclusion the remains were conveyed to our evergreen cemetery and deposited in their final resting place. The records show that during his twenty-two years of service as rector of this church, Mr. Phelps officiated at 156 baptisms, 65 marriages, 165 burials, and presented 184 for confirmation. But his earthly record is now completed, and he leaves a heritage of a life well spent to the dear ones who mourn his death.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$30 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Wheeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand,	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, Apr. 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

—For a big white loaf
And a light loaf, too,
You'll use the Globe Mill's Flours.
They are best for the price,
And are twice as nice
As those that compete with ours.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

LOST IN THE ICE.

The Steamer Chicora Founders in Lake Michigan—Many Drowned.

BENTON HARBOR, Jan. 25.—The Graham & Morton screw steamer Chicora has foundered in Lake Michigan. It is supposed she was caught in an ice floe on Monday and pounded to pieces. She carried a crew of twenty-five men, including Capt. Ed Stones and Clerk James R. Clark, both of St. Joseph. She also carried one passenger, Joseph Pearl, of the drug firm of Howard & Pearl, of St. Joseph. Thursday afternoon a dispatch was received from South Haven saying that much wreckage from the ill-fated vessel had been picked up, and that parts of the curtains, railing, furniture and decorations and other parts of the inside of the Chicora had been secured. This is the death blow to a flickering hope fostered after considering what had been found previously and it was felt that she might possibly be living. Mr. Graham said that this was the last hope. There is no more possible chance for her having survived. The worst is now known—the fact that every soul is gone. There is no possible chance for their floating in, even alive, even if fast to parts of the wreckage. James R. Clark, the clerk of the Chicora, who has perished, was United States marshal of western Michigan during President Harrison's administration.

The loss of the vessel, exclusive of the cargo, amounted to $160,000, and the cargo of thirty-eight car loads of flour was valued at $20,000. The Chicora was a screw steamer of about 900 tons burden, and was built by the Detroit Dry Dock company two years ago. She was valued at $150,000 at that time. The Graham & Morton company carried no insurance on her, and there was no insurance on the cargo of flour.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 26.—Reports are still coming in of the finding of immense piles of wreckage of the steamer Chicora. Mr. Graham says that he thinks the Chicora was disabled Monday afternoon and that she was soon pounded to pieces by floating ice and huge waves. He thinks that every man was drenched to the skin and frozen at his post of duty.

HOWL AT MAYOR PINGREE.

Citizens of Detroit Refuse to Listen to the Speech of Their Executive.

DETROIT, Jan. 27.—Five thousand excited, howling citizens called together Saturday night by Mayor Pingree refused to listen to the mayor when he essayed to address them. For over an hour and a half the chief executive of Detroit tried to make himself heard above the clamor of his opponents, and finally, hoarse and exhausted, was induced by his friends to give up the vain effort. The meeting was held to bring out a popular expression of opinion on a bill proposed by the legislature which aims to take from the control of the police, fire and school boards from the mayor to the governor. The principal basis of complaint by press and public against the mayor is the prevalence of smallpox and the disapproval of the mayor and health board for reinstating Health Officer Medcalf who is alleged to be an incompetent official. The mayor's eloquent plea for "home rule" was unheard by his audience, owing to the tremendous din, but his opponents installed a chairman and resolutions were declared adopted appointing a committee of fifty to lobby for the proposed measure. Health Commissioner McLeod sent his resignation to the health board to take effect February 15, subject to the investigation of himself and his official acts by a committee of citizens.

BOARDERS WERE FIRED ON.

Woman Uses a Shotgun with Effect on Those Who Took Her Niece's Part.

MUSKEGON, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Hattie Nicholson, living at Twin Lakes, has her niece, Lillian, employed in a boarding-house. The aunt made an unsuccessful attempt to obtain her wages, failing in which she got her home by a stratagem and gave her a severe horse-whipping. The boarders, with whom the girl was a favorite, went there to get her effects, when the woman fired a shotgun, severely, but not fatally, wounding several of them, the girl included. The sheriff returned with the woman to-night and put her in jail.

Burrows in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24.—Senator Burrows was sworn in the senate Wednesday and took the seat recently occupied by Senator Patton. The formal ceremonies were brief, and Senator Burrows was heartily congratulated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The first public act of the new senator from Michigan, Senator Burrows, was the introduction of a bill during the morning hour Friday to regulate navigation on the great lakes and their connecting tributaries.

Loss of $50,000 in Fennville.

HOLLAND, Jan. 26.—A destructive fire broke out in Fennville Friday morning, wiping out the south side of the street, including Dr. L. Barbour's general store, John Pieter's clothing store, the local bank, Dickinson's hardware store, with Bassett's printing office upstairs, and a barber shop. Loss, $50,000, with little or no insurance.

Gas Struck in Michigan.

LEXINGTON, Jan. 26.—A big flow of gas was struck Friday on the farm of Irving Carpenter, near town, while boring for water. The flow was strong enough to throw the tools, water, stones and clay 60 feet in the air. The water came in such quantity as nearly to drown Joseph Jackson, one of the workmen. He escaped with difficulty.

Muskegon Man Swallows a Sword.

MUSKEGON, Jan. 26.—Albert Helling, aged 31, a member of a minstrel company organized by the Muskegon Lodge of Elks, while practicing a sword-swallowing act drove the sword into his stomach beyond his reach. Physicians were called and cut him open as the only means of recovering the sword. He may die.

BUDGET OF NEWS.

Fifty-eight years ago last Friday, January 25, 1837, Michigan was admitted into the union as a state.

March 14 is the date set for the reunion of the Third Michigan cavalry at Lansing.

LABOR STATISTICS.

Report of Commissioner Morse on the Earnings of Farm Workmen.

LANSING, Jan. 26.—In advance sheets of his annual report Labor Commissioner Morse says that 5,600 farm laborers in the largest agricultural counties of the state were canvassed and 57 per cent. found to be American born, German, English, Canadian and Irish being next in the order named. Twenty-two other nationalities making 12 per cent. were represented. The average wages of the 1,188 who worked by the day were 92 cents, the average wages by the month being $17.84. In five years wages have decreased 15.7 per cent., the decrease for the last year being 13 per cent. Only 5 per cent. of those canvassed reported an increase in either period, and that was very light; the total earnings last year were $1,018,388, an average of $181.85. A total of $196,891 was saved by 2,537 persons, an average of $77.67. About one-half reported that they cannot earn enough to support their families. Only 1,523 lost no time during the year. The loss of 40 per cent. of the balance was due to lack of work. The cost of living decreased 15 per cent. during the last year. But 1,005 own homes, one-half of which are incumbered. Sixty-two per cent. consider immigration detrimental to their interests, a large per cent. of these being themselves foreign born.

A BIG JOB.

Municipal Commission Has Difficulty in Preparing a Charter Bill.

LANSING, Jan. 25.—The municipal commission is experiencing some difficulty in preparing a general charter bill which will be satisfactory to cities of the third class, or those having a population of over 10,000, and not to exceed [illegible]. It was expected that the bill would be ready for the legislature on the 15th inst., but so many obstacles have been encountered that it will not be completed until next week. The cities which will come under the provisions of this bill will be Alpena, Bay City, Battle Creek, Lansing, West Bay City, Flint, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Manistee, Menominee, Saginaw, Ishpeming, Muskegon, Ann Arbor and Port Huron. The trouble is that some of these cities are now governed by a charter similar to that of a village, while others have the latest municipal provisions and it is difficult to satisfy all of them. Grand Rapids will be the only city of the second class having a population of between 50,000 and 100,000, while Detroit, being the only city in the state with a population exceeding 100,000, is the only city of the first class. Bills for these two cities will be next prepared.

Fishermen Will Fight.

MUSKEGON, Jan. 25.—Five hundred fishermen in Muskegon have resolved to attack the constitutionality of the statute enacted by the legislature of 1891 and affirmed by the legislature of 1893, which prohibits spearing and netting fish on inland waters. They will also seek a decision as to whether or not Muskegon lake, 6 miles long and from a half to 1½ miles wide, is an inland lake, or a bay of Lake Michigan. On these two questions they hang their right to fish in the winter, which affords support to hundreds of families.

Going Back to Canada.

MONTREAL, Can., Jan. 26.—Father Paradis, a noted Roman Catholic colonization missionary, was in this city Thursday on business in connection with the repatriation of 572 families of French Canadians, comprising 2,395 persons, now residing in the county of Houghton, Mich. The people who now contemplate returning to Canada are native French Canadians, many of whom began to settle there as far back as 1850.

Death of a Millionaire.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 27.—Richard Kingman died here Saturday, aged 74. He was one of the directors of the city bank here, and the largest holder in the pneumatic dynamite gun which is now being made for the government. His wealth was estimated at $2,000,000.

Fire at Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY, Jan. 27.—Fire broke out in the United States hotel and burned the hotel and six other buildings in the business portion of the city. It is a severe blow to the city. A limited amount of insurance was carried. The loss will foot up $20,000 at least.

Diphtheria at Traverse City.

TRAVERSE CITY, Jan 26. — Several cases of malignant diphtheria have broken out in the city. All schools are closed, and all public meetings and gatherings, religious or social, postponed by order of the board of health and village council.

Must Get Another Chairman.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—Senator McMillan says that he will be unable to preside over the annual banquet of the Michigan Republican club at Detroit, February 22.

MICHIGAN MASONS.

Grand Lodge Meets in Detroit—Temple Dedicated.

DETROIT, Jan. 24.—The corner stone of the new masonic temple was laid Wednesday afternoon with full masonic ceremonies, and in the presence of thousands of representatives of masonry from all parts of the state. A splendid parade preceded the ceremony, participated in by representatives of all departments of masonry, and numbering altogether about 5,000 men. A feature of the ceremony was the flight of several hundred homing pigeons, announcing the laying of the stone. The temple is to be completed a year hence. It will be seven stories high, 98 by 132 feet in size, and will cost, with its equipment, $500,000. It will be devoted entirely to the purposes of the order.

At the afternoon session of the grand lodge, held after the laying of the corner stone, officers were elected, Edwin J. Bowring being chosen M. W. G. M. In the evening an immense meeting was held at the auditorium, where a fine programme was carried out. John W. McGrath, chief justice of the state of Michigan, delivered an oration on the "Corner Stone," which was received enthusiastically. Other addresses were made by leading masons on masonry, its progress, its influence, its benefits and its beauties.

Thursday afternoon the members of the grand lodge met in final secret session to celebrate the golden jubilee of masonry in Michigan. Speeches were made by Chief Justice McGrath, of the supreme court of Michigan, Hon. Hugh McCurdy, William T. Mitchell and others.

LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Jan. 23.—Fifty members of the Michigan state legislature, on a tour of inspection of the state institutions of this section, were tendered a banquet by city officials here Tuesday night. The party left for Houghton at midnight.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Jan. 24.—The legislative committees arrived here Wednesday morning and were shown the mining school, smelting and wire and rolling mills. To-day they will see the mine at Calumet and the stamp mills at Lake Linden.

LANSING, Jan. 28.—The members of the legislature who have been absent for a week visiting various state institutions have returned. The party left Detroit January 20, on an inspection of the state institutions in the northern peninsula. The trip has been purely for the purpose of educating the committeemen concerning these institutions.

The first place visited by the party was Newberry, Mich., where the insane asylum has been recently erected, but not yet completed. Thence Marquette and the state prison were visited. At Ishpeming the mines were inspected, and the wants of the miners looked after. Two days were spent at Houton, where the Michigan mining school is located. The copper wireworks at Dollar Bay and the Calumet and Hecla mines at Calumet were other places of interest for the legislators. On the return the iron ore docks at Escanaba received attention, and then the party went to Chicago. They left Chicago for this city Sunday. Members of the party express great satisfaction at the success of the trip.

A WELL-KNOWN LADY DEAD.

JACKSON, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Olive Vedder died at her home in Sandstone aged 83. Mrs. Vedder was a pioneer of Michigan and in many respects a remarkable woman. During sixty years she lived on the same large farm which she helped with her own strong hands to clear and till, coming to Michigan from Attica, N. Y., in 1835. She outlived two husbands and all but three of her nine children. When 75 years old she worked with her hired man in the harvest fields and stacked as much wheat as the best man on the farm. Her death was due directly to her fearless courage in handling a fractious team of horses which ran away and dragged her over the frozen ground.

DEACON ROCKWELL MAY DEAD,

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 27.—Deacon Rockwell May died of old age at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, aged 95 years. He was born in Sheffield, Mass., June 20, 1799, and came to Kalamazoo county in 1834, having purchased 600 acres of land of the government. He was Richland's first merchant and was engaged in business here forty years ago.

Went Fees Returned.

LANSING, Jan. 25. — The supreme court having last fall decided that the act of 1893 requiring foreign corporations which do business in Michigan only through itinerant agents to be invalid action has been commenced to compel the state treasurer to pay back fees collected from such corporations. The Moline Plow company of Moline, Ill., is plaintiff in a case to be heard in the supreme court February 12. Over $10,000 has been collected from the class of corporations mentioned.

Accused of Using Canceled Stamps.

BAY CITY, Jan. 26.—Edwin E. Watson, postmaster, and Murray Bently, principal business men of Rhodes, Gladwin county, are under arrest in this city at the instance of the post office department. It is claimed Watson used postage stamps for liquidating his debts, contrary to the statutes, and that Bentley mailed letters at Rhodes on which were canceled stamps.

Died in Awful Agony.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 28.—Albert Helling, who swallowed an 18-inch sword Friday night, while practicing for a performance, died in terrible agony Sunday evening. His intense suffering turned his hair from a dark brown to a light gray.

Robb Gets Fifteen Years.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 28.—Lewis Robb, who has been on trial charged with attempting to assassinate Mayor Hobson January, 1892, by shooting was convicted Saturday morning and sentenced to fifteen years in prison.

Detroit's New Health Officer.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 28.—Dr. Hutton, of the United States marine hospital service, with headquarters at Detroit, has been appointed health officer of the city of Detroit with absolute power at a salary of $4,000 a year.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the stomach and liver, rousing the organs to healthful activity, as well as purifying and enriching the blood. By such means the stomach and the nerves are supplied with pure blood, they will not do duty without it any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or pepsin—the stomach must do its own work in its own way. Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, it is better to go to the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve cells on the food they require. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness and Nervous Affections, such as sleeplessness and weak, nervous feelings are completely cured by the "Discovery." It puts on healthy flesh, brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the whole system.

MRS. HENKE.

Mrs. K. Henke, of No. 846 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful, since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief.

Now, after two months I am entirely relieved of my disease. My appetite is excellent; food well digested; bowels regular and sleep much improved."

Harper's Magazine
IN 1895.

The Simpletons, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December number, 1894, and continue to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and The Simpletons may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Trilby—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, by the Sieur Louis de Conte, her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of Twain American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on Charleston and the Carolinas, the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empire. The next volume of Harper's Magazine will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the Magazine a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the short stories there will begin in the January number the first chapters of A Three-Part Novelette by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the Magazine.

THE WIDOWED FARMER.

Since Hannar died the sun don't shine as bright,
The stars don't twinkle near so keen at night
The church bell ringing Sunday morning ain't the chime
It had when she was here,
Since Hannar died.

The very chickens misses Hannar's care
And go round with a sorter lonesome air,
There ain't no kind of joy about the place
Without her smilin' face
Since Hannar died.

The garden tools hangs in the apple trees;
The lonesomeness eat a-kittin off the pass.
There's no one here to boss the taters now
Er feed the hens an cow
Since Hannar died.

I s'pose, of course, I'd ever be resigned,
But when I go out in the shed an find
The ax she chopped the wood with all them years
I wet it with my tears
Since Hannar died.

BARRED OUT.

Bright petals fell softly on the white tablecloth, glass and silver glittered in the gaslight, and two people sat moodily opposite each other over dessert, one apparently too indifferent and the other too abstracted to renew the conversation that had dwindled to a desultory end with the departure of the servant.

The man, though not in his first youth, was handsome but for the lines in his forehead that revealed a latent discontent. The woman was fair haired and beautiful. Her smooth skin and delicate white hands told of luxury and ease and a life that knew not the toil and moil of penury or the harsh buffets of a workaday world. Yet tonight her heart was busy with a fancied grievance and oppressed with vague portent.

The husband had long ceased to invite his wife's confidence, stung by her growing, unaccountable coldness, and, all too conscious of the disparity in their ages, silently but bitterly acknowledged that his marriage had been a mistake and left her to her own devices. There were times when a pardonable desire for explanation almost overcame him, but pride always checked the query that rose to his lips, and he went on blaming himself for his shortsightedness in the passive endurance of an empty fashionable life.

If he had asked that searching question, she could not have answered it, hardly knowing that the ennui of repletion had made her capricious and unwilling to believe her whims had driven them apart. So, too thoughtless and inexperienced to attempt a redemption of the waning homage that was still her own, she turned like a wayward child to the first sympathetic ear to be consoled for the mischief she had wrought.

And the consolation became so sweet! There was a certain danger about it that attracted and brought a strange excitement into her idle life—it not only soothed her ruffled feelings, but almost crushed out of memory the grievance it had come to deplore.

Only sometimes, when stormy weather kept husband and wife together for some hours, until he was able to go off to his club and she to her friends, or when the servant left them sitting silently apart, even in the genial after dinner hour, the bitter, unjust sense of injury was paramount.

She rose, daintily shaking out the folds of her silk gown. Her husband held the door open, and as she swept past him secretly admired the poise of her proud little head and the thick, natural wave of golden hair gathered into wonderful curves and loops. The faint flush on her cheeks, her downcast eyes—even the detail of her jet trimmed dress—were in his mind as he went back, sighing, to his solitary cigar.

She ran up stairs to her room with an anxious glance at the tall clock on the landing that ticked out a solemn monotonous warning from the depths of its rigid heart, and unlocking an antique cabinet discovered in one of its mysterious recesses a note which she read with a reflective little frown. Then, hastily donning fur trimmed mantle and small bonnet, she drew a thick veil over her pretty, even features, and stealing softly down stairs slipped out of the house. The season of the fashionable seaside town in which she had chosen to linger out week after week was nearly ended. She hurried on through the almost deserted streets, looking timidly about her, for she was not used to ramble unattended. Though October was near, the air was balmy but for an occasional chill breeze that swept over the sea, across whose dark, sobbing waters the moon cast a gleaming, silver green pathway.

She paused near the pier, shamefaced and irresolute, to await her sympathetic friend, whom she saw approaching with an unmistakable expression of pleasure and gratification in his eyes. There was a brief, silent greeting. Then they wandered on to the shell strewn beach, exchanging confidence to the safe accompaniment of the receding tide.

The subtle certainty of perfect appreciation effaced every doubt that had assailed her as to the judiciousness of keeping this appointment, and she told, recklessly enough, of the widening gulf between herself and the husband who could not or would not understand her, and the yearning for something she had never known, of her intellectual loneliness. And in the low musical tones that thrilled her he spoke of his own wasted existence, the wife who was no companion to him, the sympathy he longed for—and, at last, of their own friendship, hinting something deeper. She chided him softly, but with a consciousness of forgiveness for his presumption, and an equivocal argument ensued that absorbed them into forgetfulness of the flying hours till her startled cry and uplifted hand brought his carefully worded discourse to a sudden end.

From the church tower the hour of midnight boomed distinctly through the hiss of the distant waves. Each stroke fell like a knell upon her throbbing heart. Looking up, pale and terrified, she saw with dismay that the lights on the esplanade had been extinguished, and the great hotels, looming white grim majesty out of the darkness, closed and shuttered.

A 12 o'clock tete-a-tete on the beach—oh, the shame of it—the stinging scandal for her dearest friends to revel in, if it ever came to their ears. The clock must be wrong, she urged frantically, thinking of the "little half hour" her conscience had been stilled into granting, but a glance at the revealed bauble on her chatelaine by the light of a spluttering fuse confirmed her worst fears and the integrity of the maligned timekeeper.

There was no time to lose. She turned impatiently toward the man, and her companion, following with more repellent dignity, was yet enough to anticipate the renewal of their perilous conversation. Through the streets she ran, breathlessly, to the terror of the solitary policeman and sundry feline wonderers who scuttled noiselessly out of her path. How she longed to be hidden safely in the corner of her comfortable carriage, moving drowsily homeward, after some Cinderellia! But seaside festivities were nearly over, and there was no excuse for her tardy arrival. She held her head down, fearful of being seen on foot in such haste, and with her attractive companion, whose sensibility would have been sorely hurt at the eagerness with which she dismissed him when the house came in sight, had he not felt alarmed for his own reputation as well as the safe custody of his uncongenial wife's fortune, and with a hurried wish that all would be well walked away with an air of relief ere she reached the doorstep.

She rang the bell with a miserable sensation of being deserted in her hour of need, and a shuddering fear crept over her as she waited outside the house that looked darkly inhospitable with its fastened shutters and massive door. A boisterous wind sprang up, making her shiver in spite of her warm cloak. Clouds chased each other across the fair, round moon. She knocked and rang again impatiently.

No sound of welcome admission to warmth and light, only the faint echo of her friend's footsteps already in the distance. With the erratic logic of a spoiled and petted woman who had never seen the contrary side of the world she blamed him for not having waited—even remotely—until he saw her safely indoors, wondering, in helpless anger, that she had ever turned to him for sympathy.

A loud rat-a-tat, and then another, rather timid this time, for the closed door and retreating figure had grown hideous with awful meaning. What if her husband had discovered the secret meeting and shut her out forever! She knew men did such things on the spur of the moment, and in this case there had been a long and sullen estrangement to justify any conclusion he might pardonably come to. The thought became more terrible every instant as she knocked and rang frantically without result.

Trembling from head to foot, she leaned against the railings, her eyes heavy with despair. Where should she go? What should she do? The suspicious questioning of her friends, the astonished scrutiny of the townspeople, were equally difficult to face. Like a vision the awful future flashed through her bewildered brain. She saw herself exiled to the streets, a forlorn, wretched woman, forsaken by the man she despised in her real trouble, yearning to make amends for her past blindness and faintly imploring an inexorable fate at the steadfast door of the life she should know no longer.

Barred out! Oh, God! Barred out!

In undreamed of agony she pictured her husband's stern orders and the gossip in the servants' hall. Then, hardly knowing what she did and choking with desperate sobs, she turned toward the home that had become so dear, beating wildly at the door panels with her clinched fists and crying aloud like a frightened child:

"Let me in! Oh, do let me in!"

"Are you mad?" said suddenly a calm, well known voice at her side. "The maids are on the top floor at the back of the house, and nothing short of an earthquake would rouse James. If I were not careful to take my latchkey when I go to the club, he would present me with the key of the street. And why didn't you order the carriage to fetch you, or"—

He broke off suddenly. The ponderous door stood open, and he waited for her to pass in, but with a quick glance at her white face and closed eyes caught her tenderly in his arms as she fell insensible across the threshold. Gently as a woman he loosened the heavy cloak and took off the little bonnet, disentangling it from her soft, golden hair with dexterous fingers. Then, probably from a lamentable ignorance of the principles of first aid, he bent down and kissed the sweet, tear stained face that rested peacefully near his heart.

And the wife, coming slowly back to a new life of perfect love and trust through the shadow of her former folly, felt and answered the timid embrace with clinging arms and tears of joy and gratitude.—London Today.

It Suited Her.

They were threading their way slowly among the gorgeously dressed dummies in the dry goods shop, stopping every now and then to admire or criticise and to inspect linings and price marks. Nothing had pleased their fastidious fancy very much until the girl in brown saw a black serge just in front of her.

"There, Marie!" she exclaimed in triumph. "That's what I want. See how that umbrella skirt hangs! See how that coat sits in the back! The frock makes even a lay figure distinguished. If it's silk lined and doesn't cost too much, I shall have it."

She advanced and laid inquiring hands upon the frock, lifting the coat to inspect the lining. Then she fell back with a little cry. It was not a dummy, but another customer, who turned and faced her.—New York Recorder.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Feb. 3. Comment by Rev. Walter J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Golden Candlestick.

BIBLE READINGS.—Ex. xxv, 31-39; Heb. ix, 2; Rev. i, 12; iv, 5.

The candlestick of the Tabernacle was really a lampholder. The descriptions of it in Exodus, where Moses is commanded to make it, and again where he completes it, seem minute and clear, yet the most careful study of the passages leaves much doubt as to the appearance of the article. Very strange is the omission of all measurements when they are so carefully noted in the case of the other furnishings of the sanctuary. The form of the candelabrum seems to have been that of a central shaft with three branches on either side curved and rising to an equal height. The top of the shaft and of each branch was fitted for receiving a lamp, in which pure olive oil was to be burned with a wick. The seven lamps, with snuffers and bowls for the waste, and the whole stand were of fine gold. The weight was a talent and the value of the whole not far from $300,000. The language of Exodus indicates that it was made with the hammer and beaten out. The words "bowls, knops and flowers," which describe the pattern of the branches and shaft, are somewhat uncertain in meaning. Josephus speaks of them as "knops, lilies, pomegranates and bowls" and says there were 70 in all. He speaks of the seven lamps as being in imitation of the seven planets. He says the candlestick was cast and was hollow, and that it was placed obliquely so that the lamps faced to the east and south. The place where it stood was in the "holy place" on the south side, midway of the room, and opposite the table of showbread.

Every morning a priest cleaned the lamps, trimmed and filled them. Each evening they were lighted and burned till morning. Some think they burned perpetually night and day. In Revelation Christ is represented as walking amid the seven golden candlesticks, which seem to be used as symbols of the seven churches to which the messages are sent. That the golden candlestick was symbolical of some spiritual principle has been quite generally believed, but there has been great difference of opinion as to what it was intended to typify. Some have thought it represents the spirit of preaching, others the light of the law, while still others have seen in it reference to the spirit of the churches and witnesses. If the Shekinah fire on the "mercy seat" over the "ark of the covenant" behind the veil was the symbol of the divine presence; if the incense offered on the "golden altar" represented the prayers of God's people, and the "showbread" was a constant reminder that all food is given by God, then it would seem reasonable that the ever burning light was to serve as an object lesson of the presence of God with men as the "illumination," or light giver. It would then be typical of the work of the Holy Spirit, as the sacrificial lamb was a type of the divine Son.

It also suggests the duty of man as given in the words of Christ, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

What Became of It?

On the arch of Titus, in Rome, erected to commemorate his victories in the east, and especially that over the Jews, there is a marble sculpture in bas relief representing the triumph procession. Borne aloft upon the shoulders of men are the golden candlesticks and table of showbread from the temple in Jerusalem. Though timeworn and mutilated, the form of these articles can be made out fairly well. The base of the candlestick is probably not Jewish, as it has figures of dolphins upon it. This was not the article made under the direction of Moses, but one constructed after the return from Babylon when the temple was rebuilt. The ten made by Solomon for his temple were probably carried to Babylon and never returned. The original one made for the tabernacle in the wilderness may have been in the same building and shared the same fate, or it may have been lost before. No reference is made to it when the other furnishings of the tabernacle are gathered by David and Solomon to the central sanctuary of Zion. Perhaps its light is referred to in the story of Samuel called of God in the temple at Shiloh, but even this is uncertain. What became of it no one knows.

Lessons For the Quarter.

The subjects selected for the first quarter of 1895 have to do with the tabernacle and temple service. The general topic of "Christ In All," suggests the New Testament interpretation of Old Testament forms and rites and a present practical spiritual application of their symbolism. The whole question of the ancient Hebrew worship and its bearing on Christian faith and practice is of deepest interest, and there is no danger at the present of overestimating its importance. All Epworth Leagues should give careful study to the Scripture lessons, both in the literary and spiritual department. Never before has there been such results obtained from explorations of Biblical sites as at present, and every month adds some interesting and valuable discovery to throw new light upon the meaning of some passage of Scripture. The tabernacle and temple, as a whole, should be studied in its construction, history and modes of worship.

January to April.

General topic, "Christ In All;" subdivisions, the laver, the altar, the priest, the golden candlestick, the holy garments, the showbread, the ark of the covenant, the burnt offering, the peace offering, the sin offering, clean and unclean, the Nazarite.

Falsity.

It is more from carelessness about the truth, says Dr. Johnson, than from intentional lying, that there is so much falsehood in the world.

St. Jacobs Oil THE GREAT REMEDY CURES PAINS of MAN & BEAST

SHERIFF'S SALE.

NOTICE is hereby given, that by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Lenawee, in favor of Philip DePuy, plaintiff, against the goods, chattels and real estate of Peter Waldron and James Hendershot, defendants, in said county, to me directed and delivered, I did, on the 5th day of January, A. Current Topics in the Schools.

The suggestion that every teacher, whether in city, village or district school, should strive to interest his pupils in the study of current topics, is an excellent one. The primary object of school instruction is not merely to carry the pupils through so many text-books on so many different subjects, but so to guide their growing minds as to develop the best manhood and womanhood. To accomplish these results, the teacher must go outside the text-books, must put life into his teaching, and must connect the school work with the life and thought of the day, especially the broader thought of the great outside world as yet but little known to the pupils in the schools. The first requisite for the successful study of current topics in the schools is a teacher who is himself in sympathy and in contact with the best thought of the day. The next requisite is a journal that can be used as a text-book: one that will furnish the necessary record of events and comment thereon, with a good range and variety of reading. With such a journal, the teacher can make the study of current topics of great benefit, not only to the scholars but to himself. A weekly journal that fairly presents all sides of every important public question, and that admirably meets the requirements for the study of current topics in the schools, is Public Opinion, published at Washington, D. C., at $2.50 per year. A contribution of ten cents apiece from 25 pupils will pay for Public Opinion for one year, or five cents apiece will pay for six months. The weekly issue can be used as text-books in the reading classes, and if preserved and bound they make a valuable addition to or nucleus for a school library. Send for specimen copy.

Farm Home Reading Circle.

The Michigan Agricultural College has taken another step forward by inaugurating a college extension course of reading. This plan aims to furnish a systematic course of reading on subjects relating directly to agriculture and kindred subjects. While the course as planned recommends a progressive line of work, discussing first the underlying principles of agriculture, and later taking up special departments, yet it is largely elective and so flexible that a person interested in any branch of farming may select books pertaining only to his chosen line. For example, the class devoted to live stock aims to give a general knowledge of feeding, breeding and handling of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, and includes also a book on dairying. If, for any reason, the reader does not desire to take all the work in the class devoted to live stock and is especially interested in dairying, he may select only that portion relating to dairy work, and receive proper credit.

The course comprises five classes, Soils and Crops, Live Stock, Garden and Orchard, Home Making and Political Science. Certificates are given on the completion of the work outlined in each book and class, and on the completion of three classes the reader is presented with an appropriate diploma. The examinations are all optional, and any person may read in the course without sending in reports or taking examinations of any kind.

This course was but recently established, yet it has readers all over the United States and Canada, and the great interest manifested by those who are now enjoying its opportunities is a good indication of its value. Its popularity arises from the fact that it is prepared by busy men; it is short, practical and instructive; it offers a scheme of advisory correspondence with the college authorities which makes it possible to become intimately acquainted with the work of the experiment stations.

Send a postal card to the secretary for full information regarding this course.

Alba Heywood Coming.

"Edgewood Folks" and "Down in Injianny" promises to be one of the best shows of the season. It is replete with the highest class and most entertaining of specialties, among the most prominent being the inimitable character impersonations of Mr. Heywood. The dainty dances of Miss Genevieve Stoy, the charming ballads of Miss Nellie Louise Davis and the popular selections of the Edgewood quartette. "Down in Injianny," which opens the performance, is a bright dramatic bit, in which Mr. Heywood as Grandfather Pelgen, an old man long past his usefulness, has scored a most pronounced success.

New Policy of the Lake Shore.

The Detroit Free Press says: The management of John Newell placed the Lake Shore in the foremost rank of American railroads. It has no grades worth speaking of and can handle traffic and make money at rates that would yield nothing to a competitor. All this and many other desirable things have been accomplished under a conservative management and one might imagine that futher good results would be looked for along the same lines. Word comes that the past policy of the Lake Shore is to be reversed. It is announced, not officially, that President Caldwell will adopt a policy of aggressiveness in both the passenger and freight departments. The men in the employ of the Lake Shore are now expected to get out and hustle for business in a more lively manner than formerly. A new issue of Lake Shore stock is among the early probabilities. This will be issued to present stockholders and the funds used to pay off the bonded indebtedness. The surplus will be used to defray the expenses of elevating the company's tracks at Chicago.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

ON the 21st Senator Frye's Hawaiian resolution was again debated in the senate, Mr. Gray defending the administration. The fortifications appropriation bill was passed and the conference report on the deficiency bill was agreed to.... In the house a bill was introduced authorizing the issue of 5 per cent. bonds and repealing the legal tender act of 1878. A bill appropriating $1,000,000 for a new post office building in Chicago was passed. Mr. Breckinridge offered a resolution favoring the annexation of Hawaii. A favorable report was ordered on the bill passed by the senate to provide for gold and silver coinage at the branch mint at Denver, Col.

AGAIN the policy of the administration as to Hawaii was the subject of sharp attack and defense in the United States senate on the 22d. Petitions were presented from citizens of Alabama claiming that they were deprived of a republican form of government and asking the intervention of congress.... In the house the Indian appropriation bill was passed, as was also a bill to authorize the appointments before March 4 of a cadet to the naval academy from each congressional district not actually represented. The conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was adopted and the measure was passed.

IN the senate bills were introduced on the 23d for an amendment to the diplomatic and consular bill providing $500,000 for the survey of a cable route connecting the Hawaiian islands with the United States; to provide for a nonpartisan currency commission of twelve members to make investigations of fiscal questions and for an issue of bonds to produce revenues for the government. Senator Jones (Ark.) introduced his financial and currency bill.... In the house the sundry civil appropriation bill ($38,549,721) was discussed. A joint resolution was reported to amend the constitution so as to provide that the president shall be eligible to service but one term.

A BILL was introduced in the senate on the 24th to punish persons who steal news in transmission by tapping wires. A resolution was offered looking towards the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, and in the meantime a sufficient naval force should be maintained in Hawaiian waters.... In the house a bill was reported providing for officers of the regular army to give military instructions in public schools. The sundry civil appropriation bill was further considered.

IN the senate on the 25th the Nicaragua canal bill was passed by a vote of 31 to 11. Senator Burrows (Mich.) introduced a bill to regulate the navigation on the great lakes and their connecting tributaries. Senator Allen (Neb.) spoke in favor of the resolution for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, and Senator Mills (Tex.) upheld the administration policy.... In the house the sundry civil appropriation bill was passed with an amendment authorizing the secretary of the treasury to retire and cancel the gold certificates and make them non-receivable for customs dues after July 1 next.

Just then it dawned on the new treasurer that the young man didn't want to start a saloon, and he was soon piloted to the clerk's office and made happy, and the laugh is on Mr. Jacklin.—Evening Telegram.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Facts or Fiction about Two Great Fair Awards.

A newspaper paragraph denounces as "false" the claim of a baking powder company to an award at the world's Fair. What can it mean?

Certainly not Dr. Price's. Why? Because, as the records show, Dr. Price's exhibited competed and received the highest award, both at Chicago and the California Midwinter Fair. The award in California included Gold Medal. The official examiners pronounced it the strongest, the purest, the most wholesome and efficient of all the baking powders. Its title to confidence is unquestioned.

Can it be the manufactures of a New York powder fictitiously labelled "absolutely pure who are making "false" claims? That would be strange indeed in as much as they were not even considered in the awards.

Was it Ammonia in the New York powder that prevented its makers from competing? If not, what?

MEMORIES OF A JOURNEY.

Supt. W. R. Bresie and His Trials at the City of Mexico.

The return of Mr. W. R. Bresie, the superintendent of the Pacific Express company, from the City of Mexico, after an absence of twelve days, was noted in these columns last evening, but time prevented allusion to his personal observations and odd experiences in the ancient Spanish city, whose population is put down at 500,000, of which 37 per cent is Indian.

Mr. Bresie had been in Texas on business in company with some of the chief officials of the Pacific Express company. He did not intend to go to Mexico, but suddenly concluded to do so, and he went along.

At Laredo he took out a $20 greenback and had it changed into Mexican money. He was surprised to receive in return $39.20 in Mexican silver, half the value of American money, less 80 cents taken out to allow for fluctuation while the $39.20 held out. Silver in the Mexican Republic is very much depreciated and the people feel its effects in all branches of business. Time was when a Mexican dollar in Decatur was worth 80 cents, but in Mexico it is only worth 50 cents of an American dollar. Mr. Bresie paid $9 for sleeping car accommodations from Laredo to the capitol city, ($4.50 in U. S. coin), and he arrived at his destination at 11 o'clock at night, putting up at the best hotel in the place, getting a room where he had to wait until the bed was prepared for use. The Mexicans do not bring the bed clothes into a room in a hotel until the guest is assigned the apartment. Then comes the hustling.

Mr. Bresie had extreme difficulty the first day in Mexico in making himself understood. He cannot speak a word of Spanish, and his vigorous and varied signs were not understood. He managed to get a cup of coffee, ham and eggs and some bread at a restaurant before retiring, and the next day he got an interpreter in the person of a son of Mr. Nixon, the express agent, and then he had no more trouble with the natives. It was easy sailing for him then.

Before getting the interpreter Mr. Bresie tried to get a postage stamp to send a letter to the states. He had a circus at the postoffice making signs, holding up the addressed letter and struggling to make himself understood. It was no go. Finally he took five 5-cent stamps and put one on the letter which was addressed to Decatur, Ill. Later Mr. B. learned that it takes a 10-cent stamp to send a letter to any point in the interior of Mexico and only a 5-cent stamp to any point outside. He thought that was singular, but it is the Mexican way of doing things.

In the early part of the present month (January) there was an earthquake disturbance in Mexico. It came one night while Mr. Nixon was sitting in his parlor reading a paper. He felt the dizzy, waving motion, and looking up he saw the hanging lamp swinging back and forth like a pendulum. It was enough to raise the hair, but Mr. N. was not very much disturbed. He is used to such experiences, having been there many years. As a consequence of the shake-up all of the opera houses, cathedrals and churches were condemned as unsafe. Nevertheless, while the largest cathedral has a great rent in it in front from the top to the bottom, one day Mr. Bresie saw it crowded with worshippers. He was told that the priests had gone to the top of a mountain where they prayed and sprinkled something on the crest, and the people believe that now there will be no more danger.

The people do business in the old way, ignoring wagons and sticking to the burros, being content to travel long distances many journeys to transport articles that might be carried in a wagon one trip. The Pacific company now has two large wagons on the streets in the City of Mexico to expedite its business. The wagons were built in Chicago and cost the company $1,000 each laid down in the city. They are drawn by mules, but frequently they are pulled short distances by the Mexicans who are too lazy to hitch up the teams.

Mr. Bresie left the dull city Wednesday and came to Decatur in a sleeper, making but one change, arriving here on Sunday. The sleeper went through to Boston. He brought home a number of souvenirs from Mexico. He doesn't care to go there again, and he was emphatic in the declaration that he would not give Macon county for the whole of the Mexican Republic, with its barren soil, earthquakes, bull rings, beggars, and dollars depreciated to half the value of American money.—Decatur (Ill.) Republican.

The Modern Invalid

Has tastes medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, truly beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. If really ill he consults a physician; if constipated he uses the gentle family laxative Syrup of Figs.

A TRIP TO DETROIT.

A Bleak Blistering Day Turned to Good Business Advantage.

Business occasionally calls us to the City of the Straits. We prefer going however in the summer season, when the city is attired in loveliest green, when the river is decked with shipping, and the wharves are alive with the bustle of trade. Last Monday was about the roughest day we ever struck in that town, but the warm cosy offices and stores where we halted upon our rounds was in marked contrast to the blistering weather without.

We found Bert Tribou still filling the responsible position of cashier for the National Loan and Investment Co. This institution is regarded as one of the solid financial concerns of the city, and Bert seems to be a fixture there. He is evidently doing well, which fact all his old Tecumseh friends will be glad to learn.

Mr. F. C. Stoepel was found in his office at the wholesale house of Burnham, Stoepel & Co. This firm have weathered the hard times of '93 and '94 unscathed and they look forward to a good spring trade. Enterprise and push, mingled with conservative management, form a combination that has pushed this house to the front during the past few years. They surely have a bright business future before them.

Capt. Jas. C. Wheeler has severed his connection with the U. S. Collectors office, where he was a fixture for so many years, and is now giving his whole attention to the Granule Co., in which he and his son own considerable stock. The manufacture of medical granules for doctors use is growing rapidly, and this company is one of the first to embark in the new system, and is working up a lucrative business.

Drs. Kennedy & Kergan still occupy their old quarters on the corner of Shelby street and Michigan Avenue. They are specialists of more than state reputation. Their success in chronic ailments and their honorable business methods continue to bring them a large and lucrative practice.

George M. Savage occupies a fine suite of rooms in the second story of the Hammond Block, where the latch string is always out to the newspaper men of Michigan. Mr. Savage has for many years been the leading advertising agent of this state and among the foremost in the western states. The HERALD has been one of his patrons for twenty years and during all that period our business relations have been very smooth and pleasant. He has the faculty of keeping on friendly terms with both advertisers and newspapers, which is no easy task sometimes. That success and prosperity may continue to attend him is the sincere wish of the HERALD.

A brief call at the Free Press job department finished the day's work. The business of this company is now run in two sections. The daily and weekly Free Press occupy the new building on Lafayette avenue, near the new postoffice building, while the job and engraving rooms are located in the old building, corner of Shelby and Larned streets. That building is now filled with these two departments, and there is no room to spare, either. The growth of their jobbing and engraving custom for the past five years has been phenomenal.

Taking the Wabash train at 3:30, a ride of an hour and a half brought us to Britton. Supper at the Exelby House gave us a rest, and two hours after supper were devoted to interviewing the merchants of that hustling village. The Mackinaw train landed us safely at home about ten o'clock, and a walk of a mile with the thermometer at zero completed a wearisome day's journey.

Brainard's Musical World.

The February number of this popular magazine contains a large amount of choice musical reading, including articles by Wm. H. Sherwood, Emil Liebling, Robert Goldbeck and other eminent musicians. Fine portraits of Liszt, Schumann, Melba and other illustrations are given, together with four piano pieces and a beautiful new song—eighteen pages of music in all. A piano lesson by Emil Liebling, also a fine portrait, suitable for framing, is given with each number. Terms $1.50 per year, 15 cents per copy. To introduce the World to those who have never taken it, it will be sent four months on trial on receipt of 25 cents in stamps. Address The S. Brainard's Sons Co. Chicago.

Table Talk.

Table Talk for Feb. opens with an interesting and instructive article on "Mushrooms and Toadstools" by Julius Palmer, the renowned authority on such subjects. This is followed by the usual departments in which this month, the receipts alone number fully three dozen and in which are given the freshest notes on fashions, serving, and all questions of interest to the housekeeper and homemaker. There are also the menus for the month, a lesson in Dietetics, the Washington letter on Society's doings at the Capitol and an article, "Over the tea-cups, a bright readable resume of the latest popular books. Our readers can see a sample copy by addressing Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Penn.

ALBA HEYWOOD AT HOME.

"Edgewood Folks" and "Down in Injianny" Greeted With a Rousing House.

Seldom, if ever, is seen so large an audience as that which greeted Alba Heywood in "Edgewood Folks" at the opera house Saturday evening. Every seat was occupied, both up and down stairs, and many were standing. It was a genuine ovation. Alba has for some years been quite a favorite here, and Saturday evening he and his excellent company captivated all by the artistic manner in which every part was presented. Even the children taken from among us seemed almost inspired, so naturally and so perfectly did they acquit themselves. It seemed almost wonderful that there was not a false move made by any of them, and it was a beautiful picture they presented in the picnic scene. The curtain raiser, "Down in Injianny," in one scene, was presented admirably; many of the characters were extremely difficult, yet every one was sustained artistically and made real. Alba, as Grandfather Pelgen, gained new laurels; Charles McElhaney was equal to his difficult role as Hezekiah Pelgen; Fred Truesdall, as Bud Neeley, and Genevieve Stoy, as Hetty Pelgen, were good. Edward J. Thompson, as Tobe Daggs, a white-cap, had but little to do or say, but did all that was required of him; and Lillian Spellman, as Maria Pelge, sustained this heartless character perfectly.

In "Edgewood Folks" all gave perfect satisfaction to the large and critical audience. The play is one in which Sol Smith Russell gained his reputation and was written simply to allow of different specialties. Alba Heywood filled to the letter all the different roles assigned him and gained new honors. Nellie Louise Davis charmed all by her singing as well as acting. Genevieve Stoy rendered the skirt dance acceptably, and all the rest did their parts well. Of course the central figure was Alba and the others had little opportunity for great work. It was an evening of great enjoyment and next season, when Alba comes with his new play, he is assured a packed house.

Again has been seen and keenly felt the necessity of an orchestra, and with the competent musicians we have here we can't understand why Manager Sutton does not secure one.

A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

Mary McCaughn Burned to Death in Her Own Home.

Near the target at the intersection of the Lake Shore and Mackinaw roads, stands an unpretentious little dwelling, which has been owned and occupied for many years by Miss Mary McCaughn. She has lived there since before war times, and had reached the ripe old age of nearly eighty years. She had always enjoyed good health however and thought nothing of living alone.

Wednesday afternoon, while warming some bedding at the store, it took fire, and in her effort to extinguish the flames her clothing took fire. With great presence of mind she ran out into the yard and rolled in the snow to put out the flames. The section men on the Mackinaw happened along with a hand car just then and ran to her assistance. She was carried into the house and physicians were summoned, but medical aid was of no avail, and death relieved her from her suffering Thursday morning. Her body was so severely burned that the flesh dropped therefrom in many places.

The funeral will be held at her late residence, tomorrow afternoon, Rev. C. M. Brown, officiating.

JOHN BOYD THACHER A WITNESS.

He Fully Verifies a Disputed World's Fair Award.

John Boyd Thacher is laconic and decisive in his statements. During the lively campaign just closed in New York this marked him especially as chairman of the Democratic State Committee. It was equally true of him as chairman of the Executive Committee on Awards at the World's Fair. This is the positive and sententious way in which he verifies in an official letter, the honors won by Dr. Price's Baking Powder: "I herewith enclose you an official copy of your award, which in due time will be inscribed in the diploma and forwarded." Thus the question respecting the award, raised by an envious New York rival, is settled beyond cavil. This same rival by the way is widely advertising an award for itself. The official records prove this claim wholly false, as they show the New York pretender was not so much as an exhibitor at the World's Fair.

One evening the last of the week a young Clinton gent and two lady friends went out to a gathering on Wall street. They had Jerry from the livery and a fine new cutter. Jerry seemed to have his skates on, and the way they all rolled around was a caution. When within a mile of their destination Jerry skated them into a snowdrift and left them there. When they righted themselves it was discovered that the cross-bar was broken, and they accordingly continued the journey on foot, and most of the way home, for that matter. There would be no sport cutter riding if not accompanied with something to relieve the monotony, which the happy trio had in this case.

Mayor Pingree, of Detroit, would be a suitable person to respond to the sentiment, "The Power of the Press," says the Big Rapids Herald. For two or three years he has had in newspapers warm defenders of some of his cranky ideas and measures pertaining to the government of the metropolis of Michigan, but when in his madness he so bitterly and cruelly assailed the press, he sacrificed his best friends, and strengthened his enemies a hundred fold. He better had encountered a lot of band saws—he would have come out better. It is rarely within the experience of a public official to be assailed by the populace and to have such a write-up by the local press as Mayor Pingree has just had. He has been a bull in a china shop in the past—he is now a bull trying to bunt an express train off the track.

—Bill Nye has been down to Washington, and pays his respects to Senator Hoar in his weekly letter as follows: Senator Hoar delivered a speech on Daniel Webster one day while I was present. He pronounces Mr. Webster's first name Dan-nill. It was an eloquent, scholarly and classical speech, and reflected great credit on both Mr. Hoar and Mr. Webster. The speaker started off in a rather nervous manner, fearing no doubt, that I would criticise his manner of delivery, but I caught his eye and gave him at once an assuring look which seemed to cheer him greatly as he proceeded. Mr. Hoar has a face that is not exactly suited to a memorial oration, but seems better fitted for playing Joshua Whitcomb. He has a nice, chubby, Pickwick face, with a sweet little rosebud mouth, and there is a warm radiance about his spectacles which would ripen a watermelon in Nova Zembla. In appearance Senator George Frisbie Hoar is a combination of Denman Thompson and Horace Greely, but a more classical cuss never ransacked the tomes of forgotten lore. A speech by Mr. Hoar with no allusion to Mithridates, or other still earlier dates, may be safely regarded as a fraud. He wears a short sack coat, and when he tries to look severe, it is like the frown of an illuminated plum pudding.

The Gold Flower.

This flower, so fittingly called Gold Flower, was produced by M. Moser, of Versailles, France, and introduced in Europe last season, the plants selling at a very high figure, only a few plants coming to America. The flowers are two or three inches across, of a bright, shining, golden yellow and bearing numerous handsome stamens. The plant is of low, spreading, branching growth, with handsome leaves, the upper side much darker than the lower. It is perfectly hardy, forms an excellent border, or is grand for bedding, while as a single pot plant it is charming with its clean, bright green foliage as a background for the flowers, great, shiny yellow disks, brilliant in their reflections as burnished gold.

This year an enterprising firm is offering it at the price of ordinary plants, viz., 25 cents a plant,

By sending 10 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for Vick's Floral Guide, (which amount may be deducted from first order), you will learn all about this beautiful plant Hypericum Moserianium, and also regarding their offer of $300 cash for a name for the New Double Sweet Pea.

The World's Fair Reproduced.

Did you visit the World's Fair in Chicago, or did you find it impossible to go? Whether you did or not, you can see it reproduced in all its glory in "The Graphic History of the Fair," which is fully described in our "Special Announcement" elsewhere in this issue. We are in a position to offer this grand work at only about half price. Hon. Edmond Heuwaert' Consul-General for France, says he "has perused the work with great interest and pleasure, each page, each picture calling back the memories of the past year in their most vivid form."

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., FEB 8, 1895.

Chas. H. Randall is improving slowly.

Tate & Stoner shipped sheep and hogs Monday.

Fred Kensler, of Manchester, was in town Monday.

Wm. C. Rogers is at Mason this week with his patent fence.

E. G. Woodard visited Jackson from Saturday till Monday.

Charles F. Clark made a trip to Detroit the last of the week.

Mrs. Tate, of Ypsilanti, spent Sunday with Clinton friends.

A. F. Freeman, the lawyer of Manchester, was in town Monday.

John VanTuyle visited Brooklyn friends Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Witherell are entertaining friends from abroad.

Miss Cora Ames, of Ypsilanti, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ella Niblack.

Miss Adah Case has been with Mame Bradner while her mother was in Texas.

Editor Blanchard has a man from Piqua, Ohio, assisting him in the office.

Ella Jacobs is visiting her uncle Peter and family at Adrian this week.

Ben. Howland, of Brooklyn, has been visiting relatives in this vicinity since Friday.

Frank Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, was in town calling on friends the first of the week.

It is reported that a Mr. Putnam and wife of Adrian, will soon occupy the Hotel Edrose.

Tuesday morning was the coldest of the season, the thermometer showing 21° below zero.

Geo. A. Kies, E. R. Smith and Solomon Parker were on the sick list the first of the week.

About thirty from here went to see Alba Heywood in "Edgewood Folks" at Tecumseh Saturday night.

A. C. Huntington was in Detroit over Sunday. As usual, he attended as many church services as possible.

Mrs. Snell, of Tecumseh, was up the last of the week to see her mother, Mrs. Haggart, who has been sick.

Mrs. Frank McClure has been having one of her severe illnesses usual to the winter season, but is now gaining again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lewis, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Downs, left for their western home the last of the week.

The Baptist social was held at the home of Edgar Randall, north of town, Tuesday evening. They had a pleasant time.

This has been the banner week for tramps. The accommodations for this class of people have been taxed to their utmost extent.

Our esteemed friend, Mrs. E. P. Felton, was quite poorly last week, but is improving nicely. She will be 87 years of age very soon.

Meta Schlegel, of Bridgewater, who is attending school at Manchester, was the guest of Fred Tagg's family from Friday till Monday.

Mrs. Addie Wells gave a charming dove party at her cosy home on Church street Tuesday evening. Pedro was the order of the evening.

Mrs. Peter Knight's sabbath school class of twelve boys with their best girls, were entertained by her at her pleasant home Tuesday evening.

Little Laura Freese was very ill Monday and Tuesday and they were alarmed about her condition. She is better now and undoubtedly will recover.

Guy Belding and Prof. Daniels went over to Ann Arbor Monday, and Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Daniels, together with their goods, left for their new home.

Frank Woodward was home from Hudson over Sunday. Monday his father shipped a quantity of coke belonging to the former plow company to Hudson.

Charles Fellows, of Saline township, attended Baptist church Sunday morning, and it is expected he will in the near future occupy Mr. Stout's pulpit for a service.

John Campbell, who has been working in the Local office, finished his labors Saturday last and returned to Tecumseh where he accepted a position in the steam laundry.

Mrs. Emma VanDeMark and Louise were in Tecumseh Saturday, not only to attend Heywood's entertainment but to have a visit with Alba himself, he being a friend of many years.

Miss Kittie Ebbitt, of Chicago, arrived Saturday evening for her usual mid-winter visit of three weeks among her relatives and friends. Kit is the same sprightly, light-hearted girl as of yore.

Frank Gragg, wife and one son, returned Monday from a ten day's visit with friends in Hillsdale county. They had a fine time but the weather was such they could not visit all they expected to.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Palmer expect to give up the hotel Edrose and move back into the Howell House, where they were before they took the hotel. They will move as soon as the weather will permit.

The ladies having introduced the custom of giving parties confined exclusively to one sex, we expect, ere long to see stag parties the rage among the male persuasion. Try it, boys, and see how it will work.

Geo. Colling and wife, of Morenci, were the guests of his mother over Sunday. Bob and friend, of Tecumseh, were up, and if Wig had been here it would have been a complete family gathering.

Editor Blanchard feels that his worldly possessions have been greatly increased recently. He and his estimable wife are rejoicing over a bright little daughter, which was born to them Monday morning.

Fred Miller and Minnie Larzelere, it is reported, were married at Manchester last Thursday evening. They have started out in married life young in years, and we only wish they may be prospered, live long and be happy.

Mrs. Mary Bradner returned from her visit to Texas Tuesday, accompanied by Seth's wife and son. She reports a delightful visit. They all feel the change from mild weather, singing of birds and flowers, to the snow and zero weather of the north very keenly.

Orrin Safford and wife, of Flint, are the guests of their brother and sister and brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. John L. Tuttle. They are quite muchly related, Mrs. Safford being a sister of the doctor's and Mrs. Tuttle a sister of Mr. Safford.

Miss Maggie Ebbitt went over to Adrian Saturday for two purposes, namely, to call on friends there, and to meet her sister Kit. At eight when returning home they were joined at Tecumseh by Lizzie Kirk, who came up and passed Sunday with them.

Ansel Witherell has sued his son Ed for rent and the case will come before Justice Smith to-day. A. J. Waters, of Manchester, is Mr. Witherell's attorney and Ed has L. H. Saulsbury, of Adrian. It seems too bad that they cannot settle their differences outside the court-room.

The bricklayers were obliged to suspend operations on the Plow company's building, owing to the severity of the weather. The morjar would freeze on the trowel, even. It already looks quite like a building and when completed will be an ornament to the town as well as a model foundry.

Wesley R. Keyser has departed from the usual custom of many engaged in the same business, and instead of placing on the block cows of venerable age, has purchased of W. D. VanTuyle some prime steers. We trust he will find it to his interest to continue so doing, and have no doubt the patrons will appreciate his efforts.

VanTuyle & Palmer make a large shipment of stock to-morrow. They will ship two double decks of sheep and two carloads of catt It has been years since such cattle have been collected as is this lot. Among them are three 3-year-old steers, purchased of Laverne Bidwell, that tip the beam at 5500 pounds, and seventeen steers, coming 3 years, that average 1350 pounds, bought of the Matthews boys. It seems a pity to see such prime stock go out of the country.

To-night, at the town hall, Rev. Ralph E. Macduff, of Flint, will give the next lecture of the course. His subject will be "The South, Before and After the War." Mr. McDuff is an Episcopal clergyman. He was born in the blue grass region in Kentucky, of Scotch parents. Having been reared in the south he knows thoroughly whereof he speaks. Though comparatively new to the platform he already ranks among the foremost platform speakers of the day, and no doubt our people will enjoy a great literary treat this evening.

We had the pleasure of meeting our aged friend Roswell Randall, Tuesday, and congratulated him on reaching his 91st birthday. Mr. R. is remarkably active, for one of his extreme age; he is possessed of all his faculties to a wonderful degree. His eyesight is good, hearing unimpaired, memory a rebuke to many of the young and voice as clear as a bell, sings a fine tenor and writes both poetry and prose that many would be proud to duplicate, though in the vigor of youth. May he live many, many years to enjoy himself, is the prayer of his friends.

PENTECOST POINTERS.

(Delayed Letter)

E. F. Clement had the misfortune to lose a fine young Jersey cow last week.

Mrs. Louisa Vanderpool, of Adrian, who came out to attend the Vanderpool-Rogers wedding, is now visiting old friends in this vicinity.

Several thermometers in exposed places in this vicinity registered 18° below zero early Monday morning. Pretty frigid for southern Michigan.

We are glad to note that Mrs. Edwin Cook is somewhat better, at last accounts, and hopes are entertained that she may be restored to health again.

The embargo laid upon American pork by several European countries is playing the mischief with the farmers' incomes in this country, especially those who have engaged largely in the production of this anti-Jewish staple.

Miss Minnie Vanderpool is no more, having become Mrs. Cecil Rogers. Quite a large company of relatives attended the wedding, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. A. Vanderpool. Rev. Williams officiated, the bride being a member of his church. Their hosts of friends will wish them success and happiness.

The library association announce that Feb. 9th will be the date of the next business meeting. A full attendance of members is requested, and the book committee also ask each member to write on a slip of paper the names of such books as they would like purchased by the committee. A selection will be made from these. After business there will be a fine program, music, etc., and coffee and doughnuts will be served by the ladies, all for the low price of ten cents. Everybody and his wife and mother-in-law, come and be welcome.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Clarence Wisner is on the gain.

A. D. Hunt is on the sick list, but a little better at last accounts.

Mrs. Mary Deming is gaining slowly. A rib was broken by striking a chair when she fell.

Born, Jan. 26, to Mr. and Mrs. Seth Simmons, a daughter. Mother and child doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Allen were called to Ypsilanti last Friday by a telegram announcing the illness of their daughter Irene.

All who are afflicted with any form of Nerve Disease can obtain advice of Dr. Wheeler, free of charge. His "Nerve Vitalizer" is the peer of all remedies for Nerve Disease. Address with stamp The J. W. Brant Co., Albion, Mich., or 42 Day St., New York. Sold by Orr & Temple.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Last Tuesday evening a bright, jolly and congenial crowd, assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Schreder, to enjoy the hospitality of the Farmers' Social Club. The prevailing craze (indulgence in oyster suppers) recently lay siege to the club with such force that there was not one opposing voice, all entering in with the usual spirit that is characteristic of the members of the F. S. C. when any thing out of the ordinary is to take place. The mercury ranged well below zero that evening, but it did not seem to affect the company, as all came prepared for a good time, and judging from remarks made by the invited guests and members of the club, think none were disappointed.

That Mr. and Mrs. Schreder understand fully how to care for such a crowd was evident to be seen. The program was listened to with interest by all. Mr. and Mrs. Strong sang sweetly "Beautiful Days." Mrs. Remington responded to her part with her usual alacrity; Delmar Finch recited "Farmer John" very nicely and little Hazel Roberts pleased the company by singing "The Horse Shoe hung over the Door." Dialogue, "Be Courteous," might well serve as an object lesson to a portion of young America,' Cora Halsted and others sang "How the Gates came Ajar." The dialogue by the school children showed considerable talent and thorough training. Ralph Gillespie gave a bright Declamation, which was followed by a song by Stoten Strong; Mary Murphy sang "Don't go out To-night, My Darling" and was called back and sang again—that closing the exercises for the evening. Supper was then announced and about 150 hungry mortals made raid on the oysters and provisions provided by the club. On entering the basement our eyes beheld four neat and tasily arranged tables, at each table were stationed willing workers, to cater to the wants of all. The committee in charge deserve special praise for the management of the supper as it was a success. After supper the merry crowd dispersed to their respective homes, each pleased that they had attended the F. S. C. meeting.

The Club will meet in two weeks on Tuesday evening, Feb. 19, at Mrs. F. D. Rector's with the following program:

Music—Grace Gillespie.
Rec.—Ethel Hendershot.
Locals and Personals—Mrs. Bowen.
Music—Bertha Roberts.
Latest by telegraph—Mr. G. B. Garlinghouse.

A Large Waist

is not generally considered a necessary adjunct to the grace, beauty or symmetry of the womanly form. Within the body, however, is a great waste made necessary according to the condition of things—continually in process and requiring the perfect action of all bodily functions to absorb or dispel the refuse. When there is irregularity or inaction, ladies who value a clean, pure, healthy body will take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the only remedy for woman which being once used is always in favor.

To those about to become mothers, it is a priceless boon, for it lessens the pains and perils of childbirth, shortens labor, promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child and shortens the period of confinement.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness, constipation, sick headache, indigestion, or dyspepsia, and kindred diseases.

It is almost as easy to believe one when he speaks in derogation of others as when he speaks in praise of ourselves.

"Nothing Venture, Nothing Have."

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mon., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement. "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mon.

It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and is worth its weight in gold. I can use Ely's Cream Balm with safety and it does all that is claimed for it.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

The Development of the South.

Is being furthered by the Queen & Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to Southern points at One Fare for the Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinati, O., and Lexington, Ky., on November 6th and December 4th; good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates to all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisana.

Stop-overs are permitted on these excursions at any point south of the Ohio River, within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go South to look into the present great movement of Northern to that section.

The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3.00 to $5.00 per acre, on easy terms.

Send us your name for advertising matter and any information you may want as to lands and immigration to the South.

BRITTON BUDGET.

M. L. Gillen did not start out Monday as he expected.

No one should neglect to hear John R. Clarke the 21st.

Charlie Gorman and lady friend spent Sunday with his people at Marshall.

There is a slight prospect of the Plating works removing to Tecumseh ere long.

Strand F. Marsteller, of Clinton, was here the last of the week in the interest of his business.

Jehiel Davidson and wife, of Tecumseh, assisted in celebrating John Britton's birthday, Tuesday.

The price on single admissions to the lecture course entertainments have been reduced from 35 cents to 25 cents.

Chas. Egan, of the firm of J. D. Kinney & Co., Tecumseh, was shaking hands with his acquaintances Wednesday.

One of the deputy sheriffs and the turnkey of Adrian were in town the first of the week. They kept their business a secret.

Mrs. W. J. Helen and children were the guests of her father, Benjamin Lamkin, and family, in Franklin, from Friday until Tuesday.

Adult season tickets for the balance of the lecture course, four entertainments, are to be had for only 85 cents. Children, one-half price.

We are happy to state that our young friend Clarence Zibble found country air invigorating, and is able to be among us again as good as new.

Bert Duffy was in Toledo Tuesday, where he purchased a complete stock of findings. He is therefore prepared to attend to the wants of his customers in fine style.

Married at the residence of the bride's parents, in Britton, Jan. 6th, '95, Mr. Chas. J. Gorham of Marshall, and Miss Martha E. Ackley of this place. Congratulations are in order.

Saturday afternoon Fred Morrell was driving to Tecumseh, and after passing Ridgeway some distance he found a pocket book containing some money. The owner can have it by calling at his residence and proving property.

John Britton was 63 years old Tuesday. In honor of the event there was a state dinner given at his home for the relatives and invited guests, and a royal entertainment they received. May he have many more birthdays, is the desire of all.

Herbert Cranshaw drove up to Tecumseh Monday, and while driving through the streets, his team got the start of him and indulged in a lively runaway. When he reached home he was quite sore and lame from the fracas and has been using liniments quite freely. He may consider himself fortunate in not receiving serious injury—Herbert, be more careful in the future.

Ivy Leaf Hive, No. 506, L. O. T. M., of Britton, will hold a social at the K. O. T. M. hall, Wednesday evening, Feb 13. Sir Knights and ladies, with their families, are invited. Twenty conundrums will be asked for a penny. The one correctly answering the greatest number will receive a prize, as also will the one answering the least number. Each one is requested to bring a penny to be deposited with the lady finance keeper.

Thursday evening, at the residence of E. Mudge, a ceremony was performed which, though old, is ever new, namely the matrimonial one. The contracting parties being Walter Swick and Bertha Underwood. Rev. E. Mudge pronounced the all-important words in his usual impressive style. The young couple have the best wishes of a large circle of friends, among whom they have grown to man and womanhood and been very popular.

The All Penny Ante Society seem to enjoy moving. At least they do frequently. They have again vacated and it is not positively known just when they will settle. The last regular session was held Friday last at Beasely's Mill. Some are unkind enough to intimate that they move to save paying rent, others that they want to be quartered in an iron clad, fire proof building that they may withstand the assaults of the profane. These insinuations are undoubtedly prompted by jealousy.

Cone, or as it is commonly called, Ireland, among its many attractions has one that is playing sad havoc with the Britton young men, and consequently in a like degree disturbing the peace of mind of her maidens. That referred to is Ireland's fair daughters, who are drawing our young men as the magnet does the steel. It seems that one young lady's favor is courted by two of our young men, and naturally each one is making his best effort to please, consequently every desire of the lady is anticipated and she has no time to feel lonely. One young gentleman, we are informed, makes from three to four trips a week. We are becoming interested to know who will come out victorious and secure the prize.

E. T. Head, the hay buyer, returned from Chicago Friday, and to the surprise of many, left town Sunday for Toledo. He started from here with a cutter. Matters are in a terribly mixed condition and several around here are anxious to have their accounts adjusted. The firm was known as Carland & Head, and the fact that John C. Carland, of Toledo, who is known to be a responsible business man, was associated with Mr. H., who was a stranger here, they had the confidence of all and experienced no difficulty in securing a large quantity of hay. Many who sold on interest and other necessary expenses and they feel that they are not receiving fair treatment. The feeling here is that Mr. Carland, as a business man, can ill afford to have matters conducted so loosely and mysteriously as they have been so far. Some of those interested served an attachment on a sum of money in the bank belonging to the firm and at present there is considerable anxiety manifested. It is hoped that everything will be satisfactorily arranged soon, the good name of the firm preserved and each man receive what is his due.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Camburn visited friends in Tecumseh this week.

Miss Grace Collins visited friends in Clinton last Saturday.

The C. E. Service Sunday evening brought out a full house.

Mr. Howell, of Hillsdale, spoke in the Baptist church Sunday and Monday.

Miss Grace Sage was called home from school at Tecumseh, on account of her father's illness.

A donation for Mr. Ramsdell is to be given at the home of Mr. Lester Coller, Friday evening.

Macon was well represented at the entertainment given by Alba Heywood on Saturday night.

Mrs. Burdette is on the sick list, Mr. Milan Sage is the unfortunate victim of a slight stroke of paralysis.

All are cordially invited to attend the "Peanut Hunt" at Mrs. S. J. Camburn's on Wednesday evening, Feb. 13th.

Al. Cavenaugh, while trying to keep on the side of the road, when driving to Tecumseh, was thrown from the cutter, and at last report was carrying a badly bruised arm.

The Dorrell-Miller suit was again postponed. As is usual, after such a thing gets into the lawyer's hands, it proves to be an affair 'long drawn out.' The moral is that it behooves us to remember the old time teaching. "Follow after the things which pertain to peace."

Died, at Macon, Arlene, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Garret D. Ellis, aged 2 years, 9 months, 17 days. Never very strong, though seemingly healthy until about 9 months of age, when it was not right, still it was thought she would outgrow it, but with the best medical aid and most tender care, the fond parents soon saw that their darling was gradually wasting away. About ten days before her death she seemed to have taken cold and grew rapidly worse until at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, Jan 26, 1895, when her spirit took its flight. The funeral services were held at the house Monday at 2 p. m. Rev. D. H. Ramsdell spoke comforting words to the sorrowing parents and the little white casket was borne to its long home.

CARD OF THANKS.

With grateful hearts we acknowledge the many acts of kindness, shown us during our recent sad bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. G. D. ELLIS.

SOUTH MACON SIFTINGS.

Lorano Remington is spending a few days with her brother Ransom.

Very bad weather for old bachelors, but Herman Hand enjoys it since the lawsuit.

Georgia Baker, who has been visiting Ypsilanti friends for the past two weeks returned home Sunday.

Old Boreas is hitting us hard just at present—an open winter sure—open at both ends and the wind and snow blowing through.

Herschel Miller has purchased the twenty acres joining his farm, of Bradley Zibble—nine hundred dollars was the consideration.

Lawrence Maynard has gone into partnership with Mr. Gould, of Ridgeway, in the silver plating business. Those wishing any workdone in their line will do well to call on them.

While loading logs last week Alfred Weeks thought he would stop one when the team had rolled it on top of two others on the sleigh. He stopped it all right, but he was on the ground and the log on top of him, not seriously hurt, but thinks he got a pointer on loading logs.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

G. H. Winship was a caller in town Thursday.

Rev. A. Stead, wife and mother visited L. C. Winship and wife.

Miss Florence Thompson was shopping with her sister last week.

Dr. Begel was in town Monday. He is stopping in Jackson at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Philo are happy over the arrival of a 10-pound boy.

Miss Bertha Britton and Misses Kishpaugh, of Raisin Center, were guests of Miss C. E. Winship.

A. D. Macham and wife and Chas. Benedict and wife were guests at the Rector mansion Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gilliland and daughter, Mrs. Jenkins, were guests of Mrs. James Lane last week.

The entertainment given by the Grayson family Thursday evening was largely attended, but was not up to the standard as they were about sick with bad colds. Net receipts, $2.75.

Death came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rothfuss and took their little daughter, only four months old, who was only sick a few days with bronchitis. They have the sympathy of all in their sad affliction.

RAISIN VALLEY SEMINARY.

Geo. Hill spent Sunday at Ridgeway.

Miss Loua Ladd was absent from school last week.

Miss Hattie Wilson is paying a short visit to her old friends at the Sem.

School closed on Friday last on account of the quarterly meeting of Friends at Raisin Center.

Four damsels from the Seminary called on Photographer Stephenson one day last week. The object of their visit is not exactly known.

J. B. Collier, of Macon, gave us an entertainment with his graphophone Thursday evening. The program was fine and was enjoyed by all.

The prohibition club meets Saturday night of this week, Feb. 9, at the home of Zach. Cook. The program will consist of recitations and music, also a speech by Mr. Cook, who is a member of the township organizing committee. A good time is anticipated. All come.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Zero weather still prevails here.

Lookout for the annual donation in the near future.

There are several about the village sick with the grip.

Uncle Purdy Haight's little pet fox squirrel froze to death Wednesday.

The series of special meetings will close with Sunday evening's service.

Lolla Sutton has been on the sick list with grip since Friday night of last week.

Mrs. Philip Sisson is under the care of the doctor at this writing. She has pneumonia.

A load of the school youngsters enjoyed a sleigh ride over to Macon last Saturday night.

Little Johnnie Foote fell down stairs one day last week and broke his collar bone. He is doing finely.

Chas. Foote and daughter, Marion returned Tuesday from a two weeks' visit with relatives in New York state.

S. H. Linn's old family horse, Moses will be seen no more upon our streets, he having departed this life, at the ripe old age of 28 years, a few days ago.

A. J. Sutton will be found at his residence, with his stock of rubber goods and ladies' shoes. He will be pleased to see anyone in need of anything in his line. Come early and avoid the rush.

THE FARMERS' UNION.

The Farmers' Union met at the home of Mrs. McLain, Tuesday evening, and adjourned to meet again at the same place, Tuesday evening, Feb. 12, 1895. Following is the program:

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the north-west with wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Go to Virginia; land is cheap, climate perfect all the year round. Ask any one who knows and he will tell you that in the tidewater section one acre of land has produced as high as $2,000.00 in one season. It is worth looking into. Apply to C. H. Boyce, Gen'l. Land and Excursion Agent, Coldwater, Mich., for pamphlet "Facts for Farmers" free. No statements made that are not corroborated by practical farmers who have grown rich on their Virginia farms.

A Business-Making Book.

Every business man ought to read "Dollars and Sense," a money-making book by Nath'l C. Fowler, Jr., the leading expert on business and advertizing. 18 chapters, illustrated with 100 plates, presenting every style of effective advertisements, with examples of reading notices, circulars and headlines. It tells the plain truth about advertisements and exposes ineffective methods. Any reader of The HERALD who will send check, postal note or postage stamps to the value of 25 cents to The Trade Company, Boston, Mass., will receive the book by prepaid mail.

Thousands are Moving South.

Where farming is more profitable than in the North. You can grow three crops each year from the same land, and have the entire year for out door work. No blizzards in winter or sunstrokes in summer. You can plant and harvest some crop every month in the year. The death rate is lower than in the North. Lands are still very cheap, but are beginning to advance, and in two or three years will be worth several times the present price. Improved farms, $10 to $15 per acre; unimproved land, $3 to $5 per acre, near railway stations. The best portion of America for raising fruits and early vegetables, stock raising and general farm crops is along the Mobile & Ohio Railroad in Eastern Mississippi and Southern Alabama. An illustrated pamphlet telling all about our country will be sent free to all who wish it. Very low rate excursions every month. Apply to F. W. Greene, General Agent, 108 N. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., or to E. E. Posey, General Passenger Agent Mobile & Ohio R. R., Mobile, Ala.

Palpitation of the Heart

Shortness of Breath, Swelling of Legs and Feet.

"For about four years I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath and swelling of the legs and feet. At times I would faint. I was treated by the best physicians in Savannah, Ga., with no relief. I then tried various Springs without benefit. Finally, I tried also his Nerve and Liver Pills. After beginning to take them I felt better! I continued taking them and I am now in better health than for many years. Since my recovery I have gained fifty pounds in weight. I hope this statement may be of value to some poor sufferer."

E. B. SUTTON, Ways Station, Ga.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For Sale by all Druggists.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 21 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so enthusiastic and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago Crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Although not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the feminine gender. If you are unacquainted with Demorest's Magazine, and for a specimen copy direct, and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has paid you well for the trouble in the matter of writing a letter to Mother in the house, or to order, if the library wants it.

FOR SALE BY HARRIS & HITESHU, Tecumseh, Mich.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages, has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.
It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASES.
It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venereal Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 18 ounces, or 6 full doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of him. It will be cheaper soon for you to order some of us, and less trouble.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 8, 1895.

The income tax has come to stay. It is just, constitutional and especially commends itself to the popular sense of right. It will be so altered by future Congresses as to make it conform more closely to the demands of justice, but it will not be abolished. It will be graduated, so that incomes below $5,000 shall be untaxed and incomes below $10,000 taxed at a nominal rate, while above that figure the rate will increase with the amount of the income. The burdens of government will be laid upon accumulated wealth where now they rest upon industry. Superfluity instead of necessity will be made to pay.—N. Y. World.

The new tariff bill reduced the rate of tariff taxes $1.08 a box on tin plate and in the present condition of the market this saves to American consumers, $1.17 a box from the rates imposed under the McKinley law. In August last, immediately preceding the passage of the new measure, tin plate of standard quality sold in New York market for $5 13 a box. The quotations last week were $1.95, showing a decrease of $1.17, all of which benefit goes to the consumer, and places in evidence the fact while the present duty is for revenue it is protective to the extent of the tax. It also very cleverly indicates the plunder possible under the McKinley law.

Texas sets a good example to other Southern States by the introduction into her legislature of a bill to impose penalities upon lynching. It provides that the county in which the crime takes place shall be held pecuniarily responsible and shall pay to the legal representatives of the victim a sum not less than $3,000. It also decrees that the Sheriff who lets a prisoner escape, unless he is wounded and disabled in the effort to retain him, shall be at once deprived of his office. Probably a stronger local sentiment against this familiar Southern practice would be aroused by the prospect of having to pay for it than by any other means which could be applied. What the Legislature will do with the bill remains to be seen.

The McKinley bill gave the Steel Rail Trust a protective duty of $10.44 a ton. The Trust, in order to keep up prices, paid $1,000 a day to the Maryland Steel Company, (the only American concern whose competition they feared) with the understanding that this company should stop making rails. Result of "protection." A thousand or more steel workers thrown out of work and competing for the jobs of their follow workers: hundreds or thousands of miles of railroads not built and not repaired because rails were too dear, and so railroad builders, car builders and railroad men also kept out of jobs; the Trust made richer and everybody else poorer. This all happened last year in the hard times. Tom Johnson's speech in Congress tells all about it.

The tug Morford made a search all day Monday at the south end of Lake Michigan for the missing steamer Chicora. The tug made its way through the ice, all the way to Whiting, Ind., and neither on the trip to that place nor on the return was anything seen that in any way resembled the hull of a vessel. It would have been impossible for the vessel to have been in the open water last night, and been hidden from the view of the men on the tug this afternoon. After the return of the tug, the Graham & Morton people announced that they had given up all hope of ever seeing the Chicora or any of its crew again. Vesselmen are now of the opinion that what was taken for the hull of the Chicora last night was nothing but a mass of dirty ice. Not a single survivor is left to tell the sorrowful tale.

Few people who have not studied one of the annual reports of the Public Printer have any idea of what an immense establishment the government Printing office is. It costs $125,000 a year to run the Congressional Record; more than $1,000,000 to pay for the books and pamphlets, mostly reports, turned out every year. In addition to printed matter the office turns out yearly something like 350,000 blank books. Three of these blanks are made annually for the names, addresses, and accounts of the Senators and Representatives with the government. Each of these books has 1,200 pages, weighs 85 pounds and costs to produce $65. It is claimed that no such blank books are made anywhere else. Last year the bindery used 52,000 sheep skins, 8,000 Turkish goat skins, known as 'morocco' and 100,000 square feet of Russian leather, which is made from cow-hide, besides other binding material.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

SALOONS BY THE WAY.

The phrase which furnishes our text was part of a pathetic appeal to which we listened some weeks since and both the speaker and his words so haunted us that we recount the incident here, hoping some slumbering conscience may be disturbed thereby.

It was near the hour for Gospel Temperance Meeting at the headquarters of the W. C. T. U. and we paused on the threshold to invite to the meeting a man who loitered by the door watching those who entered.

He turned as we spoke and reaching out his trembling hand in an appealing way said in thickened speech, "Oh! can you tell me when the doctor will come? They told me I could be cured here of the drink, you know." "Do you want to be cured?" we ask. "Oh, my God, yes! I've tried to stop, but it's no use. Will the Doctor be here soon?" We explain that it will be some time before the Doctor comes and ask him to wait in meeting, but the nervous restlessness of drink possesses him and we have learned to seize the moment of good resolve lest tempatation waylay and take captive while we are busy here and there.

"You had better not wait for the Doctor he will see you in his office: it is only three squares this way. Will you go?" Well, yes, I s'pose I can if he will see me; but will I have to pass saloons by the way? I can get there if I don't have to pass a saloon."

Pitiful admission of utter helplessness in the presence of the tempter. We saw that he was protected until the inevitable saloon was passed, but none the less the appealing question rang in our ears, "Will I have to pass any saloons by the way?"

For this weak brother is not the only one in our land writhing in the grasp of a tyrant appetite. It matters not how he or they became enslaved, though certainly there must have existed the temptation or they would never have been entrapped; but fully realizing that they are bound they struggle to be free; struggle and fall back again and again because of the succession of snares set for stumbling feet

With bleared and blinded eyes, stupified brain and craving thirst they reel out of one hell-hole into another, until finally a lingering spark of manhood inspires another convulsive effort toward freedom. This proves as futile as the last, for the will power is paralyzed and trap-doors still stand wide open with inviting blaze of light and the sound of music within.

As the victims go down one after another, a continual succession, we ask why this ruin of life and hope and happiness?

But answer comes: "This is a licensed trap for revenue and political purposes and the church and the world both think it's all right as a trap. If men don't want to be caught they must keep out, that's all." But still comes back the refrain from the lost, "I had to pass a saloon by the way."

Deacon Smith and his two sons belong to the Presbyterian church: Deacon Smith and his sons attend regularly the weekly prayer meetings and take active part in them.

Deacon Smith prays for the heathen in far-off lands, prays that Christ's kingdom may come on earth, and his prayers are long and full of Bible quotations.

Deacon Smith is also Mayor of a city and the question of licensing the dramshop comes before the council for its decision.

Unfortunately the vote is a tie, but this gives the Christian Mayor an opportunity to help answer his own prayers for the coming of Christ's kingdom.

We are sorry to record it but the deacon, unequal to the test, he fails, and the saloon triumphs by one Christian vote.

This is no fancy sketch, but faithful record of history of one city in Illinois.

Has your church or your town any Deacon Smith?

No license law was ever enforced nor ever will be. The reason is simple. Any man who is mean enough to keep a saloon will never hesitate to violate the law. All excise laws are roaring farces. Every provision of them is violated regularly by every man who holds a license.

The principle of license is simply rotten. If the liquor business is a decent, harmless one, it is infamous for the state to discriminate against, cripple, blackmail and tax it. If, on the other hand, it is a dangerous but necessary business, the state should absolutely control it. An excise system is a contemptible compromise, that is to the devil an irritant and to Christianity a nausea.—Rev. Dixon, Jr., in New York Herald.

The liquor traffic is a cancer in society, eating out the vitals and threatening destruction, and all attempts to regulate it will not only prove abortive but will aggravate the evil. No, there must be no more attempts to regulate the cancer; it must be eradicated. Not a root must be left behind, for until this is done, all classes must continue in danger of becoming victims of strong drink.—Abraham Lincoln.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Passed Unanimously at Jackson Convocation, Thursday, Jan. 31, 1895.

Whereas. The members of the Southern Convocation of the Diocese of Michigan, in session assembled, have heard with profound sorrow the death of one of their number, Rev. Josiah Phelps, formerly rector of St. Peter's church, Tecumseh; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convocation extend its heartfelt sympathy to the widow and family, being confident of the blessed christian work accomplished by him in the salvation of immortal souls during a ministry of forty years, more than half of which were passed in his last rectorate, and having comfortable knowledge that though we miss the countenance and kindly intercourse of a brother priest, we rejoice in the assurance that "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow and family.

Educational Rally.

All teachers and friends of education are invited to attend an educational rally at Onsted on Saturday, Feb. 9, 1895, opening at 10 o'clock a. m. The program will include the following features:

The School: Its Four Factors and their Result—Mrs. Myrta Palmer.
Discussion, opened by E. Taylor.
Busy Work—Miss Amy Kingan.
The Lamp of Knowledge Dispels Darkness—R. W. Chandler.
Paper by Miss Flora Ross.
Language Work—Olney Waterman.
Question Box.

The music for the occasion will be in charge of Miss Hattie Daniels.

A breathing spell for business men is an American expression meaning the period when Congress is not in session.

Troubles never come singly. We have the grip, we have the strike and now a movement has been started to revive roller skating.

If American Cabinets were formed as French Cabinets are, Mr. Cleveland would be looking for a new Cabinet three times a day.

It may be explained without any violation of confidence that the recent conference of Populist leaders in St. Louis devoted all its intelligence and energy to devising a scheme for coining wind and maintaining it at a parity with gold.

High School Happenings.

Two frozen ears and one nose was reported at school Tuesday morning.

Milton Jenkins, of Wightman's law office, contemplates entering school Monday.

Stop whispering or leave the room is a new law in B room. It has taken marked effect.

An interesting talk from Prof. Kellogg was enjoyed by the Rhetoric class Tuesday afternoon.

A crowd of young people from the high school went out to Del Finch's last night, just for fun.

Jim Harris was lamentably absent Wednesday forenoon. The severity of the weather caused it.

Frank Harris interested, as well as instructed, B room this morning with an essay on "The Evils of Avarice." We won't try to get rich, Jim.

Scholars are requested not to obstruct the passage of the heat by standing in front of the registers, as other persons in the room would enjoy a portion of the heat.

It was simply shocking—at least that's what the class in electricity thought when a volt and a half of electricity passed through their frames. Prof. Kellogg thought so, too.

Leigh Pennington evidently believes in giving the scholars their money's worth. He spoke for ten minutes Tuesday morning, and no one knows when he would have stopped if the class bell had not "called him down."

An Electrical Magazine.

Electric Power, now in its seventh year, makes its bow to the public this month in an entirely new form and dress. It will henceforth appear as a magazine both as to size and character—a character which the readers of electrical science will greatly appreciate. The first number of the new form is handsomely printed and contains many excellent illustrations. The reading matter is less technical in its nature and is interesting to those who wish to know something of what is going on in electricity and yet do not care to make a study of the science. Electricity is being applied so universally now that every progressive person should read about it, and Electric Power is well worth the subscription price of $2.00 a year. The publishers offer a trial subscription for six months for $1.00. It can be obtained on the news stands for 20cents a copy. It is published at 36 Cortland Street, New York City.

The Story of a Campaign.

Willis J. Abbot, the Political Editor of the Chicago Times, who is recognized by his fellow journalists as one of the ablest and clearest political writers in the country, whether one is in sympathy with his views or not, tells the story of the Populist campaign in Chicago in the Arena for Febuary. Mr. Abbot had the advantage all through the campaign of last autumn of being in touch with the leaders of the different elements that are gradually forming a new party, with new social and economic aims in American politics, and his paper has value for all those who want to get at the facts regardless of dominating prejudices. Even the opponents of every sort of change in the political phases of the country should study this paper, in order to estimate the potency of this new political sentiment that is in the air—and is not peculiar to America, but is seizing upon the heart and brain of the whole great western world.

Miss Powell is a born artist, too conscientious to resort to trick for the purpose of capturing applause, and, being an artist, her moods are so variable that if one listens to her a hundred times it is only to come away, not only with gratification, but also puzzled to know how and by what witchery she contrives to render so varied the interpretation of the same work. She executes the Mendelssohn concerto as no other violinist in America can.—Brooklyn Citizen.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be at once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 3, 1895.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

There was a big crowd in town Saturday.

Prof. John C. Howell, of Ridgeway, gave the HERALD a call Tuesday.

Attorney Charles Burridge was at Adrian Monday, on Probate business.

Do not fail to see "Charley's Aunt" at Sutton's Opera House, Feby. 22d, '95.

We have a batch of council proceedings in hand which will appear next week.

The thermometer ranged from 18 to 30 degrees below zero last Tuesday morning.

A free sleigh ride to the valentine social next Thursday evening, providing there is snow.

Don't fail to see the Sleight of Hand performance by Mr. Strubler, in the Armory next Wednesday evening, Feb. 13th.

Manager Sutton has secured the Frohman Company, who will present "Charley's Aunt" at the Opera House, Feby. 22d.

Celebrate Washington's birthday by calling on "Charley's Aunt" at the Opera House in the evening. She keeps openhouse.

Will R. Wooden and wife of Battle Creek, were the guests of H. E. Stout's family. They made far too short a visit, returning Monday forenoon.

John R. Clarke, entertainer, will give the second entertainment of the Britton lecture course, at the Christian church, Feb. 21. His subject is "Gough in Humor, Dialect and Eloquence."

Gen. T. B. Wood was in town Sunday, shaking hands with his old friends before leaving for his new home in Virginia. May success attend his efforts at farming down in 'Old Virginny."

H. E. Stout's new home was the scene of a family dinner Sunday in honor of Grandfather Hopkins' and little Charlie's birth day. Grandfather and grandson celebrate that anniversary on the same day.

Alba Heywood gave the HERALD a friendly call last Saturday. Mr. Heywood and LaVerne Wheeler were special cronies when the latter lived here, and Mr. Heywood claimed Tecumseh as his own home for a few months, about twenty years ago.

The A. F. C.,—a social club recently organized—met at R. A. Heesen's cozy home last Monday evening. The program consisted of oysters and a good time. R. A. Heesen was elected President; Capt. Chilson, Royal Hustler; Wm. Orr, Royal Bumper. The Club ought to have a reporter to prepare the proceedings for publication in the HERALD.

A company of Royal Arcanum brothers with their wives and babies had a social time at Chas. H. Reed's Wednesday evening. Refreshments were served about ten o'clock and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and social converse. The members of the Royal Arcanum have been making the rounds during the last few weeks.

Co. C celebrated the second anniversary of the dedication of the new armory last Tuesday night by a social time. The severity of the weather and the multiplicity of surprise and sleighing parties reduced the attendance. Those who were present however had an enjoyable time. The music was good and the menu par excellence.

The entertainment for the benefit of the Junior Auxiliary of St. Peter's church, will be given in the Armory, next Wednesday evening, Feb. 13th at 8 o'clock. Mr. Strubler has kindly consented to give a fine exhibition of sleight hand tricks. Chicago testimonials are printed in this issue. Besides local musical talent, Mrs. L. W. Kimball and Miss Clark of Clinton, will assist. Admission 10cts.

The following testimonial from Chicago will show that a great treat is in store for our people, at the Armory, next Wednesday evening, Feb. 13th, Signor Bostro (Mr. Strubler) will give exhibition in legerdemain:

The entertainment given to the children of our Sunday School some weeks ago by Signor Calistro (Mr. Strubler) was a very interesting and successful exhibition of his powers of slight of hand. I was present during most of the performance, and can testify not only that his feats were very extraordinary, but also that there was nothing coarse, vulgar or objectionable in his methods.

CHAS. EDWARD CHENEY,
Rector of Christ's Church, Chicago.

"Charley's Aunt" Feb. 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Brooks have a young son, born Monday.

The suit between Dorrell and Miller is in progress again to-day.

Rev. C. M. Brown went to Erie, Ohio, Tuesday, for a short time.

Will the cold snap of Monday and Tuesday kill the peach buds?

The Republican county Convention has been called for Feb. 16th.

Mrs. W. W. Whiting is enjoying a visit from her sister Etta, of Detroit.

Remember the Maud Powell string quartette concert next Tuesday evening.

Manager Sutton has secured two more fine attractions which will be here in the near future.

Mrs. Wm. Doss and two daughters visited her son, Andrew and family in Toledo last week.

Fred Teachout has taken advantage of this fine spring weather and been shorn of his mustache.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hampton and little daughter, of Fowler, Ind., joined the family re-union at D. C. Love's last Monday.

Miss Minnie Ross, of Chicago, left for home last Friday, going via Battle Creek to visit her sisters, who reside in that city.

Meet at W. B. Darling's confectionery store at 7 o'clock for the sleigh ride to the valentine social. Come and have a good time.

The Orients will hold their meeting Thursday Eve of next week instead of Tuesday Eve to accommodate some from abroad.

Conner Wilson has increased his hotbeds and added quite a number of new sash, and is preparing to do a big plant business this Spring.

Bert Cutting returned from Cleveland Ohio last week and will remain here. He began working for the Stimpson Scale Company this week.

Harry Wolverton, the expert plater, has severed his connection with Cutting & Heesen and accepted a position as overseer of large plating works at New Castle, Ind.

Matt Root left Monday for east. He will act as eastern agent for the Tilestion Milling Co., of St. Cloud, Minnesota and will probably make New York City his headquarters.

A large number of our young people attended the meeting of the Farmers' Club at John Schroder's Tuesday evening, as well as a goodly representation of the older ones.

Look a little out when speaking to Frank Bauer about his ear and nose. He attended the Farmer's Club Tuesday evening and will not forget it, either. On some points Frank is extremely sensitive.

Mr. Bocher's lecture last night at the Universalist church was very fine. Owing to the weather there was not a large attendance. He had a serious time reaching here and was quite late, having to drive up from Adrian.

Herbert Cranshaw, of Britton, was in town Monday, and with his team made matters lively for a time. His team ran away, and when all was over he was found to be in a decidedly dilapidated condition, although not seriously injured.

The Eastern Star will hold a special meeting for degree work next Thursday, Feb. 14, and on Thursday evening, the 21st, they expect to entertain the Clinton and Manchester chapters, the officers of the latter to exemplify the work.

Frank Bryan's brother left yesterday for his home in the west, Frank accompanied him as far as Adrian returning on the noon train with one thumb badly lacerated, from having it caught in a Hack door. It is astonishing what severe measures people will resort to in order to get rid of milking.

Dr. Parkhurst will pay his respects to clubs and club-life in his article in the next issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. "I consider the club," writes the great reformer, "to be one of the cleverest devices of the devil to prevent homes being made, and to sterilize and undermine them when they are made."

The ladies having charge of the reading room have decided not to open it on Sunday afternoon for the present, as only a few have been in on that day. The attendance on week days is increasing and all are cordially invited to come. The reading on the tables is free, and the tickets for books, 10 cents a month, 30 cents per quarter, or $1 for a year.

Miss Powell's playing added great artistic brilliancy to the concert. Educated in Leipzig, Berlin, and Paris, she has acquired remarkable technique. Her elastic yet firm bowing draws from the violin a tone of bell-like purity, which can be equalled only by the singer of long experience. Her melody, is song, as sympathetic and delightful as is her personal appearance. A finely chiselled head rests upon a graceful figure, which sways only to the most strongly marked rhythms. The repose and refinement of her bearing correspond with an earnestness of facial expression, which is heightened by dark, heavy eyebrows. A strong will is stamped upon the features, and the face says plainly the artist is a hard-working, typical American, decided and full of purpose. And so also is her playing. An encore, a song by Massenet was given with incomparable tenderness and delicacy.—Vienna Neue Freie Presse.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$30 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Weeeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand.	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 30.—The legislature reconvened Tuesday after the long adjournment. Both houses adopted a resolution for a committee of three from each house to inquire into the expediency of erecting an executive mansion not to exceed $30,000 in cost. The following important measures were introduced in the senate: Establishing a physio-medical department at the university of Michigan; providing for vestibules to protect motormen on street railways; for a state steam boiler commission to inspect boilers and license engineers; for bringing garnished defendants into court when outside; state limits; for uniform school text books; regulating and licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors on railway cars; establishing a college of eclectic medicine and surgery at the University of Michigan; providing that a husband or wife may testify for or against the other in criminal cases; appropriating $52,000 for improvement at the Michigan insane asylum; also a joint resolution for submission to the people of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the legislature from enacting charter legislature except to fix boundaries, charter legislation except to fix boundaries, establish municipal courts, and authorize cities to adopt articles of incorporation.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 31.—In the senate Wednesday bills were introduced to make valid the testimony of the husband or wife against the other in criminal cases; appropriating $25,000 for a home for the blind at Saginaw; appropriating $52,000 for improvements at the Kalamazoo asylum; providing a plan for the paroling of convicts by the board of control of the institution in which they are confined.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 1.—In the senate Thursday joint resolutions were passed submitting a constitutional amendment to the effect that all electors be able to read the state constitution in English and to write their own name; also to abolish the system of cumulative voting in the election of representatives to the state legislature. Bills were noticed in the senate prohibiting the marriage of first cousins, appropriating $4,000 for the support of the home for discharged prisoners, and for the use of the Abbot and the Myers voting machines.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 2.—In the senate Friday Senator Thompson's new health board bill for Detroit was reported unanimously from the cities and villages committee. This is the bill which contemplates legislating out of office Dr. McLeod, health commissioner of Detroit. The most important bills noticed were: Making an appropriation of $75,382 for support of the fish commission for 1895-96; repeal of the law which exempts all railroad companies organized north of the forty-fourth parallel from taxation for ten years; prohibiting the killing of deer until November 1, 1897; requiring the display of United States flags by all school districts in the state; authorizing the incorporation of trade and labor councils; exempting the upper peninsula from the operation of the franchise tax law; authorizing judges of probate to appoint their registers, and authorizing the making of contracts for caring for United States prisoners at the Detroit house of correction.

House.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 30.—In the house Tuesday the Redfern educational bill was agreed to in committee of the whole, but failed in final passage by a vote of 38 to 59, but the vote was reconsidered and the bill went on the table.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 31.—In the house Wednesday bills were introduced as follows: For the compensation of persons isolated by order of health officers to prevent the spread of communicable diseases, limiting the validity of marriage licenses to sixty days from date of issue, and providing a penalty of $100 for not returning same to the county clerk on expiration of limit; providing for the incorporation of supreme, grand and subordinate lodges of the Mystic Order of the Knights providing for examination by physicians appointed by the court of plaintiffs in suits for personal damage, and providing a penalty for refusal to submit to such examination.

Mayor Pingree's board of health fight has been transferred to the legislative halls. Both houses adjourned at 4 p. m. to make way for a hearing on Senator Thompson's bill to wipe out the present board and substitute one which, he says, will relieve the city from its smallpox epidemic. The opposition to the present board was based on the allegation that Mayor Pingree had made a political machine of the board which is now wholly incapable of handling the smallpox epidemic. Mayor Pingree spoke at great length. Personalities predominated on both sides and but little argument was injected into the speeches.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 1.—In the house Thursday a joint resolution was introduced providing for the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. A bill was introduced which provides for an immediate assessment upon the stockholders of insolvent banks to the amount of their liability, which is an amount equal to the stock held under the present banking law.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 2.—The first of the general bills prepared by the municipal commission passed the house Friday. It proposes a general charter under which all villages in the state must incorporate.

BLOWN TO ATOMS!

Fatal Boiler Explosion in a Planing-Mill at Muskegon, Mich.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Feb. 4.—The battery of two boilers in Gray Bros.' planing-mill exploded at 9:30 Sunday night with a force that shook the entire city. The boiler house, engine-room and dry kiln were completely wrecked. John Johnson, the watchman, was in the engine-room and was blown to atoms, not a trace of his remains having been found. The loss is estimated at $12,000, with no insurance, and thirty men are thrown out of work. The plant was built two years ago at a cost of $40,000.

Victory for Law and Order.

HOUGHTON, Jan. 31.—The jury in the circuit court returned a verdict of guilty against John F. Schroeder, of Red Jacket, charged with keeping a saloon open Sunday. This was a test case and is a signal victory for the Calumet Law and Order league, which has been fighting for the enforcement of the Sunday-closing law for the last six months.

Fined for Not Reporting Smallpox Case.

DETROIT, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Elizabeth and Miss Estella Stevens, Christian Scientists, were found guilty in the recorder's court of not reporting a case of smallpox in their home and fined five dollars each and half the costs. Their deense was that they treated their patient by Christian science and did not know the nature of his disease.

Frozen to Death.

GAYLORD, Jan. 31.—Ex-Deputy Sheriff Clinton D. Wright, of Otsego Lake, started on foot to carry supplies from that place to his fishing shanty at Chubb lake. He took the wrong road in the woods and was frozen to death at the end of the road, 4½ miles east of Otsego Lake, where his body has been found by the sheriff's searching party.

Victim of a Live Wire.

IRONWOOD, Feb. 2.—Edward Jacobson, a timberman, was electrocuted in the East Norrie mine. The electric light wires in the shaft where Jacobson was working were not insulated, but ran through iron pipes. He sat down and rested both hands on one of these pipes and was instantly killed.

THEIR FINAL PAPERS.

Residents of Michigan Qualify Under the New Law.

BAY CITY, Feb. 3.—The constitutional amendment carried at the last general election is forcing many who have heretofore voted on their first papers to take out their full papers. In Bay county there are 638 persons who are affected by the amendment. They voted last fall, and cannot vote the coming spring by reason of the adoption of this amendment unless they take out their full papers in the circuit court. The attorney general has decided that no male inhabitant of foreign birth is entitled to vote in this state until he shall become a citizen of the United States, and a male inhabitant of foreign birth who may have been a qualified elector last November cannot vote next spring unless he shall be by that time a citizen of the United States (naturalized after five years' residence.)

ROMANCE ENDED BY DEATH.

Lovers Perish in Each Other's Arms in a Michigan Snowdrift.

MUSKEGON, Feb. 3.—Mrs. A. G. Ward has returned from the north and relates a tragic story of the finding of a pair of young lovers in a snowdrift frozen to death. They were locked in each other's arms and appeared to be asleep. A farmer in Benona was awakened early in the morning by a noise about the house. He found a horse just outside hitched to part of a cutter. This caused a search to be made with the above result. The man was identified as a teacher of the Marshallville school, and the woman, though unknown, was supposed to be his sweetheart, who had come to visit him. Benona and Marshallville are located near the Lake Michigan shore of Oceana county.

LANSING, Feb. 6.—A special election has been ordered by Gov. Rich in the Third congressional district for April 1, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Burrows.

FISH AND GAME LAWS.

LANSING, Feb. 1.—The State Fish and Game league completed its labors Thursday. The game bill as finally agreed upon makes the uniform deer season from October 15 to November 10, no person to kill more than two deer. Rabbit killing is permitted at all times, but squirrels can be killed only from September 1 to November 30. Spring shooting of migratory ducks is permitted. The open season for snipe and woodcock is from August 1 to November 30, and for quail and partridge from October 15 to November 30. The sale of quail, partridge and woodcock is prohibited. The league recommends that nonresident hunters be charged a license fee of $25. The fish bill makes the open season for trout from May 1 to September 1, and prohibits the use of nets in all inland waters, including St. Mary's river, Lake St. Clair, and St. Clair and Detroit rivers. Fishing through the ice is prohibited, as is spearing in inland waters at any time. The closed season for bass is from November 12 to June 1. No trout less than 6 inches long nor bass less than 10 inches long are to be taken, and all under this size are to be handled as carefully as possible and put back in the water. No fishing is to be done within 100 feet of a fish chute, and fish in inland waters are to be taken only with hook and line.

KILLED BY HIS WIFE'S NURSE.

Sensational Allegations as to the Cause of a Detroit Murder.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 4.—Dr. Horace E. Pope, dentist, with an office and residence on Michigan avenue, was killed Saturday morning by William Brusseau, a nurse. According to the story told by Brusseau, he found Dr. Pope sitting on Mrs. Pope's bed, holding a cloth saturated with chloroform over that lady's mouth. When Brusseau entered the room the doctor fired at him, but missed. Brusseau says he then seized a hatchet and buried it in the doctor's skull. It is said that Dr. and Mrs. Pope had frequently quarreled and that the cause of their trouble was the fact that Brusseau was attentive to Mrs. Pope. In unearthing the circumstances surrounding the murder it was learned that Mrs. Pope had urged her husband to place heavier insurance upon his life. He had accordingly been insured for $9,000 and only a few days ago transferred the payment of the policies from his estate to his wife.

Mrs. Pope on Sunday made an attempt to escape from the strongroom at Harper hospital, where the police have her under surveillance. She broke off an iron bar from the window and broke a padlock on the door, but was discovered before she got away.

ADVENTISTS MEET.

Opening of the Battle Creek Convention, Which Will Last Two Weeks.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 2.—The first session of the Seventh Day Adventists Biblical Institute and Council was held here Friday. The meetings will continue two weeks, and be immediately followed by the general conference. The council is composed principally of delegates to the conference. Nearly every district and state in America is now represented, and there are also many present from foreign countries.

The object of the council is to lay out and suggest work for the general conference. Elder Olsen said that since the last conference they had sent off from America 127 missionaries to twenty-five different countries; that he was well pleased with the outlook, and great progress of the work for the past two years, and recommended that the conference devote itself to a study of the situation and principles and leave details to the different boards.

WANTS PENSION RESTORED.

Gen. Shakespeare Brings Action Similar to That by Judge Long.

KALAMAZOO, Feb. 2.—Gen. William Shakespeare has telegraphed to Thomas E. Hopkins, attorney at law at Washington, to institute mandamus proceedings at once, requiring Commissioner Lochren to show cause why he should not allow his full pension claim to be paid. The general is confident that he will win his case. It will come before the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The general has open wounds through his hips, but is able to carry on a lucrative law practice. His pension for several years has been $72 a month. Last Wednesday it was reduced to $30 a month. The steps now taken are on the same line as those taken in the case of Judge Long, who won by similar proceedings.

Death of Thomas Carney.

BAY CITY, Feb. 2.—Thomas Carney, aged 84, died Friday night. He was born in England, served six years in the British navy, came to America in 1833, became captain on the great lakes and settled down to private life in this city at the opening of the rebellion.

Spiritualists' Meeting Ended.

DECATUR, Feb. 4.—The annual meeting of the Michigan State Spiritual association closed Sunday night at Paw-Paw with addresses by L. V. Moulton, of Grand Rapids, and H. D. Barrett, of Washington, president of the National Spiritual association.

Found Relief in the River.

CHARLEVOIX, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Eugene Cross, of this place, committed suicide by drowning herself through a fishing hole in the ice here, Saturday night. She has been mentally unbalanced for some time. She formerly lived at Benton Harbor.

A Profitable Season.

THREE RIVERS, Feb. 1.—Henry Hall owns 900 acres of land in Florence township, St. Joseph county, and last year had 100 men working in mint fields. He had 20,000 pounds of peppermint oil which he sold for from $1.50 to $2 per pound.

young woman who is taking Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In maidenhood, wifehood and motherhood the "Prescription" is a supporting tonic and nervine that's peculiarly adapted to her needs, regulating, strengthening and curing the derangements of the sex. Why is it so many women owe their beauty to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? Because beauty of form and face radiate from its common center—health. The best bodily condition results from good food, fresh air and exercise coupled with the judicious use of the "Prescription."

If there be headache, pain in the back, bearing-down sensations, or general debility, or if there be nervous disturbance, nervous prostration, and sleeplessness, the "Prescription" reaches the origin of the trouble and corrects it. It dispels aches and pains, corrects displacements and cures catarrhal inflammation of the lining membranes, failing of the womb, ulceration, irregularities and kindred maladies.

"FALLING OF WOMB."

MRS. CAMFIELD

MRS. FRANK CAMFIELD, of East Dickinson, Franklin Co., N. Y., writes: "I deem it my duty to express my deep, heart-felt gratitude to you for having been the means, under Providence, of restoring me to health, for I have been by spells unable to walk. My troubles were of the womb — inflammatory and bearing-down sensations and the doctors all said, they could not cure me. Twelve bottles of Dr. Pierce's wonderful Favorite Prescription has cured me."

He Shrinks from Washing

So do woolens and flannels if they're not washed properly. Try the right way. Get a package of Pearline, and do as directed. Your things won't shrink, and they'll be softer, brighter and better, than ever before. That's the beauty of Pearline—washing is not only easier, but better and safer. Things that you wouldn't dare to trust to the wear of the washboard are washed perfectly with Pearline.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 353 JAMES PYLE, New York.

OUR ONLY DAY.

Were this our only day,
But not our yesterdays and morrows give
To hope and memory their interplay,
How should we bear to live?

Not merely what we are,
But what we were and what we are to be,
Make up our life, the near days each a star,
The far days nebulæ.

At once would love forget
Its keen pursuits and coy delays of bliss
And its delicious pangs of fond regret
Were there no day but this.

And who, to win a friend,
Would to the secrets of his heart invite
A fellowship that should begin and end
Between a night and night?

—Curtis Kinney in Cincinnati Tribune.

COWBOY AND CORSET.

"I jest wish yo' had never went to Dallas. I wish yo'd staid here on the ranch an kep' on a bein yer own self, 'stead o' driftin off the range to the city an a makin a play to be a high toned leddy. Yo' ain't like yo' used to be, Cassie."

There was a scowl on the cowboy's face as he stood before Cassie Denton, the daughter of the owner of the Texas ranch at which he was employed. The face of the bright eyed little maiden wore a pained look as she toyed with the buckskin wrist loop which depended from the handle of the six shooter in his belt.

"I knowed jest how it would be," he continued. "When yer pop got the notion into his head, that yo' must be edicated an be a leddy, I tol him it'd spile yo'. I tol him yo' never would be the same gal no mo'; that yer little head'd git turned there among the fine stock, an yo' wouldn't have no mo' use fur graded critters sich as the riders o' the ranges."

"But Bob," the girl interrupted, "I am not changed in my feelings toward you. I love you just as well as I did the day pop said I could marry you, and he sent me to school for two years just to make me fit to be your wife. It was all for your sake, Bob, and it's real bad of you to act so after I had studied so hard to make of myself a lady worthy of such a man as you. I know I'm not like I used to be. I am not rough and wild like I was once. I dress better, and I talk better. It's refinement, Bob—that's what Miss Bentley, the teacher, said, and she said that a girl without refinement was just a wart on the face of society. That's just what she said, Bob, in her own words, and I feel like crying at the way you act."

"I'd a whole lot rather see yo' a good healthy wart on the face o' society than to see yo' a dab o' bright paint on one o' its cheeks, or a string o' no 'count beads a-hangin 'bout its neck. Style is fur them that lives in cities, Cassie, an is jest as much out o' place in here on the ranch as a cheap herdin greaser'd be out o' place in glory. I'd never believed it of yo', Cassie, that yo'd come back here with yer foretop curled up in a bunch an a corset cinched round yo'. I wouldn't, I sw'ar I wouldn't. No woman kin make a rancher a good wife that wears a fashion pack saddle an bunches up her mane like yours is bunched. I must git over the curl business in time, but I ain't never goin to have no wife that'll cinch herself up so's she can't breathe below"—

With a scream of laughter the girl placed her hand over his mouth and checked his further speech.

"Oh, Bob, Bob, you naughty boy! Is it my poor little corset that has come between us to ward off your love? Oh, I must laugh, for it's really the funniest thing I ever heard of! Why, Bob, I could never live without a corset. It is such a support and comfort, and you know, you wicked boy, that my figure is much prettier than it was before I went to Dallas. Isn't it, now?"

She placed her hands against her waist and waltzed saucily around so that he could inspect her neat form.

"No, 'tain't. 'Tain't free an easy, like God intended it should be. If he'd 'a wanted yo' pinched up like yo' are now, he'd 'a built yo' that way. There'd be jest as much sense in cinchin up cows to make 'em look purty. Yo'd laugh yer eyes out to see a cow goin around here with corsets on; an, yo' hear me, it's jest as ridiculous fur a gal to do it. I'm again to roundup the ranges fur a gal 'at's got more savey than to wear sich monstrousities, 'r else I never will double up in matermony long as I live. Throw 'em away, Cassie, or yo' an me won't be nothin much to each other no mo'."

"Bob, I won't make a fool of myself for a little senseless whim such as yours. I'll wear what I please, and if it don't exactly meet with your ideas of propriety you can go and roundup a gir that's willing to put up with your nonsense."

The little girl was angry now, and with a spiteful flirt of her skirts she turned from him and went into the house. Her anger was like a passing summer cloud, and when in a few moments it had spent itself she ran to her room, and throwing herself on the bed burst into tears. She knew Bob Taylor loved her dearly, and rough and uneducated as he was she almost worshiped the handsome young cowboy. She would gladly have consigned the offending article of dress to the waters of the Brazos, which ran near the house, but she could not for a moment countenance such an unreasonable whim on Bob's part, and with set teeth and clinched hands she vowed that if her lover took her to wife the corset must be included in the inventory of her personal effects.

Days sped by, and Bob passed and repassed her about the house seemingly in oblivious of her presence as if she were a thousand miles away. Only once did he notice her, when, in maidenly desperation at his coldness, she asked:

"Ain't you never going to make up, Bob?"

"Not till you skin off that infernal pack saddle," was the surly reply.

Their lovers had been a fruitful and never stale topic of conversation among the pupils of Miss Bentley's select school for girls in Dallas, and in all their confidential chats Cassie had heard of but one effective method of whipping a recalcitrant lover back into the traces, "Flirt with some other fellow." Her only fear was that if she should try the experiment Bob might lose control of his temper and shoot the other fellow, and as a result he might be locked up for a long time in a cheerless prison, and the marriage be necessarily postponed until the misdemeanor was atoned for. The judge might be a cruel monster with no sympathy for young lovers and might send him into retirement for years, at the end of which time she might become a wrinkled or calcimined old maid before he again breathed the air of freedom.

That would be terrible. But pshaw! Bob would never be so foolish as to puff out a human light for one little girl in a country literally running over with the prettiest girls in America. Not he. Anyhow she would risk it, and if Ben Allison of the Diamond O ranch came around and made eyes at her again, as he had done on several occasions, she would encourage him just the least bit, and then, when Bob recovered from the fit of temporary insanity into which her corset had thrown him and came to her in a penitent mood, she would throw herself into his dear arms and tell him that she never did, never would and never could love any one but him. Of course he would forgive her and kiss her tears away, and the sun of love would again burst forth and shine over them with new and exquisite luster.

Ben Allison's heart became real unruly when at his next visit to the Denton ranch Cassie met him with a welcoming smile, extended her pretty little hand and permitted him to hold it quite a little while after he had got through shaking it. After this gratifying reception his visits increased in frequency, and although, with great feminine tact, the girl kept his ardor within proper bounds she did not repulse him, and it soon became noised about among the riders of the ranges that "Ben was sure goin to pitch a matermonial rope at Cassie Denton, an the little thererbred'd soon pack his brand."

Bob noted all this, and his heart was filled with bitterness toward his supposed rival. He never cast the look of recognition upon Cassie, yet when he would see her moving about the house or corrals or galloping about the range on her pretty little pinto pony it began to dawn upon him that her corseted form was indeed far neater than that of any girl on all the ranges of the Brazos. After a time he was ready to swear that he had never seen anything one-half so handsome as that neat, graceful figure, and the uncorseted girls of his acquaintance seemed almost frightful in his eyes when he gazed upon their loose, dumpy forms. He began to harbor the impression that he had made a very pronounced fool of himself, but his stubborn nature asserted itself. He had said the corset must go, and go it must.

"That's a way up on top gal sence she got back from Dallas, ain't she, Bob?" Allison said to him one day, when they met in the corral of the Denton ranch.

"Yo' don't want to make no funny plays about that gal when I'm around," Bob hotly replied.

"I hain't never yit found out that it makes any difference who's around or who ain't around when I want to make a talk play," retorted Allison.

"Some things gits found out mighty sudden, Ben Allison, an this ain't goin to be fur from one of 'em. I want to tell yo' right now, an to holler it out plain, too, that yo' are a-nosin around this ranch too plenty o' late instead of ridin yer own ranch, an I ain't agoin to stand it no m8."

"Mabbe you wouldn't mind tellin me what business it is o' yours whar I ride. Long as the gal's throwed yo' to one side yo' ain't got no say as to other fellers pitchin a rope at her."

"Yer a liar when yo' say she's throwed me, an yo' know it, an yo' want to hit the Diamond O trail right now, or yo' an me's agoin to bump together pow'ful hard. Jest top that hoss o' yours an work him lively away from here, or a calamity's agoin to occur right quick."

"Yo' talk mighty brave fur a castoff shoe, Bob Taylor, an yo' can't begin the jumpin business any too quick to suit me, yo' poor, worthless sneak."

That was the limit. The two men, their eyes blazing with anger, backed away from each other, drawing their six shooters as they went. The guns were thrown into position for quick work just as a slight girlish form darted around the corner of the adobe stable and sprang in front of Taylor. Allison's pistol rang out before he noted the presence of the girl, and with a scream of pain she fell senseless to the ground. The man who had fired the shot fled in terror and Bob knelt over his wounded darling, calling her by the most endearing names and begging her to live for his sake.

The form of the girl was borne into the house, and a doctor from Waco, who was fortunately there attending a cowboy who was down with the break bone fever, was called in.

"Is she dead, doctor?" asked Bob in tones of the most pitiable agony.

No, only stunned. Ball struck a corset stay and glanced off. She will be all right soon, but it was a close call, my boy, and she undoubtedly saved your life."

Cassie soon recovered consciousness, and with joy in his every tone Bob confessed what a fool he had been and begged for forgiveness. Of course it was sweetly granted, and he declared that the marriage must take place just as soon as she became able to stand before the minister.

"And can I wear my corset, dear?" she coyly asked.

"Wear what saved yo' for me? Cassie, I wouldn't have yo' throw that away for a million dollars. Yo' kin wear two of 'em if yo' want to, an if yo' say so I'll wear one myself."—New York Telegram.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Feb. 16. Comment by Rev. Walter J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Holy Garments.

BIBLE READINGS.—Ex. xxviii, 2; Gal. iii, 27; Eph. vi, 14-15; II Cor. vi, 7.

The ordinary priests when performing service were to be clothed with breeches, reaching to the knees, a robe or shirt-like tunic coming to the ankles, girdle around the waist and a turban, all of white linen. The garments of Aaron and his successors, the high priests, as they came to be called, were different in several respects. The breeches of linen were the same. The shirtlike coat or tunic was to be embroidered for him. Above this was to be worn a sleeveless robe of blue reaching to the knees, with a band at the neck and a fringe at the bottom of golden bells, interspersed with pomegranates of blue, purple and scarlet. Outside of this was the ephod made of "gold, blue, purple, scarlet and fine twined linen, with cunning work." It covered back and breast to the waist. It had secured to it at the shoulders two onyx stones, on each of which were engraved the names of six of the tribes of Israel. On the front was a breastplate of judgment of similar work, with the ephod, a span long, but doubled in the form of a pocket. On this were set 12 precious stones, each engraved with the name of one of the tribes. These were set in four rows of three each. The breastplate was fastened to the ephod by gold chains. At the sides of the ephod the "curious girdle" was attached and fastened back and front together. The real girdle or sash seems to have been the same for all. The turban of the chief priest became a miter, with a gold plate fastened by a blue lacing to the front and engraved with "Holiness to the Lord."

These special garments and the holy anointing oil marked the high priest as the mediator between God and man. He was the "anointed one," the messiah, as the Hebrew term is, the Christ in the Greek. All the types of the old dispensation found fulfillment in Jesus of Nazareth as the one anointed of the Father, the true Messiah, or Christ. He bore on his heart the judgment of the race, and his life exhibited holiness unto God. He made atonement once for all that those who obey him may be "clothed in fine linen, which is the righteousness of the saints."

Chautauqua and Oxford League.

The name of John H. Vincent will ever be linked with that of Chautauqua and the wonderful worldwide educational and religious movement for which that name now stands. Its marvelous success is due in great measure to his genius for planning and ability in execution, his skill in forming combinations of men, each in the right place and all working at their full capacity. But for the need of his work in another sphere he should have been the hand at the helm of the young people's movement in Methodism. He early discerned the signs of the times, and at the Baltimore conference of American Methodist churches in September, 1884, was the prime mover in organizing the Oxford league, which was planned to unite the forces of the young Methodists of the world after the pattern of the Holy club of Oxford. This society was adopted by the managers of the Sunday School union the year of its organization, and at the next general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was recognized by that body by the appointment of a board of control. A revision of the plan in 1889 gave it still greater success than ever, till, in May of that year, 500 chapters, with 20,000 members, had been enrolled. Many believed that this should be the one great denominational society. But the existence of other unions with large membership in various parts of the country made concessions imperative if union of the Methodist forces was to be accomplished. So the Oxford league was merged in the new society, and the name adopted of Epworth League.

BISHOP VINCENT.

The Purpose.

Though it may be worded in various ways, the one aim of the young people's societies of all denominations is the cultivation of intelligent and vital piety and loyalty to the church of Jesus Christ.

The Method.

All earnest souls recognize the necessity for employing wise methods if a deeper and broader piety is to be attained. Constant association in devotional services with those spiritually inclined, active help given to the destitute and sinful, broad intelligence gained by reading and study of the best literature, healthful recreation under pure social conditions, are methods which will yield the best results.

"Tis not the work the Master needs; 'tis there,
The living heart, the believing heart.
The child-like man, trustful, glad to be Wherever he will, to stay or to depart.
—J. R. Miller.

How It Works.

Among the Zulus the first sign of an approach to Christ is a desire for clothes. A man comes one day and buys a calico shirt, the next perhaps he buys a pair of duck pants, then a three legged stool, for he can no longer sit on the ground. Then, with clothes on and seated, he is a thousand miles above the heathen around him.—World Wide Missions.

The Point of View.

Christian faith is a grand cathedral with divinely pictured windows. Standing without you see no glory nor can possibly imagine any. Standing within, every ray of light reveals a harmony of unspeakable splendor.—Hawthorne's, "Marble Faun."

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 28th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five.

Present, Richard R. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Elizabeth A. Rogers, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Adelia M. Wheeler, a sister of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to Charles Burridge, the executor in said instrument named, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday the 25th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is Further Ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee; for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD R. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.
(A True Copy.)

SCOLDING

The cook within the kitchen stood,
Her hands upon her hips,
And many were the angry words
Came pouring from her lips.

Her victim was the grocery-boy,
And softly thus spake she:
Oh, what a little fool you are,
To bring such stuff to me.

Take high price baking powder back,
And bring me "Calumet,"
And if he did not go straightway,
She's likely scolding yet.

Strange as it may seem it got so cold at Devils lake last week that the operators couldn't run their ice machinery, so business was suspended for a day or two.

Several sleigh loads of Adrian people recently visited Tecumseh and took the bakery, late in the evening—Bice's bakery. The walls of the building and a heap of oyster shells were left.—Adrian Press.

A young man saw the advertisement, "How to make your trousers last," and sent fifty cents to find out how it was done. The postal card that he received in reply bore one line, "Make your coat and vest first."

The success of Miss Myra Turner, the school teacher who recovered $1,300 of Ridgeway for a header into an open culvert, shows what a school-ma'am can do when she gets on her ear—in a neglected ditch.—Adrian Press.

Miss Daisy Eaton, operator in the Hudson central telephone, talked with Cincinnati, Monday. The route was via Ann Arbor and Detroit, making the distance about 300 miles. It demonstrated the satisfactory workings of the long distance telephone.—Hudson Gazette.

A large number of bogus 25 cent pieces bearing the date of 1892 are being circulated in Hudson. It is well nigh impossible to tell them from the genuine, as the weight is all right, but they sound as flat and as bogus as a high protectionist's argument.—Hudson Gazette.

The Carnelian Ladies' Trio of Adrian is composed of Miss Bess E. Johnston, soprano; Miss Bertha Shoemaker, mezzo-soprano; Miss Lizzie E. Smith, alto and whistler. They are musically talented and their concert at the M. E. church Wednesday evening was well enjoyed by all who heard them sing and whistle. The receipts were $20.—Morenci Observer.

Ex-county clerk, Ira Waterman and ex-prosecuting attorney, Fred B. Wood, have their goods and chattels all packed and loaded and will start Tuesday for their new home in Virginia. Their plantation is located on the James river about nine miles above Richmond. The best wishes of a host of friends will go with the gentlemen and their families.—Saturday's Telegram.

By one of the numerous misdeals that are made in politics, a republican instead of a democrat has just been chosen United States senator for Kansas. But since the democrats during the past year have got it in the neck, under the ribs, in the stomach, opposite the stomach or thereabouts, and elsewhere, it softens our sorrow to realize that the new Kansas senator, Lucien Baker, was once of Adrian. He was also a resident of Morenci, and since his election, Morenci has refused to speak to Fayette.—Adrian Press.

The Hudson Gazette announces that the city is "out" $200, by the failure of the telegraph service to deliver a telegram promptly. A Mendon delegation came to Hudson prepared if need be, to pay $1,000 for a fire squirt gun, but got it for $800. A telegram from a Hudsonite at Mendon to Mayor Lawrence councilled him to stick for $1,000 and he would get it. The dispatch was received at 9 p. m., but not delivered till the next morning. It was too late. Instances have been known of a messenger boy starting with a telegram and becoming gray before it was delivered.

We are requested to ask certain Clinton youths how the sleighing was Sunday evening, and suggest that they, in future, provide themselves with sandwiches to provide for emergencies.—(Tecumseh Herald.) But beware of the railroad sandwich! A passenger once purchased one and after struggling with it half an hour and losing three front teeth, he threw it out of the car window and knocked down a foundry, the proprietors of which sued the railroad company and recovered damages, the sandwich being offered in evidence with the name of the railroad cast in it.—Adrian Press.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Tecumseh Farmers' Union the question, "Can farmers afford to buy commercial fertilizer to grow crops, at present prices?" was discussed. Well, it certainly does look as though under the gold standard farmers must fertilize their lands in the "old way." As Uncle Cy. Luce once remarked at a Farmers' picnic, "spread your manure on a damp day. It is wanted on earth, not in heaven."—Adrian Press.

Ferdinand Knoblauch, an old bachelor of Riga, concluded he had existed on earth as a "lone man" long enough, and yesterday took unto himself a wife—Miss Minnie Kolts—the ceremony being performed at the residence of Adolph Driefke, in Riga township, by Rev. The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

CHRISTMAS IN TENNESSEE.

A Budget of Interesting Items from the Old Volunteer State.

Ever since my heart was made glad by "A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year," from loved ones in Tennessee, I wanted to send the same greeting to my friends in Michigan. My only apology for their untimely sending is lack of leisure time. You may laugh at the idea of a Southerner wanting more time for surely each day's length would increase two hours could they be induced to get a quicker move on themselves; but a slow motion is one essential to their happiness.

Those familiar with Christmas in the North, I fear would mistake this annual holiday in the South, for either the Fourth or Thanksgiving; it is a combination of the two, being ushered in with hilarity and a grand display of fireworks, like the Fourth, while the universal display in fine dinners and varied festivities, makes it very similar to thanksgiving. The Christmas tide, just past, flowed as freely and ebbed as slowly, while the 'Yule log' blazed as brightly, and the maiden lingered just as shyly and as hopefully neath the misletoe as in my childhood days, those 'good old days,' when we were awakened just at dawn by the loud yell 'Christmas gif' to de white folks." We might have thought we had been swooped down upon by a tribe of Comanches had we not always been familiar with that manner of Christmas greeting, from the faithful slaves, each one expecting and content with some simple present from 'marster and missus." This year I heard the same salutation, coming from only two hired servants and a few colored friends who dropped in towards noon, to be remembered by, at least, a good, square meal.

I gladly noticed one pernicious and universally popular custom in every home in the South, has become obsolete. The flowing bowl of egg-nog, which formerly constituted the most attractive and essential feature of Christmas merriment is now a thing of the past, having been supplanted by the little bow of 'White ribbon' and Maltese cross,' both meaning total abstinence in our homes and for our families. Still much drunkenness is seen, especially among the colored people, who, when remonstrated with, invariably reply 'I can't celebrate without whiskey. It takes two pertaters and er dram to make er nigger er gintleman.' Even mercury seemed to have imbibed the same spirit and got a 'jag' for the day succeeding Christmas it dropped to zero, something very unusual in Tennessee. Now Year came in as clear and bright as a spring day, and passed almost as quickly as its attending resolutions.

Farmers are making an early beginning, already preparing their 'plant beds' and repairing fences. I may at some future time explain how and why 'plant beds' are made, giving some interesting ideas of the culture of tobacco and cotton.

I had remembered my native State as a land that flowed with milk and honey, and hoped upon my return, after an absence of three years, to find the same prosperity, trusting the piteous wail of 'hard times' would remain in Michigan. Alas! in Ohio it was still the same. In Kentucky, Grand old State! once rich in its fine stock and tobacco, I saw indications of worse times. When I reached the dear old 'Volunteer State,' my native Tennessee, I found harder times than Michiganders know. While farmers in the North are uttering their chronic complaint of low price for wheat and cheap wool, the reverberation is caught up by the people this side the Ohio, with the addition of tobacco and wool, and carried on to the Gulf. Neither tobacco nor cotton brings the cost of producing it.

The HERALD comes to me frequently, and I can tell by its freshness and breeziness that winter is still on hand in Michigan, although we have been having days as warm and bright and skies as blue as Michigan knows in April. Wild flowers are bursting into blossom. I have found some dear little violets modest and shy, with petals as bright and blue as the sky, with hearts as yellow and pure as gold filled with perfume as rare as roses can hold. There! I did'nt intend to put that into rhyme, but it just came nolens volens, yet for fear I might be dubbed a 'spring poet' I will close, with a heart full of good wishes for a happy year to all friends.

A CONTROVERTED QUESTION.

Improvement of the River Raisin as a Fishing Ground.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature requiring fish shutes to be built in all dams in the Raisin River and its tributaries.

Having been personally and practically interested in the fish and fishing in this river and the ponds, or reservoirs thereon for about forty years, I have been led to study its conditions and possibilities to some extent.

My conclusions are that fish shutes would be no advantage to its fish interests and are not desirable in it. The mouth of the river and the contiguous portions of Lake Erie are thoroughly gleaned in commercial fishing by the large fishing companies and individual fishermen, with long experience and complete appliances and fixtures, that very few, if any, valuable or game fish can elude them and escape up the stream if it were provided with the shutes to enable them to get over the dams in it.

In early times, when streams were bordered and shaded by bushes and timber, fish from the lake, when there was no contamination of the water by mills or factories refuse to repel them, or other conditions along the stream to frighten them, ascended the stream in spring in considerable numbers, to return again soon to the lake, and the lake fish, or smaller varieties of pan fish, were not very plentiful at other seasons of the year, and in case of late freshets were often carried down out of the stream, not to return until subsequent years.

Fish shutes, like many other things, might work both ways, and as far as the upper waters of the streams are concerned, very many more river fish would go down the stream than lake fish would ever reach them.

Now, the conditions surrounding the streams are greatly changed, each millpond and deep pool is a breeding reservoir for rearing and preserving homebred fish for the use of the people of the state at large. The smaller varieties of pan fishes have increased to vast numbers, while the larger game fishes are by no means wanting, and the continuation of this source of recreation and innocent sport, and an occasional change in the family larder to a toothsome dish of wholesome and nutritious food, is dependent in a large degree on the maintainance of the ponds and dams in tact.

The milling and manufacturing interests dependent on the streams for motive power, are of great value to the prosperity of the country, and at this time are none too prosperous to add to their burdens the heavy outlay necessary for the construction of effective shutes in each dam by the owners individually, and to entail upon them the perpetual drain of keeping in repair, would, in my judgment, be wholly unjust and without any corresponding public advantage and directly opposed to sound public policy.

If such shutes can be rightfully demanded at all, it must be in response to a public necessity, or probable public benefit, and of course should be at public expense.

A TRIP TO DEERFIELD.

The Hustling Village on the Eastern Border of Lenawee.

We gave our Snap Shot Story at Deerfield last week, and while there had an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make many new ones. Deerfield suffers somewhat from the hard times, that is true, but not in so great a degree as many places. Business is fair for this season of the year, and the town seems to be pushing along and keeping well up with her competitors in the race.

Our old friend, Loren VanAntwerp, who formerly resided in Tecumseh, is still conducting a harness store there. He has the whole field to himself, there being no competitor, and is evidently doing well. His shop is in the rear end of the same store which contains a jewelry and watchmaker's outfit in the front. A rather peculiar business combination. Loren frequently visits his mother here in Tecumseh, so he does not seem like a stranger.

L. G. Hemenway is running the saw mill and has a lumber yard in connection therewith. This is a good point for a business of that kind and he seems to be one of the fixtures there.

E. E. Burnham occupies the double store on the south corner, with a public hall overhead. He carries a general stock of dry goods, boots and shoes, and crockery. Mr. Burnham has been in business there for several years and is one of the old stand bys. Erastus Ward is now clerking there.

Leona Smith keeps a stock of general merchandise, occupying the first store on the west side. He is one of the younger business men and is getting a fine start.

B. & V. B. Cannon run a hardware store on the west side, and are evidently prospering. Ben Cannon was supervisor from Deerfield as much as twenty years ago. He and his son are now conducting this business.

Wm. F. Weisinger is one of the younger business men here. He is a hustler and is rapidly forging to the front. He keeps a general stock of groceries, clothing, boots and shoes, hats and caps. He also purchases grain and produce of all kinds for shipment. Mr. Weisinger probably does the heaviest business of any man in Deerfield. He owns a beautiful residence just north of the railroad, which is a model home. We enjoyad his hospitality during our stay in Deerfield.

The Deerfield Times is a new candidate for favor. It is now six months old and is a lively youngster. We had the pleasure of forming Editor Fifield's acquaintance. The paper is well managed and has a very liberal advertising patronage. May the Times continue to flourish.

Crop Report for February.

Cold weather prevailed during the month of January. Snow fell in the early part of the month in sufficient amount to afford good protection to the wheat plant. The average depth of snow in the lower peninsula on the 15th was about eight inches, and at the end of the month there had been no reduction. In reply to the question, "Has wheat during January suffered injury from any cause?" 192 correspondents in the southern counties answer "yes," and 295 "no;" in the central counties, 34 answer "yes," and 143 "no," and in the northern counties, 8 answer "yes," and 90 "no."

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in January, is 1,061,838, and in the six months, August—January, 7,296,941, which is 1,952,971 bushels less than reported markoted in the same six months last year. At twenty elevators and mills from which reports have been received, there was no wheat marketed during the month.

The condition of live stock averages from 93 to 97 per cent, comparison being with stock in good healthy and thrifty condition.

The World's Fair Reproduced.

Did you visit the World's Fair in Chicago, or did you find it impossible to go? Whether you did or not, you can see it reproduced in all its glory in "The Graphic History of the Fair," which is fully described in our "Special Announcement" elsewhere in this issue. We are in a position to offer this grand work at only about half price. Hon. Edmond Bruwaert, Consul-General for France, says he "has perused the work with great interest and pleasure, each page, each picture calling back the memories of the past year in their most vivid form."

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S DOUBLE.

Mr. Cleveland has a double in New York, and many people there think they have seen the president, but are mistaken. The double is J. Lawrence Gardner, of Washington, secretary of the democratic congressional campaign committee. Cleveland and Gardner look so much alike that they are taken for one another even in Washington, where both are such familiar figures. Gardner was the chirman of the arrangements committee at the inauguration last year, and sat beside Cleveland on the platform at the Capitol. The crowd could not tell them apart, and it is still a mooted question in many minds as to which of the two men was really inaugurated president.

SPECIMENS OF OLD SHINPLASTERS.

A 9-penny shinplaster, bearing date of April, 1777, a specimen of probably the oldest United States money in existence, was found between the leaves of an old history a few days ago by J. N. Hooker, of Bartow, Fla. The bill was printed by John Dunlap, of Philadelphia, and has printed on one side the warning, "To counterfeit is death."

Mr. Albert Collins, of Macon, can match this shinplaster and go one better. He has two specimens, both of which were issued in 1776.

One of them is about five inches by two and a half in size, printed in black and red, with a widely engraved border, containing these words: "Thirty Shillings. No. 9965. This bill of thirty shillings proclamation is emitted by a law of the colony of New Jersey, passed in the 14th year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Third. Dated March 25, 1776. Thirty Shillings. Robert Smith, Jno. Johnston, John Smyth." The back side is in plainer style and contains these words, printed crossways of the bill: "Thirty Shillings. 'Tis death to counterfeit. Burlington in New Jersey. Printed by Isaac Collins, 1776." Both printing and the signatures of the officials are perfectly legible.

The other bill is about three by four inches in size and not as well printed, but the engraved border is more elaborate. It contains these words: "No. 16893. One Shilling. This indemned bill shall pass current for one shilling according to an act of general assembly of the counties of Newcastle, Kent and Sussex upon Delaware, passed in the 15th year of the reign of his Majesty George the Third. Dated the first day of January, 1776. Jno. McKinly, R. Manlove. One Shilling." On the reverse side are the words: "One Shilling. To counterfeit is death."

Mrs. Lena Archampaugh, of Adrian, in her official capacity as Deputy Grand Lady Commander of L. O. T. M.'s, inspected the Hive here Tuesday and held a school of instruction.

This evening (Friday) there will be a dance at the town hall. It is gotten up by the young men and no doubt will be a pleasant party. Jackson's orchestra of Adrian will furnish the music.

The different Masonic bodies have appointed committees with instructions to procure new stations and chairs for their use. They will make a great improvement in the looks as well as being useful.

Steve Huntington left Clinton yesterday for Peshtego, Wis., where he will work with his father, who is master mechanic of an important railroad company. Steve will be missed greatly by his large circle of acquaintances.

The remains of Mrs. Charlotte Whedon, who died recently at her daughter's in Coldwater, were brought to Manchester for interment last Thursday. Mrs. Whedon was a sister of Mrs. Sarah Wastell and for a number of years lived where Alonzo Mills now does. Mrs. Wastell and sons John and Wm. D. were present at the burial, and brought home with them as guests, Mrs. Geo. Waite of Coldwater, Mr. and Mrs. Jehiel Clark of Chicago and Mrs. Matie Zimmerman of Wooster, Ohio. Neices of Mrs. Wastell, who remained until Saturday.

Tuesday was the 10th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Will Wood and their friends concluded to celebrate the occasion without their assistance, so laid their plans accordingly. Mr. and Mrs. Wood were invited by Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzgerald to take tea and spend the evening with them, which was accepted. As soon as they had left their home it was invaded by their friends who proceeded to prepare for the evening's festivities. When all was in readiness they were summoned home. Their surprise may be imagined but not described. It was successfully planned and executed.

Mr. Brown of Adrian, arrived in town Tuesday for the purpose of establishing a canning factory, providing a sufficient stock would be taken by our people. It no doubt could be made to pay well and next week we may be able to speak more advisedly regarding the matter.

E. R. Smith and wife, F. D. Lancaster and wife, A. B. VanDeMark and wife, J. B. Wells and wife, G. A. Kies and wife, A. J. Kishpaugh and wife, Laura Clark, Grace Stevens, Nellie Embler, C. H. Fabrique, A. M. Kennedy, W. H. Beehler, Chas. Embler, R. B. and Clarence Mills, Robbie Woodard, George and Will Waterhouse attended the comic opera at Adrian Monday night. Through the efforts of F. D. Lancaster and E. R. Smith a special train was secured to bring them back after the entertainment.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Wm. Wilson's grandmother was 90 years old last Friday.

E. C. Wisner and wife have been sick, but are now on the mend.

Mrs. S. N. Munger drove to Ypsilanti the 3d inst., returning the 5th.

Earl Allen was unable to attend school last week on account of sickness.

G. W. Allen drove to Ypsilanti last week Wednesday, returning Thursday.

Abraham Hunt, who has been very sick with brain trouble, is reported better.

Oliver Mull, who has been laid up with symptoms of grip, is better at last accounts.

Sunday, Irene Allen was no better. Dr. John Tuttle was sent to Ypsilanti Monday to see her.

Mrs. K. J. Whelan is in Ypsilanti, assisting Mrs. G. W. Allen in the care of her daughter, Irene.

Miss Jennie Beckwith, teacher of the Badley school, has been sick and there was vacation there last week.

Aunt Anna Allen was 95 years old Sunday. May there be many returns that will find her as bright and hale as now.

We learn from the Normal News that Arthur Bradley is president of the Normal Athletic Association at Ypsilanti.

Oliver Mull has been skidding logs on the Wilson farm, west of Clinton. Twenty acres of timber thereon is to be laid low. Oh! for a thousand tongues to say, "Woodman, spare that tree!"

Miss Irene Allen is still very sick. She has pneumonia complicated with heart trouble. Jan. 29th her physician, already wished council, and last week she counciled again with Dr. Murdock, a specialist in lung diseases. Although very sick, they thought the chances in her favor.

The names of those chosen for the Normal News oratorical contest, at the Normal, Ypsilanti, are as follows: F. J. Tooze, Bedford, chosen by Olympic club; S. B. Clarke, Union City, Athenian; F. L. Sooy, Adelphic; C. V. Wisner, Franklin, Crescent; Lottie Augustine, Ypsilanti, Senior class; Mabel Smith, Junior class; Martha Warner, faculty; Carrie Barber, Richland, faculty.

The next Lyceum will occur at Wm. Witherell's, Feb. 23. The question which has been chosen for debate is, Resolved, That it would have been better for this country if mechanical power had not been used for transportation." Affirmative, C. L. Wisner, negative, S. H. Munger and others. There will be much music. Look out for a good one.

PENTECOST POINTERS.

Did you get a valentine?

The Library Association meet at the residence of Mr. M. E. Case, on Thursday evening, Feb. 14th.

Sorry to say all the themometers in the country have been indulging in some very low down doings of late.

The Pentecost dramatic club give "Among the Breakers" at Springville Saturday night. The play has proved very popular.

All those who believe in the woodchuck prophecy of cold weather are gleefully rubbing their frosted ears and noses and saying triumphantly, "I told you so."

There was a very interesting meeting at Pentecost hall last Saturday night. Two ladies gave an entertainment, which was greatly enjoyed by all who were present. Ask them about it.

We see by the papers that E. J. Smith is back in the office of the Adrian Press again. "Philander" has always driven a pretty sharp quill, and will probably stir up the faithfull" with his old time vim.

We are glad to note that Mrs. Edwin Cook is very much better, although she is far from well. Mrs. Rexford, who fell and broke her arm near the shoulder, last week, is also doing as well as could be expected.

The Tribune Almanac.

A large volume now numbering over 300 pages, but sold at the same price as when, in the Forties, it printed only 60 pages. The New York Tribune Almanac for 1895 comes to us this week, revised, rearranged, freshened up to date, and enriched by the addition of new features. The book contains an almost unlimited array of statistics on every conceivable subject which concerns the whole people of the United States, with much which interests only the political parties or other large bodies of men or women. The results of the phenomenal elections of 1894 are fully reported. There is no partisanship in the contents of the Tribune Almanac, and every one can accept with confidence its statistics of coinage, circulation, foreign trade, elections, population, pensions, revenues, banking, divorce, marriage, sports, legal holidays, and the hundreds of other things treated of. The facts about prominent Societies in the United States are given more space than usual, and the Constitutional Amendments in New York state are given. The Almanac for 1895 is a most valuable book of reference. It is indexed thoroughly and well. Price, 25 cents a copy.

Mammoth coalers built to take cargoes around Cape Horn to Pacific ports are being built, and one is already afloat. Enterprise cannot afford to wait to long for inter-ocean canals.

Greatest Engineering Enterprise of the Nineteenth Century.

"It is greater than the World's Fair," says Chief Engineer Cooley. And if our readers could visit that, the most wonderful undertaking of the nineteenth century, and behold the herculean efforts that are being put forth to open through mountains of earth and mile of solid ledge, a highway to the seas, they would at once pronounce it the greatest undertaking of the age. The magnitude and importance of this great Inland Waterway is not understood or realized as yet by the reading public. When we contemplate its far reaching results, we are amazed at its greatness. When completed, ships from all nations can majestically sail through our fertile plains, bringing to our Inland Harbor the commerce of the world.

By special arrangement with the Commissioners, Campbell's Illustrated Monthly" the richest Illustrated Journal published, is making an Authentic History of this great undertaking, from its inception. In 1893, giving copper plate Illustrations and full description of the great work from month to month, similar to the manner the same management compiled the Prize History of the World's Fair. Send 25 cents in stamps to J. B. Campbell, 215 Madison St., Chicago, Ill., and a copy of this valuable work will be sent to you.

Three Wants.

"Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys of sense,
Live in three words, health, peace, and competence."

So says the poet. Competence counts for little when one is sick, and peace is disturbed when health is upset, so that the poet rightly places health first. To have good health you must have pure blood. From the blood the system receives all its material of growth and repair. The best blood-purifier is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is world-famed and sold everywhere. It is a soverign remedy for all diseases due to impoverished or impure blood, as consumption, bronchitis, weak lungs, scrofula, old sores, skin diseases, and kindred ailments.

Jerry Simpson is hereby nominated for the presidency of the Chicago Trilby Club.

A friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm and after using it six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. It is a most valuable remedy.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

My son was afflicted with catarrh, I induced him to try Ely's Cream Balm and the disagreeable catarrhal smell all left him. He appears as well as any one.—J. C. Olmstead, Arcola, Ill.

Price of Cream Balm is fifty cents.

Dr. P. B. Hardy has sold his interest in the plating works to his brother, E. D. Hardy, of Andover, N. Y. The new firm, having bought out the works of Cutting & Heesen, at Tecumseh, have removed the plant from here and joined it with the one there. They will do the plating for the Stimpson Scale company, besides general plating. We regret to loose these gentlemen from our midst, but no doubt the change is for their best interest, and therefore we wish them success in their new home.

At the White Pharmacy may be seen a novel lung tester. It was shown us recently by our friend Pulver. It is very ingeniously constructed and is considered an accurate test, as Earl Lenardson can testify, he having tried it Tuesday to his entire satisfaction. We have it from an eye witness that the exhibition of lung power given by him was simply wonderful, and yet he could not send the little bettle to the bottom of the flask, while another whom he was positive had no better lungs than he, could do it without half the effort. It is seldom that a person gives their lungs the exercise Earl did on this occasion. He blew and blew till his eyes stood out like warts on a thumb and his face was the hue of a gobbler's head in spring time, but no use, the bottle would go only so far. Try it again, Earl, you may get on to the combination another time.

The A. P. A. society are at present a little unsettled in their plans. They are drifting, so to speak, from place to place, like the Arabs. They hope to settle permanently in the near future, and think as soon as the newly elected officers are installed and get down to work that suitable committees will be appointed, who will see that proper quarters are secured. We hope as soon as order is restored that our petition for membership may receive favorable consideration at their hands. We have placed our case in the hands of Art Hughes and feel confident our interests will be carefully attended to, as we are informed he is one of the most influential members. It must be highly respectable, for we understand the members carry about with them, in a conspicuous manner, the trade mark of the order. A member was seen wending his way home from Tuesday's session with the two spot of hearts fastened to the rear extremity of his Prince Albert coat, hence we conclude that this must be the badge of the order. We are also informed that many devices are resorted to in raising the wind necessary to sailing along with the foremost, which gives us great pleasure. Being a pencil-pusher we see very little ready cash, but abound in orders. We may be able (like some before us) to procure goods, say eggs at one place on orders, and turn them into cash at another, and thus be able to keep our end up. Certain it is, if we receive a favorable response to our appeal for membership we shall endeavor to be able to ante whenever circumstances demand it. With such officers as those lately elected the A. P. A. is sure to grow rapidly in members and influence.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

This is what we call blizzard weather and right down zero.

Wm. Larkin with his family, visited friends at Clinton Monday night.

Quite a number from here attended the donation at Britton, Tuesday night for Rev. Mudge.

T. H. Temple, with his family, have moved in with his parents, where they will make their home.

Second quarterly meeting service for the present conference year, will be held a week from Sunday morning with the usual services.

The annual donation will be held at the church, Wednesday evening of next week. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come and help make one of the most enjoyable donations ever held.

The snow drifts are the largest in some highways than has been known for several years. In some district the overseers have ordered out help to shovel and break through so travel was possible.

Won't Mr. Bissell please resign and let the Washington correspondents out of a hole.

The Best Republican Newspaper.

The N. Y. Tribune makes a brave showing for the Republicans and continues to advocate their policies with its historic ability and energery of purpose. Any Democrat who wants to know what the Republicans think and latend, and wishes to obtain the information from a paper whose utterances are authorative, can get Republican doctrine, undefiled and fresh from the fire, in the colucs of the N. Y. Tribune. The prospectus of that Republican organ can be found in another part of this issue of our paper. As an agricultural weekly, The Triune is an excellent paper. Its market reports are especially accurate, complete and food, and they commend it to all who want current prices and the state of trade. There are reasons why every family wishds (in addition to the necessary local newspaper, which it must have, whether it takes oteers or not) to enjoy the perusal of the great editorials, foreign ltters, book reviews, and special articles of a newspaper, which is edited for the country at large, and devotes its attention to matters of national and general moment. In matters of national and general moment. In their cioice of general newspapers, this winter our readers will do well to consider The New York Tribune. Its price is low $1 a year, and its columns are crammed with strong, brilliant and entertaining matter It is announced that the paper will continue to print the writings of Roswell G. Horr, of Michigan, on the Tariff, Reciprocity, Coinage and the Currency, and The Tribune has a strong editorial page and manp non-aolitic features of interest, including two pages a week of Agriculture papers on special branches of Farming. The Tribune has undertaken to illustrate the news of the day and has an excellent Art Department. An illustrated Premium List and a sample copy will be sent, free, to any applicant.

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the north-west with wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Go to Virginia; land is cheap, climate perfect all the year round. Ask any one who knows and he will tell you that in the tidewater section one acre of land has produced as high as $2,000.00 in one season. It is worth looking into. Apply to C. H. Boyce, Gen'l. Land and Excursion Agent, Coldwater, Mich., for pamphlet "Facts for Farmers" free. No statements made that are not corroborated by practical farmers who have grown rich on their Virginia farms.

The Febuary North American.

The North American Review for February opens with three timely articles on the currency question, which are bracketed together under the title of "The Financial Muddle." They are written by Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton, Representative William M. Springer, Chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, and Henry W. Cannon, President of the Chase National Bank of New York, and formerly Comptroller of the Currency. This important symposium is followed by a trenchant article on "Literature and the English Book Trade," from the pen of Ouida. A paper on "Politics and the farmer," by the Hon. B. P. Clayton, President of the Farmers' National Congress, next claims our attention. The New Pulpit "forms the subject of a vigorous paper by the Rev. H. R. Haweis, which cannot fail to attract wide attention. The literary feature of the number is furnished by Andrew Lang, who contributes some delightful "Recollections of Robert Louis Stevensan," which possess a unique interest owing no the close friendship existing between the two writers. This is an uausnally stron number throughout.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the gentler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and we will admit that seeing these THUMBS has paid us in the way of saving money by finding in our magazine everything so suitely the literary wants of the whole family.

D. & A. ERASER'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Prices, 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

ALBION COLLEGE NOTES.

With the snow has come a new college paper, and which will last the longer is a matter of conjecture. These spontaneous outbursts of journalism seem to be a necessary feature of college life. They do, however, serve one good purpose—they indicate to the college world the mental condition of those students under whose names they appear. Thus the appearance of a new paper is usually indicative of the fact that certain gentlemen, having passed that embryonic stage of college existence, the freshman year, have taken on by accretion, during the year, a very thick layer of erudition, and a very much thicker layer of cuttle (?) about the region of the head. They feel the fires of literary genius burning within them, and with praiseworthy conscientiousness feel compelled to obey the scriptural injunction "not to hide their light under a bushel." Their versatility is remarkable. While they show ability in discussing great questions, their forte evidently lies in the writing of college poetry. It reads as if it were written by the yard and clipped off as required. It is always the same, and it is from this fact and through the efforts of these literary lights that the expression, "college poetry" has become in the minds of many people synonymous with everything that is euphuistic, indelicate and nonsensical. Nor is the impression false, when such as the following is a good sample of the product of the brains or rather of the rudimentary cerebral ganglia of these "benefactors of the college":

Eden was a splendid place,
Where pleasures all were free.
And man could sit eternally,
With an angel on his knee.

The college now takes Eden's place,
And makes our lives a dream;
For the co-ed takes the angel's place,
And bliss reigns on supreme.

It seems strange that with college life—that which really should and does represent higher mental development: evolution in the true sense of the word: improvement and growth of every element in one that is noble and manly: that with this the public should have come to associate intuitively laxity of morals, prevalence of foolish customs, etc. Surely there have been grounds for this wide spread public opinion, but as surely those customs—hazing, class broils, etc., which have caused these impressions are disappearing. One by one the larger institutions are finding it necessary for their welfare as institutions, to take action along these lines and slowly but surely the people are changing their opinions that the most noticeable traits of a typical college character are those two most incongruous elements—wisdom and foolishness.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$30 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Weeeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand,	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

Criticisms, Just and Unjust.

Kindly criticism is not a bad thing either for individuals or a cause, and sometimes even uncharitable fault finding does good by way of stirring up those who are disposed to do their duty to more alertness and greater watchfulness to avoid as far as possible all occasion for criticism.

From this point of view some criticisms heard recently as to the weak points of the W. C. T. U. may prove of practical value to the work, because suggestive to the workers.

Some Christians justify their indifference to W. C. T. U. work by saying that it is outside of the church, and that a Christian can do the same work better in the church than out; that in trying to convert the people to Christianity they include temperance and everything else desireable. All of which may be true provided the work is really done in the church. Our observation thus far goes to prove the above criticism merely one way some people have of shirking all responsibility for the existence and steady increase of intemperance, that the demand was created for an organization of those who had consciences on this question, which organization is composed of Christian women from all the churches, and of those who are most active in church as well as temperance work.

Outsiders indulge in considerable ridicule at the expense of the Woman's Christian Union on account of the tendency among the members to praise each other over-much, especially to laud the leader. In turn the leaders compliment the rank and file until 'The Mutual Admiration Society' is a common appellation, not wholly uninvited by this great reform organization.

One criticism several times heard of late has been that the size of the temperance army was no indication of its efficiency. 'Why don't you do something?' and, 'What are you doing, anyway.' It is unfortunate for the reputation of the W. C. T. U. that the world in general does not seem capable of appreciating the really vast amount of educational and preventive work which has been done by that organization, and which would have been immeasurably greater had they made a freer distribution of temperance literature. We believe the women generally admit this and lament the high price of temperance papers, documents, leaflets, etc., which makes it impossible to circulate them freely. If these could be procured at a moderate rate per 1,000 we believe public sentiment would show corresponding advance in the direction of temperance reform. As it is now, the object lesson of one man cured of the drink habit counts for more in public favor than long and patient preventive effort among youth.

Some claim that too rosy a picture has been painted of the strength and influence of the W. C. T. U. and as a matter of fact the organization has not accomplished all that could reasonably be expected of more than 200,000 women well organized and pledged to a certain issue. We have learned to demand a great deal of the sex which has the quicker perceptions of right and wrong.

But W. C. T. U. women everywhere can convince those in their particular locality that they possess influence if they keep their town officers stirred up to do their duty in enforcing the laws. Bombard them with petitions both before and after election, giving them no rest as long as they favor license of the liquor traffic, and the community will soon discover that you are possessed of a moving power.

Pertinent Facts.

There is talk along the temperance lines on 'Do something,' and 'Why don't you do something?' It is a fact that can't be gainsayed that temperance people are not making the sacrifices to the cause that they should; they are giving dimes where they ought to and could give dollars.

We mean you, reader. Figure up what you have given the last year and see if you have really sacrificed anything in this direction. Perhaps a little time and a good deal of useless talk.

How many extra papers have you subscribed for? How many documents and leaflets have you distributed?

Have you helped save a single drunkard? We know a doctor who single handed and without pay has saved more than 1,000 men.

Not infrequently one earnest self-sacrificing soul will accomplish more than an entire community. Will you not do something; reform one man, save one boy or stir up one church?

DEATH OF HARVEY B. ROWLSON.

One of Michigan's Veteran Editors Joins the Silent Majority.

Hon. H. B. Rowlson, of Hillsdale, died at Mobile, Ala., on the 8th inst. Mr. Rowlson was one of the best known men in southern Michigan, and one of the oldest newspaper men in the state.

He was born in Duanesburg, Schenectady county, N. Y., July 15, 1825. He spent his boyhood at Woodstock, Lenawee county, and in 1843 entered the office of the Adrian News, in Adrian. In 1846 he started the Hillsdale Standard, and has been its chief owner and editor since.

It was his hope to live to publish the paper fifty years. Mr. Rowlson has been one of the busy men of Hillsdale. He was county treasurer eight years and member of the state legislature two years. In 1869 he was appointed collector of internal revenue by President Grant, which position he held for twelve years. In 1886 he was appointed a member of the board of control of the state reform school at Lansing, holding the same till the change of administration. In June of 1893 he was reappointed on the board and was made its chairman. For over fifty years he was a resident of Hillsdale, and was one of the oldest editors in continuous service in the state.

He has been in poor health for some time past, and for a year or more was not active in business. Recently his health improved, and it was thought that with a winter's rest in the south he would recover his full health and strength. He was one of the public spirited men of the city, and every project that had for its purpose the advancement of the material interests of Hillsdale, had his hearty co-operation and support. In his death Hillsdale loses another pioneer who saw it grow from a wilderness to its present fair proportions and has helped to make it what it is. His body was brought to Hillsdale for interment.

"No," he said with resolution, "I am not going to compose my own valentine next month." "Why not?" "I did that once. The girl thought it was a comic and jilted me."

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Village of Tecumseh, Mich.
Council Room, February 4, 1895.

Present the entire council.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The Marshal's report, in writing, presented, showing that since Jan., 1st, 1895, 132 tramps had been lodged in the village lock-up; and 10 provided with meals during snow storm of Jan. 20 and 21st, at cost of $2.10, also stating that complaints had been made of residents not cleaning snow from sidewalks. Reports accepted and ordered placed on file.

Sexton's report for January presented, showing two adult and two infant interments, three lots sold and $12.00 collected as interment fees. Report accepted and ordered filed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The Recorder, as chairman of committee appointed at last meeting, to ascertain cost of electric lighting plant for village, asked to be allowed to defer report until later in the session. Granted.

NEW BUSINESS.

On motion, supported, the following committee was appointed to act as Board of Election Commissioners and Board of Registration, and to make necessary arrangements for holding annual corporation election: The Recorder, trustees Hall and Wright.

The following bills were presented and refered to the Finance committee: C. F. Field, printing, $5.00; Telephone and Telegraph Construction Company, $7.50; H. W. Stevens, $10.50; Tecumseh Electric Co., light for January, $156.40; A. Hyde, $13.00; C. A. Wright, purchasing agent, supplies, $98.34; A. James, insurance, $37.50, C., J. & M. Ry. Freight, $43.56; Temple, McClure & Co., lumber, $9.77; H. W. Conkling, labor, $3.90.

Finance committee reported favorably on all above bills, Recorder was instructed to draw his orders for said several amounts.

Moved and supported that President appoint a committee of three to solicit propositions, to be presented to council, for furnishing the village with from 33 to 40 arc electric lights for a term not to exceed five years, and that said committee make necessary advertisements in the electrical papers so as to get the same before the bidders. Motion carried.

The President thereupon appointed as such committee the Recorder, Trustees Satterthwaite and Hall.

Chairman of committee appointed at last meeting to investigate cost of electric lighting plant asked to be given until next meeting to report. Granted.

Council then adjourned.

W. J. INGERSOLL, Recorder.

Special session, called by President. Held at Recorder's office, Feb. 6th, 1895.

Present, The President, Recorder, trustees Hall, Satterthwaite, Wright.

The following resolution was introduced:

Be it resolved, by the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, that at the annual corporation election, to be held in said village upon the first Monday in March, 1895, there shall be one polling place only and that all electors of said village shall vote at such place; that said polling place shall be the Council building in said village.

All resolutions heretofore passed and adopted dividing said village into two voting precincts and all resolutions contrary hereto are hereby superseded.

This resolution shall take immediate effect.

On motion, supported, said resolution was accepted and adopted.

The Council then appointed as the Board of Election Inspectors for the annual corporation election the following: Trustees, Wright, Smith, Geo. W. Frasier. H. C. Conkling, S. P. Hosmer. Gate keepers, E. Ames and W. S. Morse.

Council then adjourned.

W. J. INGERSOLL, Village Recorder.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Walter F. Stimpson is back again, has changed his plans and will not go to Chicago at present.

Charlie Williamson and Alfred Wilson came over from Ypsilanti Saturday for a little visit. They returned Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCann left Tuesday for Ingham county, where they will visit friends for a couple of weeks.

Chas. H. Hopkins, after a nice visit with his daughter, Mrs. H. E. Stout, returned to his home in Battle Creek, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Warnes and their son and wife, of Adrian, attended the funeral of Miss Mary McCaughn Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Geo. Everett has returned from her visit at Coldwater, and Joe, her son, is back from the south, where he has been some time.

Mr. John Warnes and family wish to publicly express their thanks for the sympathy and aid rendered them by the friends of Mary McCaughn.

G. S. Chambers, who has been having a siege with rheumatism for the past two weeks, is improving. He spent Sunday with his wife at Battle Creek.

P. S. McKinnon left Tuesday morning for Cleveland, Ohio, to attend a brick maker's convention in session there, and expects to return to-morrow.

Mrs. Thomas Wyrill and her committee will serve supper in the M. E. church parlors Wednesday, Feb. 20, from 5:30 to 6:30 o'clock. All are invited.

Rev. E. C. Andrus went to Grand Rapids Monday for a visit with his mother and other friends. He was called back to attend the funeral of Mrs. A. A. Wood, formerly Polly Eddy.

Because of the non-arrival of Jos. Smith, to run the stereopticon, the illustrated lecture at the Presbyterian church was postponed from last Sabbath until next Sabbath evening.

Miss Maggie Glascow was 21 years old Monday. In the evening a large company of her friends walked in, to her great surprise, and the evening was appropriately and profitably spent.

James Riley concluded that he preferred living in Tecumseh rather than the county seat, and so severed his business relations there and has returned to us. We are glad to have Jim with us again.

Saturday evening there was a special of the Blue Lodge at the Temple for work in the 1st degree, after which the chapter held a special for work in the Mark Masters degree. Both were pleasant sessions.

Levi Hayden came down from Grand Rapids Friday and remained with his family over Sunday. He likes the second city in the state very much and reports a satisfactory business. He returned Monday night.

Chas. Reed, foreman of the HERALD, took a run over to Ypsilanti Saturday, returning Monday. While in Manchester, Saturday and Monday, he was entertained by Editor Blosser, who understands the art thoroughly.

There will be a pioneer social at the home of J. L. Richards, of Raisin, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 19. A fine program will be given by the pioneers of the town and cakes and oranges will be served by the young folks.

Many persons have the impression that $140.00 is the price of that house and large lot for sale by E. Hause, but the price is $440.00, and as one more week remains before the expiration of this offer, we advise anyone wanting a place for one half the real value, now is your time.

The young people of the Epworth League have secured J. B. Coller and his celebrated talking machine, (the perfected Graphophone) to give a concert Monday evening, Feb. 25th, in the parlors of the church. The concert consists of 20 selections from the best bands, singers and elocutionists. Admission, 10 cents.

Harry Lee returned home the last of the week from Virginia. He shipped a horse home in care of a southern darkey and expected to find them here when he arrived, but they were not here and he began telegraphing. The horse was found to be at Toledo. Monday he ran down there. He found the horse all right and the darkey's clothes on, but no gentleman of color was to be found, so Harry came up with the horse Monday night.

Lon Haight and Charlie Bidwell Sundayed with their people here.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet during February with Mrs. J. P. Varner.

Missionary exercises will be held at the Friend's church Sabbath evening at 7 p. m. All welcome.

In the administration of five estates in the probate court on last Monday, the bonds required amounted to $140,000.

St. Valentine's day was duly observed here yesterday and the postoffice officials were kept hustling in consequence.

The weather prophets tell us that next week will be the worst one of the season. A storm is due about the 19th which will continue until the 23d.

Thursday, Jan. 31st, the W. C. T. U. held a memorial service at 3 o'clock, p. m. in the lecture room of the M. E. church, for the late Mary T. Lathrap.

Special meeting F. and A. M. to-night for work. The "Fellowships" are requested to be present. Also special to-morrow, Saturday night, for 3rd. degree work.

Miss Monaghan and her sister, Mrs. Sherwood, came down from Marshall yesterday to attend Mrs. Wm. A. Wood's funeral. While here they will remain a day or two to visit friends.

John W. Bowen died this morning at his residence, 37 Butler street, Adrian. He was a brother-in-law of J. W. Wightman and Mrs. Wightman went down this afternoon to attend the funeral.

Remember next Thursday Eve. the Eastern Star have a great spread at the Temple in honor of their guests, Manchester and Clinton Chapters. We can safely say it will eclipse any former effort.

Subjects at the Universalist church Sunday: A. M.—Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love. P. M.—Suicide and life. Sunday school at 12 m. Young peoples' meeting at 6 p. m., topic "Thy Kingdom Come," St. Matt. 6:10. Parliamentary law class to-morrow evening 7:30, at the rooms of the Pastor. Rooms 2 and 4, The Patterson.

Mrs. Ella Hodges and baby left Saturday morning for Madison, Wisconsin, to join her husband. They will make that city their home for the present. She had quite a serious time going; instead of reaching Chicago at 2:30 p. m. as expected she did not reach there until 8:30. The first train did not run, and she was obliged to take the accommodation. She was met at Chicago by her husband and then was relieved of many cares incident to traveling with a baby. My! how hungry it makes people to travel.

It's a strange fact that more books are drawn from the public library during the month of February than any other one month in the year. This has been so every year since the library was started. Last Saturday 400 books were issued, the greatest number yet issued in a single day of the history of the Adrian library. This comes very near the average for every day in the year in cities like Jackson and Grand Rapids, which is 500. Usually the busiest day comes on the Saturday nearest February 22d.—Evening Telegram.

About twenty young people formed a sleighride party which started for Franklin last evening, with the utmost faith in Lenawee's roads. After three hours of persistent effort, over bare ground, varied with numerous fences high snowdrifts, they reached the hospital home of Benjamin Lamkin, congratulating themselves over less than three or four tip-overs, and the good fortune of having to walk only a portion of the way. Supper, and several hours of jollity preceded the return trip, which thanks to the advice and assistance of friends, was performed under more favorable circumstances. The city was reached about 5 o'clock—The Times.

The Maud Powell Concert Company gave a very choice program on Tuesday evening. The troupe consists of a strong quartette with Mrs. Eaton as soloist. Every number on the program was favored with an encore and in the sixth they were called back four times. Mrs. Eaton's singing was very fine. She has a sweet, clear voice, that has been finely cultivated. Wednesday afternoon an impromptu gathering of Masons' wives, daughters and guests was held at the Temple, where the troupe gave a fine recital, both of classical music and old familiar airs. This troupe will be held in pleasant remembrance by our citizens, who will gladly welcome them again.

A telegram received here on Tuesday announced the death of Mrs. Wm. A. Wood, at her home in Uhrichville, Ohio. She had been dangerously ill for several days with rheumatic fever, but was apparently improving, when she suddenly grew worse and passed away. The remains arrived here Wednesday evening in charge of the grief stricken husband, and the funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Judge Stacy. Only last fall Mrs. Wood made an extended visit at her old home, and she was a perfect picture of health at that time. A large gathering of her old friends assembled to witness the funeral obsequies. A fitting obituary will appear hereafter.

Remember "Charley's Aunt" will be here Feb. 22d.

To Mr. and Mrs. John McIntyre a son was born Monday.

A treat in store for you Feb. 22d at Sutton's opera house.

The Tecumseh Tel. Co. company yesterday contracted with a committee from Clinton to make stations similar to those in the Tecumseh for Masonic use. The company are turning out elegant specimens of work in all branches.

Mr. Dixon has men force, mental resource, and great power upon the responsive character of his brain. It does not fool him. It is evidently a new power—a new voice and not an echo. He thinks. He is not afraid. He dares, Sam Jones-like, to call a spade a spade, or to apply the cautery, and castigation when need.

Last evening might have been the banner evening for social entertainment. In addition to those given elsewhere in this issue there was a Valentine social given by the Baptist young people at Jonas Waldron's; a social meeting of the Orient where were introduced into the mysteries of that popular society, besides many other gatherings.

The members of the Macon Ridgeway division of the Commercial Telegraph who withdrew from the latter company, held a meeting at Grange Hall, Thursday, Feb. 6th, and organized as the Union Telegraph Company. The following officers were elected:

President—J. T. Boyce.
Vice Pres.—J. F. Gilmore.
Secretary—M. S. Hatch.
Treasurer and Manager—Alex. Eaglick.
Directors—D. T. Hall, J. Gilmore, Alex. Eaglick (3 years), W. Wood, O. E. Fulkerson, Granville Myers, J. T. Boyce, M. S. Hatch, Charrott (1 year.)

The Junior Auxiliary of Sisters' Church gave a unique and delightful entertainment at the Armory Wednesday evening. The program consisted of music by home talent, assisted by Miss Laura Clark, of Clinton. Prof. Strubler also gave some fine specimens of legerdemain. The exercises closed with a fine selection from the Tecumseh Concert Orchestra. Prof. Strubler followed with twenty minutes of clever sleight of hand. A piano solo by Miss Laura Clark, a violin solection by several of Miss Anderson's pupils, and a beautiful vocal solo by Miss Agnes Woodworth followed. Then Prof. Strubler gave a second installment of tricks. The Tecumseh orchestra closed the program. The young ladies made a mistake in charging an admission fee, for the entertainment was well worth double the amount. Some of the company indulged in a social dance at the close, but this was wholly a private affair, with which the auxiliary had nothing to do.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Slayton, on Pearl street, presented a beautiful picture last evening, their occasion being a Valentine party, given by Mrs. Slayton, assisted by Mrs. Geo. W. Knapp, Mrs. L. M. Kellogg and Miss Jennie Root. The arrangements were very complete. The hostess and assistants were untiring in their attentions. A fine orchestra of five pieces stationed in the dining room, discoursed delightful music, and the invited guests, numbering sixty, enjoyed themselves every moment of the time. In archery Mrs. Fred Rosecrans bore off the prize, being the only one to pierce the heart within a heart with the arrow, and received a pretty Valentine. Six little girls gave Trilby in a manner that called forth great applause. Before refreshments were served the little girls distributed among the ladies valentines numbered and to gents were given hearts in colors hand decorated and numbered. There was great sport in trying to find your affinity, and it took some time before all had found their proper companions. The ladies having charge are to be congratulated on the charming entertainment given the guests.

For some time past our entire community have been on the qui vive over a grand fox hunt, for which great preparations had been going on. Not long since John J. Freeman and Jim Eccles, at great expense, procured some imported fox hounds, thoroughly trained for the chase, and since then the boys have been completing their arrangements. A survey of the county was taken, and so complete was it that John had every fox located within a radius, extending miles each way. This hunt was intended to eclipse the famous hunts of English Lords, and so it did as you will see. All being in readiness, the boys started out bright and early yesterday morning. They were armed in the most approved manner; their dogs baying and eager for the chase. Their scout going before to see that the foxes were in proper position for sacrifice, and all nature seemed to smile favorably. They started out with expectations bright for the home of the nearest fox; reaching there they found Mr. Fox away from home, so they left their engraved calling cards and proceeded on from house to house, but to their great surprise they found no foxes at home, and the boys hopes began to drop. They held a consultation and finally decided that there must be a general gathering of foxes somewhere to celebrate St. Valentine's day, and hope revived as they, in fancy, surrounded them in the midst of their revelry. They then got out their survey and looked the ground carefully over to see where the festivities would be most likely to be held. They journeyed on and on, but not even a track did they discover, and as the sun was sinking in the west turned their steps homeward without so much as a Jack rabbit as a trophy, and Percy Fitzsimmons says he overtook them south-east of town. Both men and dogs were so exhausted they could hardly navigate. Thus endeth the first great fox hunt of the season. Later—Last night one of Freeman's and Eccles' fox hounds was found roaming the streets aimlessly at an unseemly hour. Some think he was meditating self-destruction over the result of the hunt; others that he was bound to have a fox anyway and thus redeem his reputation.

Last evening the whist club were entertained at Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Blachford's. The hour set was 7:30. When all were present they were informed that before the festivities began there would be a wedding. They repaired to the church and at 8 o'clock Mr. Eugene Moshier, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Miss Jennie England, who has been the guest of the Blachford's for some weeks, was by Rev. W. R. Blachford joined in matrimony. After which followed progressive whist and refreshments. It was a pretty wedding and all enjoyed a delightful evening.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

MANY CANDIDATES.

Twelve Republicans Want to Be Supreme Court Justice.

DETROIT, Feb. 11.—The republicans of the state are evincing considerable interest already in the convention which meets in this city February 21 to nominate one candidate for the supreme bench and two candidates for regents of the state university. For the first place there is full field, no less than twelve gentlemen in different sections of the state having announced they are willing to make the run. Among the leading candidates are Judge P. T. Van Zile, of this city; Judge J. R. Moore, Lapeer; Judge E. D. Kinne, Washtenaw; ex-Justice Cahill, Ingham; Judge Hatch and Judge Shepard, of Bay, and Judge Victor Lane, of Lenawee.

As candidates for regents no names yet have been mentioned prominently, and it is likely both Butterfield and Hebard, the retiring officers, will be renominated if they care to accept again. The women of the state are anxious to have the coming vacancy on the board of university regents filled by one of their own sex. The example of the women in Illinois and Indiana has become infectious, and it is probable that if the republican and democratic state conventions to be held soon do not place in nomination a woman the Equal Suffrage association of the state will make an independent nomination. The Women's Christian Temperence union has promised to support the association in any such action, and other women's organizations are ready to push the movement along. Among the women who have been mentioned for the position are Mrs. Jennie Voorhies, of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Lillian Hollister, of this city, the grand commander of the Maccabees, and Mrs. A. S. Benjamin, of Portland, Mich., national lecturer of the W. C. T. U.

A WATER FAMINE.

CRYSTAL FALLS, Feb. 12.—This city is experiencing a water famine from a peculiar cause and which may continue until summer. The city's water supply comes from a reservoir and is pumped through a system of mains. The main pipe leads from the city up a hill 120 feet high and into a valley beyond where is located the reservoir. A few nights ago the main began to empty, and thinking a fire had broken out the engineer of the pumphouse started both pumping engins at their full capacity. The engineer exerted himself and crowded the pumps through the night, and not until morning did he discover what he had accomplished. The main had burst in the city, and in attempting to keep the pipe filled he had flooded cellars and inundated streets with a vast volume of water. The temperature was far below zero and the water froze in great masses in streets, alleys and other places flooded. In working their pumps to the fullest capacity the engineer had drained the reservoir, and the water from the brook empties in so slowly that the intense cold causes it to freeze immediately, and the reservoir itself has become a lake of solid ice. Expert engineers who have figured on the case calculate that it will take until July 4 to thaw out the pond if it continues to freeze ten days longer.

DR. POPE'S MURDER.

William Brusseau Makes a Full Confession of the Plot at Detroit.

DETROIT, Feb. 9.—William Brusseau, who has since last Saturday told two stories of the murder of Dr. H. E. Pope in his home here, has made a clean breast of the whole affair to the police. This last confession coincides in every particular with the facts the police have unearthed. According to Brusseau's latest story the murder was a carefully planned affair in which Mrs. Pope, the doctor's wife, was the moving spirit, and $14,000 the object. For two weeks before the fatal day the two planned the crime in every particular. Saturday night Mrs. Pope made her husband sleep in a chair at her bedside. Toward morning she quietly called Brusseau and the latter secured the hatchet and struck the doctor in the head. Then in obedience to the woman's command he rained a half dozen more blows on their victim's skull. Mrs. Pope's 9-year-old daughter, who slept at her side during the murder, was then awakened and the three carefully rehearsed the story they were to tell the police.

SILVER MEN CONFER.

Delegates Pledge Themselves to Support a Free Coinage Congressman.

BATTLE CREEK Feb. 13.—The conference of silver men of the Third congressional district, which was held here Tuesday, was largely attended and more enthusiastic than harmonious. Resolutions were unanimously adopted demanding the free coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of sixteen to one; that all paper money be issued only by the government; a full legal tender founded on taxes and the wealth of the country, and that no more gold bonds be issued in times of peace. Also that the best interests of the district demanded the election of a representative who advocates these principles, and that the delegates pledge their united support to such a one, regardless of previous party affiliations. A committee was appointed to call a convention to place in the field a candidate for congress.

Trombly Declared Insane.

BAY CITY, Feb. 12.—The five doctors appointed to examine Daniel J. Trombly, who killed his wife and baby New Year's day, have filed a report in the circuit court that he is insane. Trombly will be sent to Ionia insane asylum Wednesday.

Trial of Misener Begun.

COLDWATER, Feb. 12.—The trial of A. Misener, charged with the murder of James Robinson in this city last, commenced in the circuit court Monday. The afternoon was consumed in impaneling a jury.

JUDGE WALKER DEAD.

Close of the Career of a Brilliant Lawyer and Author.

DETROIT, Feb. 12.—Judge Charles I. Walker, who died at Flint Monday morning, was one of the most learned and distinguished men of Detroit, and was for many years one of the brightest ornaments of the bar. He was born at Butternuts, Otsego City, N. Y., April 6, 1814. In 1836 he came to Michigan, settling at Grand Rapids. For two years he was editor and proprietor of the Grand Rapids Times. In 1840 he was elected to the state legislature. He settled in Detroit in 1851, becoming a partner of E. C. Walker, his brother. Judge Walker had been a great student of history, belonging to many societies and contributing much to the literature of the day. "Life of Cadillac," "Michigan from 1796 to 1805," "The Civil Administration of Gen. Hull," "The Northwest Territory During the Revolution" and other contributions attracted wide and favorable attention. MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 8.—In the senate the bill empowering the governor to appoint a health board for Detroit came up for third reading, when the roll call showed but sixteen votes for it, one less than was necessary to pass it, and the vote was reconsidered and the bill tabled, to be taken up when the absentees were present. Bills were introduced for incorporation of labor and trades unions; requiring lobbyists to register their names with the sergeant-at-arms, with the measures upon which they are engaged, and subsequently to file an itemized account of expenses incurred; appropriating $115,000 for the mining school at Houghton.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 9.—In the senate Friday the bill authorizing the governor to appoint a health board for Detroit was passed. Bills were passed requiring that one-half the members of the state board of agriculture be graduates of the agricultural colleges; for the incorporation of clubs of American wheelmen and providing a jury commission for Bay county. Bills were introduced as follows: Authorizing the making of contracts to care for United States prisoners, making the office of state railway commissioner elective instead of appointive; authorizing the father of children under guardianship to demand an accounting from the guardian; prohibiting railroad companies in Michigan from charging an excess of one cent per ton for each mile for hauling iron ore; appropriating $112,000 for the industrial school for boys, and $35,000 for an electric light plant for the state capitol building; dividing the state into sixty-four legislative districts, instead of 100 as now; prohibiting theaters, opera houses and dance halls from opening on Sunday.

LANSING, Mich., Feb 12.—One of the most important bills thus far introduced in the legislature was presented Monday. It is the production of the state municipal commission, which has been at work for the last six months, and provides for a charter for third-class cities or those having a population of not less than 10,000 nor more than 50,000. If it becomes a law fifteen cities with an aggregate population of 300,000 will be incorporated under it. The elective officers provided for are the mayor, clerk, treasurer, one assessor, two justices of the peace and one police justice, in addition to two aldermen and one constable. All the city boards are to be composed of five members and are to be strictly nonpartisan.

Bills were introduced in the legislature Monday as follows: For a state board of plumbers, to examine and license plumbers; for compulsory instruction in vocal music in the schools in incorporated cities and teachers' institutes; reincorporating the city of New Haven, and for the incorporation of Traverse City. Among the important bills noticed were: For the abolishment of the office of state dairy and food commissioner; providing one brakeman for every two cars on passenger trains; repealing the law under which parties receiving injuries from defective sidewalks may bring suits against municipalities for damages; abolishing the present system of canvassing votes by substituting a county board consisting of the prosecuting attorney, county clerk, judge of probate and the chairman of each county committee of any party polling 15 per cent. of the total vote at the last preceding state election.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 13.—In the senate Tuesday a resolution was introduced and tabled by a vote of 22 to 10 urging members of congress to use their best effort to restore silver to its proper position in the United States as a money metal. Bills were introduced for the establishment of a permanent state weather service, and providing a graduated tax upon inheritances, the proceeds to be for the benefit of the primary school fund. Bills were passed appropriating $20,000 to mark the position of Michigan troops at the battles of Chattanooga and Chickamauga; providing for vestibules for the protection of motormen on electric street railways after January 1, 1896; providing a jury commission for the upper peninsula, and authorizing judges of probate to determine when insane persons have been restored to soundness of mind.

House.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 8.—In the house a favorable report was made on the bill repealing the mortgage tax feature of the general tax law. Bills were introduced providing for the death penalty for murder; providing for a uniform liquor tax of $100, and providing that saloons be permitted to remain open on the Fourth of July, New Year's day, Washington's birthday and Labor day. Bills were noticed to prohibit corporations from requiring any of their employes to take out life insurance in any particular company; providing for the closing of theaters and similar places of amusement on Sunday; making it unlawful to mesmerize or hypnotize a person without his consent; requiring the regents of the university to cover into the state treasury all money held by them in trust and empowering the regents to take and hold in perpetual trust land and other property.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 9.—In the house Friday a bill was introduced to constitute eight hours a legal day's work. Also one providing that United States prisoners confined in the Michigan prisons should be returned to the states from whence they came at the expiration of their sentences.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 12.—In the house bills were introduced fixing the rental for telephones in cities of not more than 50,000 population at $1.50 per month, and at $2 when in excess of that number; repealing the law authorizing the commencement of suits against cities for injuries received by reason of defective sidewalks, to abolish the office of food and dairy commissioner, giving women the right to vote, requiring express companies to pay license fees to towns in which they have offices, exempting old soldiers from jury duty; requiring the placing of a United States flag on every schoolroom; discharging indebtedness of $100,000 held by the state against the State Agricultural society and prohibiting conspiracy by employes to prevent employment of other persons.

A WIFE'S TRIBUTE.

Standing at the Head of His Coffin She Eulogizes Her Dead Husband.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Isaac M. Turner delivered a eulogy to the memory of her husband at his funeral Sunday. The formal services had been conducted by Rev. Allen F. Gould, of Chicago, and Rev. Dr. Campbell Fair, and the undertaker was about to close the coffin, when Mrs. Turner entered the room unattended, and, taking a position at the head of the coffin, spoke for half an hour of the virtues of the dead as eloquently and touchingly as has ever been heard in this city, and so much so that many around her were in tears.

BRADLEY IS ACQUITTED.

Jury Condones a False Report Made to Save His Bank.

LANSING, Feb. 10.—There is rejoicing in this city over the acquittal of Nelson Bradley, cashier of the defunct Central Michigan savings bank, who was charged with having make a false entry in a report of the bank's condition shortly prior to its failure in the spring of 1894. The jury was charged by Judge Person at 11 o'clock Saturday, and at 5 o'clock returned a verdict of not guilty.

Queer Thing

Why everybody doesn't use Pearline. Here and there, though, there's a woman who's been left behind. The world has moved along without her. What she needs to know is this—that in washing clothes and cleaning house, Pearline will save half her work, half the time, and do away with the rub, rub, rub, that wears things out—that it costs no more than common soap, and does no more harm.

And if she wants to know it, there are millions of women who can tell her.

HIS LAST ITEM

I met him on the Blackfriars bridge. It was past midnight, and I was hurrying along and did not notice him until he spoke.

"Will you leave this at The Planet office for me?"

This was a flat envelope which he held out to me, with The Planet, Planet square, written on it, and in one corner the familiar "News—Immediate." I hesitated a moment and said, "Why, certainly," and took it from him.

"Thank you," he said, "it's the last favor I shall ask any one."

The sentence ended in a half sob. I turned and looked at the man more closely. A very seedy fellow in a very seedy suit, with an odor of stale tobacco hanging about him, is not ordinarily an interesting personage, but my professional instinct was aroused.

Here, perhaps, was material for a story. It might be worked up into a thrilling tale. Clearly it was my duty to inquire modestly into his situation and assist him with my advice.

"Did you say The Asteroid office?" said I.

I pride myself on this opening. When the conversation has stopped and you wish to continue it, but can think of nothing that does not seem silly or impertinent, it is always in order to pretend you have mistaken your companion's meaning. In this case it succeeded even better than usual.

"No; The Planet, The Planet. They must have it first. I would not have The Asteroid get it, a good item like that, and exclusive too."

This was encouraging. He was a newspaper man, that was plain enough, but why didn't he take his copy to the office himself, instead of loafing here on the bridge?

The plot was thickening. It would probably work up best for The Weekly. They liked something sensational.

"So you are in the fourth estate? I used to do a little in that way myself."

I said this because I remember reading in Emerson or the Bible or somewhere that it creates a subtle sort of Freemasonry between persons when they find that they have worked at the same craft. In my youth I used to fold papers in a country town.

"Yes, I was a reporter, but that is my last item. Stop!" he exclaimed suddenly. "You are not a reporter now, are you?"

"No; I have not been a reporter for some time," I replied, with a perfect candor.

"Then I can trust you with this, and since you have consented to do me a favor I will tell you what you are about to ask, the substance of the item.

"It is an account of a man who committed suicide by jumping from the Blackfriars bridge. It is a perfect piece of news, giving the man's name, correctly spelled, his residence, names of relatives, motives for the rash act and all."

"When did it take place?"

"It hasn't taken place at all yet. It will take place at 12:15 tonight."

"But, but"— I stammered.

"How do I know about it?" he broke in. "Because I'm the man. Do you understand now? I'm going to kill myself tonight. I've no friend in the world but my paper, and I'm going to do it the only good turn in my power by giving it a correct and exclusive piece of news."

The man was surely crazy, but the story was coming on finely. I must humor him.

"Good," said I. "It's a capital idea!" I thought of applying my maxim and telling him that I had committed suicide myself in my youth, but I reflected that in his excited state he might not believe me. His story I must have at any cost.

"Come," I went on. "Come with me to my rooms just across the bridge and have something to eat. It's—it's—it's awfully unhealthy to go into water on an empty stomach."

The man looked at me as if he thought I was crazy, too, but I excused it on account of his perturbed mind. He followed me, however, and as we walked on in silence I hugged myself as I thought of the material I was gathering.

Besides the article for The Weekly, which I had now decided to expand into a serial, the incident would also make an excellent article for The Psychological Journal.

I might also change the facts a little, have him crazed by strong drink and work it up for a temperance paper with the title "The Bottle and the Bridge; a True Story Founded on Facts." The possibilities were simply endless.

A good fire, some cold meat pie, bread and cheese and a glass of hot whisky punch soon loosened his tongue, and I had him talking rationally enough. He had been a journalist for 12 years, he said, had worked on all the leading papers of Manchester and London and had barely made enough to support himself and an invalid mother.

When we parted, it was past 2 o'clock, and he had promised me to give up his fatal purpose. Reflecting that I had secured material from him for no end of good work, I gave way to my generous impulses and pressed a half sovereign to his hand.

"Heaven bless you," he said. "You have saved my life!"

Circumstances prevented me from working up my material for several days, but my head was full of it all the time, and when I sat down at my desk deciding to write the first serial the plot was clearly outlined in my mind.

I wrote till late at night, then, according to my custom, went out for a walk. My feet turned involuntarily toward the scene of my late adventure.

I walked out upon the bridge, and as I neared the middle I saw two persons engaged in conversation almost on the very spot where I had been the humble means of saving a human life a few nights before.

As I drew nearer one of the figures seemed strangely familiar. A moment later I caught the words, "It is the last favor I shall ever ask of any one."

I turned and fled.

I still have on hand material for a serial for The Weekly, and an article for The Psychological Journal, and a dissertation upon the hardships of journalism.—Kate Field's Washington.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

Lesson For the Week Beginning Feb. 17. Comment by Rev. Walter J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Showbread.

BIBLE READINGS.—Ex. xxv. 23-30; Heb. ix, 2.

Nearly every religion of antiquity recognized in some manner the fact that the fertility of the earth, yielding harvests and sustaining man by food, was due to a divine power above man. In many lands the thought took form as an image of the nourishing mother. Such was Diana of the Ephesians. The Hebrew mode of teaching this fact was peculiar and conveyed a deeper spiritual meaning than the other religions. In the tabernacle, and afterward in the temple, a table overlaid with gold was placed in the holy place half way down the north side and opposite the golden candelabrum. On this were laid 12 loaves of bread. They were made of oblong shape ten hand breadths long and five wide and seven fingers thick. They were placed in two piles of six each, the loaves being separated from each other by rods of wood covered with gold. A gold cup was placed on top of each pile of bread to receive frankincense. This is the traditional account. The bread was replaced each Sabbath with fresh loaves. The frankincense was burned on the altar, and the bread eaten by the priests.

The probable intention of this observance was to keep ever in the mind of the people the truth that God is the nourisher both of body and soul. It was not a sacrificial offering of the people to the Deity, but an object of the Divine sustenance of all things physical and spiritual. The true spirit is best expressed in the reply of Jesus to the tempter in the wilderness, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word which proceeds out of the mouth of God." The type was fulfilled in Christ himself, who is the real bread of life. The New Testament idea is that all God's true followers are priests and are to feed, not occasionally on consecrated things, but continually in heart and outer life, "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." Every meal should be a true sacrament received with devout thankfulness, so that as physical power is recuperated the inner life is also renewed by Divine grace.

Temperance Work.

The cause of total abstinence and saloon suppression has made wonderful advance in recent years. No more efficient aid for this great reform can be found than that offered in the hosts of the young people of the different denominational societies. The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor is active in many places, both in pledge work and efforts to secure public municipal action. The Epworth League gives this cause a prominent place under one of the departments and has firm basis for all her [illegible] in the resolutions of the general conference regarding the liquor traffic, "it can never be legalized without sin." "It is the duty of every Christian to wage ceaseless warfare against it."

Christian Temperance League.

The need that all the separate forces of temperance workers be combined is apparent. How to accomplish that result is not so clear. That such an end will be reached eventually seems probable. Looking toward this, the last general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church appointed a permanent committee of 15 to have oversight of the formation of a Christian Temperance league, with branches in every charge, and to unite with similar organizations in other denominations. The membership of the society is to include all members of the congregation willing to unite for practical effort in suppressing the liquor traffic. This may not be the final form of society under which victory will be won, but it is a step forward and marks distinct advance in method and spirit.

Slow, but Sure.

The teaching of a few children Sunday after Sunday the simple, commonplace truths of the Bible and Christian living may not seem attractive as an occupation or valuable in result. Reform work among adults; revivals, with many conversions and apparent progress, seem much more attractive, but in the long spaces of time work with the children will be found to yield returns inferior to no other effort in Christ's cause. Growth may be slow, but it is sure. Secure the children of this generation, and the next generation of adults will need no reform and conversion, since they will have been rightly formed and turned in early years and will not depart from that right way. Look out for the children!

Chattanooga In June.

There are few more delightful place in the country than eastern Tennessee in the latter part of spring and early in summer. The selection of Chattanooga for holding the international Epworth League convention, June 27-30, 1895, was a wise decision. Arrangements for the grandest gathering ever held by young Methodism are well in hand. Excursions from all parts of the land are already planned. That will be a grand time of "lifting up" in all respects. "Let every one look up" to the Master for his special guidance. Who can forecast the momentous issues which may lie hidden in that gathering! What possibilities for the future of our beloved Methodism and the kingdom of God at large! May many who attend the convention climb a Lookout mount in spirit and get extended views of the beautiful landscape of a God given heritage. Old battlefields are good places for fraternal gatherings.

Jews In Palestine.

Bishop Blyth of Jerusalem says that about 100,000 Jews have entered Palestine during the last seven years, and the arrival of a vaster host is imminent. No one can forecast the extent of Jewish immigration to that land during the next seven years.

"Mr. Williams, one moment, please."

"What is it, sir?"

"Mr. Williams," with another slight cough, "we have decided, owing to matters of which you are probably as well aware as we, that we will not need you any longer. As soon as you can secure employment elsewhere we shall expect you to resign your position with us."

"I really don't—don't understand you," was the reply. "Have you discovered any errors in the books?"

"None at all—none at all. We would be perfectly willing to indorse a certificate of your honesty and proficiency as an accountant. What I refer to is an entirely different thing.

"The fact is, we have found that you are heavily indebted in various parts of the city, much more than we desire any one in our employ to be. Several firms where you have considerable accounts standing for some time have applied to us to secure them. This we cannot do."

"I think that this thing has—has been exaggerated," stammered the young man. "But as you may have other reasons for wishing to discharge me I will go at once."

And then Paul Williams, felling, as people always do who have met with the penalty of their indiscretion, that he had been dealt with unjustly, walked away.

Almost unconsciously he bent his steps toward a distant hill, whereon lay the city cemetery, and half an hour later he was walking up the hill with long, sweeping strides, totally indifferent to the fact that the dust of the road was destroying the polish of his shapely shoes which that very morning he had put on with so much care.

Paul Williams was a man of five and twenty, and for four years had held the position from which he had now been so suddenly dismissed.

Though he had no habits which could have been called really bad, he unfortunately possessed traits of character which kept him from succeeding as his friends had just reasons to expect. He was one of the members of a band of young men who, though not dissipated, had formed the dangerous habit of spending money as fast or faster than they earned it.

Some two years before he had begun to pay his attentions to a young lady, who was now his betrothed, and wishing most of all not to appear mean in the eyes of the woman he loved he had often made presents and spent money upon her when she would have respected him just as much, perhaps more, if he had kept his purse closed.

The young man might not have come to grief had it not been for another habit more seductive and infinitely more dangerous than all the others—the practice of running into debt heedlessly and without thought. It had always been a failing with him, but within a year it had grown stronger than ever.

All these things presented themselves to Paul Williams in their true light for the first time as he sat alone in the silent counting-room. After a time he came to feel that the action of his employers, harsh as it might seem, was not without cause.

First of all he would draw what money he had in the bank, and as far as possible pay what money he owed, and then he would go away from Johnsport and try to find something to do which would enable him to pay the rest.

Two hours later Paul Williams sat in his room with a package of bills, on each of which was the ominous letters "dr." on one hand and on the other a roll of banknotes. All told, he was in debt $700.

Then he turned and counted the bills before him. There was less than $400, a little more than half what he owed.

After a hasty dinner he once more sallied out on the street, and visiting each of his creditors paid what he could, until not a dollar remained in his pocket.

"Paul," said the junior member of the firm as he handed him a check, "I'm confoundedly sorry about this thing. It's a wretched business from beginning to end, and if I could have had my way about it, old boy, it would not have happened. I wired a friend up in Wisconsin, who wrote me some time since that he wanted a good bookkeeper, that if the place was not already filled I could find a capital man for him. I have just received an answer, which says, 'Let him come at once.' So if you want to go you are not out all around. What say you?"

"I will go at once—tonight," was the prompt reply.

Paul's hardest task still lay before him—to see his intended wife and to tell her all. The young man told his story openly and frankly, omitting nothing and concealing nothing.

He told of the opportunities that lay before him and of the sacrifices he was determined to make until he had paid every cent, but there would be a stain upon his name, and if she wished she was free to break the engagement between them at once.

But if he had thought that she would take such a step he was destined to be happily disappointed, for her reply was:

"Paul, although I have feared for a long time that something like this was going to happen, I don't want to be free from you, because—because I love you. Go away, do the best you can and, come what may, know that there is one who trusts you and is waiting for you."

When a year had passed, he had paid everything and was beginning to save. Besides he had dropped all of his foolish airs and habits and became in every way more manly and independent.

One day near the close of his second year the young bookkeeper and his employer were talking together when the latter said:

"Paul, I am thinking of taking in a partner. My business is growing so fast that it needs two to attend to it, and I want some one that thoroughly understands it. Have you been able to save much since you came out here? You must, for you haven't any expensive habits."

At first the young man blushed and seemed slightly confused, but recovering himself he told his employer in a few words how he had come to leave Johnsport and in what way the most of his money had been spent since that time.

"This is a surprise to me," was the reply, "yet I am not sorry to hear it, for it shows that you have the right stuff in you."

Paul Williams is now the master of a pleasant home and far on the road to wealth, but he has not forgotten the bitter experience of the past and often affirms that never, never again will he be the debtor of any one.—Exchange.

A Bold, Bad Man.

The phrase, "A bold, bad man," now worn threadbare and comic, belongs to Spenser, who applied it to the Archimago of "The Faerie Queene" (I. 1., 37).

A bold, bad man, that dared to call by name
Great Gorgon, prince of darkness and dead night.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 28th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Elizabeth A. Rogers, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Adelia M. Wheeler, a sister of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate may be granted to Charles Burridge, the executor in said instrument named, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday the 25th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is Further Ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee; for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

Do You Snowshoe?

If you do, you are an enthusiast, of course; if you do not you will stand a chance of becoming an enthusiast regarding this most facinatig sport when you learn all about it, which you may do by reading the charmingly illustrated article on 'Snowshoeing in the Northwest,' published in the Febuary number of Demorest's Family magazine. Then there are many other most interesting things you may learn about through the same medium.—some of the curious religious beliefs of the Hides, how Juggernaut takes a bath, etc., which are told with words and numerous illustrations in a paper entitled 'A Glance at Hinduism.' 'An Evening's Amusement' offers excellent suggestions for entertaining a house-party or any small company of guests; 'Some Jolly Valentines' gives instructions for making valentines that will afford no end of fun; and—but it is impossible to give a complete list of all the good things. Every department is complete, and each succeeding number excels the one previously issued; and the Magazine is published for only $2 a year, by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

ANOTHER VOTING MACHINE.

William B. Norton, of Detroit, Has Invented One.

William B. Norton, of the firm of Leland, Faulconer & Norton, of Detroit, has invented a voting machine which recently was placed on exhibition at the Michigan Club. It is called the American voto-graph, and works on the keyboard principle. There is a row of keys for each party, and a key for each candidate. When one key is pushed down all the others for that office are locked, but the voter, should he wish to change his vote before the cover is shut down which records the vote on a roll of paper underneath, can unlock the row and push down a different key. So far as results are concerned, the machine seems to fill the bill completely. The voter is given perfect seclusion and secrecy, and the vote for each candidate is totaled on the register so that the count is made when the last ballot has been cast. There is no room whatever for the exercise of ministerial functions on the part of the returning board. The machine will be taken to Lansing and the inventor will compete before the legislature with the two other machines now on exhibition there for adoption at elections.

Joint Sale.

The undersigned, B. A. Beal, administrator of the estate of Wm. P. Emmons, will sell at public sale, on Tuesday, Feb. 26, on the premises of the late Wm. P. Emmons' one mile north and a half mile east of Britton, the following property:

One fanning mill, 1 Fairbanks scale (1000 lbs.), bag truck, corn sheller, wheelbarrow, blacksmith's vice, cook stove, coal stove, work bench, 2 grindstones, 24-ft. ladder, 16-ft. ladder, spring pump, 2 spades and 2 shovels, crosscut saw, grubhoe, peck, tile hoe and spade, 3 pitchforks, a quantity of good hay in bags, 40 bags, large canvass, 4 piles of lumber, 2 bandsawing rigs, 2 sets of wheels, grub hoe and 2 other hoes, and other articles too numerous to mention.

B. A. BEAL,
Adm'r of Emmons Estate.

Also, at the same time and place, the following property:

Three cows, coming in soon; 2 steers, coming 2-year old; 2 steers, coming 1-year old; top buggy, single harness, corn sheller, 1 breeding sow and 6 shoats, 5 galvanized tanks, 1 caldron kettle.

The "Twice-a-Week" St. Louis Republic will be sent Free For One Year to any person sending, before January 31, 1895, a club of three new yearly subscribers, with $3 to pay for the same.

Already the clans are gathering for the fray in 1896, and 1895 will be full of interesting events. The skirmish lines will be thrown out, the maneuvering done and the plans of campaign arranged for the great contest in '96.

The remaining short session of the Democratic Congress, to be followed shortly by a Republican Congress with a Democrat in the Presidental chair will be productive of events of incalculable interest.

In fact, more political history will be constructed during 1895 than in any year since the foundation of the Government, and a man without a newspaper will be like a useless lump in the movements of public opinion.

You can get three new subscribers for The Republic by a few minutes' effort. Remember in the Republic subscribers get a paper twice-a-week for the price of a weekly—only $1.00 a year. Try it At Once, and see how easily it can be done. If you wish a package of sample copies, write for them.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

On the 6th the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was taken up in the senate and would have been disposed of except for the item of $500,000 for immediately beginning cable construction between the United States and Hawaii. The bill for a new post office building at Chicago was passed. In the house the time was occupied in discussing the administration's financial measure.

On the 7th the laying of a cable to Hawaii was further discussed in the senate, but no conclusion was reached and the item remains as a stumbling block to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. The Indian appropriation bill ($8,820,709) was reported and the nomination of Maj. Gen. John M. Schofield to be lieutenant general was confirmed. In the house the administration bill to authorize an issue of $500,000,000 in gold bonds was defeated by a vote of 161 to 131.

In the senate on the 8th the president's message was read announcing a new loan of $62,500,000, instead of $100,000,000, as agreed upon. The Hawaiian cable amendment to the diplomatic and consular bill was then further discussed and the president's message giving Minister Willis' latest dispatches as to the sentences of death in Hawaii was presented. Senator Lodge (by request) introduced a bill to provide for the issue of $1,200,000,000 worth of bonds payable in gold coin at 2½ per cent. interest, to run from ten to twenty-five years. In the house the president's message providing for a new issue of bonds was read; also a message on the Hawaiian question. The legislative appropriation bill was discussed.

On the 9th the senate by a vote of 33 to 25 decided to lay a cable to Hawaii and appropriated $500,000 to begin the work. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was passed and eulogies on the late Senator Stockbridge were delivered. In the house it was voted to place individual clerks of members on the annual salary roll at the rate of $100 per month. The legislative appropriation bill was further discussed and an attempt to strike out the appropriation for the civil service commission was defeated.

In the senate on the 11th Senator Hill presented a resolution defining the policy of the government concerning bimetallism, gold payments, etc. The post office appropriation bill was disoussed. In the house the bill to provide for coinage at the branch mint at Denver, Col., was passed and the legislative appropriation bill was considered.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

DAKOTA WEATHER IN TEXAS.

What An Old Tecumseh Boy Thinks of a Northern Winter in a Southern Clime.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 6, '95.

DEAR HERALD:—From recent letters from my dear old native town I learn that you are all shivering with the cold, and that when you go out into the bitter blasts you have to wade through snow so deep that short folks are out of sight. I have seen no snow since I left Illinois over a year ago, and I am thankful for it. Up to a day or two before New Years day we had no frost and the bananna palm flourished in all its ragged beauty while the flower gardens were furnishing fragrant beautjes in profusion.

Then a bitter Norther came sweeping down from Michigan, Illinois and Indiana and all this was changed. The bananna palm became a yellow mass of dead rubbish, and the roses withered while the violet withdrew its scotched face from the gaze of its lovers, who mourn and long to see the timid thing creep from its hiding place of green.

The pecan trees are bare, the cane brakes along the river bank are in the sear and yellow leaf, while vegetation generally shows the effects of the frost; but the temperature is high and the warmth makes one fling the doors and windows wide open. Flannel underwear is a burden and but for the uncertain coming of the Norther would be filled with moth balls and stored away for an indefinite period.

Old San Antonio is suffering from the general stagnation of business that is effecting the whole country, but thank the powers that we do not have to pay exorbitant coal bills nor fatten a remorseless gang of coal barons.

Although the absence of many regular winter visitors to this beautiful city is noted, the hotels and boarding houses are over crowded with the throngs how have come here in search of health.

February 14th. It is nearly a month since I commenced this epistle to you, and as I read it over I find that the old saying, "never crow until you are out of the woods," is a thing to be remembered when you are about to boast of your special good fortune in escaping what harrasses your neighbor. The awful blizzards you people up North have been enjoying for the past few weeks are to an extent appreciated by the citizens of this semi-tropical state of Texas.

On Wednesday the 6th of the present month the weather department finding itself burdened with an overproduction of weather of a most delectable sort, puzzled itself to know what to do with it. In an evil moment some demon whispered into the ear of the aforesaid weather department that the people of Texas did not know what a good old fashioned Dakota blizzard was like, and suggested that it would be a good plan to ship a few blizzards down this way, just for fun. Accordingly it was done, and the denizens of Texas, as well as several other Southern states have had spells of weather that is the worst in the memory of the traditional oldest inhabitant. On the date above mentioned I hastened home after an evening class in drawing, and the first thing I did on entering my door yard was to investigate the water pipes. The good frau, not expecting to be treated to a spell of cold that would remind her of old Michigan, had retired without turning the water supply off and of course the pipes were frozen so that I had to thaw them out and set the water running before I sought the caressing arms of Morpheus.

The morning of the 7th, the mercury sank to 10 above; on the morning of the 8th it went as low as eight above, and it has dallied with a freezing temperature ever since. The result is that the citizens have suffered as much with the cold as you folks do when it gets around the point of ten to twenty below zero. The tropical plants are a sight to behold, and the cacti have a sickly appearance.

Did I say anything about fattening a gang of remorseless coal barons? Oh yes! I remember now, but what can you expect with the whole financial and social condition of the country in a state bordering chaos? A prominent wood and coal dealer told me (by proxy) that last fall he laid in a stock of fuel that he afterward thought more than would be required to run the season, but if the run of low temperature does not end he will have to more than duplicate his stock.

Yesterday the conditions were so unfavorable for a pleasant evening that I sent word to a class that was to have met at eight o'clock that I would not be ready for them until next week and then went home. An hour or two afterward the street cars stopped running and I felt that my good guardian spirit must have warned me of what was to come. This morning San Antonio awoke to find three inches of snow on the ground, and not a street car running in the city. You should have seen the population on its way down town, trying to get to places of business in good season, with the mercury away below freezing point.

It seems to me that the masculine portion of the inhabitants had almost lost its reason. Gangs of men and boys were at every available point pelting the passers by with snow balls, and sometimes a more than ordinary enthusiastic individual would grab anything handy and throw it, and then when the proprietor of the store whose window had been broken out conclude that it was time to disappear. An old lady who has lived in San Antonio for thirty-five years told me to-day that she had never seen so much snow in Texas before, the snow fall always being light and generally of a sleety nature, and generally disappearing in a very few hours. This storm has been raging all day, and at this hour, 3 p. m. seems inclined to keep it up indefinitely. You should see the invoiceof nondescript vehicles that take the places of your fine cutters and bob sleighs up North! I just saw a rig go past that would throw Hialey into hysterics. An aged darkey had taken two old long geered rocking chairs and roped them together securely and hitched the old family mule before it, (the combination,) and with wrinkled old mammy in the rear chair and himself in the driver's seat, (i. e. the front chair, four or five cow bells being attached to the pieces of rope and strap that constituted the harness of the f. m.) had started to do the Avenue.

An aged coon just exclaimed to me: "Foh de Lawd's sake, Massa Wheeler, dis beats anyting I eber done met wif in all my bawn days! I done seen snow befo' but dis do beat all! Did you eber done see mo' up Norf?" When I assured him that I had seen snow so deep that people had been obliged to shovel it away from the church steeple by my old home before they could see the clock in the tower and find out what time it was, he gave me a look that had a tinge of incredulity in it, and as he ejaculated, "well, for de Lawd's sake!" he must have thought of some sermon he had heard on the subject of the prevaricator.

The average house of the good people of this part of the South is but illy prepared to shelter its inhabitants from the bitter cold that always comes with a Norther. All of the frame houses are built on stilts, or posts, with a space underneath that gives a clean sweep for the winds. In the summer time this is appreciated, for then it assures additional coolness; but in the winter it makes one who has lived in the comfortable homes of the North wish for a change. Owing to the ravages of moths carpets are a minus quantity in many a home in this part of the world, and that adds another feature to the cold weather that comes to this country at times. As a result of the extremely low temperature of the past week or two the doctors are the busiest men in the community.

San Antonio is in some respects equal to New York City. It has a local Tammany that is quite like the greater Tammany that has robbed the greater city for so long a time. A gang of professional politicians locally known as "the big six" have run matters about as they willed for years, and have delivered the city, body and soul, over to the various corporations that fatten on the down-trodden citizens. The telegraph companies have made the streets a perfect network of wires, setting their poles where they wanted to, regardless of the wishes of property owners or the convenience of the public. In a narrow street where a car takes up all of one side of the drive way, only leaving room on the other side for two vehicles to pass, and where the sidewalks are so narrow that two couples cannot pass without going single file, they have set poles sixteen inches in diameter inside of the curb stone. The electric street car lines run their business regardless of the public needs, and when they deem it pleasant to do so stop their cars at the most unseemly hours, leaving the belated public to reach home as best it can. With the lines that are run in this city, if they were under the ownership and control of the municipality, there is no reason why any one should be treated as the public is frequently by impudent corporations that owe their existence to the public will.

With the examples we have of the abuses showered on the people all over the land by corporations the talk at present being indulged in in that chamber of demoralized fossils called the United States Senate, about taking the postal service in hand and turning it over to private corporations, makes one wonder what they will contemplate next.

The hot sulphur wells of San Antonio are becoming famous and are drawing many people from the Hot Springs of Arkansas. They doubtlessly bring a large share of the floating population of the city.

There is a large and popular society of artists in the city, and the semi-annual exhibitions held by the San Antonio Art League are doing much to raise the standard of Art in the State of Texas. Artists from all over the State are members of the society, and its affairs are matters of general public regard. The beautiful scenery and the many points of historical interest makes this city a place of more than usual interest to the artistic fraternity. It is such a common thing to see easels placed before the old Alamo with artists earnestly at work sketching the famous home of Texas liberty that the natives take no notice of such things than do the natives of Italy when foreign artists paint their land.

San Antonio has just gone through the throes of a municipal election in which the two contending parties have painted the whole city in most lurid hues. The big six was on one side, and the German contingent on the other, backed by all the best elements of the city, and for one more time Tammany has been defeated. I have witnessed a good many political campaigns, but I never saw any like the one just over. To read the papers one would come to the conclusion that Beelzebub had selected his two chief devils and sent them here to be candidates for the mayoralty. I realize now more than ever that the chief qualification for citizenship in this great land of ours should be intelligence and education. Here as in other parts of the land the great unwashed is herded by the most unscrupulous side and voted in gangs. The Mexican population is notedly ignorant and debased, and follows a leader like conventional sheep.

The South needs more Northern energy and "git up and git." Think of a water system with the pipes laid on the surface of mother earth! That is what we have here, and in the summer time the water is so hot by the time it reaches the consumer that it is put in jars and hung out of doors in the shade to get cool. In the winter the pipes freeze at the first opportunity, and bursted pipes are the rule. The hill on which I live is of such a character in its formation that it is almost a solid rock. Along the streets the water mains attest the nature of the corporation that furnishes the dwellers with aqua. Last week a main burst near us and the company sent men to shut it off, promising to repair the break at once. Not a thing has been done about it yet and for blocks around people come to the little cottage my family occupy to get the water they must have to prepare meals with. Meanwhile the water company gathers in its water rates with a merry gusto and tells the people to be damned. Still the plutocratic Senate would put our letters and papers in the hands of a private corporation to deliver. How much sugar stock will it take to have the thing accomplished? What interest have the Rothchilds in the matter?

You cannot imagine how eagerly I look for the dear old HERALD each week. I think it would be a hard matter to keep house if I did not get a copy each week. In last week's number I read the fine account you gave of Alba Heywood and his company in Edgewood Folks. When Alba first struck this city he did a poor business, but his visit to San Antonio last fall was productive of more abundant pay, and the people who saw him were so well pleased that his next visit will be a nice surprise to him. You would make his friendship for me older than it is. I think it is about ten years since I first made his acquaintance, and in the time that has passed I have found him to be a gentleman and an honest man. What more can one say in the praise of any man?

I also saw that Mr. Chas. Stubler was to give Tecumsehites a bit of his cleverness. I would have liked to have been there. I knew Stubler a number of years ago, having boarded in the same house in Chicago with him. I have the honor of being the one who selected his stage name for him, and 'Sig. Calistro' would no doubt remember me if he heard of me in old Tecumseh. He was liked by every one who had the pleasure of his acquaintance at that time, and I have no reason to think that he has changed for the worse. I remember well how his tricks of magic mystified the little coterie that lived where he did in Chicago.

I cannot say that my path has been strewn with roses since I have lived in Texas, nor that I have lived in a manner to give me the gout, but if business should improve, and times become better, I think that I should be able to do well here. I have found health here, and we all like the glorious climate, as well as the beautiful city and its surrounding country. My wife says her health has never been better and my two little boys are the pictures of excellent health. The effect that the present cold snap has had on my bronchial machinery proves that it would be unwise for me to think of returning to the north for a long time yet, still I often get so homesick to see the old home and friends that it is hard to think of being an exile so long. Still I hope to get the home paper and to write you occasionally, may be semi-occasionally. Your aged friend.

COLD WEATHER COMEDY.

A very amusing mistake occurred after the dismissal of services at the Congregational church in Pittsford one evening last week.

Two of the sturdy tillers of the soil, believing in looking after their spiritual affairs, were present with their silent partners, and after services both proceeded to bring out their rigs to load in the ones who have made life one long flowery journey.

It being very dark one of them assisted into the cutter the fair lady he supposed was his wife, and she supposed it was her husband who was making her so snug in the sleigh, and they proceeded on their homeward journey feeling, no doubt, that it had been good for them to be there.

After proceeding some distance the lady discovered the mistake, when there was a gathering of wraps, a sudden flight, and our sturdy husbandman awoke to the realization that he was alone in the middle of the road on a dark night, and turning, could see a figure fleeing like a frightened fawn towards the church.

He turned around and succeeded in getting back to the church in time to make an explanation and stop any steps that might have been made towards divorce proceedings. This time he was more careful in making his choice, and no doubt will be hereafter, especially if the night be dark.—Hudson Gazette.

The oldest boiler in Michigan is at the King's foundry and machine shop, formerly run by the late A. C. King & Son. The stamp of the year the boiler was manufactured dates back over 200 years. It was once run on an ocean steamer and that boat being put out of service the boiler was sold to a party that was building a boat to run on the lakes. After that boat had got through with the old boiler it fell into the hands of A. C. King, who placed it in his shop to furnish him power to run his machinery, and today it is the oldest boiler in Michigan.—Evening Telegram.

REMARKABLE DRIVING.

It is generally the easiest thing in the world to drive a horse without spirit, but there is one recorded instance where a stage coach driver covered himself with glory by doing just that thing. He was an old-timer, this driver, and one afternoon in the days of long ago he and his coach-and-four came rattling up to the tavern door like an avalanche. As the coach stopped one of the horses dropped dead.

"That was a very sudden death," remarked a by-stander.

"That sudden!" coolly responded the driver. "That 'oss died at the top of the hill nine miles back, sir; but I wasn't going to let him down till I got to the reg'lar stoppin'-place."—Harper's Young People.

Albert S. Hayden, of Milan, was in town Sunday afternoon.

F. B. Greenleaf, H. D. Niblack and wife were in Macon Sunday.

Mrs. C. D. Avery, of Jackson, visited Mrs. Alonzo Clark Monday and Tuesday.

Bert A. Darlinghouse, of Tecumseh, was calling on a friend Sunday evening.

E. S. Tate was taking in the sights at Detroit from Friday until Tuesday night.

F. M. Sanford and wife of Grass Lake are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. Jas. Rogers.

Miss Ella Rose and Blanche returned from their visit with Tecumseh friends, Monday noon.

Will Mobbs and Wade Waring, of Tecumseh, attended St. John's church Sunday evening.

John Hause and Clint C. Rowland attended Masonic Lodge at Tecumseh Saturday evening.

Roy Hughes, of Tecumseh began work in the spinning room at the Woolen Mill Wednesday.

Mrs. E. S. Tate went to Tecumseh Wednesday to visit Mrs. J. D. Shull the balance of the week.

Mrs. A. W. Muir entertained a company of lady friends Saturday evening at her pleasant home.

Alma Tate entertained the ladies with pedro at her house on Jackson street Tuesday evening.

Guy Belding is taking Ed. Breese's place at the station this week while Ed. is away on his wedding trip.

The Eastern Star banquet at Masonic Hall, Wednesday, was par excellence and all enjoyed a social time.

Mrs. L. H. Ames, of Ypsilanti, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ella Niblack and other friends this week.

Mrs. Chris. Schmitt was dangerously ill the last of the week, with heart trouble, but is much better at present.

Wednesday was stock day. VanTuyle & Palmer shipped a car of sheep and hogs and Tate & Stoner three decks of sheep.

Many of the members of Golden Rod Chapter O. E. S. attended the special meeting at Tecumseh last evening and had a delightful time.

Mrs. Clara Densmore, of Hanover, Jackson county, was the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Phoebe Lane, Friday and Saturday last.

Eusebeus Dodge, of Hudson, is stopping with Mont Rogers and family. He has quite a class on the gaitar and is kept busy tuning pianos.

Will Clack, Monday, received a letter from Central India, which was a month coming. It was from a sister of his whose husband is a missionary there.

About twelve or fourteen of our young people spent the evening Saturday with Miss Matie Schlegel at Bridgewater Station. They report a delightful time.

Among those who are on the sick list this week are Fred VanDeMark, Donna Woodward, Will O. Sivers, Mrs Blanche Kimball and Mrs. Genevieve Burroughs.

Rev. D. H. Ramsdell, at the parsonage, Wednesday evening, at 6:30, spoke the words that wedded Mr. Fred Clark, of Brooklyn, and Miss Jennie Snow, of Tecumseh.

The young people's society of the Baptist church, hold a pleasant social gathering at the commodious home of Deacon and Mrs. H. P. Downs, this Friday evening.

The Baptist social was held at the parsonage Tuesday evening. Rev. C. M. Stout and his estimable wife proved charming entertainers, and all enjoyed a pleasant evening.

W. H. Beehler and Laura Clark attended the wedding of Mr. Eugene Mosher and Miss Jennie England, at St. Peter's church, Tecumseh, Thursday evening of last week.

Miss Jennie Beckwith, who is teaching in the Bradley district, on Wall street, was out of school last week, being ill, and Kittie VanTuyle filled her place very acceptably to all.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Embler, Wednesday evening, occurred the marriage of their daughter Nellie to Charles H. Fabrique. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. D. H. Ramsdell. It was a very pleasant occasion.

Frank Kirchgessner and Frank Schmitt, while returning from Fred Schill's Sunday, with old "Jerry," the cutter tipped over and they had the pleasure of walking in from George Walters', as "Jerry" ran into town and brought up at the barn without damage.

L. A. Sutfin, D. Haggert, Jr., Peter Alexander, Herman Halladay and John Alexander attended the republican county convention at Adrian, Saturday. David Haggert, Jr., was made secretary of the convention, and discharged his duties with credit to himself and satisfaction to the members of the convention.

Addie McDermott, Edith and Ella Cheetham, were driving to Tecumseh Sunday afternoon and after passing Jonas Waldron's, the cutter upset and they were thrown out. The horse was caught at Brownville by A. T. Gage, who drove back and found the girls, none the worse for the accident. Aside from slight damage to the cutter, no injury resulted.

The dancing party at the town hall Friday evening was very fine. There was a large attendance. Jackson's orchestra, of Adrian, discoursed fine music and the refreshments at the Palmer House were choice. All pronounce it an evening of enjoyment. Among those from out of town were: Will Brighton and Ed. Eagan, of Cambridge; Misses Adah Case, May Aylesworth and Blanche Stark, of Manchester; Cliff Millis, George Gilbert, Jim and John Riley and their sisters, of Tecumseh.

W. H. Spalding, of Tecumseh, is putting on the steel roof to the Clinton plow company's building. The brick masons are finishing the cupola building. When completed the company will have one of the finest foundrys in the country. It will be an ornament to Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Palmer are now nicely settled in their old quarters back of the town hall, and seem to be glad to be at home once more. Many of the commercial men who stopped with them at the hotel Edrose, have followed them to their present quarters and no doubt many more will do so.

Wm. H. Beehler retired from his position as cloth inspector at the Woolen Mill, Saturday, having given them proper notice. A Mr. Judge, of Grayville, was secured for the position and began his labors Monday morning. Mr. Beehler will not leave Clinton for some weeks, but expects to go to Chicago in May.

One of Wm. C. Roger's sons, who lives east of town, met with a painful accident Saturday, while felling trees in the woods of Chas. Wilson, west of town. The limb of a falling tree some 3 or 4 feet long and 5 inches in diameter struck him a glancing blow which came near scalping him. He was brought to town and taken to Dr. White's office, who by taking numerous stitches and using adhesive straps, fixed him up in good shape. It was a close call. Had it struck him square he would not have realized what hit him. He may congratulate himself that it was not more serious.

The adjourned suit between Ansel Witherell and his son, Ed., for rent, was called before Justice Smith, Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and adjourned until 1 p. m. Court convened at that hour at the town hall, with Mr. Waters attorney for Mr. Witherell and Mr. Freeman for Ed. It proved to be a closely contested and long drawn case, each lawyer doing his best for his client. It was a case before a jury, and a fine one was empaneled, consisting of S. W. Demuth, John Hause, F. D. Lancaster, Wm. Dewey, Benj. Woodward and A. G. Burton. The case was given to them at 11:30 and they retired. At 3 a. m. Tuesday they returned and rendered their verdict in favor of the son, Ed. The case excited much interest and drew a large crowd.

At the pretty home of Mrs. A. Platt, on Jackson street, Wednesday evening, there was congregated a large company of relatives and friends, who witnessed one of the prettiest of home weddings. The house was brilliantly illuminated and artistically decorated for the occasion. The young couple, Mr. Ed. Breese and Louise Platt, as they stood before Rev. D. H. Ramsdell to take upon themselves the marriage vows, radiant in their youth and beauty, presented a picture that will ever remain bright to those who were present. The ceremony was performed promptly at 7 o'clock, after which came congratulations and the banquet. Ed. and Louise are among our most popular young people, and the presents were exceptionally numerous and fine. The young people start out with bright prospects before them.

PENTECOST POINTERS.

The little son of Chas. Baker is very sick with fever.

Hon. T. M. Camburn is home from Lansing on sick leave.

Mrs. Edwin Cook is very low, and her recovery is doubtful.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Risbridger and daughter, of Norville, visited at J. S. Pentecost's last week.

Mrs. Monk and daughter, of Cone, Monroe Co., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John E. Monk at their home here.

The Dramatic Club were greeted with a full house at Springville Saturday night, and scored another success.

Mrs. E. Buck is selling boots, shoes and men's ready-made clothing at cost, to close out the stock of her late husband.

Now look for the man who comes in your office and solemnly declares his belief that "the backbone of the winter is broken."

Robert Carr was loading logs alone in the woods, last Saturday, when a log rolled back and knocked him down, breaking his leg and dislocating his ankle.

Little Mable, youngest child of Sumner Raymond, of Adrian, but formerly of Pentecost, is laying very low with typhoid fever, with slight hopes of recovery.

The startling inteligence reached his friends here Saturday that Richard Jones was dangerously ill at the home of S. Hollenbeck. We sincerely hope he may be blessed with returning health ere long.

The remains of Mrs. Patty Miller Camburn were brought to Franklin for interment the first of this week. She was the widow of the Rev. Ira Camburn and died at the home of her brother in Albion.

Poultry keepers, if your fowls are dying off don't bother with the nostrums advertised, or soak your hen house with kerosene oil. Just keep the house clean and dust air-slacked lime freely on the perches, walls, nest boxes, etc., and give a warm feed mornings of milk, table scraps, and wheat bran, cooked together until thick, and corn, oats and wheat mixed, the rest of the day, with plenty of pure water to drink. Put a table spoonful of salt to about two gallons of warm food in the morning every day, and feed also chopped onions, cabbage, etc., two or three times a week; give them plenty of sand and wood ashes under a shed or some place where they can scratch and wallow and you will have no trouble with cholera, and will get plenty of eggs even in cold weather.

Mothers.

"One good mother is worth a hundred schoolmasters," said George Herbert. Men are what their mothers make them: But if the mothers are peevish and irritable, through irregularities, "female weakness," and the kindred aliments, they find no pleasure, no beauty in the care of their babes. All effort is torture. Let all such, who feel weighted to the earth with "weaknesses," peculiar to their sex, try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. They will find the little one a delight instead of a torment.

To those about to become mothers it is a priceless boon. It lessens the pains and perils of childbirth, shortens labor and promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

Mr. Abraham Hunt is reported better.

Miss Irene Allen is decidedly better.

Mrs. Wm. Dunn is on the sick list.

Remember the Lyceum at Wm. Witherell's Saturday night.

Word came last week that Mrs. G. W. Allen was threatened with an attack of grippe.

S. N. Wisner drove to Ypsilanti Saturday, returning with Mrs. E. J. Whelan Sunday.

G. W. Allen and Mrs. A. B. Wisner drove to Ypsilanti last week Tuesday, returning Wednesday.

Mr. Joseph Spaulding received a telegram from Dakota, announcing the death of his son Francis, of pneumonia.

G. W. Allen and Mrs. Wm. Fisher drove to Ypsilanti Monday. Mrs. Fisher goes to assist in the care of Mrs. G. W. and Miss Irene Allen.

Miss Irene Allen's many friends will rejoice to learn that she is expected home on Saturday. Mrs. G. W. Allen is better and will accompany her.

Mr. Crane and Wm. Roebs were in this vicinity with a view to erecting a cheese factory at Tipton; a meeting was called at Hampton Hall but we hear that the scheme fell through.

Miss Kittie Van Tuyle occupied the chair of State in the Bradley school house last week; this week the pupils have another vacation, Miss Beckwith the teacher, being too ill to return to her duties there.

CAMBRIDGE CHATTER.

C. H. Dowey went to Adrian last Monday. He found the roads drifted badly.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Dewey and son went to Tecumseh on Sunday, returning Monday. Miss Emma Dewey returned with them for a visit of a few days.

Wanted—To know where I can find thoroughbred Langshan or Leghorn chickens, former preferred. Any one having either kind please let me know. Address, Ida M. Dewey, Cambridge.

Cambridge has been frosen up for some time, owing to the blizzards, but is thawing out now. The skies are beginning to look quite Spring-like, and one begins to feel as if they could live again.

Lee Billmyer gave a coon party, St. Valentine's night for the young people. They blacked up and dressed in costumes like darkies, and had a program and refreshments. All seemed to have had a gay time.

ROME RAVELINGS.

May Luce has just returned from a visit among Toledo friends.

Alfred Billings is attending Brown's Business University this winter.

"Among the Breakers" will be played at Wolf Creek next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Charles Selleck has been called to Chicago to attend her daughter, who is very ill.

A series of club dances has been the rage at John Ryan's this winter with good attendance.

The ladies' library social was held at the residence of Mrs. Eugene Sayers on St. Valentine's day.

The "Old Deestric Skule" held at West Rome church last Wednesday night was a grand success.

Little Fay, son of Charles Baker, is very sick with the grip, and at present writing is not much, if any, better.

We are headquarters for the Magic Dyes, which color most goods, perfect fast colors and do not crock. 10 cents of Orr & Temple.

The Development of the South.

Is being furthered by the Queen & Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to Southern points at One Fare for the Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinati, O., and Lexington, Ky., on November 6th and December 4th; good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates to all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisana.

Stop-overs are permitted on these excursions at any point south of the Ohio River, within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go South to look into the present great movement of Northern to that section.

The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3.00 to $5.00 per acre, on easy terms.

Send us your name for advertising matter and any information you may want as to lands and immigration to the South.

Greatest Engineering Enterprise of the Nineteenth Century.

"It is greater than the World's Fair," says Chief Engineer Cooley. And if our readers could visit that, the most wonderful undertaking of the nineteenth century, and behold the herculean efforts that are being put forth to open through mountains of earth and mile of solid ledge, a highway to the seas, they would at once pronounce it the greatest undertaking of the age. The magnitude and importance of this great Inland Waterway is not understood or realized as yet by the reading public. When we contemplate its far reaching results, we are amazed at its greatness. When completed, ships from all nations can majestically sail through our fertile plains, bringing to our Inland Harbor the commerce of the world.

By special arrangement with the Commissioners, Campbell's Illustrated Monthly" the richest Illustrated Journal published, is making an Authentic History of this great undertaking, from its inception, in 1893, giving copper plate illustrations and full description of the great work from month to month, similar to the manner the same management compiled the Prize History of the World's Fair. Send 25 cents in stamps to J. B. Campbell, 215 Madison St., Chicago, Ill., and a copy of this valuable work will be sent to you.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters and aids digestion. Old People find it is an excellent appetizer just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Orr & Temple's drug store. 5

A False Diagnosis.

La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact, are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief.

Full of with starch and gloss serene,
The linen collar starts the morn;
Full oft at noontime it is seen
All wilted, wrinkled and forlorn.

That's what you must expect of such a collar; it's the linen of it. The stand-up collars won't stand up, and the turn-down collars will wilt down. The easy, cheap, and pleasant way out of this is to wear "CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS. These goods are made by covering linen collars or cuffs on both sides with "CELLULOID," thus making them strong and durable, and waterproof, not affected by heat or moisture. There are no other waterproof goods made this way, consequently none that can wear so well. When soiled simply wipe them off with a wet cloth. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

BRITTON BUDGET.

Vern Smith is on the sick list this week.

James Haight was in Dundee Wednesday.

George Smith was in Toledo the last of the week.

Mrs. Will Clark is improving, but it is very slow.

Mr. Thos. Lee is having a seige with la grippe.

Mrs. George Oliver still remains in a very critical condition.

The dance went off in fine style and all had a pleasant time.

Andrew Wood entertained a brother from Sand Creek over Sunday.

The odor of orange blossoms is very perceptible in the atmosphere.

John Orr, the hustling druggist of Tecumseh, was in town Wednesday.

Andrew Wood, the Wabash section foreman, was out of whack a few days.

Why is it that Earl Lenardson laughs at Art Hughes? We would like to know.

Earl Lenardson feels satisfied that his lungs are all o. k. since he tested them.

Prof. Edmonston returned to Detroit Friday, having fitted many eyes to glasses.

Dr. P. B. Hardy we understand will change his office to rooms over the White Pharmacy.

Mrs. F. Allen and son Harry, of Toledo, visited W. E. Allen and family a part of last week.

Darwin Osgood and wife, of Morenci, visited his brother, William, and family the first of the week.

Charles Sutton, according to latest advices, is still trying to collect the dollar from Charles Smith.

M. B. Mills, of Macon, was in town Wednesday. He was on his way to Detroit to attend the state convention.

The Britton Dramatic Society expect soon to present a fine play for the edification of the public. Bear it in mind.

M. L. Gillen expects to move his family to Tecumseh this week. We are sorry to lose them from our midst.

The Lee Bros. having resigned the agency of the Pacific Express, it has been transferred to Will Clark at the station.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Sink had as guests the last of the week a brother of Mr. S. and wife, of Port Huron, and a sister and husband, of Detroit.

You ought to see Duffy's elegant patent leather shine. He puts it on all his work. If you have any repairing take it there and get a shine.

The reformed church society have secured a site for their new church building of John Britton, just west of Mont Hogan's. It is a very desirable location.

James Haight has secured a tinner in the person of L. H. Ward of Milan, and feels confident he is fully prepared to meet the wants of his customers in every department.

All taxes in Ridgeway township must be paid on or before Monday, Feb. 25th, as the treasurer makes his returns on Thursday. All taxes unpaid Monday will be levied for or returned.

Art Hughes declares he will not trade with Art Lee hereafter. What's the trouble Art? Do not bite off your own proboscis to spite your face. It will do no good and only mar your good looks.

Herbert Allen now occupies his new barber shop in the corner brick, having moved Monday. His shop is very tasty and is elegantly lighted. You can find no pleasanter shop in any town.

Herbert Allen has had his old shop removed to his residence, to be used as a woodshed and storeroom. Jas. Underwood had the matter in charge and it was expeditiously done. Jim is an expert at moving buildings.

The ladies of the Maccabees of Britton will give a Public Masquerade Box Social in Exelby Hall, Feb. 27th, 1895. Ladies not providing boxes are requested to pay ten cents to lady housekeeper. All are cordially invited to attend.

Ed. Bachman with a corps of workmen is transforming the rooms over Lee Bros. store into a modern Art gallery which will be occupied when completed by Harvey Wolling of Tecumseh who is a fine Photographer and will be able to furnish you beautiful pictures no matter what the subjects may be.

Mrs. Vern Osterhout experienced an excitement out of the usual order of things Saturday. She was driving home from Ridgeway when the team, which is a spirited one, concluded to have a little sport on their own hook and so ran away. In crossing the railroad track the cutter upset and Mrs. Osterhout was thrown out, but not seriously injured. The cutter was quite badly broken but the horses were none the worse for their race.

Was Hit On the Head With a Golden Axe.

The A.P.A. Society, like many others bearing the same initials, are having a rough and rugged path to tread. Just now a pall, black as midnight, is hanging over them, wholly excluding the light, and the members are endeavoring to cheer each other up, hoping to see a way out of their dilemma. The boys just at present are posing as martyrs, and feel the force of the old saying, "When a woman wills, she will, and when she won't she won't, and that's the end on it." Monday evening, not far from 8 o'clock, when the boys were in their mirth and revelry, with outer door safely guarded by one of the faithful who had gone broke, not dreaming of danger; suddenly steps were heard stealthily approaching the citadel. Soon after there came an alarm and a voice demanding admittance. Not having the proper pass word the request was denied. Again came the demand, more determined tone, which caused a pale face of the sentinel and others to blanche as they realized the intruders were women. The sentinel stood bravely to his post for some time, in fact until blows from without, when he made a flying leap, scaling stove, barrels, etc., and hid under a bench. About this time the door came open and in walked the mother and wives of two of the members, armed with an axe, who first turned their attention to the stove. The boys uttered a feeble remonstrance saying it did not belong to them, but the reply came, "we do not care, we have permission to do what we will," and the worthy matron proceeded to wield the axe in a manner that would have filled the heart of the most skillful woodsman with envy. The boys, all but the one under the bench, concluded to retire, which they did in a graceful manner. The worthy matron soon demolished the stove, as well as other articles of furniture, and before retiring thought to give the stove, or what was left of it, a parting blow. Her aim was faulty and instead of the stove she hit the bench, which giving way, Art received the greater force of the blow on his back. He thinking matters were becoming exceedingly torrid made a break for outside, mentally praying "give me liberty or give me death." He gave an exhibition of sprinting seldom equalled if ever excelled.

The victors, seeing their work completed, retired with the proud consciousness of having done their work well. The boys, who had secreted themselves not far away, fearing a conflagration, returned and extinguished the flames. The Osterhout boys say the work of devastation was complete. With sad hearts they bade farewell to the scene and retired, trusting in their experience it might prove to be the darkest hour preceeding a glorious day.

When the foregoing had been given us from an eye witness, our hopes of ever becoming a member fell to zero; but when informed by the member that the A. P. A. would, Phœnix like, rise from the ashes of its dead hopes and shine with undiminished lustre, we bade our hopes revive, and feel confident that soon our name may be enrolled among the faithful.

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the north-west with wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Go to Virginia; land is cheap, climate perfect all the year round. Ask any one who knows and he will tell you that in the tidewater section one acre of land has produced as high as $2,000.00 in one season. It is worth looking into. Apply to C. H. Bovee, Gen'l. Land and Excursion Agent, Coldwater, Mich., for pamphlet "Facts for Farmers" free. No statements made that are not corroborated by practical farmers who have grown rich on their Virginia farms.

SAPOLIO

FOR SALE BY HARRIS & HITESHU, Tecumseh, Mich.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such, that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

REV. THOMAS DIXON, JR.

A Grand Lecture, Given Under Adverse Circumstances.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather Wednesday evening, Sutton's opera house was filled to hear Rev. Thos. Dixon, jr.,—subject, "Backbone." They all felt amply repaid for braving the storm and the long wait in consequence of Mr. Dixon and wife, in driving from Adrian, being stuck in a snow drift, owing to an incompetent driver, and being obliged to walk about three miles through the driving storm. He, by this, demonstrating that he had backbone, and the audience felt that he would be able to handle the subject in a masterly manner, and they were not disappointed.

Mr. Dixon is a tall, spare man, dark complection, with small, keen black eyes, and hair of raven hue. He is a most forcible speaker and not only an orator, but a genius. His very manner commands attention, and being a fine dramatic scholar, his facial expressions and gestures gave additional force to his intonations, and the vast audience were held as if by magic from the very first. Mr. Dixon had no introduction. He started out by saying that a man could stand without arms, or even legs, but not without a backbone, and this he demonstrated in a very clear, logical and happy manner, and then went on to show that the backbone was flexible not stubborn, and pointed out the difference between backbone and mulishness. Showed the fallacy and impossibility of trying to please everybody, and demonstrated it by relating his experience while pastor of a church in Boston, when he was young and felt he must please each one, and by so doing the entire building, and even the lot, was demolished, metaphorically speaking, and yet they were not satisfied. He went on to show that a person with backbone might overcome every obstacle, even health itself, and succeed, and cited many instances, the career of Alexander H. Stevens being the most notable. His description of the railroad scene in the Alleghanies was most vivid.

It would be impossible to mention all the salient points in his lecture, but he convinced his hearers that backbone was necessary to success in any department of life. It was grand beyond description, and showed him to be among the foremost speakers of the day. We hope to hear him again some time in the future. He and his wife left on the morning train for Mansfield, Ohio, where he spoke last evening.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$30 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Wheeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand,	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

"But papa," pleaded the impassioned maiden, "he is the only man I love!" "That's right," replied the brutal old man. I am glad that a daughter of mine does not love more than one man at a time.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

TRUTH—POWER.

Extract from Speech of Hon. John G. Woolley, Before the Anti-Saloon League of Ohio, Dec. 11, 1894.

In the name of God, in the name of suffering womanhood and debauched manhood and defiled childhood, what are we, Christian voters of Ohio? God help you to digest that to-night, for this is what is the matter with our fight—our testimony is not clear.

The church does hate the saloon! The church does love men! The church does love Jesus Christ! But the church cannot win this fight upon mere sentiment. She cannot win this fight upon church resolutions. She cannot win this fight by singing Gospel hymns to the saloon keeper. She cannot do this by the mushy palaver of temperance lecturers who stand for the license of the liquor traffic in the land. (Applause.) It cannot be done that way, I tell you.

Now, what is your testimony—what do you prove? You say, "I am a Christian man, by the grace of God." Yes, but don't you know that that is the mistiest word in politics? A Christian man! By a fair calculation of the chances, you are in favor of licensed saloons at some price, because ninety-eight per cent of the men who profess themselves Christians, at the general election vote silence upon the question of the liquor traffic and the saloon. Silence! License! They are Siamese Twins. They are the same letters, very similarly arranged. Silence is but another way of spelling license in this Christian land.

Ninety-eight per cent of the Christian men of this country are teaching that it is not necessary to be "dead square" with Jesus Christ on election day. God help you to see that, and keep it in your minds until you see what is your duty about it.

It is not true because I say it. Look it over yourself; find out whether or not it is right, and then stand for it, though it wreck your party—though it wreck your church; stand for the truth, and for God, and for the home, and for the country, by the light that is shed into your intellect by the spirit of God, and refuse to be guided against your duty by any set of men. (Prolonged applause).

What do you prove? You say you abhor the saloon? Yes, but the saloon has been living these many years on unexpressed abhorence.

What do you prove? You say that you feel! That doesn't make any difference. Who ever heard a lawyer ask a witness what he felt about law? The church is fairly giddy with "feelers."

What do you prove? You say, "I hope." That is a good thing, my friends. Hold on to your hope. But one fact in this business would be worth a whole rainbow of hopes.

What do you prove? You say that you sympathize! That makes no difference. How we learned to hate that word during the war. One soldier, with a gun, who would shoot, was worth a dozen "sympathizers" in those awful days of '61.

What do you prove? You say you are as good a prohibitionist as there is in the land. That is right. Do you vote for it? "No!" Why? "Because I am afraid I will help the prohibition party, and that is so small a thing that it is equivalent in these times to throwing my vote away: and I am not willing to throw my vote away. And so it seems to me best to choose the best one of the parties that at present are for license, and stand in the main with them."

Don't be afraid that I am going to discuss party politics. Not at all. I don't care a fig about it.

It is election day. The saloon is in power and in favor in this Christian land, and by the terms its tenure of office holds over until its successor is elected and qualified. Naturally enough it does not put its name on any ballot. Naturally enough it does not ask for any express nomination. The curse of God upon its father, the first tempter still abides! "Because thou hast done this, upon thy belly shalt thou crawl, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life!"

But the saloon upon its belly has wriggled to the top of the peoples' throne in this country and dares tonight to erect its slimy head and give its orders to you, and you, and you, and you.

In the name of God, put a stop to that and refuse to take a word of that kind of politics, from this on, in Ohio or elsewhere. (Applause).

Who will contest the place of the saloon in American politics? Jesus Christ is in the field. Not the republican party; not the prohibition party; not the democratic party; not the people's party; not the W. C. T. U. This is the cause of Jesus Christ. It will never be won by bad men; never won by scheming politicians; never won at all until we educate the world to respect the church of Jesus Christ and make them believe that we believe in Him ourselves.

Laban Pennock was called here from Adrian by the illness of his mother, Mrs. Mary Pennock, who resides in Brownville. She is very ill and fears are entertained for her recovery.

OVER THE RIVER.

Polly Eddy was born on the old farm at Newburg, August 24, 1849, where she passed the earlier years of her life. When about ten years old her parents moved to this village and she resided here until her marriage. On March 18, 1871, she gave her heart and hand in wedlock to Wm. A. Wood, and they continued to live here for a few months thereafter. The family then moved to Cleveland and after four years' residence there returned to Tecumseh and made this village their home for about six years. Since then they have lived at Lorain and Ubrichville, Ohio. In January last Mrs. Wood was taken violently ill at her home in Ubrichville, and on the 12th inst. the death angel summoned her to her final reward. The funeral obsequies were conducted at the residence of Mrs. C. A. Stacy, an aunt of the deceased, on the 14th, and the remains were placed in the Tecumseh cemetery vault to await future burial.

This brief recital tells the simple story of her life. But who can tell the sorrow of friends or the anguish of a loving husband caused by her death? Measured by years alone her earthly journey was uneventful; measured by good deeds, kind words and cheerful smiles, how many, many blessings she scattered along its pathway! Left an orphan by the death of her father in the war, her whole life thereafter was devoted to her widowed mother and to her husband. Never blessed with children, her undivided affection and toil were bestowed upon them. To do the daily duty at hand was her highest ambition, and she filled the place of wife and daughter as few women in this vain world can do. Faithful to every duty here below, when the summons came she was prepared to go. Father, mother and sisters all preceded her to the better land and Polly has now joined the dear ones who have gone before.

"I hear a voice you cannot hear,
Which says I must not stay;
I see a hand you cannot see,
Which beckons me away."

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

There is no school to-day as it is a legal holiday.

David Zoluff, wife and daughter are on the sick list.

Joe Russell shipped two car loads of stock to Buffalo last Friday.

Mesdames Neil Exelby and Will Babcock, of Britton, were in town yesterday.

Bert Day attended the Prohibition state convention held at Lansing yesterday.

W. F. Stimpson has been in Milan the greater part of this week. He expects to return Monday.

There is some talk of a new industry being established here—a bicycle factory. We sincerely hope it may prove a fact.

The "old folks social" at the home of J. L. Richard's in Raisin, on Tuesday evening, was largely attended and a grand success.

The ladies social of the Universalist church will be held Thursday next, Feb. 28. Supper as usual at 5 p. m. All are invited.

John R. Clark has filled ten engagements thus far in Michigan this winter and is booked for eight more. He goes next week to New York and Pennsylvania.

Mrs. George Osgood, who has been so ill of pneumonia for some time, passed away at her home in Ridgeway, Wednesday at nightfall. The funeral was held this afternoon.

John Heaney, Jr., of Columbus, Ohio, arrived Friday for a visit with his people in Raisin. John attended school here and takes the HERALD that he may know about his old class mates. He is now connected with a wholesale coal company there and likes his position. He will remain until the last of next week.

THE ORDER EASTERN STAR.

Their Reception to Visiting Chapters at the Temple Last Evening.

Masonic Temple presented a scene last evening that will be long remembered by those who were permitted to be present. Tecumseh Chapter order of the Eastern Star had invited the Officers of the adjoining Chapters to be present at this special meeting and they responded grandly. 30 from Manchester and 25 from Clinton came down on the afternoon train, and were met by committees at Chicago street, and conducted to the rooms, where they were entertained socially until the hour for convening the chapter. Supper was served from 5:30 till 8 o'clock, and over 200 were partakers of the feast, and it was a feast such as the Tecumseh ladies are noted for providing. The Chapter was opened by the officers of Tecumseh Chapter, after which the chairs were vacated, and the officers of Manchester Chapter took them and proceeded to exemplify the beautiful ritual of the Order in a manner which delighted the vast assembly. Certainly it was almost faultlessly rendered, and the candidates, of which there were four, must have been impressed with the excellence of the work done. Everyone seemed to catch the inspiration of the occasion, and both entertainers and visitors were drawn together by an indissoluble bond, that we trust may continue. We will now endeavor to give a list of those present from other Chapters, and if perchance we may omit any it will not be intentional. Manchester Chapter was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spafford, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Conklin, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Ottenberger. Mesdames Freeman, Iddings, Lapham, Root, Robinson, Amsden, Bailey, Farrel, Blosser, Eva Spafford, Kotts, Aylesworth, Essery, Goodell, Jaynes, Millen, Chan Millen, Corey, McCord, Bregel, Short, and the Misses Lovejoy, Aylesworth, Gordonier, Blosser and Osborne. Clinton Chapter, by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Kies, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kishpaugh, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Niblack, Mesdames Kishpaugh, Rogers, VanDeMark, E. R. Smith, Nase, Grace Smith, Hard, White, Harry Davis, Kos Davis, Johnston; the Misses Christine, Anna, Mary and Louise Martiny, Louise VanDeMark, Nellie Kishpaugh, and Fred C. Martiny.

There were four from Onsted, whose names we have not been able to get, and Mrs. Stewart and one more from Dundee; Wm. Wiggins and wife from Adrian; and from abroad we saw Wm. R. Bresie, of Decatur, Ill., and C. E. Johnson, of Logansport, Ind. After the Chapter closed the time was passed in social converse until train time, when the farewells were spoken and all returned to their respective homes, feeling they had passed a delightful evening and hoping that it might be their privilege to enjoy many more such gatherings.

RAISIN VALLEY SEMINARY.

J. E. Beal spent Sunday at home.

Rev. Mott is moving to the Bailey property this week.

Mr. Buford spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Comfort.

Miss Edwards spent Sunday with May Taylor at Tecumseh.

Miss Olive Mead, '94, gave her Seminary friends a visit Friday.

The class in plane geometry and chemistry took examinations Tuesday.

Some of the Sem. students gave Miss Lillian Miller a surprise Tuesday evening.

W. F. Hill has been absent from school the past week on account of sickness.

F. S. Hartman, one of our last year's scholars, visited friends at the Sem. Friday and Saturday.

The egotistic look which our Principal gave us Friday morning in collection was accounted for by the announcement of a Valentine. It is a boy.

HOUSEKEEPERS who are wise will not be persuaded into the purchase of the unreliable baking powders which some dealers wish to sell for the sake of the additional profit derived therefrom. Crudely mixed from low-grade, impure ingredients, such powders cost but half as much to make as the highly refined, absolutely pure Royal Baking Powder, although retailed at the same price. They are unwholesome and lacking in leavening strength.

Royal Baking Powder gives the greatest value for its cost, and there is no other powder or preparation that will give such satisfaction, or make such pure, wholesome and delicious food, or which in practical use will be found so economical.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

"Charley's Aunt."

Dr. L. Barnes is seriously ill.

D. C. Larned is on the sick list.

Charles Heck was in Detroit Monday.

Percy Fitzsimmons made a trip to Detroit Tuesday.

Edward Keeler, of Morenci, received the republican nomination for county commissioner of schools.

The graphophone concert at the M. E. church Monday evening is under the auspices of the Epworth League.

There will be a special meeting of Tecumseh Lodge at the Temple Saturday evening. Work in the 3d degree.

Don't forget the graphophone concert by J. B. Coller at the M. E. church Monday evening at 7:30. Admission, 10 cents.

We are pleased to announce that Mont Rowland has had his hair cut, and feel well repaid for the part we took in bringing it about. We trust others will go and do likewise.

There will be a meeting of Acme Council, No. 101, Independent Order of Orients, at Odd Fellows' hall next Thursday evening. It is expected this will be an unusually pleasant session.

Owing to the critical illness of John Stella the children were summoned home, Will and Stella from Morenci and Raynor from Ypsilanti. Although he still lives, there is very little hopes of his recovery.

The prohibition county convention, held at Adrian last Monday, treated Tecumseh people very liberally. Wm. Smith and Bert Day were chosen delegates, and Rev. J. P. Varner, J. H. Osborn, and Mrs. N. M. Sutton, alternates.

Barkwell & Stickle, successors to C. H. Rude, come well recommended and we feel safe in saying to our citizens that their laundry will be nicely done by them, as it has been by Charlie in the past. We bespeak for them your patronage.

The glove contest at the Armory Saturday night between Jack Moore, of Jackson, and Jimmie Cook, of this place, proved to be a very tame affair. The exhibition which followed, between Moore and his backer, Jake Snyder, was more spirited. At the last minute the admission was placed at 25 cents. Had they so announced earlier there would have been no doubt a large attendance, but the town is not large enough to charge 50 cents for sport of this kind.

Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock the dry goods firm of Anderson & Co. gave their annual supper to their employees and wives at their store, and, if possible, this exceeded all former ones. The tables were arranged in the east store and were under the supervision of Mrs. S. W. Anderson. The tables fairly groaned under their weight of both substantials and delicacies, and it is seldom that a more happy company gather around the board. The only outsiders present were Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Brown and Mr. Web Anderson. Twenty-two were at the tables.

We are pained to announce the serious accident which befell Dick VanDuser, the 12-year-old son of Mrs. Richard VanDuser, of East Chicago street. Last Saturday afternoon he, with many others, were coasting down the Brownville hill, and one of the boys, thoughtlessly but not maliciously, put a rail across the track at the foot of the hill, which was not noticed by Dick in time to avoid it, and he was thrown into the air, and before he could gather himself together was struck in the side by another sled and hurt internally. He was taken to a house near by and Dr. Woodward summoned. He bled profusely internally. He was taken to his home Monday and still lies in a critical condition. It is a sad blow to Mrs. VanDuser, who lost her husband two years ago and a son, nearly to manhood grown, about one year ago.

"Charley's Aunt."

A. M. Keeney, of Adrian, was in town Tuesday.

Go and see "Charley's Aunt" tonight at the opera house.

There was a goodly number down from Clinton Saturday.

Albert S. Hayden, of Milan, is assisting in caring for his sister Clara.

Roy Burlingame severed his connection with Kennedy and Rogers, Saturday.

Clarence Conklin returned to Napoleon, O., Monday, a full-fledged Master Mason.

Mrs. Elizabeth Keyser is the guest of Horatio Keyser and family of west Chicago street.

One hundred and twenty-five persons took supper at the M. E. church last Wednesday evening.

The Wit and Wisdom Club met with Mrs. C. A. Slayton on Pottawatamie street, Monday evening.

We hear with regret that E. J. Hollister and family expect to leave us in the spring for Norwalk, Ohio.

Mrs. E. R. Crossman has returned to us from Detroit and now occupies the Slayton house on Pearl street.

Abel Whitney, who is still a resident of Adrian, opened his first drug store in that city just sixty years ago.

Company C will serve supper at the Armory next week Thursday evening, for 10 cents. Everybody come.

John Hause and C. C. Rowland, of Clinton, and C. D. Avery of Jackson, attended Masonic Lodge Saturday eve.

Mrs. T. S. Applegate is attending the Press Association meeting at Detroit this week. She is down on the program for a paper.

Newberry Satterthwaite says the way he came to be in Clinton a week ago Sunday was, he drove Bert Garlinghouse over.

William Smith left home Wednesday night for Lansing to attend the Prohibition state convention, which was held in that city yesterday.

Rev. A. F. Bruske, D. D. of Alma, will occupy the Presbyterian pulpit next Sunday, in place of the pastor, who is attending the conference of the Y. M. C. A. at Northville.

Next Tuesday evening Rev. C. M. Brown will give his illustrated lecture on Japan at Springville, and on Thursday evening the same lecture at his church in Tecumseh.

C. D. Avery and wife, of Jackson, were the guests of John J. Orr and wife over Sunday. Charlie left Monday morning for a trip, but Mrs. Avery remained until yesterday.

Sam McClure has sold his interest to Henry and goes to Adrian, he having purchased an interest in the jobbing house of Clark, Mason & Co. He will take the road for them.

Alva Spayde's shoe business is increasing so rapidly that he is obliged to have more shelf room. He will raise the shelving up to the ceiling and put in a sliding step ladder.

Mrs. Dr. J. B. Haines, Mrs. H. A. Stewart and Miss Gertrude Haines, of Dundee, visited Mrs. Wm. Ide, and attended the Eastern Star last evening. They returned home today.

John Orr recently received some perfume that bids fair to eclipse all the popular perfumes of the day. It is quite expensive, but very pungent and lasting. A little of it will go a great ways.

Wm. Pilbeam lost a fine cow Sunday evening, she caught her horn in a hay chute, and in trying to extricate herself, slipped in such a way as to bring her neck over the manger, and before help arrived she had choked to death.

The fifth lecture in the series entitled the "Wonderful Nazarene" was given last Sabbath evening by Rev. C. M. Brown. It embraced the first part of his second years' ministry. About forty views were shown. It was the best lecture of the series thus far given.

Addie McDermott and two young lady friends from Clinton were driving down here Sunday afternoon. After passing Jonas Waldron's the cutter upset and they were spilled out. The horse was caught by A. T. Gage in Brownville, who fixed the cutter so it would hold, and drove back for the ladies and they were able to complete their trip. This was another upset without any serious results.

Sunday afternoon Will Mobbs and Wade Waring started for Clinton with a cutter; before reaching Jonas Waldron's they upset and the horse wheeled, started back to town, and brought up in Captain Chilson's yard. The boys fortunately were not seriously injured, and had the pleasure of walking back to town; not to be bluffed off in this way, they took a carriage and drove to Clinton and thus were enabled to keep their engagements.

Chas. H. Rude has sold the steam laundry to Barkwell & Stickle, of Mt. Pleasant, and gave possession Wednesday. The new firm are young men and we extend to them a hearty welcome. Although Mr. Rude has not been here many years, he and his estimable wife have become well acquainted and made many friends who will regret to have them move away. While in the laundry they, by the excellence of the work done, built up an enviable business, and, we trust, a profitable one. We hope they may decide to remain citizens here and embark in some branch of trade that will be for their advantage.

"Charley's Aunt."

The board of registration will meet next week, Saturday, March 2d.

The village election will come one week from next Monday, March 4th.

Read what our Pentecost correspondent says on the winter care of poultry.

Many farmers are complaining of dry cisterns, and dry wells too for that matter.

Miss May Hall is the guest of the family of Wm. H. Wiggins at Adrian this week.

Mrs. Ed DePuy, of Saline, was the guest of Jehiel Davidson's family last Saturday.

"Charley's Aunt" will doubtless draw a crowded house tonight. It is said to be a superior play.

Turn out and give the Epworth League a fine benefit Monday evening. The entertainment will please you.

Rev. C. M. Brown is a delegate to the Y. M. C. A. district convention, which meets at Northville, Feb. 22, 23 and 24. He is down on the program.

Miss Monaghan and her sister, Mrs. Sherwood, spent last Sunday with Mrs. Irv. Finch, of Adrian. They are visiting Tecumseh friends this week before returning to Marshall.

Alva Spayde's removal last fall proved to be a good business move. His trade from Oct. 1st to Jan. 1st last was the largest of any three months since he began business in Tecumseh.

At the Republican county convention held at Adrian last Saturday, H. W. Stevens, of Tecumseh, was chosen one of the delegates to the state convention. He went to Detroit yesterday for that purpose.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society will meet in the M. E. church parlor on Wednesday, Feb. 27, at 3 p. m. After the business meeting a short program will be rendered. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The dates for the coming state convention of the Michigan Christian Endeavor Union, at Bay City, have been fixed as March 26, 27 and 28. It is expected it will be the largest gathering of the kind ever held in Michigan.

Dan Hubbard was called to Hartford, Van Buren county, last week by the illness of his little daughter, Goldie. She was stricken with scarlet fever. Dan writes she is some better, but cannot say when he will be able to return.

Dr. Parkhurst's first article to women in The Ladies' Home Journal has proved so popular that the entire huge edition of the Febuary issue of the magazine was exhausted within ten days, and a second edition of 45,000 copies has been printed.

Kennedy & Rogers have an announcement this week, in which all householders will be interested. An expert coffee maker will be with them on March 1st, who will serve free coffee and blanc mange pudding to all callers. Remember the day, ladies.

The Michigan Press Association held their mid-winter meeting at Detroit, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. It was a business session wholly, and many interesting papers were read, followed by instructive discussions. We regret our inability to attend.

Henry H. Keyser received yesterday morning from Will P. Gate, of Thornton, Washington, six bushels of seed oats of a new variety called the Pride of the Valley. They are called the white milling oat, are large, heavy oat, fine for making oat meal and were raised in the famous Palouse Valley.

The meeting of the Raisin Teachers' Association advertised for Feb. 9, and postponed on account of the storm, will be held on Saturday, March 2, '95, in Dist. No. 5, two miles south of Tecumseh, beginning at 10 o'clock. Papers will be presented by Mr. Collins, Misses Millspaugh and Ostrander and Rev. C. M. Brown, of Tecumseh, will give an address. All teachers, patrons and others interested in education are cordially invited. Entertainment will be furnished.

The charter of the First National Bank having expired, it will hereafter be a private bank, known as Peter De Puy's Banking House. Mr. DePuy has been connected with the First National Bank eighteen years, and owned $46,000 worth of stock, out of $50,000. Mr. DePuy started in the grocery business here some forty or fifty years ago without any capital, and by close economy is now able to draw his check for $100,000. The bank will remain in the same location, and Mr. C. D. Whitenack, the former clerk and book-keeper, will be retained as cashier.—The Nunda News, Nunda, N. Y. Mr. DePuy is a nephew of P. S. DePuy of this place.

We clip the following from the Evening Telegram of last Friday. The deceased had many acquaintances here in Tecumseh who will learn of his death with sincere regret. John W. Bowen died this morning at his residence, corner of Locust and Butler streets, from consumption, aged 69 years. The deceased moved here from Lenawee Junction some two years ago, having lived there many years. He leaves a wife, three sons and a daughter to mourn his loss. M. H. lives at home with his parents in this city, John W. occupies the old home farm in Palmyra, William resides in Wisconsin, and the daughter, Mrs. Pope, lives near Wellsville. The deceased was an uncle of Henry Bowen, jr., and Williard Stearns. The funeral will be held at the residence Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and Rev. Geo. Humphrey, of Palmyra, will officiate.

Mrs. W. W. Marsh is very low.

Sheriff Ed Wilson, of Adrian, was in town yesterday.

Frank Pilbeam, of Big Rapids, is visiting his father who is sick.

Mrs. N. M. Sutton is visiting her daughters in Detroit this week.

Frank L. Temple visited the west branch school yesterday afternoon.

Lena Arnold, in honor of her birthday, entertained a company, numbering twenty-four of her young friends, last evening.

Wm. R. Brosie, of Decatur, Ill., and Chas. E. Johnson, of Logansport, Ind., came to attend the Star meeting last evening.

Hudson Davenport and Miss Lee Snow attended the wedding of Fred Clarke and Jennie Snow at Clinton, Wednesday evening.

J. N. Simonds, of Raisin, after a long illness passed away Wednesday morning. The funeral was held at his late residence this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

John R. Clark was in town yesterday on his way to Britton, where he lectured last evening. He made the HERALD office a pleasant call. He dined with N. M. Sutton.

Little Rob Rogers was the victim of a surprise Monday evening. About twenty of his young friends walked in on him, and for a time they made Rome howl; it was a very happy company of little folks.

Mrs. J. H. Mills, who is greatly enfeebled by paralysis, had a very serious choking spell yesterday morning, and it seemed for some moments that she would die. She rallied and is quite comfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hoag celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary last evening at their residence in this village. About fifty guests were present, and a most delightful occasion it proved to be to all who participated.

Frank Davidson has favored us with a copy of the Christmas number of the Traverse City Herald. It is the finest souvenir edition of a Michigan newspaper that has yet come under our notice. It is issued in pamphlet form, with an edition of five thousand copies.

Next Sunday evening at the Methodist church Rev. J. P. Varner will begin a series of sermons on the following subjects: "Judas and his relation to Jesus; The Inspiration of the Bible; Infidelity; Whisperers." These sermons will be given on successive Sunday evenings.

The following received recently from a former Tecumsehite will be of interest to all our old settlers:

MT. MORRIS, N. Y., Feb. 9, '95.

EDITOR HERALD:—How time passes, as you will see by enclosed card of our 40th anniversary, Feb. 13th. During all that time I have never been without the HERALD, always a most welcome visitor. From week to months and years. I note the changes, in many ways; some are sad ones and some of gladness. Comparatively few remain that were there in their prime when I left the dear old home—now so vacant. Tecumseh has always been to me a cherished spot and its people dear to me. In all town improvements I have taken an interest, and always shall.

MRS. JACOB TALLMAN.

—More sleighing now and its just the time to get a good bargain on a cutter or sleigh. I have a few to sell at a low price. C. A. SLAYTON.

—For a big white loaf
And a light loaf, too,
You'll use the Globe Mill's Flours.
They are best for the price,
And are twice as nice
As those that compete with ours.

—Call at the Tecumseh Steam Laundry and see the new improvements in machinery, and notice the elegance of the work done and you will leave your work. C. H. RUDE.

—I have put in a new machine for making cob meal, by grinding cobs and all. Your feed will go much farther. Come and try it. CHAS. HECK.

—Fine Photographs that suit, at low prices, at BROWN'S PHOTO. PARLORS, near the Opera House, Adrian, Mich.

—Call at the new Meat Market and let us show you what we can do.

—Feed grinding every day at Steam Mills; 7 cents per bag.
CHAS. HECK.

—Temple is doing finer work than ever. He has finer mouldings and a larger assortment of them, with prices within the reach of everyone. Call and be convinced.

—For the best steak, roast, sausage and everything else in the meat line, call at the new market, west of J. D. Kinney & Co's. furniture store, MITCHELL & CLARK.

—I keep on hand sausage, lard and everything in the meat line. Call at my market and let us get acquainted.
W. W. SHURTZ.

—For fresh and salt meats of all kinds, call at my Market, Dickinson's old stand. W. W. SHURTZ.

—Farmers remember nature's power is always ready to assist in grinding your feed at the Globe Mills.

"Don't you think," said the gushful girl, "that wearing glasses makes a man look intellectual?"

"It all depends," replied the active worker in the W. C. T. U., "on whether he wears the glasses over his eyebrows or his moustache."

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package. also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

PARDONED BY GOV. RICH.

Harold O. Henderson Given His Freedom After Serving Two Years.

LANSING, Feb. 20.—Gov. Rich, upon recommendation of the pardon board, has issued a pardon for Harold O. Henderson, convicted of burglary and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Henderson is a civil engineer, a graduate of Yale and has wealthy parents in California, who have not heard of their son's disgrace. Henderson, while calling upon a married woman, was attacked by her husband, and in his eagerness to escape jumped through a window. He had in his possession the woman's watch, and the husband had him arrested for burglary. For fear of blasting the wife's reputation Henderson would not explain his presence in the house and was convicted. He has served two years of his term. Since his incarceration the woman and her husband have separated, her actions being such, it is said, as to have caused this result, and the husband has been one of the most earnest pleaders for Henderson's pardon.

SLAIN BY MEXICAN BANDITS.

G. R. Morrison, of Detroit, Murdered and Robbed Near Cordoba.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 20.—G. R. Morrison, an American, residing in Detroit, Mich., was killed by Mexican bandits about 50 miles south of Cordoba, two days ago. He was on his way to inspect coffee lands, with a view to investing in them, when the outlaws made the attack upon him. He was robbed of a considerable amount of money. Four of the bandits have been captured and will be shot.

Death of a Pioneer.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Feb. 20.—William Smythe Farmer, who died Tuesday morning at Benton Harbor, was 80 years old, and always an influential worker in church, municipal and political affairs. Through his efforts a mail route by carrier was established in the '30s from Niles to St. Joseph, via Eau Claire and Benton Harbor, then Brunson Corners. He came here in 1848. Through his efforts the Elkhart & Lake Michigan railway was incorporated, and later the Big Four branch to this point, via Elkhart, was established.

Dry Sunday in Detroit.

DETROIT, Feb. 19.—Sunday was the dryest Lord's day this city has ever known. A week ago Judge Chapin announced that hereafter he would send to jail, instead of fining, every man convicted of violation of the liquor law. A recent decision of the supreme court showed that any room connected with a saloon, even though distant three or four doors, must be closed under the reading of the law. Also that any hotelkeeper who sent a man into the bar to get liquor for his guests was guilty of a violation of the law.

C. H. Hackley for University Regent.

MUSKEGON, Feb. 19.—The republican county convention Monday selected a delegation to the state convention at Detroit pledged to the nomination of Charles H. Hackley for regent of the University of Michigan. Mr. Hackley is one of Muskegon's millionaire lumbermen and has given over $500,000 in this city for the cause of education.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 13.—In the senate Thursday bills were introduced appropriating $10,000 for the erection of a statue to the late Gov. Austin Blair upon the state capitol grounds; abolishing days of grace on commercial paper; providing a station house for women in cities of 10,000 inhabitants or upward, to be in charge of a police matron; for a reformatory prison for women; abolishing the office of commissioner of mineral statistics; for the use of the Abbott voting machine at all elections in the state.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 14.—In the senate a bill was introduced to prevent publishers from collecting pay for a publication taken from the post office after the time for which the subscription was given has expired. Bills were introduced for the introduction of voting machines; for the divorce of persons becoming insane and for their restoration to marital rights on recovering soundness of mind, providing the other party remains unmarried. February 28 is the last day for introduction of bills, and this order will occupy both houses principally until after that date.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 15.—The fifty days in which bills can be introduced in the legislature will expire Wednesday at midnight and the reception of bills now takes up the entire time of each house. The indications are the total number of bills to be introduced will equal, if not exceed, that of two years ago, which was the largest in the history of the state. One of the bills introduced in the house Monday is aimed at Mayor Pingree. It making it unlawful for any person to fill the office of mayor more than three term in cities having a population of more than 50,000. Altogether there were 326 bills introduced in the house on Monday, among them the following: Prohibiting alien stockholders of corporations from participation in the election of the board of directors; prohibiting aliens from practicing medicine; prohibiting the employment of aliens by corporations; prohibiting the insurance of children under 16 years of age; appropriating $30,000 for establishing a state normal school at Bay City; prohibiting the granting of teachers' certificates to persons using tobacco in any form; for an interchangeable system of railroad mileage; for use of the Osborne voting machine; establishing a state weather service and appropriating $4,200 therefor.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 20.—In the senate Tuesday the free silver resolution was the special order, but its consideration was postponed until February 26. The qestion of an investigation into the affairs of the deaf and dumb institute at Flint was made a special order for Wednesday next.

House.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 15.—The house on Thursday, by a vote of 54 to 33, refused to submit to the people a constitutional amendment increasing the salaries of state officers, it requiring a two-thirds vote of all the members elect. The vote was reconsidered, however, and the measure tabled. The most important bills introduced were for prohibiting the co-insurance clauses and all other "riders" on fire insurance policies; making the liquor tax in cities and villages of from 5,000 to 10,000 inhabitants $500, and $1,000 in cities having a population in excess of that number, fixing a 5-mile limit about the university in which intoxicating liquors may not be sold; providing for the teaching in public schools of modes of spreading dangerous communicable diseases and the best methods of restricting and preventing them.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 16.—The most important action by the house Friday was the passage of a bill for registration in the entire state previous to the spring election. Under the law just passed to conform to the constitutional amendment adopted last fall, every foreign-born citizen must take oath that he is a full citizen of the United States before he can register. If challenged. A bill was introduced abolishing contract labor in prisons and providing that the convicts be worked on state account. The committee on municipal corporations made a unanimous report recommending the passage of the anti-Pingree Detroit health board bill, which passed the senate.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 20.—By a vote of 65 to 21 the house on Tuesday passed the senate bill authorizing the governor to appoint a new health board for the city of Detroit. There is no doubt the governor will approve the measure. Bills were introduced as follows: Increasing the tax on liquors; providing a bounty of $100 each to surviving veterans of the late war; abolishing the present state board of health and creating a new one, in which the secretary of the board is prohibited from being a member; providing for the appointment of an assistant attorney general at a salary of $2,000 per year; for the township unit school system; providing a one-fifteenth mill tax for the support of state normal school; abolishing the medical department at the state university; appropriating $2,000 for the holding of dairymen's state institutes; providing a bounty of two cents per pound on beet sugar; establishing a state hospital for consumptives; providing a state board of medical examiners.

Michigan Workmen Make Gains.

KALAMAZOO, Feb. 20.—The grand lodge Ancient Order United Workmen of Michigan was in session here Tuesday. The reports show that the membership was increased 364 in the year and now has 22,652 members. Twenty-five new lodges have been organized during the year. There was paid in beneficiaries for 226 deaths $131,227. The total amount paid since organization is $3,018,000. Over 100 were given the grand lodge degree. There were 250 delegates present. They meet next year in Detroit.

Was of Royal Blood.

ALLEGAN, Feb. 18.—Another Allegan pioneer has passed away—Amasa Weaver—who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Rose. He was born at Deerfield, N. Y., November 5, 1808, and came to Allegan in 1859. Mr. Weaver served in the union army under Gens. Scott and Shields. He was of royal blood, being a grandson of King William Webber, of Holland. He was public spirited and an estimable citizen.

Found Guilty.

TAWAS CITY, Feb. 15.—The jury trying the case of Julius Fischer, ex-policeman of Bay City, brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter and recommended the prisoner to the mercy of the court. Fischer shot and killed a young man by the name of Max Drifke at a country dance last August.

Big Deal in Lumber.

MENOMINEE, Feb. 20.—The Bay Shore Lumber company has sold 150 carloads of lumber to an eastern firm, and it will be shipped to Tonawanda via the Ann Arbor ferries as soon as these boats resume their trips, which will be early in March.

Cut in Two.

WALDRON, Feb. 18.—Frank Pierce was instantly killed in Treat's sawmill. The saw had became loose. Pierce tried to fix it while the machinery was in motion. He fell upon the saw, which cut his body in two lengthwise. He leaves a wife and family.

Death of George Torrey.

KALAMAZOO, Feb. 20.—George Torrey, one of the oldest inhabitants in this county and in newspaper work in this city for over fifty years, died here Tuesday morning.

ADVENTISTS REACHING OUT.

In Two Years 5,000 Persons Have Become Members and Accepted the Faith.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 18.—The general conference of the Seventh Day adventists convened here Friday. There were 125 delegates present, representing forty state conferences and mission fields. During the last year the denomination has increased over 5,000 members. Seven churches have been built and twelve schools and colleges erected. At the present time eighteen persons are under appointment for different fields as medical missionaries. A medical mission has been established in Mexico and is doing good work. President Olson recommended larger plans for the work among the colored people of the south. Australia is considered by President Olson as a most favorable field of labor. The conference will be in session three weeks.

The fiftieth annual session of the International Sabbath School association convened here Sunday. There are now 47,819 children in the Sabbath schools of the Seventh-Day Adventists, an increase of nearly 2,000 the last year. During the year just closed the children have donated $39,249.62 for foreign missions.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 19.—At the Adventist conference here Monday reports were received from district superintendents. Good progress was reported. The southern states, which have but recently been invaded by this denomination, reported remarkable progress, especially in educational work. The Adventists are making many converts among the colored people in that section.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 20.—The Pacific coast district and foreign district reported at the Adventist conference Tuesday. The last year has been unusually prosperous for the denomination on the coast, while in Europe it has more than doubled in numbers. Dr. J. H. Kellogg presented a report of the Battle Creek sanitarium, which showed the net earnings for the year to be $30,000, all of which has been expended for improvements and charity.

ROUSES LABOR UNIONS.

Federation Executive Committee Urges Action on Desired Laws.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 18.—The executive committee of the Michigan Federation of Labor, consisting of John D. Flanigan, of this city, president of the federation; H. C. Barter, of Detroit, and William Crewe, of this city, has drafted an address to the working men of the state, which will be sent out to all labor organizations in the state and to the labor leaders, as well as to the members of the legislature and others. The address defines what legislation the labor organizations desire and concludes:

"In accordance with this idea the Michigan Federation of Labor has had the following measures introduced into the legislature, copies of which will be mailed to affiliated unions: "A bill to protect motormen; a bill to provide for the branding or marking of convict-made goods offered for sale or imported within the state of Michigan; a bill abolishing the contract system in state penal and reformatory institutions; a joint resolution embodying the principles of the initiative and referendum; a child labor bill; a bill to provide for the submission to juries in negligent cases of the question of the contributory negligence of the plaintiff therein; a bill to regulate the liability of employers for injuries to their employes and prescribing certain penalties for the violation thereof; a bill to establish a lien upon the property of employers for injuries received by their employes, for which such employers may be liable in damages; a bill for the better protection of union labels; a bill making eight hours a legal work day.

"The above are all good measures and organized labor and its friends should see to their passage. Affiliated unions should appoint committees to wait on senators and representatives in their several localities with a view of enlisting their support. All must work in unison so there will be no excuse for senators and representatives making the plea that they were ignorant of the wishes of the industrial masses."

GONE ON HIS LONG VOYAGE.

William Mees, One of the Oldest of Lake Navigators, Is Dead.

MUSKEGON, Feb. 15.—William Mees, the oldest captain on the lakes, died here Thursday morning. Two weeks ago he wrote a history of early navigation on Muskegon lake for ex-Lieut. Gov. Holt.

[Capt. Mees was born in Somersetshire, England, in 1806. At 12 he embarked on a small craft and sailed for Quebec. He arrived in Chicago eight months later and began his perilous career on Lake Michigan. His gallant action in rescuing the crew of the Norway is vividly remembered by many old inhabitants, and numerous tales of his adventures are told.]

Health Commissioner Exonerated.

DETROIT, Feb. 17.—At a special meeting of the board of health Saturday night after considerable discussion a resolution was adopted exonerating Health Commissioner McLeod so far as the present evidence goes from the charges of directing suppression or postponement of the reporting of cases of smallpox, as charged by Dr. Riopel, ex-examining physician of the board.

It is chickenpox and not a theory that confronts Mayor Pingree.

THE ONWARD MARCH

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't waited beyond reason, there's complete recovery and cure.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of the dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N.Y.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

BY WILLIAM ROSSER CORBE.

The father of his country took the greatest possible interest throughout his life in all matters relating to internal improvements, and busied himself in furthering measures designed for the public good. There is now in existence in Norfolk, Va., or was a short time ago, an organization known as the Dismal Swamp company, of which George Washington was the first president, and its existence has been continuous since his time. This company has for its object the drainage of the vast and fertile swamp lands of eastern North Carolina and Virginia, and the present Dismal Swamp canal was the outcome of that movement. Washington, in the enumeration of his assets, in a paper attached to his last will, mentions a large amount of stock held by him in the Dismal Swamp company, which had purchased a very large tract of the swamp land, all of which has not yet passed out of its hands. He more than once visited the property, which was then almost inaccessible, and which lies in near proximity to picturesque Lake Drummond, made immortal by Thomas Moore.

The fifteen years following his marriage are usually termed years of seclusion by the historian; yet Washington took a most active part in political affairs in these years, was a member of the house of burgesses, and probably more than any other man contributed to the universal sentiment of hostility to the stamp act. Like Jefferson, he was not gifted in oratory, but he was regarded as a man of the most profound knowledge upon affairs of state, and his counsels were received with the highest favor by his associates. The last nine years of the fifteen referred to, that is, from 1765 to 1774, were marked by almost constant agitation, ending in his election to congress, where he at once became chairman of the committee on military affairs. These alleged years of quiet and seclusion were a season of reflection, study, preparation and experience, a making ready for the trying times of 1775-1783, through which he passed with such honor as to win imperishable renown.

A story has been published several times within very recent years, to the effect that Washington, immediately after his retirement from the office of president, sent a friend to demand an apology from Jefferson for alleged defamation of character, under threat of a challenge to fight a duel. This account, which adds that Jefferson, in craven spirit, made abject submission, is as direct a libel upon the heroic author of the Declaration of Independence as it is a slander upon the character of Washington. The latter was undoubtedly opposed to dueling throughout his life. His views upon this subject were clearly set forth in a letter to La Fayette, evoked by a request from the latter for permission to "call out" some official who had offended him. The courage of Washington was so invincible and so universally admitted that, even in his young manhood, he dared to apologize to a neighbor who had knocked him down, rather than to do himself and his assailant the gross wrong of engaging in a deadly combat.

Washington was an example in temperance. Charitable as was his nature he could with difficulty find excuse for extravagance in conduct or appetite. In his boyhood he adopted a rule which he followed through life, namely: "Make no show of taking great delight in your victuals, neither find fault with what you eat." He was always a man of simple tastes at the table, eating cheerfully of what was set before him. His views on excess in drinking were frequently embodied in writing, and always in condemnation of the evil habit. His chief cause for grievance against a distinguished general of the army was the weakness of that officer in this direction, which was only too plainly shown upon a certain memorable occasion. Tobacco he literally abominated, not only never having used it himself, but also finding no excuse for others who persisted in smoking or chewing. It was a maxim of the illustrious man that the human creature owed it to himself and God to keep clean the body and the brain, that both might attain best possible results and do best possible work.

Washington was never a bright scholar at school and never was a learned man. He did not attempt to acquire a knowledge of the ancient classics, but did obtain a most intimate acquaintance with figures and was trained to methodical practical work, as the diary and detailed accounts he kept of his affairs throughout his life clearly proved. That he profited by his schooling and that he was a youth of far more than average ability are clearly proven in the fact that Lord Fairfax employed him at the age of sixteen to make surveys of his immense landed possessions in upper Virginia; a task that involved three years of arduous and dangerous labor.

Washington was a thoroughly practical and successful farmer, deviating from a universal rule of Virginia planters in being his own overseer and director, although, like them, he had a man who nominally filled that position. As a legislator Patrick Henry said of him in 1774, that "for solid information and sound judgment he was the greatest man in congress." He was the master spirit of the continental convention of 1787 and to his efforts almost solely are due the unification of the several states under a common government. Admittedly he would have saved Braddock, had his counsels been heeded, and as general of the American army his military genius excited the astonishment and admiration of the world. His career as civil ruler of the new nation won for him the applause of all rulers and the approval of an entire country. Washington's was a character that was nearly perfectly poised; yet great in everything, withal.

Like Lincoln, Washington was tall, and unlike him was very handsome. He was also possessed of great strength, that continued through life; and in his youth he excelled in all manly exercises. Throughout life he was an expert horseman and always attracted attention and excited admiration when riding a spirited animal.

No man could be more reasonable than Washington, or readier to give in when public interest was best subserved thereby; yet none could be more insistent than he, none more firm, when duty led in this direction.

A peculiarity of Washington was his ornate handwriting, which does violence to a commonly accepted idea that character and general individuality may be determined by one's chirography. As a fact Washington's personal tastes were very simple. When he became president there was some show of official display, but herein he followed a universal custom and one that in no sense reflected his own wishes and feelings. He believed that reserve and display are necessary to the preservation of proper regard for the high office of chief magistrate. The courtesy and deference he exacted as president he invariably accorded his successor when he became a private citizen.

FLY AN IMPORTANT FACTOR.

Jefferson was fond of telling a story which illustrates in a forcible manner the importance that absurdly insignificant matters may sometimes assume. When the deliberative body that gave the world the Declaration of Independence was in session its proceedings were conducted in a hall close to which was situated a livery stable. The weather was warm, and from the stable came swarms of flies that lighted on the legs of the honorable members, and biting through the thin silk stockings then in fashion gave infinite annoyance. It was no uncommon sight, said Jefferson, to see a member passing a speech with a large handkerchief in hand and pausing at every moment to thrash the flies from his thinly protected calves. The opinion of the body was not unanimous in favor of the document, and, under other circumstances, discussion might have been protracted for days, if not weeks, but the flies were intolerable. Efforts were made to find another hall, free from the pests, but in vain. As the weather became warmer the flies grew worse, and the flapping of handkerchiefs was heard all over the hall as an accompaniment to the voices of the speakers. In despair at last some one suggested that matters be hurried so that the body might adjourn and get away from the flies. There were a few mild protests, but no one heeded them, the immortal declaration was hurriedly copied, and, with the handkerchiefs in hand fighting flies as they came, the members hastened up to the table to sign the authentic copy and leave the flies in the lurch. Had it not been for the livery stable and its inmates there is no telling when the document would have been completed, but it certainly would not have been signed on the Fourth.

WASHINGTON LIVED HERE.

The little state of New Jersey, as every schoolboy knows, was the scene of many stirring events during the revolution, and almost every city, town and hamlet has, or claims to have, a landmark of which its inhabitants are very proud and delight to point out to visitors. While there is no doubt of the authenticity of the claims made for many of these places, they have certainly lost nothing by the traditions with which they are surrounded. As in many other parts of the country, however, some of these monuments which should have the greatest claims on the American people from a historical point of view have been neglected, apparently forgotten and allowed to go to decay and ruin. In the march of history and progress they have been lost sight of.

One of these is the old Berrian house at Rocky Hill. It was in this house that Washington resided for many months, and among other acts wrote his farewell address to the continental army. The house is an old-fashioned structure, with large square rooms and low ceilings to retain the heat from the hickory and oak logs burned in the big open fireplaces. At the time that Gen. Washington occupied the house it was the homestead of the family of Judge John Berrian, one of the oldest families in the state, which at that time owned vast tracts of land, obtained by grants from the crown. Judge Berrian, when the clash came, remained loyal to the American cause, and his house became a refuge for Gen. Washington on more than one occasion.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 28th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Elizabeth A. Rogers, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Adelia M. Wheeler, a sister of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to Charles Burridge, the executor in said instrument named, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday the 25th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is Further Ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee; for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

Several years ago an Adrian man was taken alarmingly ill and five physicians said that he possibly couldn't live but a little while. He is still among the living, while those five doctors all lie—in Oakwood cemetery.

Since a few western cold waves have strayed away from home and skipped so recklessly in the east and south the robin family has been all broken up and don't know which way to go in search of a mild climate.

Adrian's street car service is to be resumed in the near future, Receiver Snow having disposed of all the bond certificates. New motors have been purchased and the new management expect to form a loop when the road is once put in shape.

The leading churches of Adrian will join in a big union meeting March 3d. Chicago will furnish its best evangelist, also a vocalist. If Stearns and Grandon are converted the demons of darkness will wipe their eyes while the four and twenty elders say amen.—Addison Courier.

The old reliable lumber firm of Temple, McClure & Co., Tecumseh, has a change of advertisement for the spring season of '95. They have built up a splendid business by honest dealing and their accommodating spirit and hope for an increase of patronage this season.—Manchester Enterprise.

Anderson & Co., Tecumseh, have been justly styled the dry goods kings of southern Michigan. They are always a little ahead of the season with the best goods made in their line. Read of an unusually fine display of spring fabrics in their advertisement. No better selection in Detroit.—Addison Courier.

On one street in Blissfield, living close to each other, are five persons whose birthday falls on the same date—Feb 6. Among the number are E. J. Hayward, late of Seneca, and Joel Acker, formerly of Morenci. A party was given at the latter's home—a surprise on him—to celebrate the quintette's natal anniversary.

A cigar is said to contain acetic, lomic, bytric, valeric and paponic acids, prussic acid, creosote, carbolic acid, ammonia, sulphuretic hydrogen, peredine, vidine, picoline, rubidine, to say nothing of cabbagene and burdockine acid. The man who kicks about paying five cents for all that does not know a bargain when he sees one.

Irv. H. Finch, mail clerk in the postal service, sends the following to Chas. A. Chaloner: "Talk about snow—it is as high as the car windows in some places." Mr. Finch runs between Syracuse and Cleveland, and from the tone of the above one is led to believe they have snow from eight to ten feet deep in that locality.—Evening Telegram.

A Pittsford farmer, during the recent cold weather, found that his cellar was getting too near the freezing point for the good of the contents, and consequently built a fire on the floor. There being no outlet the house was soon full of smoke and the family was compelled to open all the doors and windows until the house resembled a refrigerator.—Hudson Post.

A resolution has been introduced in the legislature appropriating $10,000 for a statue of the late Austin Blair, the war governor of Michigan, to be placed in representative gallery at Washington. There certainly ought to be some recognition by the state of the invaluable services rendered by the governor, and we believe the people generally would sanction such a procedure.

All over the state it is observed that there are very few marriage licenses, and clerks report the wedding industry practically demoralized. We have no doubt that it is owing to the democratic administration. The effect of the McKinley tariff in building up infant industries is thus practically demonstrated. The president favors bonds, but the young people do not seem to be with him.

A grandfather's clock, about 150 years old, is to be seen in Kirk's jewelry store. It is owned by Wm. Sheridan, of Madison, and has been in the family for years. Mr. Sheridan brought the clock to the city to have it repaired and a traveling man, who happened to see the clock when it was brought in, offered the owner $150 for it. It is a great fad among wealthy people in the cities to set up these clocks in their halls, just like their grandpas used to do.—Michigan Messenger.

Since so much is being said about the bloomer costum it may be news, says the Manchester Enterprise, that the wife of Rev. Tilley, a Baptist minister, wore that costume. We remember the sensation created when she appeared on the streets. The children laughed and the men hid themselves. One man, more brave than the rest, stepped up and offered her a bite from his plug of tobacco, but it is needless to say that she declined with thanks.

W. F. Keysor, of Clinton, and J. F. N. Bowen, of Tecumseh, have the same birthday, and on the 8th of February each year they have a joint meeting to commemorate the event. Bowen made his first call in 1851, and just four years later Wess became a second adventist on that day. Since they discovered, about 17 years ago, that they had the same birthday score, they have annually observed it in common, alternating in their meeting. This year they met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bowen and discussed the weather, the ground hog and the political idiot.—Adrian Press.

The Mobile & Ohio has always been popular with the traveling public, and this fast train service will make it still more so.

A Pertinent Paragraph.

"Our country if right, should be kept right; if wrong should be put right," is a political maxim which paraphrased applies to other conditions of life, thus: our health if right, should be kept right especially in bodily ailments, such as pains and aches, which St. Jacobs Oil promptly cures. Many out of work should heed to give it a chance to cure and it will give them a chance to go to work cured. Another adage is: "he doeth best, who doeth well." Well, of course, you want to be well from all sorts of aches, and the best thing to do is to use the great remedy. He who does sois doing well indeed.

CUPID'S CALLS IN CLINTON.

Wednesday was a triumphant day for Cupid in the village of Clinton. Within an hour and thirty minutes his fatal arrow pierced one half dozen hearts and as many persons were maneuvered into the blissful fold of wedlock. The first pair of victims was Mr. Fred Clark, of Brooklyn, and Miss Bessie Shaw, of Tecumseh, who joined hands over the marriage altar at the M. E. Parsonage at 4:30 p. m. After the ceremony the happy party betook themselves to the Lawrence House where a repast was awaiting them.

The second pair was Mr. Edison C. Brooks and Miss Esther Louise Platt, who entered into the sacred bonds at 7 p. m. at the residence of the bride's mother on Jackson street. About 100 persons listened to the words that made these twain, one flesh.

The third pair was Mr. Chas. H. Fahrner and Miss Nellie J. Embler. A large company assembled at 8 p. m. at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel D. Embler, to witness the joining of hands and the plighting of love and fidelity.

In each instance the bridal outfit was such as to please the most fastidious, while the grooms measured up to the conventional standard. At the weddings, pleasing music, beautiful decorations, sumptuous repasts, many elegant gifts and joyful greetings combined to make social events of the most successful character.

The amalgamating process that reduced six people to three in number, was wrought by Rev. D. H. Ramsdell.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

The last regular meeting of the Club was held at the home of Mrs. F. D. Rector, Tuesday eve. Feb. 19th. There was a fair attendance of members and another pleasant evening was added to the club record. After the meeting was called to order the report of the previous meeting was read and accepted. The literary program was carried out as arranged with one exception, and was highly interesting throughout. Miss Grace Gillespie and Bertha Roberts each gave a charming selection on the piano. Ethel Hendershot recited the piece entitled, "The lips that touch liquor shall never touch Mine," in a becoming way. Mrs. Bowen's locals and personals were fine; it was truthfully remarked of them that they were enough to make a local editor envious. Wonder if certain young people of the club would like to have Mrs. Bowen prepare a number of locals for each meeting? The paper—Edison and his Inventions, by Mrs. Fisher was one of the best and most instructive papers ever read before the club. In place of a discussion the company listened to a Graphophone concert conducted by Mr. Collier, which was quite interesting. The club will meet next at Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie's Tuesday eve., March 5th, with the following program:

Select Reading—Mr. John Boyce.
Dec.—Bert Rector.
Aphorisms—Mrs. Coddington.
Paper—Mr. I. H. Schreeder.
Charade—Will Fisher and Fred Sheldon.
Short-talk—Mr. Jerome Bowen.
Select Reading—Mrs. Will Rector.

OBITUARY.

John W. Bowen, the subject of this sketch, was born in Cooperstown, N. Y., Aug. 29, 1825. Married Miss Jane B. Parshall, of Middlefield, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1848 and the next year came west, locating in Wisconsin, where he resided until his removal to Michigan in February, 1864, living at or near Lenawee Junction until his death, Feb. 15, 1895, at 6 o'clock a. m.

His widow and four children survive him: Wm. E., of Kansas; M. H. Bowen, John W. Bowen, jr., and Mrs. Dion H. Pope, all of this county. In 1876 Mr. Bowen purchased the farm near Lenawee Junction known as the Leonard Hoxie place, residing thereon until about two years ago, when he came to Adrian, his family desiring him to spend the remainder of his life as free from care as possible, the younger members of the family conducting the farm, where John W. Bowen, jr., now resides.

In the death of Mr. Bowen the community has lost a noble citizen, and his immediate relatives the best of advisers and one kindly in a social every day companionship. He often expressed his gratitude for being so highly favored by the care he received at their hands, made it possible by their residing so near, except the one before mentioned. Since occupying the farm before alluded to, Mr. Bowen has been sorely afflicted by the loss of his son Dwight P., a young man of exceptional merit, who died in 1888, and Miss Jennie E., who died in Febuary, 1891. This was a severe shock to not only the family, but all who knew him.

The writer of this hastily written sketch has been favored by a long and intimate acquaintance with deceased, circumstances having developed in our acquaintance that would try the integrity and manhood, and test the worth or worthlessness of any man; but amidst it all he was true—true to himself and to his friends. He was indeed a genuine every day Christian man, developing the noblest traits of manhood as he passed along life's journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen were prominent in organizing the Universalist church in Tecumseh, of which they have been members since, up to the time of his death.

Services were conducted at his late residence, Rev. Mr. Humphrey, an old neighbor and friend, delivering a beautiful tribute, prompted by personal memories of his dead acquaintance.

His remains rest in Oakwood cemetery beside those of his dear ones, a sacred and hallowed spot, to which the memory will often go in fond recollection.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

In the senate a financial bill on the lines of the president's last message was presented by Senator Vilas on the 13th, and another providing for bonds at 3 per cent., payable in gold coin, and for the issue of gold certificates was offered by Senator Sherman. The house resolution was passed extending the time for making returns on the income tax from the 15th Monday in March to April 15 next.....In the house Mr. Hudson (Kan.) offered a bill looking to an increase in the revenues of the government. Consideration of business concerning the District of Columbia occupied the remainder of the session.

The senate on the 14th voted to make no changes in the present railway mail system. The subject has been the chief point of contention of the post office appropriation bill. In response to a request Secretary Carlisle furnished figures on the treasury gold reserve and expenditures.....In the house the request of the president for authority to issue gold bonds was refused by a vote of 168 to 120.

On the 15th bills were reported favorably in the senate to repeal the one-tenth differential on sugar from bounty-paying countries to establish free American ports where foreign raw material may be manufactured, and for the creation of an industrial commission of twenty-one, which is intended to arbitrate labor difficulties. The post office appropriation bill was passed.....In the house the naval appropriation bill ($31,807,073) was discussed. The bill for a deep waterway to connect the ocean and great lakes was favorably reported.

In the senate on the 16th Senator Hill's resolution defining the financial policy of the government caused an exciting debate, and Senator Wolcott (Col.), Lodge (Mass.) and Teller (Col.), made a most scathing denunciation and arraignment of the administration for its recent bond contract with the Rothschilds and other foreign bankers. Mr. Wolcott made a direct and personal criticism of the president.....In the house the general debate on the naval appropriation bill ended. The senate bill was passed granting two condemned cannon to the Iowa Historical society at Des Moines. Twelve pension bills were also passed.

It is provided in the sundry civil appropriation bill ($41,559,145) reported to the senate on the 18th that hereafter all bonds issued by the government must first be offered at public sale. The agricultural appropriation bill was passed. By a vote of 30 to 27 it was decided to take up the Jones bill for the unlimited coinage of silver, the government to retain the seigniorage as profit.....In the house a bill was passed making the pensions of all Mexican veterans $12 per month. The naval appropriation bill was further discussed.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week, Beginning Feb. 24. Comment by Rev. Walter J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Ark of the Covenant.

BIBLE READINGS.—Ex. xxv, 10-16; Heb. ix, 4, 5; John iv, 24.

A wooden box about four feet long and a little more than two feet deep and two feet broad, covered with plates of fine gold, was the ark, preserved with great care as the most sacred thing in the tabernacle. The value was not in the box itself nor in the mercy seat of pure gold which covered it, having the figures of cherubim of hammered gold at each end, with wings meeting in the center and shadowing the sacred chest. The simple stone tablets engraved with the ten commands, "the Decalogue," was the treasure which it was built to contain. Their value lay in their contents and not in the material of which they were composed.

This was Jehovah's law to Israel. He promised to be with them in all their future life as a people if they obeyed this law. They on their part pledged themselves by solemn oath to obey His commands. This was the "Covenant." So this became the ark or chest of the covenant. It was also the ark of the "testimony," as the tables of stone were called.

This chest, with its mercy seat cover, was placed in the innermost room of the tent and temple, which had no opening into it except the door which was covered by a curtain. The tablets of the testimony were not to be taken out for reference nor for reading to the people. The mercy seat was not to be approached at will when guidance was desired of God regarding the affairs of the nation. Only once in the year was this inner sanctuary to be entered, and the most sacred shrine approached. Even then no one but the high priest might venture to look upon this secret dwelling place of the Most High One, and then always with blood of sacrifice in a gold bowl, with which blood he was to sprinkle the mercy seat between the cherubim. The meaning of this is made most clear in the epistle to the Hebrews, ninth chapter.

The law of God announced for the moral guidance of men has never been and in the nature of the case can never be repealed or annulled. The old dispensation served to give knowledge of it, but ability to keep it perfectly was lacking. In the new order of things under Christ one of the race has entered the holiest place of the Most High to ever abide under the shadow of the Almighty. The veil of separation has been forever torn aside that all may enter who will. The law is no longer on hidden slabs of stone, but the new covenant declared of God is: "I will put my laws into their mind and write them in their hearts. I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people." "True worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth."

Other Army Corps.

Methodism is not one organic body. Even in the United States there are nearly a dozen branches of the Methodist family. The largest in numbers, most wealthy and perhaps the most influential is the Methodist Episcopal. Next in prominence is the Methodist Episcopal Church South: Canada Methodism, since the consolidation of all its divisions into one body, has become one of the most influential churches, if not the very first in importance, in that country. The Epworth League began as a consolidation of the five large societies existing in the Methodist Episcopal church in May, 1889. The Church South and the Canadian church organized their societies with the same general name, but under the government of their own authorities. So will each of the other branches of Methodism probably do. The Wesleyans of England, Australia, India and other regions are swinging into line. Each is a separate army corps. Our international convention at Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27-30, will gather delegates from all over the world. Fraternal consultation, and not organic union, is the object of that gathering. Probably at its close we shall be a little nearer the practical solution of the problem of Christian church union, but no schemes for tinkering the machinery are contemplated. Demonstration of fraternal unity will be given in the sacrament of holy communion with which the services will open.

The Best of Each Kind.

Much emphasis is often laid on the fact that Christ chose unlettered men for his apostles. The success of the unlearned in revival and reform work is sometimes emphasized as if that was all that is needed for the work of the church of God on earth. It should not be forgotten that when Jehovah wanted to make Israel a nation he chose a Moses as leader. When Christianity needed an expounder and defender for the gentile world, God laid his hand on a Saul of Tarsus. So has it been in all subsequent times. There is work for Augustine, Wyclif, Luther, Calvin and Wesley as truly as for Moody, Booth, Taylor and the other hearts of fire. Each in his place and all in harmony is the need. The best of each kind and each at his best moves the work of God forward in his appointed way.

The Reading Course.

Thousands in all parts of the world have found profit and great pleasure in the various Chautauqua courses since their inauguration 20 years ago. Many who have felt unable to pursue so advanced and long a course find in that of the Epworth League what is adapted to their needs. There is variety sufficient for all tastes and requirements. If one is pressed for time in a busy life, it is remarkable how much information and real culture can be had in economizing odd minutes and reading systematically a few really excellent books rather than letting them slip by unemployed or in reading whatever chances to fall in the way. Careless and indiscriminate reading is as surely fatal to mental strength and health as careless eating is productive of dyspepsia.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

COUNTY SCHOOL COMMISSIONER.

Retain the Present Incumbent, Editor Chas. F. Field.

It goes without saying that judicial and school offices should be eliminated from politics as much as possible. The people generally favor this theory, especially in Lenawee county, even when the party caucuses and conventions ignore it. Our elections for Judge of the Circuit Court in this judicial district, demonstrate this fact, and the election for School Commissioner for Lenawee county has always turned largely upon personal fitness, rather than upon politics. Without uttering a word of disparagement against any of the other candidates, who have already been or will be nominated for the responsible position of School Commissioner, we think that the best interest of our public schools throughout the county clearly demand Mr. Field's re-election. He is most admirably equipped for that particular office. His experience as Principal of the Clinton school several years ago, his experience as instructor in the Tecumseh high school, his schooling of ten years in the editorial chair, and his experience of nearly four years in the office of County Commissioner, give him advantages, which no new hand at the helm can possibly possess. He fills the Jeffersonian requirements to perfection. He is honest, capable and faithful to his duties and to the laws. This encomium upon Mr. Field's personal character and official fitness for this office is not a mere formality. We say it because we mean it, and all his fellow citizens in this section of Lenawee who have the pleasure of his acquaintance will heartily second every word. Again, he has been tried in the crucible and not found wanting. Lenawee County has never been honored with a more faithful, painstaking and competent official in a similar capacity. This is the verdict of both school officers and teachers with whom he has been associated in any official manner. We understand that the teachers of the county—"without regard to age or sex or previous condition"—are universally in favor of his retention. The voters of Lenawee county will promote their own interests, the welfare of their children and the prosperity of the public schools by choosing Mr. Field as his own successor in this important office. And we believe they will take this view of it.

CHARLEY'S AUNT.

"Charley's Aunt" was greeted with a large and appreciative audience Friday evening, which shows conclusively that this community is ready to patronize reliable companies. The name of Charles Frohman as manager is sufficient guarantee that an entertainment will be first-class, and our people realizing this filled the house expecting to have a good laugh, and they were not disappointed for "Charley's Aunt" abounds in comical situations and being presented by a company admirably suited to their several characters it proved an evening of great enjoyment to all. It would be impossible to speak of the play in detail for it had no plot; it was simply arranged to bring out the comical and ridiculous situations incident to the time, place and surroundings. Where each character was so ably sustained it is difficult to particularize, so we well not attempt it, and will only refer to John D. Murphy, who helped Jack and Charley in carrying out their plans by personating Charley's Aunt, from Brazil, who failed to arrive at the time expected. He sustained this difficult rôle in a manner that called forth liberal applause and furnished great amusement to the entire audience. Should any of Frohman's companies visit us again he may be sure of a packed house.

Manager Sutton is to be congratulated for furnishing an orchestra, which filled in the time between acts with fine music, and if he will make permanent arrangements with them, and see that the lights, which were very poor, are better than they were Friday night, he will receive the support of the amusement loving portion of this community. There is no good reason why these annoyances can not be avoided. We trust he will attend to it in the future.

THREE DAYS IN ADRIAN.

A Few Jottings Upon the County Seat City.

Business frequently calls us to Adrian, but our calls are always brief and wholly of a business character. Socially considered, our acquaintance with the county seat is very limited and not what it should be, we frankly confess. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings we gave our Snap Shot lecture on the World's Fair at the Baptist church in that city for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Association. Notwithstanding there were many other attractions, the entertainment was well patronized and we feel under obligations to the Baptist people for their very kind reception and generous patronage.

During the three days at our command we had an opportunity to "circle around town" some and formed many new acquaintances. While there we partook of the hospitality of C. C. Fisher's family. Mr. Fisher is the proprietor of Fisher's Book Store, and also owns an interest in the Adrian Paper Co., of which he is the business manager. They both seem to be in a flourishing condition. We also enjoyed J. R. Bennett's hospitality. Everyone knows who "Uncle Joe" Bennett is, and to say that we were royally entertained there is putting it very mild. Mr. E. L. Baker's family also did their share in the entertaining line. Mr. Baker is engaged in the canning business. He has a beautiful residence on Dennis street and a very fine family. We found a congenial home also with Mr. Merwin's family on South Main street. Mr. Merwin is the proprietor of the Yum Yum tea store, and is evidently prospering in business. He has a cosy little home presided over by a model wife, and we enjoyed our home stay there very much. Mr. Bowen spent a portion of his time with Mrs. Drake, on Broad street, and a part with Milo Dole, and he was handsomely entertained at both places. The new acquaintances thus formed we hope to continue. We are under obligations to Mr. M. P. Brown for his assistance in taking tickets at the door.

Adrian is well fixed now in the newspaper line. No town in Michigan of the same size is better provided for. The Press, under the efficient management of Williard Stearns, furnishes the democracy of Lenawee county with an excellent organ. The Press may be too outspoken sometimes to please timid souls, but it is generally on the right track, and one cannot help admiring its tenacity and sincerity. The paper is entitled to the undivided patronage and support of the party.

The Times is the same old standby that it has been for many years. Mrs. Applegate fills the position of her late husband most acceptably and has proven herself to be a woman of both business tact and editorial ability. The Times furnishes the republicans of Lenawee county with an organ which they can cordially support.

Our prohibition friends are equally well served with the Messenger. Editor Grandon is a first-class newspaper man and has built up a good business under adverse circumstances. He is a vigorous writer and an excellent practical printer as well. The Telegram, of which he is the chief manager, has been planted upon a paying basis and has evidently come to stay. The citizens of Adrian ought to be well satisfied with their newspapers.

A Business-Making Book.

Every business man ought to read "Dollars and Sense," a money-making book by Nath'l C. Fowler, Jr., the leading expert on business and advertizing. 18 chapters, illustrated with 100 plates, presenting every style of effective advertisements, with examples of reading notices, circulars and headlines. It tells the plain truth about advertisements and exposes ineffective methods. Any reader of The HERALD who will send check, postal note or postage stamps to the value of 25 cents to The Trade Company, Boston, Mass., will receive the book by prepaid mail.

Since Tuesday of this week the Senate has been for the first time in two years full. Don't put a wrong construction on that word. It simply means that each of the forty-four States now has its full compliment of senators. It will be remembered that for the last two years three of the States have, through failure of their legislatures to elect, only been half represented in the Senate.

One Hundred Dollars Given Away.

Here is an offer to our patrons which is well worth their careful consideration. Probably nine-tenths of our subscriptions expire during January, February and March of each year. All subscribers who shall pay for the full year 1895, prior to April 1st, will be entitled to a chance in the distribution of four sewing machines, worth one hundred dollars. These are—

A New Home,	Value,	$50 00
An Eldridge B.,	"	30 00
Weeeler & Wilson, No. 8,	"	25 00
Wheeler & Wilson, second hand.	"	15 00
Total value,		$100 00

The three machines first named are new, right from the factory. The last one has been carefully used a few months and is practically as good as new. Each paying subscriber will get a numbered receipt and that will be his number in the distribution. The few persons who have already paid for 1895 can call and get a duplicate receipt with a new number. The few subscribers who have paid in advance beyond April 1st can secure the benefit of this offer by paying in advance for the balance of the year, or until Jan. 1st, 1896. The distribution will take place at some convenient place, on Saturday afternoon, April 6th, 1895, when the property will be formally given to our advance paid patrons, to be allotted among themselves in such manner as they may elect. An expenditure of only $1.00, or $1.25 if you live outside of Lenawee county, will secure a chance for one of these premiums. This offer means business.

The St. Louis Republic Free.

The "Twice-a-Week" St. Louis Republic will be sent Free For One Year to any person sending, before January 31, 1895, a club of three new yearly subscribers, with $3 to pay for the same.

Already the clans are gathering for the fray in 1896, and 1895 will be full of interesting events. The skirmish lines will be thrown out, the maneuvering done and the plans of campaign arranged for the great contest in '96.

The remaining short session of the Democratic Congress, to be followed shortly by a Republican Congress with a Democrat in the Presidental chair will be productive of events of incalculable interest.

In fact, more political history will be constructed during 1895 than in any year since the foundation of the Government, and a man without a newspaper will be like a useless lump in the movements of public opinion.

You can get three new subscribers for The Republic by a few minutes' effort. Remember in the Republic subscribers get a paper twice-a-week for the price of a weekly—only $1.00 a year. Try it At Once, and see how easily it can be done. If you wish a package of sample copies, write for them.

Cut out this advertisement and send with your order. Address,

THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

C. F. Field will be renominated by the Democrats to-morrow for county school comissioner. He is the strongest and most popular man to be named, and will lead his opponent a lively race. Mr. Field seems to have the general support of the teachers of the county.—Blissfield Advance.

GUMBO'S GRAB BAG.

If the heart is thirsty, slake it;
If a blessing offers, take it;
For our life is what we make it:
Joy abounds in happy faces;
Pleasure lives in rosy places;
Let us court the goodly graces
By the way,
And will take it as we make it
In the battle every day.
—M. V. Moore.

"Binks has got one of those talking machines."

"A phonograph?"

"No; a wife."

"Do you go to church to hear the sermon or the music, Maude?" "I go for the hims," said Maude.

Figg: "You'll generally find that people believe what they want to believe." Fogg: "Yes; and probably that accounts for the belief in everlasting punishment—for other people of course—being so popular."

A pious old lady recently sent as a silver wedding present a pair of flat-irons, a rolling pin and a motto worked on cardboard reading "Fight On."

Nine cases in ten when a man says that advertising doesn't pay, he has arrived at his conclusion because he has expected the newspaper to do it all. If he were to neglect his show window and his store front as he neglects his advertising space, he would have still other complaints to make about business in general. If the windows are never washed and the display of goods never changed, he would not expect very many people to stop and lose themselves in an ecstacy of admiration, and yet he does seem to expect just this sort of a thing for an old moss-covered advertisement. There is nothing magical about advertising. It is one of the tools of trade, just as a chisel is a tool of carpentry. The man who handles the chisel properly can do many useful things with it. If he is careless and awkward, he is likely to cut himself.

A preacher came at a newspaper man in this way: "You editors dare not tell the truth. If you did you could not live; your newspaper would be a failure." The editor replied: "You are right; and the minister who will at all times and under all circumstances tell the whole truth about his members, alive or dead, will not occupy his pulpit more than one Sunday and then he will find it necessary to leave town in a hurry. The press and the pulpit go hand in hand with whitewash brushes and pleasant words, magnifying little virtues into big ones. The pulpit, the pen and the gravestone are the great saint making triumvirate." And the great minister went away looking very thoughtful, while the editor turned to his work and told of the surpassing beauty of the bride, while in fact she was as homely as a hedge fence.

WHAT THE WISE MEN COULDN'T DO.

Plutarch couldn't have put on a pair of two-shilling suspenders, made a horseshoe nail answer for a button, nor rejuvenated a celluloid collar from a comatose state. He traveled extensively, and yet any bunco-man of today would have found him a fat take. He delivered lectures on philosophy, but tried to pull a wick through a cold tallow candle. He could speak twelve languages, but was silent in all when he saw a wheelbarrow for the first time.

Diogenes never went a-fishing, never stole harvest apples or melons, never attended a husking-bee or spelling-school, and he passed away without a suspicion that the barbed-wire fence was to come after him.

Pythagoras gave us the problem of Euclid, and was welcomed in the councils of the wisest men, but when he saw a sliding hog-pen door for the fist time he was so taken back that a friend had to lead him home.

King Solomon couldn't have hung a screen door to save his neck, and if he had been asked to hang a roller-curtain or put a new leg on the family lounge he would have been as helpless as an infant.

Empedocles was called the greatest of all Greek philosophers, but he couldn't tell where the material went to when he found a hole in the heel of his stocking.

Helen of Troy couldn't have sharpened a table knife on a stovepipe nor hit the head of a 10-penny nail once in forty times.

Demosthenes died without knowing that three deuces beat two pairs, and he never saw an educated hog in his life.

Geo. Terry, who has been working the Coreyell place at Newburgh, has rented what is known as the John P. Silvers farm and takes possession March 15th.

Revival meetings began at the M. E. church Sunday and will continue for some time. Rev. David Lewis is assisting Rev. D. H. Ramsdell and the outlook is very encouraging.

The Clinton Plow company will soon be in shape to do business. Their building is up and roofed and their engine and boiler have arrived from Erie, Pa., and will be placed at once.

Tuesday Mrs. E. M. Cooley entertained her mother, Mrs. Kemp, Mrs. Elsie Rowland, Mrs. John Heesen and Mrs. Dolph Heesen, of Tecumseh, for the day. Her mother remained over night.

B. G. Woodward went to Albion Tuesday after a car load of that celebrated flour. While their building is being erected they will occupy the hotel Edrose as a store room, it being at present unoccupied.

The Congregational church society are excavating under their building for the purpose of having the parlors, kitchen and Sunday school rooms in the basement. When completed it will be a great improvement.

Rev. D. D. Marshall is the guest of his cousin, Rev. C. M. Stout, and occupied the Baptist pulpit Suuday morning. Mr. Marshall has been at Saline but has resigned the pastorate there. He expects to go to Kentucky soon.

W. O. Silvers, Robbie Woodard, Leon Clark, Roy and Ted Codling, Tessie Carroll, Mrs. G. R. Wolfe, Mame Bradner, Eva and Jennie VanTuyle attended the party at Manchester last Friday night. They reported a delightful time.

J. E. Brown is making a survey of the business portion of the town for the purpose of making what is termed a fire map for the use of fire insurance companies and their agents. It is a great convenience and saves much labor on their part.

Miss Eva Shimmen went to Petersburgh Tuesday to see her mother and Wednesday Mrs. Mate Clark joined her and they went into Detroit to make their spring purchase and study the styles. Mate expects to return to-morrow but Eva will stay longer.

Next week occurs the regular meetings of the different secret bodies, both Masonic and Maccabees. Tuesday evening, L. O. T. M. and Clinton Chapter R. A. M.; Wednesday evening, Eastern Star Chapter; Friday evening, K. O. T. M., and Saturday evening, Clinton Lodge F. & A. M. Bear them in mind.

Mrs. Michael Klaiger died at her residence in Bridgewater, Monday night, from inflammation of the lungs and heart trouble. She leaves a husband and nine children, five of whom are married and widely scattered. They were all with her when the end came. The funeral was held at the residence, Thursday at 11 a. m.

VanTuyle & Woodward have let the contract for their new building to be erected on the corner of Jackson and East Chicago streets to E. J. Semark and it is to be completed in two weeks. It will have a basement 7 feet high. The building is to be of wood, 20x40 feet, and two stories high. When finished they will open an exchange—exchange flour and feed for grain with the farmers. It will be a great improvement to that corner.

At last they have a postoffice at Iron Creek, to be known as Spike, with Chas. M. Cooley as servant of Uncle Sam, who will dispense mail at his home. The naming of postoffices are some times attended with strange, and even comical associations, and the naming of this is one of them. When it was deemed necessary to have a postoffice the authorities at Washington were asked to mention several names from which to select, and while the official to whom fell that duty was rumaging his brain for names his eye fell on his spike-tail dog laying on a rug near by, and down went the name of Spike. When the names were received, Charlie, in glancing them over, struck the name Spike, and having a dog to which he is greatly attached bearing that cognomen he saw an opportunity to immortalize, or rather perpetuate, the name of his dog, and so took that name, and Spike it will be called.

Among the clanging bells of passing locomotives are heard now and then little silver tongued wedding bells right here in our busy little town too. Fortunately all the bells did not ring last week if we did have three weddings in one evening. They tingle once more and Mr. Alvah White and Miss Dora Marrion were the contracting parties. At promptly 7.30 o'clock last Tuesday evening C. M. Stout asked them to join hands and solemnized the marriage ceremony in the presence of several friends and neighbors. Numerous presents show the appreciation of the invitations extended, and good will toward the happy couple. Mr. White and bride left for his home in Tecumseh as soon as refreshments had been served. A host of friends regret to see the bride leave us, but such is life and we can only say that many good wishes follow. Tecumseh young men seem to take a delight in coming up here and taking away our girls, anyway. Come on, boys.

ONSTED ODDS.

G. B. Daniels has just arrived home from North Dakota.

Whooping cough prevails in this locality to some extent.

Friends from the north are guests of E. A. Taylor and wife.

Mrs. Christman has been very ill, but is reported better now.

Aunt Anna Allen is a great grandmother now, a little daughter having arrived at Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Skeese's on the 17th inst.

The next Lyceum will occur at Hampton's hall, Tipton. The program will appear hereafter. Everybody invited. Free for all.

Last Friday, Mr. Hause, our popular undertaker, undertook to carry Miss Irene Allen from Ypsilanti to her home in Franklin. The undertaking was eminently successful. Two days previously she was worse and her doctor in Ypsilanti forbade the journey. Friday morning in Clinton Mr. Hause was up betimes and away, reaching Ypsilanti in due season. Miss Irene was lifted carefully in her cot bed and placed in the ambulance, which had been warmed and kept so with lighted lanterns. Her mother sat beside her and Mrs. Wm. Fisher, who had been assisting in nursing her, made one of the party. In Clinton, Dr. Tuttle, who had been expecting and looking out for the party, administered a stimulant to the, then, nearly exhausted girl, and they arrived safely home shortly after 4 p. m.

The Development of the South.

Is being furthered by the Queen & Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to Southern points at One Fare for the Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinati, O., and Lexington, Ky., on November 6th and December 4th; good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates to all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisana.

Stop-overs are permitted on these excursions at any point south of the Ohio River, within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go South to look into the present great movement of Northern to that section.

The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3.00 to $5.00 per acre, on easy terms.

Undertaker Osgood was the director at the funeral at Ridgeway Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Hendershot entertained Sam Hatch and wife of Macon, Sunday.

Addie Lamkin, of Franklin, is here caring for her sister, Mrs. W. J. Helm.

Some of the A. P. A. members have taken to attending church—good for them.

Mrs. W. E Allen visited Tecumseh Wednesday to arrange some business matters.

Mesdames W. J. Helm, O. B. Lenardson and Geo. Hawks are suffering with the grip.

Mrs. M. Hiscock, of Ridgeway, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Allen, this week.

Miss Collins, of Fairfield, visited her brother, the Professor, from Thursday until Monday.

It is stated that L. A. Brown has worked steadily for a week or more, and is still in good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kelly, of Holloway, were the guests of Jas. Haight and wife the last of the week.

The K. O. T. M. held an adjourned regular meeting Wednesday evening, and eight petitions were received.

John R. Clark gave perfect satisfaction with his lecture on John B. Gough. He is a platform orator of distinction.

E. R. Beal, of Ypsilanti, paid the White Pharmacy a visit Saturday. He was well pleased with the looks of things.

Art Lee is a little sensitive on the subject of boiler iron, as he recently took tin roofing to be it. Ask Le A. Brown.

M. L. Gillen moved his family to Tecumseh the last of the week and are already nicely settled in their new home.

Dan. VanNocker, of Petersburg, came over Monday to confer with Wabash officials about erecting a grain elevator.

Regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society at the church Wednesday afternoon, March 6. Let there be a full attendance.

James Haight invites all to call and examine the work done by his new tinner, Lloyd Ward. He is a finished workman.

The Reformed church society will hold a chicken pie social in G. A. R. hall, Wednesday evening, March 6th. All are invited.

Our lady Maccabees entertain Hollister Hive of Dundee and Glen Hive of Macon this evening and we know they will have everything up in G.

Britton, who was proud of her ball team last season, and justly so, will be on deck early in the coming season with a team that will continue to win.

James Haight would call your attention to the gasoline stove manufactured by the Dangler Stove company of Cleveland, Ohio. It is certainly a dandy.

Will Britton sold his clover seed at Adrian recently. The query now is: Why can't some one here buy such things and not force people to go away for a market.

Rev. E. Mudge was quite indisposed the past week and was unable to fill his appointments Sunday. Rev. James Wright kindly attended to them, proving a friend indeed.

The building committee are ready to receive bids for the building of the stone foundation of the Reformed church in Britton. The specifications may be seen at the office of Dr. B. P. Hardy.

The masquerade box social given at the hall, Wednesday evening, by the L. T. M. was a success. It proved most amusing, and there were many characters personations that were fine. All enjoyed themselves.

It is reported that Lester Osgood and Salome Clark were married Monday evening. Where and by whom no one seems to know. Guess Salome made her assertions good. Here's congratulations anyway.—N. Y. papers please copy.

Doctor E. E. Hendershot, having decided to again occupy his farm in Macon, moved his family and household goods Wednesday. The entire community feel sad to lose them and can hardly feel reconciled to have it so.

John Exelby has returned from Card's lumber camp. He did the cooking for two weeks, and, strange to say, there were no deaths. John couldn't cook himself and so came home, and in this way he has eaten since is a caution.

Fred. Gordon, of Ypsilanti, who had been visiting relatives near here, was taken ill Monday to take the train for home, when the cutter upset and his face was badly scratched and bruised. He looked as if he had been in a prize fight.

Harrey Welling was down from Tecumseh Wednesday to see how matters progressed with the photograph gallery. Mr. Bachman and assistants, are doing good and expeditious work, and when all is done it will be a model gallery.

At a recent school meeting, held in the Kalfin district, the question of a new school building was considered and a change to relate when put to vote every one voted for it. Surely the millennium must be near. The building will be 24x32, and will be erected the coming season.

Doctor and Mrs. P. B. Hardy are mourning the loss of their 8 months old son, Raymond, which went from them Tuesday morning. It was a frail and tender plant, requiring the most watchful care, but even this was not enough. The funeral was held at the house yesterday at 10 a. m., and was largely attended by sympathizing friends.

Miss Jennie Saxton, with two friends, were coming from Ypsilanti Monday night in a cutter and when near Mr. Whiting's they upset and Jennie was quite seriously hurt. She was brought home and Dr. Hendershot called, who found the collar-bone to be broken. He reduced the fracture and she is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

For some time past some of the bloods (almost young men) have been in the habit of inducing a youth about 18 years of age, who is not strong mentally, when in town to put on the boxing gloves and then proceed to maltreat and abuse the poor unfortunate. The authorities we are informed propose to take the matter in hand, if it occurs again, and it is to be hoped they will. The boy is called Rutherford B. Hayes Archibald Perkins Ordway. It is inhuman and should be stopped.

We are pleased to announce that Geo. W. Smith, who was recently subjected to the annoyance of being charged with larceny of papers, etc., by E. T. Head, who entered the complaint at Toledo, has been honorably acquitted and comes out without even the smell of smoke on his garments. It was evidently a malicious persecution of an innocent person. Mr. Smith appeared before the grand jury Wednesday and Thursday of last week at Toledo, and after his case was presented to them, they pronounced it most flimsy, and told him he had done nothing, but what he was authorized to do, and that Head was the one who ought to be arrested. It looks now as if the Carland and Heads business in this vicinity will be speedily and thoroughly ventilated, as papers were served on Carland at Dundee Monday as he was passing through on the train. Case will be called at Dundee tomorrow, Saturday. The complainants are LaVern Smith and Lewis Miller.

A. P. A.

Reorganized—New Officers—The Flag, Though Tattered, Still Waves.

Last week the members of the A. P. A. were in the vale of despondency; today they are on the mountain of exultation, for that which was seemingly dead has come to life and bids fair to exceed its former glory. Last week Saturday evening the widely dispersed and low spirited members of the A. P. A. were summoned to convene at Ranch No. 10 for consultation. At the appointed hour the citadel was made secure by guardsmen without and within, prepared to successfully guard against all intruders, and the secret session began. First in order was roll call, and every member was found to be present. The Grand Fugler then arose, and after clearing his throat by frequent draughts of cold water from a 14-quart pail, he struck a tragic attitude, and in a clear, strong voice began as follows:

"Brethren of the mystic circle, the hour has arrived when questions of vital importance to our well being must be forever settled, and the eyes of the whole world are upon us and they wait anxiously the result of our deliberation. The first question, my noble pals, is this; Shall three queens clean out a full house?" Cries of "No!" "No!" were heard on every side, and the speaker, striking the marble pedastle, six feet high, with the gavel (his boot heel), calls them to order and continues: "The expressions just given does honor to your sex, and I congratulate you on behalf of millions of our clan scattered throughout the world that you have thus spoken and settled for all time this perplexing question. The next question is: Shall we continue to live and move and have an existence, or be forever squelched, like many of our sex?" He asked for a rising vote, and they unanimously decided to live. After order was restored they proceeded to the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President—L. A. Brown.
Vice President—A. J. Lee.
Secretary—M. Britton.
Treasurer—Al. Lee.

They then proceeded to the consideration of Earl Lenardson's petition for membership, which was rejected for cause. Fred Morrell's and our petition was held over until the next meeting.

Seventeen cents, which L. A. Brown lost recently, was by unanimous vote returned to him, which made him 'Jolley.' It was decided to hold the sessions at John Beasley's until more satisfactory quarters could be secured.

The meeting then closed, and among those present we recognized Art Curtis, Bert Nichols, Harry Fuller, Mont Hoagland, Art Hughes, Dick Millson, Will Winsley, Vern and Grant Osterhout.

The future of the A. P. A. is therefore assured, and Fred Morrell informs us that his hens are beginning to lay and soon he and we will be enrolled among the faithful, as he has promised to put up for us. Long live the A. P. A. say we.

MACON MUSIC.

Libbie Walp spent Sunday with friends in Tecumseh.

We are glad to be able to report Milan Sage much better.

George Harriott has purchased the Maples place, and expects to try village life.

Rob Bard has bought the Burgess home. This will leave but one unoccupied house in town.

J. B. Coller gave his graphophone entertainment in Tecumseh Monday night, and Tuesday night at Ridgeway.

Maurice Harrington has sold his interest in the store to Dill Burleson, and Mr. Travis is acting as postmaster at present.

Dame gossip reports so many changes in real estate that it is difficult to keep pace with her. Mrs. Hough has sold her house and lot to Mr. Pratt.

At the W. C. T. U. meeting last week the ladies had collected a quantity of clothing, which they repaired to send to Nebraska sufferers. These goods are to be taken charge of by Mr. Lewis, formerly of Macon.

Have You Had the Grip?

If you have, you will probably need a reliable medicine like Foley's Honey and Tar to heal your lungs and stop the racking cough incidental to this disease. mar

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Wheeling is getting pretty heavy.

Lafe Rinehold, of Addison, called on friends Friday.

Postmaster Santus was in Adrian Wednesday on business.

Clara Temple and Mary Osgood were Saline visitors Tuesday.

The ground froze to the depth of three feet during the cold period.

John Osgood, of Toledo, attended his mother's funeral last Saturday.

Fred L. Cook, of Lansing, spent Sunday at the home of Lelia Sutton.

Mrs. Boyd is moving into one of Mrs. D. W. Loree's houses on South street.

Lafe Rappleye has some mixed hay in the barn which he will sell for five dollars a ton.

Addie Sherman, who has been on the sick list for several days past, is improving at present.

Jared VanVleet and wife visited relatives at Saline, Friday and Saturday, returning Sunday.

Vote Miller and wife, of Detroit, are enjoying a few days with his mother, Mrs. Miller, this week.

Mrs. Jacob Arner was called to Allegan Tuesday by the sickness of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Barrett.

Mrs. Sarah Pocklington and Mrs Augusta Barrett visited friends in Clinton last week Thursday and Friday.

Presiding Elder Davis, of Detroit, was in attendance at the meeting of the quarterly conference Monday evening.

Some of the young ladies are keeping rather mum for fear their names will appear in the Ramble column, so we are informed.

Mrs. F. N. Miller and daughter Hazel, of Angola, N. Y., are visiting relatives in the village and vicinity during the present week.

Arthur Green and wife, of Raisin, were called here last week by the sickness and death of Mrs. Geo. Osgood. Mrs. Green's mother.

Mrs. Mary E. Millson, sister of Chas. and Samuel Underwood, and Mrs. Chas. Pocklington, by the death of an aunt in England, have fallen heir to nearly $10,000.

J. B. Coller gave one of his Graphophone concerts at the schoolhouse on Tuesday evening. There was a very good attendance. The receipts amounted to nearly $6.00.

Fred Gorton and wife, of Ypsilanti, were called home by the death of their aunt, Mrs. Geo. Osgood, last week. Mrs. Gorton will spend a few days with her father, Lester Osgood, before her return.

Owing to the dark stormy night the attendence at the box social held at the Library Wednesday night, was not as large as usual. Miss Grayson and her brothers furnished some very pleasing and enjoyable vocal selections. The proceeds amounted to upwards of $10.00.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Susan Clark, on Monday evening, only the immediate family of the contracting parties being present. Rev. H. Cansfield performed the marriage vows that united Miss Salome Clark and Lester Osgood as husband and wife. The newly married couple have a host of friends who join in extending congratulations.

OBITUARY.

Died, at Ridgeway, Mich., of pneumonia, on Wednesday, Feb. 20, 1895, Mrs. Anzolette Osgood, in the 62d year of her age. Anzolette La Tourette was born in Lodi, Seneca county, N. Y., June 16, 1833, and was married to Joseph M. Hunt, June 2d, 1853. On March 21st, 1865, Mr. Hunt died, leaving one daughter, Sarah H., who is now the wife of A. C. Green, of Raisin. On March 11, 1868, Mrs. Hunt was again married, to George V. Osgood, of Macon, who died Oct. 1, 1891. Three children were born to them; one son, Joseph M., dying in infancy, and two daughters, Phebe L. and Eva, who are still living and, together with their sister, Mrs. Green, are now left to mourn the loss of one of the kindest and best of mothers. Mrs. Osgood was a true Christian woman, beloved by all who knew her. Quiet and unobtrusive in her manner, she filled out the measure of her days in a daily walk that bore no mark of selfishness, but gave perfect service and love to those with whom her gentle life was thrown. Truly the mission of such a life is a blessed one, and the memories left behind are precious. The funeral services were held at the M. E. church in Ridgeway, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 23, and were conducted by her pastor, the Rev. J. L. Gulick, of the Reformed Church at Macon, assisted by the Rev. H. Cansfield of the Ridgeway M. E. Church, and were attended by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends. The remains were interred in the Ridgeway cemetery.

Queen Lil, it is thought will be tried on the charge of treason. "I simply tried to save my crown" she can safely say, and add, in the words of Patrick Henry, "If that be treason make the most of it."

Don't forget the Y. P. S. C. E. social at Grange hall next Wednesday eve.

Mrs. J. L. Gulick is quite sick at this writing, also Mrs. J. W. Baker; in fact the list could be largely extended.

Tonsilitis, grippe and cold is a common complaint; it keeps Dr. Morden very busy, but he looks good natured.

The February thaw nearly slipped in to March this year. We are much obliged to Prof. Hicks for his prognostications.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of South Macon, will give a Numerical Social at Grange hall, on Wednesday evening, March 6th. Suitable refreshments and a fine program will be the principal attractions. All are cordially invited.

Lester Osgood and Salome Clark entered into a co-partnership last Monday evening on the life plan. The contract was completed through the services of Rev. Canafield. May their wedded life be a long and happy one will be the sentiment of their many friends.

CAMBRIDGE CHATTER.

Friday meetings will be held at the Episcopal church during Lent.

Arba Moulton, of Decatur, is visiting at C. H. Dewey's and other friends.

Miss Ida Dewey, who has been in poor health some time, is at the Battle Creek Sanitarium.

The wedding of Earnest Bartlett of Woodstock, and Miss Lydia Groger of Springville, occured at the home of the bride, on Wednesday, 27th. They will make their future home at Jackson, Mich.

The death of Henry Walker of Toledo, occurred on Friday, 22d. The remains were brought here by his son and interment made at the Junction Cemetery. Mr. Walker was 78 years of age, was an old pioneer resident at the Junction, formerly owning the farm of Mr. A. Billmeyer.

A Remarkable Cure.

Mrs. H. B. Adams, 1609 Wabash ave., Chicago, says: "I had a scrofulous taint of the blood from childhood, which, however, remained dormant [illegible] began on the side of the nose, having all the appearances of a most malignant cancer. The agony of mind I suffered cannot be described as I contemplated the progress of such a malignant disease. Finally I was induced to try Foley's Sarsaparilla. It appears to neutralize the poison in the blood. The growth of the ulcer ceased. The diseased tissues in the bottom and edges of the sore seemed to loosen and the natural flesh to take its place. No part of the disease remains." For sale by Orr & Temple. mar

"Where Farming Pays."

Is it in the north-west with wheat at less than 50 cents a bushel, with zero weather and blizzards in winter and cyclones in summer? No! Right Arm Paralyzed!

Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 31 pounds. Her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."

DR. KILMER'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 49 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Feb. 25, 1895.

President Cleveland has either fully made up his mind to call an immediate extra session of the Fifty-fourth Congress or he is making a big bluff to prevent the present Congress making an extra session necessary by failure to pass some of the appropriation bills. It has become perfectly clear that the republican leaders do not want an extra session called, and the administration Senators took advantage of that knowledge to prevent action upon the bill for the unlimited coinage of silver, by threatening to let all the appropriation bills go and devote the remainder of the session to talking against the silver bill to prevent a vote thereon. The threat was good, the silver bill was abandoned, as under the present rules of the Senate it would have been impossible to have forced a vote upon it, even if there had been no appropriation bills in the way. In fact, the bill would not have brought up there if it had not been an implied agreement to allow a vote to be taken. President Cleveland and the eastern republican Senators had an idea that the House might take up and pass the bill in a rush if it were allowed to go thro' the Senate, and it was decided to kill it at all hazards.

There is reason for the belief that the calling of an extra session of Congress will depend largely upon the result of a canvass of the new members now being quietly made by friends of the administration and upon whether the bankers drew out the gold which came in from the last sale of bonds as quietly as they did that which came in from the other bond issues. The President is very sore over the criticism of his part in the last bond deal; hence the belief that he will not issue more bonds should the gold again get low without first calling an extra session of Congress and asking for action.

After a somewhat sharp contest in conference, the income tax law was amended to cover the following points: Extension of time to make returns for 1894 to April 15; that money paid for fire insurance and ordinary repairs shall be deducted, that money received as dividends from corporations liable to the tax shall be deducted, and that employers shall not be required to furnish names and salaries of employes, except when called for to verify returns made by said employes. Senator Hill's amendment to strike out a number of the questions asked by blanks prepared by the Treasury department which was adopted by the Senate, was struck out by the conference committee at the request of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who said the questions were considered necessary aids for the collection of the tax.

That friendship is stronger than ties of partisan politics is a fact well known in Washington, if not in all sections of the country. An instance was given when Senator Voorhees, one of the most partizan of democrats, escorted Senator Wilson, Washington's new Senator, to the Vice President's desk, to be sworn in as a member of the Senate, and it was made more impressive to many by the knowledge that it was Senator Voorhees who gave Senator Wilson his first start as a politician, by getting him appointed receiver of a government land office in the then territory of Washington. Senator Voorhees was about forty years ago defeated in a Congressional election by the father Senator Wilson. Senator Wilson cast his first vote in the Senate the same way that his personal friend and political opponent, Mr. Voornees, did—for silver.

There is one man in Washington who is still a devout worshipper at the Cleveland shrine, notwithstanding the wide-spread criticism of President Cleveland's recent acts, particularly in connection with the making of that bond contract. That man is Hon. Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, who was the host at the last cabinet dinner given to President and Mrs. Cleveland. In order to make that occasion forever memorable in the Morton family, Hon. J. Sterling had two chairs made at a considerable cost, one for the use of the President and one for Mrs. Cleveland, each having a massive silver plate engraved with the name of the sitter, the date of the banquet, etc., and informed the public, through the society columns of the daily papers, that those chairs would be preserved forever and a day as souvenirs of the greatest event in the history of the Morton family.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

The New Marseillaise Hymn.

BY REV. T. L. WEAVER.

Ye sons of men, awake from slumber!
Hark! Hark! what suffering bids you rise!
Poor children, wives, a countless number,
Behold their tears and hear their cries!
Behold their tears and hear their cries!
Shall licensed tyrants, mischief breeding,
With hireling hosts a ruffian band,
Disgrace and desolate our land,
While peace and liberty lie bleeding?

To arms, to arms, ye brave!
The avenging vote let fall,
March up! march up! all hearts resolved
To heed our country's call.

O Liberty, shall we resign thee,
Once having felt thy generous flame?
Shall drunkards, thins and bloats o'erthrow thee,
Or hags blot out thy noble name?
Or hags blot out thy noble name?
Too long the world has wept, bewailing
That whisky's dagger tyrants wield,
And make of earth a bloody field—
Death and rags and woe entailing.

To arms, to arms, ye brave! etc.

Oh, fall in line, ye Christian voters,
Who pray so oft "Thy Kingdom come!"
How can you vote with soaks and boaters
And help to feed the fires of rum?
And help to feed the fires of rum?
Shall our ship of state sink in wafers
That boil and foam and seethe and hiss?
Shall she the port of safety miss,
And cast adrift our sons and daughters?

To arms, to arms, ye brave! etc.

The assassin's knife is each bo[illegible]
Some throat all unaware is to
Drunken husbands to rum [illegible]
To bleeding backs apply the l[illegible]
To bleeding backs apply the
Shall we stand by and see the river
Of blood flow on by night and day?
Nay, rather let us cease to pray,
Or shoot an arrow from our quiver.

To arms, to arms, ye brave! etc.

The Great Petition.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16, (Special Correspondence to The Voice)—The great gathering of nearly six thousand people which convened at Convention Music Hall last evening, as a prelude to the presentation of the voluminous polyglot petition to the American Government, was a grand success.

The massive hall was artistically festooned with miles of the big petition hanging in graceful curvings all over the vast area of space in the colossal auditorium, while rolls upon rolls were placed upon rests of the iron spans overhead; and upon a front portion of the stage, draped in the flag of our nation, rested immense packages of the ponderous document. Emblematic of the petition's purpose and meaning, stood a large globe of the world at the left of the foot of the stage, encircled with a wide band of white ribbon tied in a huge bow-knot where the ends met. Flags and fresh flowers completed the decorations.

A letter of regret from Miss Willard for the absence of herself and Lady Somerset was the opening announcement of the evening, read by the presiding officer, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, of Maine, vice president of the National W. C. T. U. Miss Anna Gordon, Miss Willard's private secretary, then read an address prepared by Miss Willard.

The names upon the petition, Miss Willard's paper stated, are arranged in three classes; first, names of women; second, written indorsements of men; third, attestations of officers of societies which indorsed the petition, by resolution or otherwise; 1,121,200 actual signatures are now on the petition, representing fully 7,500,000 names to date, and the name of Gen. Neal Dow heads the list. It is expected, Miss Willard's paper continues, that 2,000,000 actual signatures and 5,000,000 additional indorsers will yet be secured.

Miss Willard and Lady Somerset will head on Monday a small delegation to go before the President to bring his attention to the polyglot petition and secure his consent to place before Congress a certified copy of the signatures to the colossal document. The original polyglot petition will remain in this city in the custody of Mrs. H. LaFetra until the time for its shipment to Great Britain, where it will next be offered to the queen.

DEATH OF CHAS. F. ARNOLD.

Chas. Arnold died at 2:30 this morning, at his home 115 East Maumee street, of pneumonia. He was taken sick Saturday morning, and in the afternoon, following a congestive chill, Dr. Williams pronounced the patient's ailment to be pneumonia.

The deceased, who was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Arnold, was 44 years of age. He was born in Baden, Germany, and came with his parents to Monroe, when but a year old, accompanying them to this city, where he was educated a year later.

When 15 years of age he took a position as clerk in the drug store of Niles, Clay & Cook, and followed this experience with a three year's clerkship in the drug store of Wm. Johnson, on Jefferson avenue, in Detroit.

He went to Tecumseh in 1878, going into partnership with his brother William, in the bakery business, and remained there four years. Returning to Adrian, he entered the grocery store of Wagner & Arnold, and when in 1881 Mr. Wagner withdrew from the firm, the son was taken as a partner by the father. The firm has since been C. Arnold & Son.

Mr. Arnold served the Second ward as alderman one term, being elected in 1887.

Deceased was married in 1877 to Miss Mary Heile, who died in November 1893. There were no children. Besides the parents Mr. and Mrs. Casper Arnold, one brother and two sisters survive, viz: William Arnold, Tecumseh; Mrs. Geo. A Nufer and Miss Anna Arnold, of this city.

The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's church.

The Automatic Safety Pin.

E. B. Lee, postmaster at Weston was in the city Tuesday and made the Press office a friendly call. Mr. Lee is the inventor of an automatic safety pin, which is about the slickest thing in the pin line we ever saw. It is very simple in construction yet thoroughly practical. It can be pinned or unfastened by pulling straight out. Mr. Lee showed us three sizes of this pin, which is covered by three different patents. The smallest size is to use in children's clothes and is perhaps an inch and a quarter long. The second size is probably about two inches in length, and can be used for holding up suspenders, stockings, or as a shawl pin. The third size is for use on horse blankets, and is some five inches long. A man with gloves or mittens on, can use one of these pins, as well as when barehanded.

Mr. Lee has talked with one or two of our leading business men in regard to the manufacture of these pins in this city, and would like to organize a stock company for that purpose with about $10,000 capital say nine men besides himself each putting in $1,000. Mr. Lee would hold the patent, and if the pin proved a success, which is almost a certainty, the company to pay him a certain royalty, and then divide the profits and dividends pro rata. This seems a fair proposition, certainly, as Mr. Lee would lose his $1,000 with the rest, if it proved a failure and if successful only get a trifle more than the others as pay for his invention, cost of patent, etc.

He is in correspondence with the manufacturers of two safety pin companies, and in fact there are only two in existence, and they are making him good offers for his patent, but if he can manufacture it here, he had rather do so. We hope it can be brought about, and believe it is as good a paying investment as a man can go into.—Adrian Press.

In Memory of Mrs. Lathrap.

Harriman, Tenn., Feb. 14, (Special Correspondence to The Voice.)—The plans for the erection of Fisk Memorial Hall, the first permanent edifice of the American Temperance University, include a beautiful chapel to seat 1,500 persons. Its foundation is ready for the walls. Its cost will be about $10,000. It is now proposed to complete this edifice as a memorial to the late Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, and that it shall forever bear her name. A number of her special friends, among the Prohibitionists, have indorsed the plan.

Prof. Samuel Dickie has been reqested to act as treasurer for the Lathrap fund. No portion of the fund is to be used until at least $5,000 are paid in or amply guaranteed.

Last evening Rev. C. M. Brown gave an illustrated lecture at his church entitled, "A Trip Through Japan." About sixty views were shown and the descriptive portion was both edifying and instructive. A very happy finale was given, consisting of portraits of Mr. Brown and J. H. Smith on one slide with the words "Good Night" between.

Levi B. Stevens, of Detroit, was called to Tecumseh, Wednesday, on a sad errand. His little boy, Benj. A. was taken seriously ill on Friday, the 15th, with an attack of peritonitis, and never rallied. He was taken away on the 25th. The remains were brought here on Wednesday, accompanied by the father and Mr. J. B. Whelan, and after appropriate services held at the home of B. F. Reynolds, conducted by Rev. H. A. Smith, the little casket was laid to rest in our evergreen cemetery. Mrs. Stevens, the mother, was sick at home, and was unable to attend the funeral. The boy had always been very healthy, never having seen a sick day before. His death will be a severe blow to both father and mother.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

Aside from the Bible I know of nothing more valuable than Prof. DeMotte's "Secret of Character Building."—Rev. I. A. Thayer, Newcastle, Pa.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. F. M. Society of the M. E. Church will be held at the home of Mrs. Dr. Hause on Wednesday afternoon March 9th; meeting to begin promptly at 2:30; no tea served, but a very interesting program has been prepared.

Under Prof. DeMotte's skillful handling, with the aid of the stereopticon, it not only proved to be very interesting and instructive, but judging from the various remarks of the audience overheard at the close, many will place this lecture at the top of the list.—Lawrence (Mass.) Daily Eagle.

The members of the Royal Arcanum, a short time since, held one of their pleasant social gatherings at Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Snedicor's, and Wednesday evening another was held at the residence of George Cadwell. These gatherings are very popular and the members with their families are having jolly times.

In one of the show windows of Anderson & Co's middle store may be seen a work of art constructed by Lawrence VanTyne, viz: a machinist's tool chest. It is most complete in its arrangements, is built of solid woods, walnut and oak, and very compact. It might well be considered an ornamental piece of furniture it is so beautiful. It reflects great credit to the designer and builder—look at it.

Under a provision of an act of the Legislature, which took effect Monday, Feb., 25th, 1895, it has become necessary to change the date of holding the village election from next Monday, March 4th, until Monday, March 11th; the Board of Registration will be in session Saturday, March 9th, and not March 2d, as heretofore noticed. Official notice of election and meeting of Board of Registration will be found in another column.

Prof. DeMotte is undoubtedly the most entertaining scientific lecturer on the American platform, and an immense amount of valuable information comes along with the unequalled entertainment. It was illustrated throughout with stereopticon views and scientific experiments, not such views as would naturally be suggested by the term stereopticon lecture, but scientific theories and truths embodied and presented tangibly.—Akron (O.) Beacon.

Parties have been going through this vicinity selling keys to school books, claiming they were recommended by H. R. Pettingill, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Chas. W. McNeil of Newburgh, wrote him regarding it and received a letter dated and saying as follows:

LANSING, Mich. Feb. 20, '95.
C. W. McNeil. Dear Sir: I never gave a recommend in my life for "Keys to School Books" and I don't believe in their distribution. You have my permission to make this as public as you please. Yours, H. R. PETTINGILL.

It was a splendid lecture, and I assure you here again that everyone who heard it was delighted. I hope he can give us a return date. Charleston people have had the pleasure of listening to a number of noted lecturers in the past few years; but we believe that we can truthfully say that Dr. DeMotte gave more general satisfaction and delighted more people than anyone who has ever visited this city as a platform speaker. His handsome, manly appearance, his instructive experiments, his glowing and eloquent descriptions and explanations, and best of all his brave, outspoken appeals for a higher standard of morals in society, especially among those of the sterner sex, completely captivated his hearers.—H. B. Glassco, editorially in Charleston (Ill.) Plain Dealer.

Miss Ella Chilson is quite ill.

Roy DeWolf, of Detroit, was at home over Sunday.

Rev. J. P. Varner was an Adrian visitor Wednesday.

Edith Corey has been having tonsilitis the past week.

Special meeting of the Blue Lodge tonight. Third degree work.

David Zeluff and wife, who have been quite ill, are both gaining nicely.

Dick VanDuser, who was injured while coasting, is now out of danger.

T. G. Mead was called to Mobile, Ala., Wednesday, by the illness of a brother.

Watch out for the date of the chocolate tea to be given soon by the B. Y. P. U.

John and Mary Riley were the victims of a pleasant surprise Tuesday evening.

Mrs. E. B. Wood made her sister, Mrs. H. S. Cheever, a visit at Ann Arbor last week.

Go to Heesen's store and see the two-legged pig, Tipton Girl. Admission, ten cents.

Reserved seats for DeMott's lecture will begin at Kirchgessner's Thursday morning next.

John Orr left Wednesday night to attend the Democratic state convention at Saginaw. He expects to return to-morrow.

Many of the Odd Fellows of Tecumseh, will attend the grand dedication of Clark Memorial Hall next Wednesday at Adrian.

The ladies social of the Baptist church will be entertained by Mrs. DeWolf and her committee Thursday afternoon, March 7th.

The A. F. C club met at Chas. Heck's Wednesday evening, but grand bouncer, Will Orr, had no use for his enlarged muscle as there were no candidates.

Prof. D. A. Hammond, of Ann Arbor, who formerly taught school here has been nominated for County Superintendent of schools, by the Democrats of Washtenaw county.

Chas. E. Totten, of Smyrna, was called here yesterday to attend his brother William's funeral. He gave the HERALD a call this morning, and will return home to-morrow.

H. W. Stevens went to Adrian today to make his returns to the County Treasurer. He has collected $15,102 in taxes and only returns $308,18 as uncollected. Pretty good for these times.

Monday morning Roy Burlingame's pleasant countenance may be seen in the clothing department of Spayde's emporium. He begins his engagement at that time. They are both to be congratulated.

The Armory was the scene of a pleasant time yesterday afternoon and evening. The Co. C boys gave a supper which was well attended and netted them a nice little sum. The young men make good waiters.

The snow is hardly off our streets and yet the bicycle season has opened with a rush. J. N. Satterthwaite and C. F. Patterson were out yesterday with the very latest Victory wheels and they are beauties. The firm of Satterthwaite Bros' handle these popular wheels.

The M. E. church parlors were filled to their utmost capacity Monday evening to hear Coller's grapohphone concert. The program was nicely arranged, being varied in character and was rendered so that all were pleased. At the close of the program several of the pieces were repeated. It was a fine entertainment.

Mrs. R. B. Robbins, of Adrian, has been chosen Secretary of the Council of Women, which has just been holding its session at Washington. It will be a great honor bestowed upon Lenawee County, but we know it has been worthily bestowed. The recipient will honor the position as well.

Wm. Totten, one of our oldest residents, who has been in very feeble health for several months, succumbed to the dread destroyer on the 26th inst. The funeral services were held at the residence on Pearl street yesterday afternoon. Rev. E. C. Andrus gave a brief and fitting address to the mourners and a quartette of Masons furnished appropriate vocal music. The Masonic fraternity, attended in a body and the rest of the service was conducted by the brethren of the order from the Masonic ritual. A large delegation from Tecumseh Lodge followed the remains to the grave and participated in the obsequies.

Mrs. Thomas B. Church, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has been organist of St. Mark's Episcopal church in that city for 50 years. But one other instance in the World's history has equaled it, viz: Prof. Stainer who was for 50 years organist in St. Paul's Cathedral, London. Mrs. Church in all these years was late but twice. St. Mark's choir and society celebrated the golden event at the church Friday evening last with a grand sacred concert. It was an evening of rare enjoyment. Mrs. Church was the recipient of many tokens of love and esteem, besides a life-lease of her favorite pew and a purse of over $700. May this estimable lady be spared to fill her loved position many years, is the prayer of St. Mark's society, in which the HERALD heartily joins.

Chas. L. Silvers and wife, of Clinton, attended Charley's Aunt, Friday night.

The Whist Club met with the Misses Hartbeck and Gray on Monday evening.

Orr and Temple have finished taking inventory and every thing is in apple pie order.

James Lowry has been scrubbing out his store and has had a general cleaning up. They are as slick as grease.

Rev. James C. Hagerman went up to Clinton last evening to assist in the revival meetings being held at the M. E. Church.

The Grayson family sang at the Box Social at Ridgeway Wednesday evening and added largely to the enjoyment of the evening.

Ben Garlinghouse has taken additional responsibilities upon his shoulders recently. Ask Charlie Patterson; he can give you full particulars.

N. M. Sutton went over to Detroit Monday morning and returned Wednesday night accompanied by Mrs. Sutton who has been there some time.

Girls', if you had seen Scove Walker wielding scrubbing brush and wash cloths on the wood work at the Post-Office Wednesday you might have got some pointers. He is still in market, and now is your chance.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet at the home of Mrs. Fowler during the month of March. It is greatly desired that every member be present on Friday March 8, at 3 P. M. as it is the annual election of officers.

A late number of the Deadwood News contains the following, that will interest our readers: "Mrs. W. S. Elder recently gave a dinner party, in honor of the Governor of the State, which was a very elegant affair." Mrs. Elder was formerly Miss Maud Eccles of this place.

Mrs. Geo. H. Sherwood and sister, Miss Mana Monaghan, who came to attend the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. W. A. Wood, and remained for a short visit with friends, left Tuesday for Cambridge, where they will make a short visit and then return to Marshall.

A public meeting will be held in the Baptist church under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Union on Sunday evening, March 3, in which all the congregations will unite. Devotional exercises will be conducted by Mrs. Amy Jones, Supt. of Evangelistic work. The pastors of the several churches will give short addresses.

They have been making several changes in the Sunday school at St. Peter's Episcopal church, owing to the departure from the community of Miss Bassett, who has been a valued and faithful teacher and whom they deeply regret to lose. Mrs. S. W. Temple will take the class she has had and Miss Minnie Corey will take the infant class which Mrs. Temple has served so long, and will conduct it on the Kindergarten plan.

The Lenten season is upon us. It commenced day before yesterday, "Ash Wednesday" and will continue forty days. During this season it is expected people will refrain from giving or attending social parties and entertainments and give themselves more to self examination, religious and charitable work. The religious bodies generally are observing this season more than formerly, as they are Christmas and Easter.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

POLITICS IN MICHIGAN.

Republicans and Prohibitionists Name State Tickets.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 22.—The republican state convention on Thursday nominated Judge J. R. Moore, of Lapeer, for associate justice of the supreme court of Michigan on the seventh ballot. Roger W. Butterfield, of Grand Rapids, and Charles Hackley, of Muskegon, were nominated by acclamation for regents of the university. A platform was adopted, of which the following is a synopsis:

It congratulates the people of Michigan and of the country at large upon the magnificent republican victories last November, and predicts the restoration of confidence and national prosperity upon the return of the republican party to full control of national affairs; charges the democratic party with gross maladministration of national affairs, by which they have bankrupted the treasury of the United States, driven prosperity from our people by a mongrel tariff act, caused a shrinkage of revenue, and forced a sale of bonds to supply the deficiency thereby created, and arraigns the democratic administration for its un-American policy whereby home industry is paralyzed and national honor humiliated; denounces as unpatriotic and un-American the administration's Hawaiian policy; indorses the action of the Michigan members of congress in "voting against the proposition to change the word 'coin' to 'gold' in bonds issued by the United States government;" affirms the planks of the republican state platform in 1894 relatin to tariff, currency, reciprocity, labor, immigration and the election laws; indorses the present state administration; recommends that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the people increasing the salaries of state officials, and laments the death of Hon. Francis B. Stockbridge.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 23.—The prohibition state convention on Thursday nominated Myron W. Walker, of Grand Rapids, for justice of the supreme court. Prof. D. B. Reed, of Hillsdale college, and Hon. Noah W. Cheeney, of Ann Arbor, were nominated for regents of the university of Michigan. After reaffirming the prohibition platform upon which the party conducted its campaign last fall, the convention adopted resolutions favoring the submission to the people in the spring of 1896 of a prohibitory amendment by the present legislature, deploring the death of Mary T. Lathrop and emphasizing the allegiance of the party to the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

SHAKESPEARE APPEALS.

Asks That His Pension Be Restored to Its Former Rating.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22.—William Shakespeare, of Kalamazoo, Mich., has applied to the District supreme court for a writ of mandamus against Commissioner of Pensions Lochren to compel the restoration of his pension from $30 to $72. Shakespeare was paralyzed in both legs, with necrosis of the left leg, as a result of the battle before Jackson, Miss., and Secretary Noble granted him a pension of $72, a rating reduced to $30 last autumn. The petitioner claims that the commissioner's action was illegal and unconstitutional.

HAD A RICH UNCLE.

A Michigan Woman Falls Into a Fortune of Nearly $1,000,000.

BLISSFIELD, Mich., Feb. 26.—Mrs. Isaac Hope, of this town, has fallen heir to nearly $1,000,000 by the death of an uncle in Africa. When only 16 years of age, the uncle, William McKay, ran away from Scotland and located in the gold fields of Africa. His parents both died and everybody lost track of the boy. He died some time ago, leaving an estate of $15,000,000. There are sixteen heirs living in Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, among whom the estate will be divided.

Death of a Sheriff.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 24. — Sheriff Nathaniel Rice died Saturday of typhoid fever. He was elected sheriff last fall, and entered upon the duties of his office in January. He was 54 years old, was born in Canada, and had lived in this county thirty years. He served one term as register of deeds of the county. His under sheriff, Edwin C. Woodworth, will succeed him until his successor is chosen at a special election.

Detroit's Dog Show.

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—The third annual bench show of the City of the Straits Kennel club opened Tuesday. Over 450 blooded dogs were in position and the attendance was large, society women being in the majority. Perhaps the center of interest was the St. Bernard department. Sir Bedivere, the winner of 100 prizes, and valued at $20,000, 35 inches tall, weighing 200 pounds, was the center of attraction.

The Peach Crop.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 27.—About 25 per cent. of the hardy peaches and 60 to 75 per cent. of the tender varieties have been killed in the vicinity of Benton Harbor, according to the report of R. Morrill, of Benton Harbor, at the fruit-growers' meeting here. Reports from this section and from north of here were to the effect that the peach prospects were never better at this time of the year.

Held for Trial.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 24.—The examination of the men charged with wrecking a Chicago & Grand Trunk passenger train here at the time of the strike last July, which has dragged along for four months, was concluded Saturday night. Two of the men, John C. Bodewig and William Hall, were bound over to the circuit court to stand trial. Bail was fixed at $10,000.

Sanitarium Burned.

FLINT, Feb. 25.—A serious fire visited this city Sunday night. About 6 o'clock fire was discovered in the upper story of the Allen sanitarium and as some of the hydrants were frozen the flames had gained control before water was obtained, and the entire building with most of its contents was consumed. The loss will be about $10,000; insurance, $2,000.

Street Car Line Crippled.

LANSING, Feb. 22.—The barns of the Lansing Street Railway company, together with five motor cars and all of the company's trailers, were destroyed by fire Wednesday night. The company will be unable to continue service for the present. Loss, $25,000.

THE ADVENTISTS.

Further Proceedings of Their Convention at Battle Creek.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 23.—At the Adventists' conference Friday it was decided to decline all grants or privileges offered by any civil government or ruler for religious work. An offer of 12,000 acres of land had been made by the South African Chartered company of Zambesi. It was reported that Sunday bills had been introduced in the legislatures of Delaware, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri and Montana, and representatives of the denomination were asked to work to defeat the bills if possible.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 25.—The Adventists' conference Sunday discussed the distribution of its denominational papers, of which there are twenty-five printed. These papers are printed in twelve different languages in Europe alone. Nominations were made for officers of the next general conference, O. A. Olsen, of Battle Creek, being named for president.

BATTLE CREEK, Feb. 26.—The Adventists decided to establish a course of study for their ministers and workers similar to the Chautauqua course and it was also decided to publish an educational journal devoted to the Chautauqua study. The general Sabbath-School association showed an increase of 7,800 members, with surplus donations amounting to $22,375 to be given to foreign work.

A Worthy Movement.

LANSING, Feb. 26.—In May, 1853, James Hitchcock was sent to prison from this county, having been convicted of murder. After thirty-two years he established his innocence to the satisfaction of Gov. Alger, who pardoned him on Thanksgiving day, 1885, the old man proving that he had been convicted on perjured testimony. He is now 80 years old. His family died while he was in prison, and an effort will be made to induce the legislature to make some provision for his remaining days. A joint resolution was introduced for this purpose last week.

Steamer Petoskey Freed.

ST. JOSEPH, Feb. 26.—The steamer Petoskey, which had been icebound since the first part of January, succeeded Monday afternoon in working her way through the ice to the end of the piers, where she now lies. It has a large cargo of freight and coal. On the way to Milwaukee it will keep a man on the lookout for any signs of the Chicora.

Alleged Counterfeiters Caught.

HARRISON, Feb. 23.—For more than a year Clare county has been flooded with counterfeit silver dollars. George Fitzgibbons, David Ireland and Frank Thorpe, living in a log hut 12 miles from here, have been arrested. They claimed to be loggers, but in the hut were found molds in which bogus dollars had been cast.

Michigan Foresters.

LANSING, Feb. 27.—The address of High Chief Ranger Joslyn at the ninth annual session of the Michigan High Court of Foresters says that the organization has increased from 369 in 1881 to 70,000 in the United States and Canada, and now has a reserve fund of $1,200,000 in Michigan.

President Approves Michigan Measures.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23.—The president has approved the following: Authorizing the expenditure of a portion of the appropriation for St. Joseph harbor, Mich., to complete the connection between that and Benton Harbor; to return to Michigan the flags of certain volunteer regiments.

Suicide at Grand Rapids.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 27.—Christopher Ellery, aged 45, a stonemason, committed suicide at Grand Rapids by shooting. Domestic trouble is said to have caused the act.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 27.—The senate Tuesday, in committee of the whole, agreed to bills requiring a deposit of $50,000 of the guaranty fund of fraternal beneficiary associations with the state treasurer; for the reorganization of the Detroit Fire and Marine Insurance company, and prohibiting marriage between first cousins. The resolution introduced two weeks ago by Senator Clapp favoring the restoration of silver to an equality with gold was tabled by a vote of 13 to 16.

House.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 28.—The auditor general, in response to a house resolution, on Monday reported that for the last quarter of 1891 there were 241 persons upon the pay roll of the Michigan university, and the total amount of salaries for that institution for 1894 was $250,944, an average of but little in excess of $1,000 each. President Angell leads with $6,000, and ten others range from $3,000 down to a few hundreds. A large number of petitions continue to come in asking for a submission of a constitutional amendment for prohibition to the people at the coming spring election.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 27.—Bills passed the house Tuesday providing for the incorporation of the city of Petoskey; for a jury commission for Bay county; for organization of clubs of American Wheelmen; abolishing days of grace on commercial paper and authorizing women to act as trustees of Baptist churches.

TESTIMONY BY TELEPHONE.

Bank Cashier's Novel Examination and Cross-Examination at Wayne, Mich.

WAYNE, Feb. 27. — Testimony by telephone was taken Tuesday in the case of Goldsmith against Clark. Samuel Goldsmith claimed Joseph Clark agreed to sell him a house and two lots in Wayne village. Goldsmith says he placed the requisite money in the Wayne savings bank, but Clark refused either to take the money or turn over the property. In the resultant suit the testimony of Cashier George H. Stellwagen was valuable, but on account of sickness in the family he could not go to the courtroom 30 miles away, so he was sworn over the telephone, examined and cross-examined, and his testimony, taken down by a stenographer, was entered in the court records.

CONSUL TO MILAN RESIGNS.

Dr. Hazeltine, of Grand Rapids, Tires of Foreign Life.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 24.—A letter received from Dr. Charles S. Hazeltine, of this city, appointed a year ago consul at Milan, Italy, brings the news that he has resigned his position, and if his successor arrives in time he will return to his home here in August. The Milan consulship is one of the most desirable places in the foreign service, though it does not pay much, but Dr. Hazeltine has become tired of foreign life. His family has been spending the winter in southern Italy on account of the extreme cold at Milan.

ATTENDANCE AT ANN ARBOR.

Students at the University of Michigan This Year Number 2,800.

ANN ARBOR, Feb. 26.—The attendance at the University of Michigan, practically complete, is given out as follows: Literary department, 1,518; law, 675; medical, 389; dental, 188; pharmaceutical, 82; homeopathic, 18, making a total of 2,852. Deducting duplicated names, the catalogue will show an actual attendance of over 2,800 for the year. The increase is about 140 over last year, and is mainly in the literary, law and pharmaceutical departments. The homeopathic department alone shows a decrease.

Observed Washington's Birthday.

ANN ARBOR, Feb. 23.—Washington's birthday was observed as usual this year by appropriate exercises under the auspices of the law department. The largest audience of the season gathered in University hall and heard the best addresses given in the hall this year. The speaker was John J. Lentz, of Columbus, O., and his subject was "American Citizenship." The committee had secured Judge Ewing, of Chicago, but he was unable to fulfill his engagement.

Railroad Engines Collide.

VICKSBURG, Mich., Feb. 27.—Chicago & Grand Trunk engine No. 496 ran into and demolished the tender of engine No. 53 at Indian Lake, at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. Engine 496 was badly damaged. Both engines were light, and the accident was caused by No. 496 running faster than 53. Archie Laugs, a brakeman, may lose his right leg, and W. Goodenow, a fireman, was badly bruised and cut about the head.

A Young Girl's Suicide.

DETROIT, Feb. 21.—Dissatisfied with her life at home, and piqued because her father censured her for staying out late, Mary Standkewitz, aged 16, deliberately threw herself in front of a Grand Trunk engine and was instantly killed. The girl grew despondent because she could not have the luxuries and pleasures of life and preferred death to poverty.

Death of William H. Powers.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 26.—William H. Powers, proprietor and manager of Powers' opera house, died Monday morning of typhoid fever. He was 54 years old, had lived here fifty years and was interested in real estate and manufacturing. He held many local offices and served two terms in the state legislature. A wife and four children survive him.

A SURGEON'S KNIFE

gives you a feeling of horror as a rule. There is no longer necessity for it in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting. The

Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that

RUPTURE or Breach is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away. They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others are removed without the perils of cutting operations.

PILE TUMORS, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife.

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and painlessly removed without cutting.

STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also retained by cutting in hundreds of cases. Pamphlet, references and all particulars send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOTHERS

and those soon to become mothers, should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its tortures, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

MRS. DORA A. GUTHRIE, of Colby, Osceola Co., Penn., writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I was not able to stand on my feet without suffering almost the agonies of death. Now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. I am stouter now than I have been in six years. Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best in the world before confinement, or at least it proved so in my case. I never suffered so little with any of my children as I did with my last."

SHE WASN'T SORRY.

Lydia Spencer had never seen it so hot or dreary at Canaan Corners before. The blistering July day was drawing to a close.

She was postmistress and store clerk at the Corners. Day after day for years she had sorted over the stage mails, the county papers and the letters. The day had been a busy one in the store, and to add to the confusion Lydia had recently bought a new set of boxes to take the place of the dingy little portholes which for 25 years had done continuous service under different postmasters.

A carpenter had worked that afternoon tearing away the old case and generally overhauling the postoffice end of the store.

Lydia was between 40 and 50. "Nigh on to 45, I'm two year older'n my boy Jerry," old Mrs. Davidge said to her friends when Lydia's age was discussed. "But, law! she don't look it, an she don't act it. Them tow headed girls never look er did or they really be."

The carpenter stopped hammering and came to where the postmistress was fanning herself. He was shuffling awkwardly half a dozen letters, yellow with age and somewhat rat eaten.

"See here, Lyddy, are these any good?" asked he, holding out the letters. "I found 'em down behind the wainscoting. I s'pose they're just trash what got brushed aside an no account whatever."

The postmistress of Canaan Corners took the letters with but little show of interest. People were always running to her with trifles and asking her unnecessary questions.

Twenty-five years! Yes, it had been just that long since she had seen John Butterworth—since he gave her a lover's look and then, cheerily assuring her that they would soon meet again, had gone to New York.

Their letters had been earnest and full of feeling, and finally he wrote asking her if she would marry him, telling her that he had not been successful in business as yet, but that if she said "yes" he would come back to Canaan Corners, and they would go to Chicago.

Bravely had she penned a favorable answer, and then she waited. Ah, the dying of a great hope!

How tenaciously it clings to life! How anxiously she awaited tidings from John Butterworth! But none came. The summers came and went. Twenty-five years ago, and she had been thinking of John Butterworth that day.

"Looks ez if rats had chawed 'em some, don't it?" asked the carpenter as Lydia stepped closer to the window to inspect the musty letters. The very first one of the lot gave her senses a shock—John Butterworth, Bull's Head Hotel, Bowery, N. Y. City."

The red sun turned black. The Canaan Corners postoffice began spinning around and bobbing up and down. A hurricane seemed to catch her and dash her head against a distant cliff.

"There, there, Miss Lyddy," said the big carpenter fanning her with his straw hat. "The heat's been too much fur ye, I guess."

Trembling like a child, she once more looked at the letter—her own letter of acceptance—plighting her troth for better or for worse, through evil and good report.

It seemed to her as if her heart would burst in agony. She knew now why John Butterworth had never come back. She had appeared to him as unwilling to share his fortunes.

Lydia Spencer was a firm woman. In justice to herself she determined to make an effort to reach John Butterworth with the belated letter.

It had no postmark. Taking the marker, she removed the figures "94" and substituted "69."

Then, writing a note to the proprietor of the Bull's Head hotel, New York city, she told him to forward the letter to Chicago. Nervously she let it fall into the gaping mouth of the mailbag. The stage took it on its way that night.

* * * * * * *

Two weeks later a gray haired man, one of Chicago's leading capitalists, was one morning opening his mail. He came to a yellowed envelope which had been forwarded from New York. It bore several rubber stamp marks, and a Chicago postoffice clerk had written on it:

"Try 361 Dearborn."

"Send Jack in," said John Butterworth to his head clerk.

"Jack, my boy," said the father in a low voice and nervously, "read this old letter which has been 25 years in reaching me.

"Jack," continued the elder after his request had been complied with, "you will have to postpone your vacation. I'm going to take one at Canaan Corners, N. Y. I never expected to marry again after your dear mother's death, my boy, but if the writer of that letter is alive and willing you'll have a new mother inside of two weeks."

* * * * * * *

"Ye'll find Lyddy at the postoffice," said the driver. "She's postmistress, an every one knows Lyddy."

Everything was still in the postoffice when John Butterworth entered. Looking through the glass case, he saw a golden haired woman, her face close to the tabletop. She was resting her averted face on her forearm and sobbing like a child.

"Lydia," said John Butterworth as he took her in his arms and raised her, "Lydia, sweetheart, I didn't get the letter till three days ago in Chicago. I'm so old and gray now I suppose you're sorry I got it at all, eh?"

She looked up quickly, smiling through her tears. Her blushing, radiant face didn't look as if she was sorry.—New York Press.

A Hideous Relic of the Past.

The old time South American Indians were head hunters in every sense of the word, and their manner of preserving the relics of battle would make an Egyptian embalmer sick with envy. They cut off the heads of all vanquished foes and then removed the flesh, bones and brain by some lost process. The materials used in embalming these uncanny relics (fluids of what not) had the effect of shrinking the head until the intellectual dome of a full grown man would not be larger than a lemon. One of these shriveled embalmed heads is in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The hair is still as black and glossy as when worn by the original owner of the head 400 or 500 years ago, and the lips, mouth, nose and eyes are all perfect, although reduced in size proportionate to the shrunken head. The curators of the museum value it at $5,000.—Philadelphia Press.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning March 3. Comment by Rev. Walter J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Burnt Offering.

BIBLE READINGS.—Lev. i, 1-9; Rom. xii, 1.

In the open court before the "tent of meeting" which contained the most sacred furnishings of the tabernacle stood the brazen altar for burnt offerings. It was made hollow, of boards, and covered with plates of brass. A grating on the top served to receive the wood and the sacrifices. The interior of the altar may have been filled with earth or stones. Of this, however, nothing is said in the Bible.

The burnt offering was to be a bullock, a male sheep or goat, or a turtle dove or young pigeon. No part of this offering was to be eaten either by the priests or the one making the sacrifice, but all was to be burned on the altar. The fire was to be kept perpetually burning on the altar.

The burnt offering represented perfect self surrender to God. Its import is summed up in Paul's exhortation, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Thoroughly Equipped.

Education does not stifle zeal. God places no premium on ignorance. Intelligent piety is not less but more effective than ignorant devotion. Ignorance is never the mother of devotion. Her offspring is a brood of superstitions and bigotry, if not hypocrisy. The Holy Scriptures themselves are "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." The more one knows the better he can be and more useful.

Bishop James N. Fitzgerald.

Bishop James N. Fitzgerald is the president of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church. He is eminently fitted for this position. He is progressive in thought, energetic in action, safe in counsel and has the affection and confidence not only of the young people of the church, but also of the older and more conservative elements. His official residence is New Orleans. His duties as bishop call him to all parts of the United States and even to foreign countries. Bishop Fitzgerald is about 58 years of age and is a native of Newark, N. J. He studied at Princeton and chose the law as his calling, but on his conversion abandoned the court for the pulpit.

BISHOP FITZGERALD.

That Great University.

The American university at Washington bids fair to be one of the great institutions of this great country in the next century. Its plans are broad enough to make it truly national in character. Its location is strategic in the Capital City, with its unequaled education facilities afforded by the many collections in museums, libraries and governmental departments. The grounds are superb in situation and ample in extent. A special gift provides for their gardening, to be begun next May. The endowment grows steadily, and funds are being received for buildings. The scheme is a magnificent one. Grand men are in control of the enterprise, which will not be restricted in operations to denominational lines. Bishop John F. Hurst, the resident bishop at Washington, is the chancellor.

Cheerfulness.

'Tis well to work with a cheerful heart
Whatever our fortunes call,
With a friendly glance and an open hand
And a gentle word for all.
Since life is a thorny and difficult path,
Where toil is the portion of man,
We all should endeavor while passing along
To make it as smooth as we can.

New Life In the East.

Whatever one may think of the restoration of the Jews to Palestine, one thing is certain, new life is being infused into the old land, and prosperity such as has not been seen for ages seems dawning. Jerusalem is fast outgrowing its old limits. A new quarter in the western suburb has arisen in the last few years. Every available piece of land is rapidly being bought up. Trade is increasing, and last year a public garden was opened outside the Jaffa gate. Two boats on the Dead sea are employed in gathering bitumen. It is proposed by steam launch and barges to bring produce from Moab by a shorter route to Jerusalem. The railroad from Jaffa to Jerusalem is also working wondrous changes in thought and style of doing things in this ancient land.

Missionary Enthusiasm.

Open doors stand invitingly on every side. Activity such as the world never before saw is pushing the borders of Christ's kingdom far into the borders of heathenism. Not to be thrilled at the stories of heroism coming up from every land, is to show oneself either ignorant of the most important movements of the times or indifferent to the condition of one's brethren in distress. The regular church papers, special periodicals devoted to various fields and departments, the secular press and even the reports of United States consuls teem with information.

Reflex Influence of Missions.

The evangelization of a heathen people will do more to start the wheels of industry than all possible tariff legislation. One New England firm has sold more agricultural implements in South Africa since the Christianizing of the native tribes than are sufficient to pay the whole expense of the missions from the beginning.

THE WIDOW.

The dull winter's day was drawing to a close when Marianne de Courvoy came home from the cemetery where the remains of her fiance, Jean de Themines, had been laid.

This brilliant young man, the eldest son of the family whose name he bore, died from the effects of a hunting accident at 28 years of age, and on the eve of a marriage ardently desired by all concerned and one that seemed to combine all the conditions of happiness.

Marianne sank down in a state of exhaustion on a sofa in the drawing room. Her strength was exhausted. So many overwhelming emotions had completely prostrated her, and she fainted away. The careful attention of loving hands brought her back to consciousness. Then she swore to God to bury her 20 years in the sorrows of a voluntary widowhood and in the solemn duties of eternal fidelity to the memory of the past. The resolution that Mlle. de Courvoy had formed and had communicated to her family did not take long to make itself known generally to the world.

Among people who did not know her well she found only unbelievers. Her father and mother alone believed in her resolution, for they knew her firm will and the energy and singleness of her soul. They were convinced that as the widow of Jean de Themines she would wear her widow's weeds forever, so much convinced, indeed, that they made no effort to combat her resolution.

During the year that followed the death of her betrothed Marianne received two proposals of marriage. She refused them. A third who arrived upon the scene received the same treatment. Her sisters married, and their marriage furnished an opportunity to test somewhat the strength and depth of the young widow's resolution, but she remained unchanged.

"I am a widow," she said, "and a widow I mean to remain." Every six months she spent a few weeks with Jean's mother, who lived since his death in retirement in the chateau of Themines.

When she returned to her parents after these periodical absences, she showed the same disposition to remain single, and by degrees the conviction at which the world had laughed was accepted as serious and final.

It was believed that Mlle. de Courvoy would never marry again.

* * * * * * * *

Mme. de Themines had a second son, Pierre de Themines. He was younger than Jean and was now at the age at which his brother had met death in the hunting field.

Marianne did not know him. At the time when she was betrothed to Jean he was away in Asia on a voyage of exploration, and although after his brother's death he had signified his intention of coming home for two years he had been detained by the delays of a long and difficult journey. His mother was still waiting for his return.

She awaited his arrival with impatience that was the more keen because she had not been able to console herself for the death of her eldest son or to fill the void caused by that loss. Her grief was only partially alleviated when she was able to talk of Pierre, her second son, in whom all her hopes were now centered. She hoped that soon after his return home he would marry and by his marriage bring back to her hearth and home some of the joy and light that Jean's death had overshadowed.

Marianne was almost the only person to whom the old lady had confided this hope. She was the person to whom, in preference to all others, she spoke of the absent one. She would praise his excellent qualities of heart, his personal appearance and his character.

"He is the exact image of his brother," she would often say.

Marianne heard so much about Pierre, read so many of his letters, saw his pictures and heard his praise so often and so loudly sung that she began to feel an interest in him, although she had never seen him. She began to form in her mind a picture of what he should be if his character and appearance had been truly drawn.

But in this interest she felt for the absent Pierre was no trace of the love she had conceived for Jean. She merely professed for Pierre, without knowing him, the affection that she was bound to feel for everybody who had loved or known Jean. She looked upon herself in some sense as his sister, and she would have protested strongly against any suggestion that the character of her affection for this unknown brother could change into love.

One evening while she was staying at the chateau a letter came announcing the arrival of Pierre in the country. It was followed two hours later by Pierre himself.

"You will see him, and you will love him," said Mme. de Themines to Marianne.

She attached to these words no special meaning, but when he came into the room she was overwhelmed. Mme. de Themines had not exaggerated when she said that Pierre was the image of Jean.

Marianne thought that she saw before her the old lover alive from the dead. The same face, the same hair, the same frame and build and the same manners. She listened for his voice. It was the voice of the dead man, and in the accent and turn he gave to them it was as if she were actually in the presence of the dead Jean and listening to his words from the grave. This interview resulted in an attack of prostration.

On the following day she made hurried preparations to go away, as if some danger threatened her. But Mme. de Themines would not allow her to depart.

"If you go away now," she said, "you will throw a shadow over the joy I feel at the return of my son."

So Marianne did not go away. In spite of her alarm there soon took place in her a transformation that, unknown to herself, resulted in the awakening of hopes that she would not admit.

Once again she experienced in talking with Pierre the charm that she had loved so well with his brother Jean.

With the help of this illusion her heart opened and warmed once again with love.

One day Mme. de Themines came up to her and whispered in her ear:

"Pierre loves you, my dear girl. Love him."

She did love him. Now they are married.—Kansas City Times.

Manchester is being canvassed for subscriptions to stock for a canning factory.

Adrian Odd Fellows will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their institution on March 6th.

Only three counties in the state cast more votes than Lenawee. Wayne, Kent and Saginaw lead, the latter polling 13,101 against 11,607 for Lenawee.

More carrots will be raised here this year than ever before. Dairymen and owners of horses are now appreciating their value as a great food product.

Cheese factories and creameries in this section will commence work as soon as possible this spring. Some of them intend to start up next month.

A colored man tried to steal oil from a wagon in Adrian last Saturday night, but was caught in the act, and was very glad to escape by paying a round price for the stolen oil.

A new ice house, of 100 tons capacity, has just been built and filled at the C., J. & M. depot here for the benefit of the train service and employes of the road. —Addison Courier.

Since the mercury has left the zero mark and climbed up a few steps toward the tip of the thermometer, there has been quite a reduction in the amount of fuel required to keep from freezing.

The Adrian Telegram rises to remark that the "office was made fragrant today by tulips." It is easy to imagine how two lips might make the editor happy, but what would his wife say about it? —Hudson Post.

Many of our farmers are still feeding wheat to their stock. One of our large wheat growers said to us a few days ago that wheat was certainly worth seventy five cents per bushel to him for feed.

It is a settled fact that Monroe will have a new opera house and armory, to be erected on the sight of the present armory. The necessary funds have been secured and the work will soon commence.

Northville has a sort of dime museum. It has a U. S. fish hatchery, frozen water-mains, a lively newspaper, a village cat hole, a condensed milk factory, and a Cork that weighs 180 pounds, and doesn't fit any of the bottles in the town. Northville is a veritable wonderland.

An agent has been working a fraud on the country folks in the county. His plan was to sell coupons for 25 cents which would be good for one dollar on a dozen photographs, when presented at No. 4 South Main street. This place happens to be Schneider's shoe store and now the slick fellow has the money and the sturdy yoemen have no pictures. —Adrian Telegram.

Now don't get your hopes all up only to have them dropped with a d. s. t., but there were a number of Mackinaw officials in Hudson, Monday, and we have an esteemed contemporary's word for it that one of them pointed to a piece of land east of the Mackinaw station and said "That's where we would like to locate our car shops." The Gazette gave the news several months ago that Hudson was being considered and might possibly secure the shops if the proper amount of hustling was done. It would be a big thing for our thriving city, but just whether they will come or not is merely a matter of conjecture at present.—Hudson Gazette.

The electric lights of Monroe last week assumed a "cranky" attitude and failed to render good service. The cause could not be determined and electricians were called from Detroit and other places, but the cause still remained a mystery. Finally a happy thought struck the management, to call on Dundee to furnish the man to solve the mystery. Electrician McVay of the Dundee plant went over to Monroe last Friday, and after a short study of the workings located the cause of the trouble, remedied the defects, and the lights are again working all right. Mr. McVay is a thorough electrician and understands all parts of the workings of electric light systems and plants.—Dundee Reporter.

Rev. Tatlock of the Ann Arbor Episcopal church has vigorously fought pew renting in the church, and they are going to try and raise the dominie's salary now by pledges of members, leaving the seats free to those who see fit to come, and each to enjoy full squatter sovereignty. The pastor thinks commercial religion ought not to prevail, and that in the house of the Lord, no discrimination should be shown persons in ownership of sanctuary sittings that shall be safe from intrusion. This will make the high toned people of means hustle out early to get a good position, and since they have no more privileges than common heathen, the pastor's salary may show a shrinkage that will work change of opinion in his mind in about a year. He ought to remember that the church is best supported by those who care more for a seat than they do for a sermon. Probably this is not the situation in Ann Arbor.—Adrian Press.

The Gold Flower.

This flower, so fittingly called Gold Flower, was produced by M. Moser, of Versailles, France, and introduced in Europe last season, the plants selling at a very high figure, only a few plants coming to America. The flowers are two or three inches across, of a bright, shining, golden yellow and bearing numerous handsome stamens. The plant is of low, spreading, branching growth, with handsome leaves, the upper side much darker than the lower. It is perfectly hardy, forms an excellent border, or is grand for bedding, while as a single pot plant it is charming with its clean, bright green foliage as a background for the flowers, great, shiny yellow disks, brilliant in their reflections as burnished gold.

This year an enterprising firm is offering it at the price of ordinary plants, viz., 25 cents a plant.

By sending 10 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for Vick's Floral Guide, (which amount may be deducted from first order), you will learn all about this beautiful plant Hypericum Moserianum, and also regarding their offer of $300 cash for a name for the New Double Sweet Pea.

The Story of a Campaign.

Willis J. Abbot, the Political Editor of the Chicago Times, who is recognized by his fellow journalists as one of the ablest and cleverest political writers in the country, whether one is in sympathy with his views or not, tells the story of the Populist campaign in Chicago, in the Arena for Febuary. Mr. Abbot had the advantage all through the campaign of last autumn of being in touch with the leaders of the different elements that are gradually forming a new party, with new social and economic aims in American politics, and his paper has value for all those who want to get at the facts regardless of dominating prejudices. Even the opponents of every sort of change in the political phases of the country should study this paper, in order to estimate the potency of this new political sentiment that is in the air —and is not peculiar to America, but is seizing upon the heart and brain of the whole great western world.

An Electrical Magazine.

Electric Power, now in its seventh year, makes its bow to the public this month in an entirely new form and dress. It will henceforth appear as a magazine both as to size and character —a character which the readers of electrical science will greatly appreciate. The first number of the new form is handsomely printed and contains many excellent illustrations. The reading matter is less technical in its nature and is interesting to those who wish to know something of what is going on in electricity and yet do not care to make a study of the science. Electricity is being applied so universally now that every progressive person should read about it, and Electric Power is well worth the subscription price of $2.00 a year. The publishers offer a trial subscription for six months for $1.00. It can be obtained on the news stands for 20cents a copy. It is published at 36 Cortland Street, New York City.

Table Talk.

Table Talk for Feb. opens with an interesting and instructive article on "Mushrooms and Toadstools" by Julius Palmer, the renowned authority on such subjects. This is followed by the usual departments in which this month, the receipts alone number fully three dozen and in which are given the freshest notes on fashions, serving, and all questions of interest to the housekeeper nd homemaker. There are also the menus for the month, a lesson in Dietetics, the Washington letter on Society's doings at the Capitol and an article, "Over the tea-cups, a bright readable resume of the latest popular books. Our readers can see a sample copy by addressing Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Penn.

HENRY GEORGE.

LET EVERYBODY READ THIS

Until they Comprehend the Following Great Moral Truths of the George Philosophy.

Strike from Christianity the principle of love and what is left? A corpse, a husk, a tomb. The life is gone forever, and it matters not what traditions or ceremonies remain, the relic is no more Christianity than a corpse is a man.

While this truth will at once be conceded, I take the liberty of asking you, good reader, if in our social arrangements we are making anything like a decent approximation to this principle? Do our laws, so far as they effect the division of the products of labor, make any approach to the command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself?"

When the farmer resorts to fertility, the miner to the most productive mines and the fisher to the best fisheries, etc., they are all trying to enrich by producing abundance. In the same way each producer, by sticking to his own occupation, developes special skill and produces better in quality and more in quantity. The developed skill of one produces abundantly; the developed skill of another likewise produces abundantly; they exchange; they enrich and are enriched. No statutory enactment compels this. It is the outgrowth of men's natural impulses. Here is the harmony of natural enrichment.

The characteristics of this harmonious trade are labor for labor, service for service, enrichment for enrichment, benefit for benefit. This is trade, and when viewed in this aspect, it is seen to be not a tug of war, one succeeding by another's failure, but each one blessed and benefited by others' success.

In contrast to this I ask attention to the following circumstance: Some years ago, a certain town was very small, a man obtained possession of a piece of land for a trifling sum. The ground rental was then about $50 per annum. Population has increased, land has become relatively more scarce, people are now crowding into back alleys unfit for human habitation, and that land owner is now drawing a rental of upward of $20,000 per annum. Has he become rich by enriching, by rendering labor for labor, service for service, enrichment for enrichment, benefit for benefit? No, not by any mesns.

Does the relationship thus established between this man and the rest of society accord with the spirit of Christianity?

In answer to this question I ask attention to the following particulars:

1. He did not produce this value of $20,000 yearly. This value depends on the presence of a population of about 500,000 people. The value caused by these 500,000 people is appropriated wholly by this one man.

2. As he does nothing to produce this $20,000 yearly, he obtains this wealth every year by the deprivation and impoverishment of the laborer. He rises to wealth not by the abundance of his production, but on the crushed fortune of his neighbors.

3. This man's share of the products of labor has increased, not because he has benefitted or enriched society in any way, but, on the other hand, because land has become relatively more scarce; because society is poorer in land, therefore he is richer.

4. Population is rapidly increasing; land is becoming more scarce; congestion is growing more intense. Therefore the producer must surrender more and more to the land owner. At first the producer surrendered to him but a small portion of the produce; as population still further increases labor has to surrender still more, and the more the laborer pays the more he has to pay; the more he pays the greater grows his debt. The debt is continuous, increasing and irredeemable.

5. For the possession of that estate there was paid originally into the public treasury a very trifling sum of money—probably less than one dollar—and for that small sum the law decrees to the land owner the power to compel his fellows to maintain him and his successors for all time in luxurious idleness. The law then sells to him the power to become a perpetual taskmaster.

6. Do not the principles of Christian brotherhood and the principle of Christian equity demand that reward should be proportioned to service? Should not the hand of industry make rich and idleness tend to poverty? Should not each receive according to his work? Does not common honesty demand this? What could we think of ourselves if we sanctioned laws that decreed wealth to the idler and poverty to the producer? And yet that is exactly the very character of our land system. Let a man become possessed of land around which men congregate, and the law allows him to appropriate the value of that land, without limit or time or amount. His hand may know no diligence, but he becomes rich, while labor, with enormous diligence, must live in comparative penury. Labor must pay tribute to idleness. Do nothing may revel in luxury, labor must wallow in want!

Labor, producing much and enjoying little, while idleness may produce nothing and appropriate princely pay. Christianity says: "To each according to his work," and our land laws reverse this order, and decree to labor penury, to idleness plenty.

7. Amid the thunders of Sinai there came a command: 'Thou shalt not steal. And in the enlightened and purified conscience there still thunders the same command. We may build churches, adorn sanctuaries, have sermons of beauty beyond reproach, with song and chant of thrilling sweetness, sermons faultless in logic and eloquence; but unless we can practice common honesty, unless we put into practice the command, 'Thou shall not steal,' what avail all our ceremonies?

Now, what lies at the basis of property? There can be but one claim, namely, production, or the rendering of service. How can a man who produces nothing establish a claim to something which another man produced? Yet by our laws we decree that the man who acquires a land value may produce nothing, but he can claim food from the farmer, clothing from the clothier, service from the doctor, and tribute continuously. It gives the land owner the power to push his hand, year after year deeper into the pocket of the producer. How can he who produces nothing, who renders no service to society, honestly be entitled to the produce and service of other people? Can this be honest? Do not our land laws, which empower the nonproducer to appropriate the product of labor, thus sanction perpetual confiscation?

What is to be the development of society? Read Helen Campbell's 'Prisoners of Poverty,' describing the poor in New York; read the 'Bitter Cry' of London; look at the misery of Ireland or among the crofters of Scotland. These tales, so harrowing, make the heart sicken at the life of hopeless poverty into which millions are yearly born. With the same social arrangement here as there, we see precisely the same law of development. Every year sees the gulf between the rich and poor wider. Population on this continent doubles every twenty-five years. Ground rentals in cities grow more and more rapidly than population. To-day in the best parts of our large cities the laborer must surrender a ground rental to the amount of from four to twelve millions of dollars per acre per annum. Twenty-five years hence the tribute to be surrendered by the laborer to idleness will have grown to twenty millions of dollars per acre per annum! For what? For service in return? No, no; but simply to get access to the earth, our inheritance of God Almighty!

Just think what this arrangement involves. Two children are born—one heir to that tribute as claimant, the other heir to that tribute as debtor. The latter must serve a lifetime of labor to house, feed, clothe and maintain in brilliant luxury the former, who by our social arrangements is not bound to render any service in return. The child of poverty is born to a life of servitude—not for any sin of himself or his parents, but simply because they who profess Christianity, the religion of brotherly love, have decreed that so it shall be. To sell absolutely, as we do, the whole habitable earth, with all its potentialities, to one part of society, and thus compel the other part to pay tribute forever, to get access to the earth, and then to teach the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, the supremacy of love. Could there be a greater mockery? If twenty men raise a crop or build a house, and one claims full possesion of all the product, he is guilty of theft. All instincts of justice insist that the producers of the value should own the value. The peculiar value that comes from the crowding of population or from public improvements should belong to the public. Justice proclaims it, and no legislative enactment can reverse this decree without wrong.

The remedy for all this wrong is very simple and very easy. Let all taxes be removed as quickly as possible from all the products of labor and concentrated on land values. We thus accomplish several advantages:

1. The adoption of the simplest possible form of taxation, the easiest to assess, the easiest to collect, the one that no one can evade.

2. We thus prevent that terrible disaster of placing one part of society to stand as impediment between their fellows and the original source of wealth, the earth, and thus beget unwilling idle tramps at one end of society and idle confiscation and nonproducing consumers at the other end.

3. By thus appropriating for public purposes that value which is not the product of individual labor, we effectually prevent one becoming rich simply by impoverishing the other. Then each will become rich only as he renders service, and thus enriches.

And if civilization is to advance; if the principle of love is to become supreme; if we are to develop a true Christianity, must not this reform be accomplished? Let the present method continue, with population increasing at its present enormous rate, must not the result largely nullify all attempts at the improvements of the race? Where labor surrendered $100 fifty years ago it surrenders twenty-five times that sum today. In the next twenty-five years the increase of population on this continent will be as great as during the last fifty years. Instead of this being a grand benefit to society it will act as a huge wedge. The ground rentals of land-loaner will have increased to enormous proportions, while the burden of the laborer will have become increasingly great.

Dives comes to the sanctuary in gilded coach; his rentals have grown. Laborer tramps a-foot and sets apart on a hard board; his burden has grown. The service is read: "Little children, love one another!"

One of the most brazen falsehoods ever placed upon the shoulders of the poor little workingmen is the statement that the system of protection is an "American system." The truth is, protection of labor is no more American than is the habit of eating. The real American system still remains to be put into operation. The American system will be new, far advanced, human, just, and above all, Christian. It will be founded upon the rock of absolute justice. It will operate so as to leave to the laborer the full product of his industry. It will recognize and protect the highest and most sacred rights of property, instead of taking from the industrious producer and turning it over to the lazy and selfish non-producer. The American system will give labor freedom of access to raw material and freedom to exchange the product of its industry with whomsover and for whatsoever it pleases.

How glad we ought to be to find a justification of this "great moral truth" in the land and tax reform; to be able to see that God is really wiser and better than the condition of human affairs has made him appear to be; to know that "on earth as in heaven" his will may be done and his kingdom may come, so that every child born into this earthly life may at the very gate of birth find conditions that make possible to it, in full, glad sense, "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." This is admitted by many who can see their way out of the present conditions. It is no patent remedy for disease that the land value tax system offers. We have discovered a great wrong, a deep injustice at the foundation of our human relations, and we simply say, "Cease to do evil and learn to do right." That is the religion that is in it. What doth the Lord require of thee but to deal justly, love mercy and be happy?

The St. Louis Republic Free.

The "Twice-a-Week" St. Louis Republic will be sent Free For One Year to any person sending, before January 31, 1895, a club of three new yearly subscribers, with $3 to pay for the same.

Already the clans are gathering for the fray in 1896, and 1895 will be full of interesting events. The skirmish lines will be thrown out, the maneuvering done and the plans of campaign arranged for the great contest in '96.

The remaining short session of the Democratic Congress, to be followed shortly by a Republican Congress with a Democrat in the Presidental chair will be productive of events of incalculable interest.

In fact, more political history will be constructed during 1895 than in any year since the foundation of the Government, and a man without a newspaper will be like a useless lump in the movements of public opinion.

You can get three new subscribers for The Republic by a few minutes' effort. Remember in the Republic subscribers get a paper twice-a-week for the price of a weekly—only $1.00 a year. Try it At Once, and see how easily it can be done. If you wish a package of sample copies, write for them.

The enthusiasm for free silver is so great in Montana that some of the social clubs have free silver names. One of the newspapers thus describes a social event in Townsend: "On last Friday night the Bimetallic Club gave a masquerade ball, at Tierney's Hall, at which the elite of Townsend and surroundings mingled and enjoyed the festivities of the evening. The hall was crowded with gay masquers, and as the sweet strains of music from the Townsend String Band toyed with the twinkling stars in the old flag on the side of the ball fairies, saints and devils floated away on the tide of music, and imagined, no doubt, that they were sailing upon the waters of life in a gondola of eternal bliss. The affair was highly satisfactory to all concerned."

As everybody knows, Mr. Depew's experience with newspaper men has been large—larger we presume, than any other man in the country. What he had to say on the subject at the Press Club dinner is, therefore, of special interest. It was not said in the way of flattery, but as a matter of simple justice and truth. "I can say," Mr Depew declared, "that in my experience with reporters I have never been misrepresented, except by incapacity or accident." This is high and not undeserved praise of a hard-working class of men to whom the public in general owes a larger debt than it is commonly willing to acknowledge. Mr. Depew's testimony is in accord with that of the Rev. Dr. Newman Smyth, who recently said that several years ago he made the discovery that reporters were not the enemies of mankind, and ever since then he had "found no class of men more quick to respond, or willing to pay careful regard to, the courtesies and the confidence of gentlemanly intercourse."

Did you ever see one of the famous waterproof Interlined Collars or Cuffs? It's very easy to tell, for they are all marked this way

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

They are the only Interlined Collars and Cuffs, and are made of linen, covered with waterproof "CELLULOID." They'll stand right by you day in and day out, and they are all marked this way

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

The first cost is the only cost, for they keep clean a long time, and when soiled you can clean them in a minute by simply wiping off with a wet cloth—that is the kind marked this way

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

These collars and cuffs will outlast six linen ones. The wearer escapes laundry trials and laundry bills—no chafed neck and no wilting down if you get a collar marked this way

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Ask your dealer first, and take nothing that has not above trade mark, if you desire perfect satisfaction. All others are imitations absolutely.

If you can't find collars or cuffs marked this way, we will send you a sample postpaid on receipt of price. Collars, 25 cts. each. Cuffs 50 cts. pair. Give your size and say whether standup or turned-down collar is wanted.

FITS AND NERVOUS DISEASES.

When Henry M. Hall, M. D., late surgeon U. S. A., Department of Tennessee, returned from the war he found a child afflicted with epilepsy. Leading physicians were consulted, without apparent benefit. Noted specialists could give but little if any relief. To rescue his child from a fate worse than death became the object of his life. For several years experiment followed experiment, until at last success crowned his efforts. In 1889 old age and infirmities induced him to impart the knowledge of how to manufacture it, under the agreement that a bottle should be sent free of all charges to any one applying for it, who was afflicted with epilepsy. Since then over 20,000 free bottles have been sent to the afflicted. Experience has proved that it cures Insomnia, St. Vitus' Dance, and all forms of Nervous Affliction. If you want to try this wonderful remedy free of all charge, write, stating your disease as plainly as possible; give your age and post office. Address The Hall Chemical Co., West Philadelphia, Pa.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Mrs. John Britton is quite sick with grippe.

Orange blossoms will be in full bloom next week sure.

Don't fail to hear Prof. Beal next Tuesday evening.

Sheriff Wilson was in town Saturday and again Monday.

Verne Smith's foot is better and he is able to be at work again.

A gentleman came all the way from Toledo to see a Jackanipe.

LaVern Oosterhout and wife are visiting at Ypsilanti this week.

J. B. Coller and wife, of Macon, visited Earl Lenardson and wife this week.

Those who neglect to hear Mark Beal next Tuesday evening will miss a rare treat.

John Hughes, of Tecumseh, was the guest of his brother Arthur, a couple of days this week.

Miss Bertha Lamkin is assisting Mrs. Will Clark, whose recovery from the grip is very slow.

Hugh Hannan has rented the Bills farm at Tecumseh and will move his family next week.

Charles DuBois loaded a car with hay at Sisson's Tuesday and another at Ridgeway yesterday.

Missionary meeting at the Christian Union church Wednesday afternoon, followed by a choice supper.

Miss Lydia McNeil, of Tecumseh, is here assisting in caring for her sister, Mrs. Geo. Hawks, who is ill.

Miss Hattie Ball, of Dundee, was the guest of her friend Miss Bertha Britton, the greater part of last week.

Mr. T. Brunk moved his family to Tecumseh yesterday. He reports the grating works rushed with work.

Thomas Wyrill and wife and Miss Adeline McNeil, of Tecumseh, attended the funeral of Mrs. George Oliver.

The suit of Miller and Smith against Garland, called at Dundee last Saturday was postponed until some day next week.

The Reformed church society at the G. A. R. Hall Wednesday evening, gave a chicken pie supper that was enjoyed by all.

Ben Pulver and Frank Zeluff went over to Ypsilanti Sunday. Guess there must be special attractions there for them at least.

Hendershot tent K. O. T. M. hold a special meeting next Wednesday evening for conferring degrees. Let there be a large attendance.

Ed. Bachman has completed the skylight for the new gallery. Harvey has his outfit here and will soon be in shape to take all your Photos.

A couple of young ladies were masquerading in male attire Friday evening, in consequence of which they were not able to attend the fire.

Next Tuesday evening our citizens will be entertained by the most brilliant orator and impersonator on the International Lecture Bureau.

Mrs. Samuel Kniffin, who is not well at best, was stricken Monday morning with paralysis affecting her entire right side. She is in a very critical condition.

They say (and you know that is good authority) that Vern Smith is making bills of extraordinary length in a certain direction, and some times spends a day.

Mrs. W. J. Helm is so much better that she is able to do her work, and her sister Adah Lamkin, who has been with her, has returned to her home in Franklin.

Auctions are numerous in this vicinity. Lewis Zapf, Charles Shaler and Richard Clarkson, all have an auction next week, and Frank Davidson is the auctioneer.

A meeting of the base ball association will soon be called to complete plans for the season's campaign. The team will be strengthened by Lewis and Harman of Milan.

Westley Mantell, the Actor, was in town Wednesday. Our dramatic society should secure him to put on the boards one of his fine plays. It would be a good school for them.

There is to be a charity ball at Exelby's hall, Thursday, March 14th, for the benefit of Millard Seullenberger, the blind musician. It is a most worthy object, and so all turn out, whether you dance or not, for you will have a fine time socially and assist in the benefit as well.

A poor unfortunate fellow, with but one leg was put off the train here Tuesday night. Although a cripple he was drunk and very abusive; on account of his misfortune, Deputy Sheriff Britton did not arrest him but furnished him lodging. Geo. Exelby gave him supper and breakfast and he left towards Tecumseh.

Grant Oosterhout rode the K. O. T. M. goat Tuesday evening. Guess he and the goat must have had a lively tussle, for Wednesday we found Grant in Lee Bros' store leaning with his elbow on the counter looking pale. He did not offer to sit down. That goat will have sport for some time as there are 12 more to be initiated.

Will Britton was called to Ann Arbor Tuesday as a witness on a suit, but it was postponed until Thursday, so he had to go again yesterday. It was the John Tilden case—a tramp arrested here for larceny. A short time ago he was arrested by Will for vagrancy. On his person was found a quantity of skeleton keys and an amount of plunder showing him to be a dangerous character to have around.

Geo. Exelby informs us that he will leave the hotel next week, and move into his private residence next door west. He assures us that the Exelby house, under the supervision of Mr and Mrs. Luke Bannister, will be nicely kept, and as in the past, be a model house for a place of this size. While we regret to lose Geo. and his estimable wife from the hotel, we are glad it passes into the hands of those who have had experience in catering to the wants of the public, therefore we speak for Mr. and Mrs. Bannister a cordial reception from our own people. We trust Mr. and Mrs. B. may find a change to their personal advantage.

Prof. M. B. Beal, of Albion College, read recently before the students and professors at the Agricultural College. All were heartily interested and entertained. His easy manner, excellent voice, and thorough appreciation of the thought and poetry of the selections he gives, enable him to render them with such force, feeling and poetic spirit as are are rarely met in public readers. I heartily commend him to all.—O. CLUTE.

The All Penny Ante society held another meeting at the mill Monday evening, when Will Clark, John Britton and Edgar Wells were made members, but whether active or honorary members Art did not say. Our petition as well as Fred Morrell's, was again held over. Fred says the late cold snap has put a stop to the hens laying, consequently we will have to wait. Say Fred, why can't we turn flour as well as Eggs? Others have done it and why can't we? I am becoming anxious to get in before the spring freshet.

Clarence Zibble and Fred Taylor, not long since, made a visit to the city of Dundee and their relations became rather mixed. Since their return the best of feeling has not existed between them. Saturday they met and, in talking over matters, they grew excited, and from hot words they came to blows and had a regular scrap, in which, it seems, Clarence came out ahead. Whether this was successful in adjusting matters satisfactory to both parties we are not prepared to say. We regret that the boys should resort to such measures. It is not just the thing, boys.

They had a delightful time Friday evening at the Maccabee Hall, when members of Ivy Leaf Hive entertained their visitors from surrounding Hives. As was expected our ladies added new laurels to their already fine reputation as entertainers. It was pretty nearly a hen party all through, still, we understand, one poor single male, besides the men, who came to drive for the ladies, did sit down to the banquet. Some of the ladies did not go home till morning, and had a lively time at the Exelby house after they left the hall. It is said some of our ladies, on reaching home, were by their Lords greeted with similar interrogations to those they used to receive before the ladies knew how nice it was to be out to the lodge themselves. It was all right, ladies, glad you had a good time.

Friday night, about 8:30, it was discovered that Gogeline's mill was on fire. The alarm was given and soon the entire male population and many of the fairer sex were on the ground, and by hard and judicious work the flames were soon extinguished. All felt relieved, for had it not been discovered when it was the chances are that it would have proved a very disastrous conflagration, as it is so situated that many of our best residences would certainly have been destroyed. It seems the arch was defective and the fire started from there and worked its way into the saw-dust packing surrounding the tank, which made it difficult to get at. As it was the damage was slight. They cannot be too careful about fire particularly around this building as it endangers much valuable property.

OBITUARY.

Mary (Wyrill) Oliver was born in Bilborough, Eng., Dec. 25th, 1833, and she died at her home in Ridgeway township, Feb. 27, 1895, being a little past 61 years of age. She came with her father to America in 1854, and the family settled at Tecumseh, Mich. In 1856 the deceased was married to Geo. L. Oliver who survives her. To the twain were born seven children, of these a son and two daughters survive. In 1875 she made a public profession of religion and united with the Christian Union Church of which she remained a zealous and worthy member until her death. She served the church as clerk for 18 years, was teacher of the infant class in Sunday school for 17 years, and president of the church aid society for many years. She held all these positions two years ago, when failing eye-sight compelled her to withdraw from these varied duties. About 10 weeks before her death she was attacked with malarial fever, and other complications setting in, baffled the skill of good physicians and she came down to the grave. Her funeral was attended by a large concourse of neighbors and friends at the church on Saturday, March 2d., the services being conducted jointly by Jas. Wright and E. Mudge, ex-pastor and pastor of the church the last preaching the sermon. May the devoted life of the deceased inspire all to better living. E. M.

Mrs. Samuel Rappleye was called to Tecumseh, Wednesday, to attend the funeral of her uncle Wm. Pilbeam.

Mrs. L. Rinebold and son Russell, of Addison, visited friends of the village and vicinity from Saturday until Tuesday.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. are preparing a Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap memorial service to be given in a few weeks.

The students of the advanced room enjoyed a surprise on their school mate Miss Nettie Bannister, Friday evening of last week.

Mrs. Florence Lowe fell down stairs one day last week, receiving bruises serious enough to keep her from her regular household duties.

The Adrian Dist. County convention of the home missionary society will be held in the village in May. Dates and program will appear in due season.

Mail Messenger E. A. Palmer moved his family and household effects to Adrian, last week, where he will be more conveniently located with his work.

A few of the members of the Library Association desiring to pursue a course of reading on the subject of Mythology, will meet in the parlors of the Library, Monday evening March 11th, to organize a reading circle. Any members of the Library wishing to pursue the course are invited to meet with them at the appointed time and place.

Prof. Edward Keller, of the Morenci schools, the nominee for county School Commissioner on the Republican ticket, was the guest of T. H. Temple the first of the week. The Prof. is filling his fifth year as Superintendent of the Morenci school, where he has a host of friends. He and Editor Chas. F. Field, of the Tecumseh News, nominee for county School Commissioner on the Democratic ticket, are old school mates. The contest will be a close one, as both candidates are competent for the position.

At 4 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon at the home of Misses Phoeba and Eva Osgood, on North street, occured the marriage of Mr. George Hill, of Raisin and Miss Eva Osgood. Mr. Hill's short acquaintance among us has won the respect of all. The bride, who has spent her young womanhood among us, needs no comments. We are informed that the young couple will begin house keeping at once in our village. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a long and prosperous journey through life.

DR. FRANK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years.
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE MONEY ISSUE.

The tariff question, as a political issue is settled for the present. No further reductions will be possible by the next Congress, neither can Congress carry through any restoration to McKinley duties so long as Grover occupies the White House. For the next two years the money question will be paramount. The following address, issued to the Democrats of the Union by the friends of bimetallism has the true ring, and we commend it to every voter, of whatever name, who believes in the money of the people:

To the Democrats of the United States:

We, the undersigned Democrats, present for your consideration the following statement:

We believe that the establishment of gold as the ordinary standard, and the elimination of silver as a full legal tender money will increase the purchasing power of each dollar, add to the burden of all debts, decrease the market value of all forms of property, continue and intensify business depression, and finally reduce the majority of the people to financial bondage.

We believe that no party can hope for enduring success in the United States so long as it advocates a single gold standard, and that the advocacy of such a financial policy would be injurious, especially to a party which, like the Democratic party, derives its voting strength from those who may without reproach be called the common people; and we point to the overwhelming defeat of the party in 1894, to the opposition aroused by the veto of the seignorage bill, and to the still more unanimous protest against the issue of gold bonds as proof that the Democratic party can be brought to the support of the gold standard policy.

We believe that the question will be the paramount issue in 1896, and will so remain until it is settled by the intelligence and patriotism of the American voters.

We believe that a large majority of the Democrats of the United States favor bimetallism and realize that it can only be secured by the restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present ratio and we assert that the majority has and should assert the right to control the policy of the party and retain the party name.

We believe that it is the duty of the majority and within their power to take charge of the party organization and make the Democratic party an effective instrument in the accomplishment of needed reforms.

It is not necessary that Democrats should surrender their convictions on other questions in order to take an active part in the settlement of the question which at this time surpasses all others in importance.

We believe that the rank and file of the party should at once assert themselves in the Democratic party and place it on record in favor of the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present ratio of 16 to 1, as such coinage existed prior to 1873, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation, such gold and silver coin to be a full legal tender for all debts, public and private.

We urge all Democrats who favor the financial policy above set forth to associate themselves together and impress their views on the party organization; we urge all newspapers in harmony with the above financial policy to place it at the head of the editorial column and assist in the immediate restoration of bimetallism.

The following extract, taken from the proceedings of the late Democratic State Convention, is another straw, showing which way the wind blows. The report of the committee on resolutions was received through its chairman, H. A. Hoyt, of Muskegon. The report, which was adopted amid loud applause, was as follows:

The Democratic party of Michigan, in convention assembled, hails with delight the rapidly increasing sentiment in favor of the restoration of silver to the position it so long held in the monetary system of our country, unqualifiedly declares in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold with full legal tender power and a ratio of 16 to 1, and invites every patriotic citizen of Michigan, regardless of previous party affiliation, to join us in an imperative demand for immediate legislation to that end, and without regard to the position of any other nation in respect thereto.

We are happy to announce that although Ed. Hollister's business arrangements are such as to make it necessary to move his family to Norfolk Ohio, he will still retain the controlling interest in the Tecumseh Celery Company here. They have sold the 11 acres on the north side of the road to W. H. Crane of Adrian, but still have 45 acres on the south side, where the house, packing house, etc are located. Mr. Hollister will have an experienced man look after this farm, and he himself will be here frequently. While the condition of the land in Ohio, is in crude condition, and requires his personal attention, he does not intend to neglect his interests here, but will work this land for all there is in it and looks forward to a good season's business.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

(Edited by the Tecumseh W. C. T. U.)

"The Dive."

People who read criminal news are familiar with the word "dive" but its meaning has not been known to everybody. In the proceedings of the Lexow committee, investigating the political crimes of New York, the word often occured, and some one asked the New York Tribune to define it. Here is its answer:

It is a low resort for criminals and degraded people, where vice is encouraged, where crime is freely committed, where there is no honor, no manhood, no decency, where people are robbed, drugged and sometimes murdered; where the law is laughed at, because protection from it is openly bought from officials whose duty it is, and whose pride it should be, to enforce it. A "dive," is a place where sin pays regular wages to police officials, where money is wrung from depraved men and abandoned women to buy handsome country places and fine yachts for corrupt blackmailers of high rank. A "dive" is a place where every crime can exist if it has the price to pay for its existence; where there is no vice which revolts a bully and a braggart, if that vice yields a revenue to him. A "dive" is the counting-room of a police sergeant, captain, or inspector, whose chief business and highest purpose is to deal in shame.

The Laboring Man and the Saloon.

The term employed includes all those who perform manual labor. They comprise the great bulk of our citizens and voters. All are interested in their character and welfare. I state the exact truth when I say that the saloon is the curse of the laboring man. Wherever he predominates the saloons are most numerous. According to information I deem reliable there are at least 700 saloons in Detroit supported by laboring men. Concede that each takes in at least $3,000 per year—and that is probably a low estimate—and it means the expenditure of $2,100,000 annually in the saloons by the laboring men. The great bulk of this is an absolute waste of money for which no valid consideration is returned. Fifty per cent. of it saved and placed in the savings banks or used at home would largely relieve your good, thrifty and temperate citizens from the demands of public and private charity. The superintendent of a large public work near Chicago, which employs many hundred workmen, is my authority for the statement that more than two-thirds of the orders and checks issued to the workmen are presented for payment by the saloonkeepers who infest the vicinity. Such a condition is disgraceful to the laborers and their employers.

And what are the laboring men doing to relieve themselves from this curse and stigma? Are there any organizations among them for that purpose? Is it one of the rules of the many secret labor organizations that their numbers must be temperate? If so, no such rule has ever been made public, to my knowledge. The first duty of these organizations is to insist that each and every member shall be temperate, and to place a ban upon intoxication and the patronizing of saloons. It is a duty they owe to themselves, their families, their health, their cause, and the state. When from sixty to eighty per cent. of the money now squandered in the saloons shall be saved for legitimate uses, labor will, in my judgment, have but little difficulty in obtaining its just rights from capital. Sober, honest, industrious, intelligent and level-headed labor is worth more to capital than that soaked in whisky and beer. Such labor will meet capital on an equal footing. Such labor can present its own case, make its own arguments, and will not need to support walking delegates to act or speak for it. The moral law imposes temperance upon all. When laborers shall have learned this lesson, and shall act upon it, the modern strike will be a thing unknown, except in history.—Hon. Claudius B. Grant of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

PIONEER SOCIAL.

On the eve of Feb. 19th, a pioneer social was held at the home of J. L. Richard in Raisin. John lives on his grand father's old farm, settled in 1833. The house was lighted with tallow candles, various relics of pioneer days were on exhibition, and many present were dressed in pioneer costumes. Reminiscenses of the early settlement of the neighborhood were given by B. I. Laing, S. R. Rogers and Alex. Richard. Old songs were sung by W. E. Doty and others, and altogether the company had a very enjoyable time.

The following was written by Mrs. Lucretia Hall, aged 84 years, and read by her daughter, Mrs. James Lane:

MRS. EDMUND HALL'S JOURNEY FROM NEW YORK TO MICHIGAN.

We came from Steuben Co., N. Y., town of Cohocton, when I was twenty-three years old. I was the oldest of thirteen children. We landed in Detroit at midnight. We all slept in what was called a "feed-bed," in a room for which we paid a dollar for the bare room. The next morning we engaged breakfast at a widow woman's for the whole family, 14 in all. While we were eating breakfast a friend came in and told father that a drove of cattle were just going out and if he would hurry up he might get a yoke of oxen. So taking his advice he procured him a good ox team. He sent word ahead, he wanted us to be ready to continue our journey when he arrived with the team. The widow woman thought we were trying to get away without paying for our breakfast, and she ordered some one to get an officer to hold our bed for security. As Father was near at hand Mother stepped to the door and stated the circumstances. Father came up and patting the widow woman on the shoulder, pleasantly said, "good woman I never cheated any one out of a penny in my life, do you suppose I would begin now, and with a widow woman, too?" So after paying our bills we started on our journey. A horse team going ahead with a load of goods, and Father following after with the ox team. As many of the family as could find room in the wagon rode with Father, the rest walking part of the distance, then changing with those that were riding. I blistered my feet. In the load ahead was a box of beans, and, as their team traveled much faster than ours, we tracked them by the beans which fell through the cracks, clear to Mr. Wickwire's.

Uncle Daniel Raymond had bought Father a farm, but when he came to see it, he said he would go back east again rather than settle in that place. But arrangements were made and Father bought the farm on which A. D. Macham now lives. There was a shanty on the farm with only one room in it, 16x24, in which we could eat, sleep and receive our company. It was parlor, sitting room, dining room, kitchen and bed room all in one. The roof leaked in ten places right over my bed. I told my sister I was going to fulfill the scriptures, so I took up my bed and walked. Quite frequently our callers were rattle-snakes, etc., and there would come floating to us on the mid-night air, the howling of wolves and wildcats. We had one other building on the farm and that was a pig pen.

At one time Mother sowed some peas, and one of the hens got in and scratched up and ate nearly all of them. So Mother, loath to lose her peas, killed her hen, and recovering her peas from the crop, sowed them again and cooked the hen for dinner.

As dinner is nearly over and nearly time for supper, I will close by praising the Lord for what he has done for me.

He Died Laughing.

Very seldom a man dies laughing, but it occurs often when they witness that funny comedy drama, "For a Million," which will be at the opera house next Thursday evening, March 14. Admission, 15 and 25 cents. No extra charge for reserved seats. "For a Million" will be produced by home talent for the benefit of the Independent Order of Orientals.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

The meeting of the club was held Tuesday eve. at J. W. Gillespie's. A good attendance of members were present and a pleasant evening was spent. All who assisted with the program did well. Mrs. Will Rector, I. H. Schreder and John Boyce gave good select readings. Bert Rector recited a temperance piece nicely. Mrs. Coddington's part was well taken. Earl Rector and Clare Gillespie acted a cute dialogue. The charade by Mrs. F. D. Rector, assisted by Cora Halsted and Andrew Kehoe was well acted and took some time to guess. The question box was well filled and proved very interesting. The various questions were spoken upon by B. B. Gillespie, A. P. Coddington, J. Everhart, Philip Kehoe, O. B. Finch, I. H. Schreder, J. T. Boyce and others, and ranged from the advisability of planting roots instead of corn and the building of silos to the dispensing with the upper house of Congress. After the questions were all answered or disposed of in some way, the club adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, March 19, with Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Finch. Program for the evening as arranged by the committee:

Singing by the club.
Dec.—Frank Gillespie.
Review of the Winter's work, what have we learned?—Mrs. F. D. Rector.
Rec.—Lovina Schreder.
Music.
Quotations from favorite authors, by each member, the others to name the author.
Select Reading—Mrs. J. F. N. Bowen.
Hash—Mrs. John Schreder.
Question—What is the best time and manner of planting potatoes; opened by J. W. Gillespie.

OBITUARY.

William Pilbeam died at his home in Tecumseh, Michigan, March 3d., 1895, in his 83d. year. He was born in the county of Kent, England, May 14, 1812. He came to Michigan at the age of 20 and worked at the carpenter's trade. Among the first buildings of his construction one now stands on the farm of Sanford Hause, finished about the time of the marriage of Mr. Pilbeam to Miss Hannah Hause, Oct. 8th., 1842. In 1852 he settled on his new farm of 200 acres in Macon, where in 1866 the partner of his life was taken from him, after her well spent life as a fond mother, leaving him with twelve children. In due time he married Mrs. Betsy Dorrel, a widow with four children, who, together with their thirteen children, survives him. The most of his children attended the funeral, six of his sons, namely, Thomas Jefferson, Edgar, Edward, Benjamin Franklin, Almond and Eugene, acting as pall bearers; Rev. J. P. Varner officiating. At one time the deceased joined the church, but, for reasons best known to himself, afterwards withdrew and resolved to live and work out his own salvation by being a man, observing the golden rule, paying his honest debts and keeping sacred his word with fellow man. After a life well spent in providing a good home for his family he comes down in peace to the grave and now rests by the side of his first wife, in Lake Ridge cemetery.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

Better AND Cheaper.

THE ROYAL BAKING POWDER is more economical than other brands because of its greater leavening strength, as shown by both the U. S. and Canadian Government Reports.

The other baking powders contain from 20 to 80 per cent. less leavening gas than the ROYAL. So the ROYAL, even should it cost more than the others, would be much the cheaper.

In addition to this the superior flavor, sweetness, wholesomeness and delicacy of the food raised by ROYAL BAKING POWDER would make any difference in cost insignificant.

Highest of all in leavening strength.—

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

For a Million.

For a Million next Thursday evening.

Charles Avery, of Jackson, was here Monday.

Remember Charles L. Davis will be here March 18.

Watch out for the program for Chocolate Tea next week.

Miss Nan Grey visited Adrian friends several days the past week.

Mrs. Robert Moore has returned from her visit with Toledo friends.

A. W. Slayton is looking after his Detroit lumber yard this week.

Encourage your home talent by filling the opera house, March 14th.

Miss Cora Reynolds, of Detroit, is visiting her cousin, Carrie Smallidge.

Mrs. E. A. Keyser returned from Adrian yesterday and will now complete her visit with Tecumseh friends.

All who have heard the Elsie Quartette will surely hear them again. Go to the opera house and hear them March 21st.

Next Sunday night Rev. J. P. Varner of the Methodist church, will have for his subject: "The Bible an Inspired Book."

Dan Hubbard returned from Hartford Friday night. He left his little daughter, Goldie much better and on the road to recovery.

E. T. VanDeMark, of Chicago, was in town Monday, and made the HERALD office a pleasant call. He came over for a little visit with his people at Clinton.

Frank Davidson is kept hustling these days filling appointments at auction sales. He has one Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week, and is now billed for three week after next. Frank is in great demand these days.

Stepping into J. C. Hazlett's establishment yesterday we were surprised to see such a gem of a store. Although Johnnie has always carried a fine stock of cloths, he has outdone himself this season. He has pantings, suitings, etc., in all grades and styles, at prices that will surprise you.

Geo. W. Mead has just invented an independent wire tightener, single or double ratchet, of 1-4 inch to 10 feet draw of slack wire; can be used in front or rear of end posts, or in center of fence, upon barb, cable or smooth wire, without cutting wire. It can also be used to splice broken wire. Price, 10 cents each; special rates by the dozen.

There will be two tickets in the field for the village election this spring. This no doubt will bring out a much larger vote than has been cast for some years. The two caucuses were held at the council rooms Monday afternoon. Those who responded to the call of Corporation caucus place before you the following ticket:

President—Joseph H. Smith.
Recorder—Will. J. Ingersoll.
Treasurer—Geo. W. Knapp.
Trustees—James A. Boyd, Daniel T. Hall, Henry Heesen.
Assessor—Perry Hosmer.

And those responding to Citizens caucus presented:

President—George Heesen.
Recorder—Robert Moore.
Treasurer—George W. Marsden.
Trustees—B. F. Snyder, Elmer Hause, James Lowry.
Assessor—Horace Weller.

Both tickets are composed of good men. No doubt the people generally will be better satisfied to have more than one ticket.

For a Million.

E. F. Kirchgessner was in Clinton Wednesday.

Miss Belle Ogden was down from Clinton Monday.

Geo. S. Tiffany left Tuesday for a business trip to New York City.

Miss Grace Gillespie is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Vern Roberts, of Tipton, this week.

Miss Agnes Woodward has gone to Detroit where she will remain several months.

Will Osborn attended a reception at Adrian Wednesday, given by the Odd Fellows.

Miss Nellie Heesen went to Ypsilanti yesterday to care for her sister, Grace, who is ill.

Chas. L. Davis will be seen as Alvin Joslyn at the opera house Monday, eve, March 18th.

Miss Lizzie Russell, who has been quite ill for a week or more, is convalescing slowly.

Regular meeting of the Blue Lodge F. & A. M. this evening. There may be degree work.

Mrs. C. M. Brown expects her mother, Mrs. E. L. Hurd, of Tuscola, Illinois, next week for a visit.

Rev. Jas. Hagerman has been spending the week at Cincinnati, O. He is expected home to-morrow.

Jim Riley, having decided to learn to weave, went into the Woolen Mill at Clinton Monday morning for that purpose.

Another Arcanum party was held at the residence of Mr. Al VanWinkle, Wednesday evening. It was a most pleasant occasion.

Prof. Edward Keeler, of Morenci, one of the nominees for County Superintendent of Schools, was in town Tuesday and paid the HERALD a call.

Prof. Norris with his trained dogs gave performances at the opera house Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon and evening. They were very satisfactory.

Charley Reed, of the HERALD office, was presented with a giant lead pencil by Geo. Adamson. Geo. has received a deserved credit mark. This last "just for fun."

John Osborn was called to Chicago Sunday by the serious illness of his mother. Owing to her age being 85, her recovery is doubtful, the disease being pneumonia.

Rev. C. M. Brown gave his illustrated lecture on Japan, at Erie, Monroe county, Monday evening. He run the lantern himself on this occasion, but thinks it a little too much.

At Morenci, Monday, a ceremony will be performed which unites for life two of our young people of Tecumseh. We will mention no names at this time for it would be a breach of confidence.

The young people of the M. E. church will give a maple sugar social, Friday evening, March 22. In connection with the social, will be a debate. Full particulars of debate will be announced next week.

Charles W. Dibble, of Ridgeway, has of late been quite unfortunate. Some time since he lost his watch, and a day or two ago lost a pocketbook containing $35. We hope he will be able to recover both.

John C. Hazlett has worked a great transformation in his place of business. The interior has been repapered and repainted and he has now a model tailoring establishment. The work was done by George Matteson.

The firm of Jones & Rogers has been dissolved, Mr. Rogers having sold out his interest to Mr. Jones. Jimmie will continue the business at the old stand. He will have something to say to you next week. Wait and watch for it.

From yesterday's Manchester Enterprise we learn that there is lying in the vault at that place the remains of five persons whose average age was 85 years, viz: Mr. Coon, 83, Mr. Carr, 86, Mr. Hendershot, 83, Mr. Hudson, 85 and Mrs. Whedon, 88.

An educational rally will be held at Blissfield, on Saturday, March 16th, under the management of School Commissioner Field. A very interesting program is being prepared, and all who are interested in education are cordially invited to attend.

There will be more interest taken in the Corporation election this spring than last for there are two tickets before the people, both of which are composed of good men and representative citizens. Whichever may be elected the interests of the community will be carefully guarded and the affairs economically conducted.

B. C. Knapp and W. S. Osborn are opening a machinery depot at Heesen's old stand. They will handle the Deering harvesters, mowers, horse rakes, Arbuckle, Ryan & Co.'s engines, heaters, etc., besides a general line of farming implements, binding twine, etc. They expect soon to be in shape for business. Give them a call.

In the death of Mrs. Geo. Oliver, of Ridgeway, a most estimable woman has gone to her final reward. She was a resident of Tecumseh before her marriage and her old friends here will sorrow with the bereaved husband and family over their great loss. She leaves the record of a life well spent as a heritage to those who are left behind in this vale of tears.

For a Million.

Go and hear Prof. DeMotte tomorrow evening.

Read the auction sale notices on the eighth page.

Walter C. Burridge is attending Court this week at Adrian.

May De Wolf returned from her Detroit visit Monday.

Thos. Elliott and J. C. Hazlett were Adrian visitors yesterday.

There was a big crowd at the Baptist church supper last evening.

The King's daughters convened Monday evening with Miss Ines Thorpe.

Give the Princes of the Orient a rousing benefit next Thursday evening.

S. E. Jackson, of Weston, has procured a patent on a potato bug catcher.

Miss Etta Thorpe has returned from her extended visit with Detroit friends.

The C. F. P. H. Club met at the home of Ed. Putnam's Tuesday evening last.

Go to the Chocolate Tea and hear the Elsie Quartette, Thursday eve, March 21st.

J. C. Wiesinger, of Adrian, was in town yesterday, taking orders for awnings.

Mrs. David Haggart, Sr., of Clinton, visited her daughter, Mrs. Snell this week.

Met Conklin goes to Detroit Monday to serve as juror in the United States court.

Miss Jennie Waterson, of Adrian, was the guest of Mrs. John Linton over Sunday.

Mrs. J. S. Kies, of Clinton, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Field, since Tuesday.

Lena Hardenburg attended St. John's Episcopal Church at Clinton Sunday morning.

Geo. Codling, of Morenci, is in town today visiting his brother Robert and calling on friends.

Don't fail to see the comedy, "For a Million," at the opera house next Thursday evening.

Mrs. Mary Codling and daughter, Mrs. Hattie Keyser, were calling on friends here Monday.

Mrs. Laura Tuttle, of Clinton, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. G. Cook, from Tuesday until Thursday.

Mrs. Robert Service, of Clinton, is now making her home here with her mother, Mrs. James Gregg.

Remember Prof. J. B. De Motte's lecture Saturday evening. It will be one of the best entertainments of the whole course.

Peter Ridgely has been on the sick list this week. John Campbell has been taking his place in the News office.

Don't fail to see the villain get in his work "For a Million" at the opera house Thursday evening next. It will be grand.

Mrs. Martin Usher, of Manchester, an aunt of Mrs. Al Paxon, was called to Waterloo, Iowa, by the dangerous illness of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Edwards.

One of the best farms in this county, located only two miles from Tecumseh, can be bought for just half its cost. This is a rare bargain. Call at this office for full particulars.

Chas. H. Heck has just placed on the south end of his Steam Mill a very tasty sign bearing his name. It is done in smelt and Theo. P. Wood was the artist. It is a dandy; call and see it.

Special services will be held at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning, to which all are invited. In the evening the fifth lecture on the "Wonderful Nazarine" will be given.

Quite a number of Odd Fellows attended the 50th. anniversary of Adrian Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F., and were present at the dedication of "Clark Memorial Hall," and also took in the banquet.

Rev. Wellington DePuy came down home Tuesday, Feb. 26th inst., to help his parents celebrate the 50th anniversary of their marriage. As but few of the children could come the party was necessarily small but the day was fair and pleasantly spent and all retired feeling that their parents had had an interesting time, wishing them many more anniversaries of their wedded life.

J. B. Coller exhibited his two legged pig last Friday and Saturday at Heesen's store, and had a good patronage. It is a great natural curiosity and he will doubtless make a profitable venture in showing it.

Last Tuesday Editor Field examined the school near Fruit Ridge in the town of Fairfield, and spent that night with his prohibition opponent for school commissioner, Mr. J. B. Tenbrook. This is rather an innovation upon ordinary political warfare but we have seen no evil effects from it thus far.

The A. F. C. Club met with Will Orr and his wife, Monday. The Royal Bumper and Grand Bouncer were in their glory, as there were two candidates for membership. Will being host had to be a little moderate. We can't see just why we have not been invited to join.

KNOWLEDGE
Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

LANSING, Mich., March 1.—Detroit now has a new health board. Gov. Rich has appointed ex-Representative H. P. Dorock, Edwin O. Van Husen, Dr. Oscar Lesuere, a homeopath, and Dr. Howard W. Longyear, of the old school. The appointees will serve one, two, three and four years, in the order named. Other appointees are as follows:

William H. Lockerby, Quincy, member state street and railroad crossing board; James M. Shepherd, Cassopolis, member board of corrections and charities; John Northwood, New Lathrop, and E. P. Grabill, Greenville, members soldiers' home board; William McPherson, Howell, trustees industrial school for boys; H. H. Osborn, Kalamazoo, and E. N. Hates, Moline, trustees Kalamazoo asylum; John Haines, Menominee, member board of control of the Marquette prison; Nathan B. Hayes, Mule, member board of control of the Ionia house of correction; Walter S. Eddy, Saginaw, and J. J. Goodyear, Ann Arbor, trustees Pontiac asylum.

LANSING, Mich., March 1.—The senate on Thursday passed bills prohibiting the name of a candidate appearing on more than one ticket on the official ballot; prohibiting the interfering of first cousins, and requiring mutual fraternal beneficiary associations to deposit a guaranty fund of $5,000 with the state treasurer.

LANSING, Mich., March 2.—Senator McLaughlin Friday introduced a resolution providing for final adjournment of the legislature May 8. It is the purpose of the legislators to set an early date for adjournment and then work to that mark. The Senate Friday agreed to a bill which provides a fine of $100 or imprisonment for sixty days for giving Sunday theatrical entertainments. The senate passed a bill authorizing the Toledo & Ann Arbor Railroad company to organize as a Michigan road.

LANSING, Mich., March 6.—The senate, in committee of the whole, considered the municipal commission charter bill for fourth-class cities, one of those prepared by a commission authorized by the legislature of 1891, intended to cover all the necessary charter legislation and obviate the necessity of coming to the legislature. Serious opposition has arisen against those bills applying to third and fourth-class cities. A public hearing will be had on the bills Thursday evening.

House.

LANSING, Mich., March 1.—The house passed a joint resolution submitting to the people at the spring election the question of increasing the salary of the attorney general to $3,500. The senate has also passed this resolution.

LANSING, Mich., March 2.—A bill passed the house Friday providing for the incorporation of camping, outing and fishing clubs, authorized to hold not to exceed 1,000 acres of land.

LANSING, Mich., March 5.—The most important legislation Monday was an agreement by the house in committee of the whole to repeal the clause in the general tax law of 1891 providing for the taxation of mortgages and land contracts.

LANSING, Mich., March 6.—The house, in committee of the whole, Tuesday agreed to bills for the appointment of a state board of military examiners to pass upon the qualifications of line officers; allowing women to become trustees of Baptist churches; appropriating $46,500 for the school for the blind. In committee of the whole the house agreed to the bill providing for the payment of 50 per cent. of state and county taxes in July and the balance in December, instead of having the entire assessment paid in December as under the present law.

MICHIGAN FARMS.

They Number 177,952—Most of Them Cultivated by Their Owners.

LANSING, March 1.—Secretary of State Gardner issued a census bulletin showing the number of farms of Michigan classified as to tenure and the dairy statistics of the state. The total number of farms is 177,952, of which 149,003 are cultivated by owners, 9,127 rented for a fixed money rental, and 19,752 rented on shares. Compared with the census of 1884 this is an increase of 20,564 in the total number, 10,570 in the number cultivated by owners, 3,470 in the number rented for money and 6,523 in the number rented on shares. During the census year a total of 212,970,373 gallons of milk were produced on farms and the value of milk and cream sold was $2,970,385. A total of 48,951,378 pounds of butter and 306,660 pounds of cheese were made.

THROWN OUT.

Police Eject the Old Health Board of Detroit.

DETROIT, March 5.—For several days the new Detroit health board appointed by the governor has been unable to secure possession of the health building, the old health board, headed by Dr. McLeod, refusing to surrender. Monday night, however, the new board, accompanied by a squad of police, entered the building while the old officials were temporarily absent and took possession. When Dr. McLeod returned he was invited to get out, and refusing was thrown from the building by the police. The latter had come prepared to enter at all hazards, having brought jimmies and crowbars to break in the doors. The new health board appointed Dr. S. P. Duffield health officer.

ROBBERY IS CHARGED.

Clerk of the Morton House, at Grand Rapids, Under Arrest.

GRAND RAPIDS, March 1.—Solon W. Baxter, son of Assistant Fire Marshal Baxter, night clerk of the Morton house, was arrested as he was boarding the train for Hot Springs, Ark., for robbing guests and the safe of the Morton house of diamonds. When taken into custody by Detectives Smith and Barr and searched, it was found he had $400 worth of diamonds concealed under the sweatband of his hat. He also had $61, a part of which is said to have been taken from the Morton house safe.

Michigan Foresters Elect Officers.

Narrow Escape of Ice Boaters.

MENOMINEE, March 5.—A party of ice boaters, consisting of Secretary Gibbs, of the Kirby Carpenter company, and Chief of Police Lemieux and nine boys, sailed into an open place in the ice near Green island Monday morning. One of the boys, named Belanger, nearly drowned. It took half an hour to reach the lighthouse, and several of the party nearly perished.

A Teamster Killed.

DETROIT, March 3.—Robert Trudell, teamster, aged 40 years, was struck and instantly killed by a motor car at Jefferson and Bowen avenues Saturday. Trudell had a glass eye and evidently did not see the approaching car. Trudell leaves a wife and eight children destitute.

THE ADVENTISTS.

Proceedings of the Annual Conference at Battle Creek.

BATTLE CREEK, March 3.—The Adventists' conference voted to send missionaries to Zambesi, Africa; Fiji Islands, New Guinea, South America and Trinidad. One hundred missionaries were given credentials and fifty men licensed to preach in all parts of the world.

BATTLE CREEK, March 4.—Religious liberty work occupied the Adventists' conference Sunday. Resolutions were adopted urging renewed zeal in that work and an increased circulation of literature; also that a competent man be retained at the national capital in the interest of the denomination. A resolution was adopted that documents be printed explaining the right of appeal from supreme court decisions touching constitutional questions.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., March 5.—The general conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, which has been in session here for three weeks, closed at noon Monday. Delegates were present from all parts of the world and much important business has been transacted.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS.

They Name a State Ticket at Saginaw—Free Silver Their War Cry.

SAGINAW, Mich., March 1.—The democratic state convention met here Thursday. The following ticket was named:

For Supreme Judge—John W. McGrath, of Detroit, the present chief justice.

For Regents of the State University—S. D. Brooks, of Mount Pleasant, and C. J. Pallthorpe, of Petoskey.

The convention was enthusiastically in favor of free silver and unanimously adopted the following resolutions as its only platform:

"The democratic party of Michigan in convention assembled hails with delight the rapidly increasing sentiment in favor of the restoration of silver to the position it so long held in the monetary system of our country, and unqualifiedly declares in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold with full legal tender power and at a ratio of 16 to 1, and invites every patriotic citizen of Michigan, regardless of previous party affiliations, to join us in an imperative demand for immediate legislation to that end, without regard to the position of any other nation with respect thereto."

TORRENT RELEASED.

Judge Padghan Says the Charge Against Him Is Insufficient.

MUSKEGON, March 1.—Padghan, sitting in the Muskegon circuit court, ordered the discharge from custody of Millionaire John Torrent, who was held on a charge of contempt of court. Mr. Torrent, who was president of the Muskegon Booming company, was charged with being implicated with others in spiriting away a witness in the sensational Montgomery booming case, and those interested in pushing the case against him had him arrested for contempt. The court held the showing insufficient and ordered Mr. Torrent released. Mr. Torrent now announces his intention of moving against those who got him into trouble with the court. The move will take the form of civil or criminal proceedings, probably the former, and in that event, with damages placed at $50,000.

A RECEIVER'S REPORT.

Peters Salt and Lumber Company Will Soon Be on Its Feet Again.

GRAND RAPIDS, March 4.—The Michigan Trust company, as receiver of the R. G. Peters Salt & Lumber company, which failed four years ago with liabilities over $1,000,000, filed its fourth annual report Saturday. The receipts for the year were $1,256,999, including $219,684 brought forward, and the disbursements were $1,136,787. Of the disbursements, $30,000 was paid the receiver as salary and $232,918 debts were paid. It is expected the affairs of the embarrassed concern will be closed up this year and that after paying all debts a substantial surplus will be left for Mr. Peters.

VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE.

Death at Washington of Charles Lanman, Author and Artist.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Charles Lanman, a well-known writer and traveler, died at his home Monday night from heart disease, aged 81 years.

[Mr. Lanman was born in Michigan, served ten years in a New York business house and held editorial positions on the Monroe (Mich.) Gazette, the Cincinnati Chronicle and the New York Express. He was librarian of the war department, and in 1850 became private secretary to Daniel Webster. Later on he held several government positions and in 1866 became secretary of the Japanese legation, holding that office until 1882, since which time he has been engaged in writing and painting. Mr. Lanman was the author of about twenty-five published works, and some of his landscape paintings have attracted attention. He was the first person to penetrate the Saguenay region.]

CHUROH BURNED AT POSEN.

One of Two Warring Factions Said to Have Caused the Fire.

ALPENA, March 6.—Fire Tuesday morning destroyed the large brick Polish Roman Catholic church at Posen, near here, with a loss of $30,000. The evidence points strongly toward one faction of the congregation as the cause of the fire. For several years a bitter fight has been carried on between the two factions, during which the priest and several parishioners have lost valuable property in incendiary fires. Recently a pitched battle occurred between the two parties, in which a number of heads were cracked and much blood spilled. The insurance on the church aggregates $5,000.

Maccabees Plead Guilty.

GRAND RAPIDS, March 6.—The trial of the Valley City Tent of Maccabees for rebellious conduct in holding a mass meeting to protest against the removal of Great Record Keeper Boughton and in sending out circulars urging that a special review be held was completed Tuesday, coming to a sudden end by the tent's admitting everything. The defense set up is that there is nothing in the laws of the order forbidding such proceedings. The commission appointed to try the case took it under advisement, and will meet again April 4 to pronounce judgment.

NEWCK PARAGRAPHS.

Interesting Information from Points in Michigan.

Quick & Graham's sawmill near Battle Creek, Mich., burned, causing a loss of $5,000.

The Northwestern Wholesale Cedarmen's association was organized Friday at Menominee.

AT REST.

Funeral of the Late Adjutant-General Eaton Occurs at Paw Paw.

LANSING, March 3.—The funeral of the late Adjt. Gen. Charles L. Eaton took place in the house of representatives at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, and despite the early hour at which it was held there was a large crowd in attendance. Secretary of State Gardner preached a touching sermon and paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of the deceased soldier. Eight past commanders of the Michigan department G. A. R. acted as pallbearers, and the remains were removed to the Michigan Central depot under a large military escort. The train left for Paw Paw at 9 o'clock, and the burial took place in the village in the afternoon.

New Adjutant General.

LANSING, Mich., March 5.—The vacancy caused by the sudden death last week of Adjt. Gen. Charles L. Eaton was filled by the appointment of Col. William S. Green, of Detroit, ex-president of the state military board and past commander of Detroit post, G. A. R. The new adjutant general was a Massachusetts artilleryman and has an extensive acquaintance among the members of the national guard. William W. Cook, lieutenant colonel and assistant adjutant general, will be retired.

A TOO MODEST WOMAN!
Is such a thing possible?
It is.
Many a woman suffers, month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.
Foolish do you say?
No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. Both the book and medicine may be obtained either direct from the Zoa-Phora Medicine Co., at Kalamazoo, Mich. or through your druggist. All correspondence is kept strictly confidential.

Which—Man or Shirt?

Has the man grown, or has the flannel shrunk? Usually, the shirt is to blame. No, not this either—but the way it's washed.

Flannels ought to be washed with Pearline. If you're buying new ones, start right. Have them washed only with Pearline (direction on every package) and they won't shrink. For the old ones, though, Pearline can't make them any larger, but begin with it at once; it will keep them from growing smaller. It will keep them from the wear of the washboard, too.

Danger As one wash is sufficient to ruin flannels, great care should be exercised as to the use of the many imitations which are being offered by unscrupulous grocers or peddlers. Pearline is never peddled. 314 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

WINTER.

Old Winter is a sturdy one,
And lasting stuff he's made of.
His flesh is firm as iron stone,
There's nothing he's afraid of.

He spreads his coat upon the heath,
Nor yet to warm it fingers.
He scouts the thought of aching teeth
Or chilblains on his fingers.

Of flowers that bloom or birds that sing
Full little cares or knows he.
He hates the fire and hates the spring
And all that's warm and cozy.

But when the fox's bark aloud
On frozen hill and river
Wakes round the fire the people crowd
And rub their hands and shiver;

When frost is splitting stone and wall,
And trees come crashing after,
Then bursts he out in laughter.

His home is by the north pole's strand,
Where earth and sea are frozen.
His summer house we understand
Is Switzerland he's chosen.

Now from the north he's hither hied
To show his strength and power,
And when he comes we stand aside
And look at him and cower.

THE GOOD UN.

An air of gloom pervaded the store. Outside the rain came pattering down. It ran in torrents off the porch roof and across the entrance made a formidable moat, which had been temporarily bridged by an old box. It gathered on the limbs of the leafless trees and poured in steady little streams upon the backs of the three forlorn horses that, shivering under waterlogged blankets, stood patiently, with hanging heads, at the long hitching rail. Within everything was dry, to be sure, but the firewood, which was damp and would not burn, so the big egg stove sent forth no cheerful rays of heat and light. Out from its heart came the sound of sizzle and splutter as some isolated flame attacked a piece of water soaked hickory. It seemed to have conveyed its ill humor to the little group around it.

The Tinsmith arose from the nail keg upon which he had been seated, walked disconsolately to the door and gazed out through the begrimed glass at the dreary village street. He stood there a moment and then lounged back to the group about the stove, and as he rubbed his hands on the pipe in a vain effort to absorb a little heat he grumbled:

"This here rain's upset all my calkerlations. I was goin ter bile termorrer, but you uns don't ketch me makin cider on sech a day as this. Me weemen say'd thet they'd hev th' schnitz done up terday, an we could start th' kittles airly in th' mornin. Now, all this time is loss."

The lad departed. The chronic loafer leaned back on two legs of his chair and said, "Speakin of apple butter bilin remin's me of a good un I hed on me missus las' week."

"Et allser remin's me," interposed the tinsmith, "thet I met Abe Scissors up ter preachin last Sunday, an he was wond'rin when you was goin ter return his copper kittle."

"Abe Scissors needn't git worrit 'bout his kittle. I've a good un on him as well as on th' missus. His copper"—

The farmer, who was almost hidden from view by the stove, at this juncture leaned forward in his chair and interrupted: "But Abe Scissors ain't got no kittle. Thet there' '—

"Let him tell his good one," cried the teacher. "He's been trying it every night this week. Let's get done with it."
